"I could write long and enthusiastically of a city filled with reminiscences of my childhood and discourse on the beauty of its architecture and the splendour of its site. Architecture and situation alike have combined to make it one of the most beautiful cities in the world. But, almost as interesting to me as its past glories are its present inhabitants. Two generations have passed since I made my first acquaintance with Bath, but there is not the slightest variation in the characteristics of its inhabitants. It is still as full as ever of gentlewomen of certain and uncertain age, dressed in the serviceable but somewhat unsightly costumes that Englishwomen affect. They perambulate the streets, carrying stout sticks, leading and often being led by toy terriers, and lap-dogs, on whom they seem to lavish quite an inordinate amount of attention and affection. Retired military men, also of certain and uncertain age, many of them apparently of very uncertain livers, toddle to the Pump Rooms to take their daily gulps of the waters, which waters, some humoristic writer said, seemed to him must have the same flavor as liquid heated by warmed flat-irons. I tried them once, years ago, and the unpleasant memory remains.

"I could write reams upon reams about Bath, for the list of the great ones who have lived here seems almost exhaustless. But one has to pass on in the same hurried fashion as a tourist has to speed from place to place. Yesterday I motored to Marlborough, another spot associated with my childhood days, and today to Wells and Glastonbury, the one perhaps boasting the most perfectcathedral in England, and the other associated for all time with the deeds of King Arthur and his knights, and the legend of Joseph of Arimathea and the Holy Thorn. Glastonbury Abbey is a more than interesting place; it is an enthralling relic of primitive Christian England. As I walked today under its ruined arches and listened to the story of the discoveries made in recent years from the lips of the discoverer, Mr. F. Bligh Bond, I was seized with a longing to read once more the story of the good monks of old, and of St. Dunstan, who did so much as a politician and as a man to make the church a power in the land. A funny thing happened whilst I was talking to Mr. Bond. A party of Americans, amongst them a very voluble lady, came up to us and addressing herself to him, said: "Pardon me, Mister, but you were pointed out to us as a gentleman who could tell us when this abbey was built. My husband here says it was erected 48 A.D., and I told him he was sure wrong, that it was older than that and that it was built 48 B.C. Now, ain' I right?" Mr. Bond informed her as politely as possible that the first building, made of wattles, and long since passed out of existence, had been erected by the monks in 48 A.D."

ONLY A COG IN A WHEEL.

A man there was of unusual gifts
Bearing an honored name,
Life came to him with outstretched hands
Proffering wealth and fame;
But he carelessly turned his head away,
The prize made little appeal,
Contening himself with a minor part
He was only a cog in a wheel.

When opportunity knocked at his door,
It found him asleep and deaf;
Long and patiently it waited there,
But he did not come to himself.
His golden chances were wasted like chaff,
He took no account of the real;
Each day a monotonous grind to him—
He was only a cog in a wheel.

In the image of God this man was made,
With power to do and to serve;
Strong of mind and body was he,
But he lacked essential nerve.
So he drifted along from day to day,
Without ambition or zeal,
Playing a dull and nondescript part,
He was only a cog in a wheel.

What place do you fill in life's great machine—
Are you using your gifts aright?
To-day have you wrought some truly fine thing—
Can you claim to have fought a good fight?
Will it surely be said that you "played the game"—
That your life was productive and real?
Or will the world say, as it goes on its way,
He was only a cog in a wheel?

—Grenville Kleiser.

STIRLING AND THE DISTRICT

Disabled Car on the Road—Special Meeting of Plowmen.

STIRLING, Aug. 21.—Early Wednesday morning, when Mr. George Rosebush arose, he observed a disabled car on the roadside near his place. Upon his arrival at the car, he found it contained a man who, at first glance, appeared to be dead. The man had evidently been asleep, or from some other cause unable to steer his car across the bridge, and, instead, ran into a telephone pole, smashing it and the fence nearby, and landing into the ditch near the bank of Rawdon creek. A doctor was summoned and the man aroused, but he wouldn't divulge his name. It was said that he was from Trenton, and when last seen he was hastening in that direction.

Special Meeting.

A special meeting was held Wednesday night in the Agricultural Rooms of the Hastings Plowmen's Association, when there were about thirty present. The front Townships were fairly well represented, coming from as far as Deseronto on the east, and Hoard's in the west. Mr. C. W. Thompson, the president, occupied the chair.

The Government gives a grant of $50 if the Association expends $100 or more in prizes, or half of a sum less than $100.

It is the intention to have a competition for ploughing by young men of five acres on their own farms; a fee of $1.00 would be charged competitors, and this would make them members of the larger association. This competition would be fostered by the Government. The district representative, Mr. Ray Atkin, has the matter in hand.

It was resolved to hold a match this fall open to Hastings County only, and upon a ballot being taken Sidney Township was chosen as the location—a committee to decide upon the particular farm where the match will be held, said committee being the following:—Messrs. F. Mallory, R. Burnett, Clem Ketcheson, Samuel Nicholson and R. Atkin. It was decided to hold the match on Oct. 22.

To obtain funds for prizes to supplement the Government grant, it was decided to canvas the Municipal Councils of each Township as well as interview the Finance Committee of Hastings County. The canvassing committees chosen are:—Samuel Nicholson and Tom Ketcheson for Sidney, Cecil Ketcheson and Clayton Benedict for Thurlow, Messrs McLaurin and Welch for Tyendinaga, Robert Scarlett and Lewis Wilson for Rawdon, A. Downey and Hecter Wood for Huntingdon, James Caskey and Henry Kells for Madoc, J. W. Richardson and Thos. Laycock for Marmora; and the secretary, Mr. Ray Atkin, was instructed to write the Hungerford Township Council for their contribution.

Seventy dollars was received from the different townships mentioned last year, but it is expected that a greater amount will be given this year.

The membership fee was fixed at $1, and the directors of the association in each township are to do the canvassing in their respective townships for members.

The committee to canvass for special prizes are Messrs. Bunnett, Atkins, C. W. Thompson and F. Mallory.

A lunch committee, composed of Messrs. T. Montgomery, E. Atkin, Thos. Solines, F. Mallory and Thomas Ketcheson, was named.

The Standing Committee, to attend to any other business not already specified, is Messrs. R. Bunnett, C. W. Thompson and R. Atkins.

All donations and funds should be in treasurer's hands by October first, so that committee can arrange prizes in various classes.

Mr. Alex. Park, being present, was called upon and gave a short recitation. The meeting then adjourned at call of the president.

Masons at Church.

The Masons of Lodge No. 69 attended church on Sunday for their annual sermon, which was preached to a large congregation by Rev. R. Simpson, minister of St. Andrew's Church, his subject being, "Doing a Little More than Our Duty."

An old resident, in the person of Samuel Patterson, was stricken last Friday while at work in his garden, being found in an unconscious condition, from which he never rallied. The funeral service was held on Tuesday afternoon in the Methodist Church, conducted by Rev. R. Simpson, assisted by Rev. F. Joblin, of Rawdon circuit, and Rev. Mr. Hoskins, of Stirling.

Mr. Patterson was born eighty-one years ago in Rawdon Township, and had spent all his days in Hastings County, dying within ten miles from where he was born. He is survived by his widow, four sons and four daughters. The burial was under the auspices of Stirling Lodge, No. 239, I.O.O.F., of which he had been a member for over thirty years.

Messrs. Charles and Harold VanAllen have disposed of their milk route to Messrs. Hiram and Cowley Ackers, the latter to take possession of the business on September 1st.

Mr. William Waller, who suffered from an attack of blood-poisoning in his face, is getting better.

Mrs. Jane Myers is visiting her sister, Mrs. Faulkner, in Belleville.

Mr. Clinton Hogle, of Trenton, was in town recently.

Mr. Gordon Bailey is home from Belleville Hospital somewhat improved in health.

Mr. Fred Ward left on the morning train, Tuesday, to undergo an operation in Victoria Hospital, Montreal.

Mrs. D. Eldred and daughter, Joan, of Peterboro, returned home at the end of week after having spent some time with friends in this district.

SUNDAY.

He has preached 22,000 sermons—Canon Hay Aitken, England's greatest revivalist. Aged, but in good health, so he may pass John Wesley's record of 27,000 sermons.

Vicar Aitken's observation is that churchgoing habits have been broken down by the invention of the bicycle and automobile. He overlooks golf. "Every new benefit which science has conferred upon us has been used to take men away from the churches."

An exception is radio, which has created an invisible church audience numbering into millions.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

WEENY, THE CIRCUS ELEPHANT

And there, sure enough we re the magic green shoes.

"I wonder if the Fairy Queen will send us on another adventure," said Nancy to Nick, as they ran down to the meadow to play.

"Lets' look beside the stone under the chestnut tree," said Nick.

And there, sure enough, were the magic green shoes, and beside them, a letter. The letter said:

"Dear Twins:

"You have been such good children that I thought you would like to go on a vacation. My good friend, Weeny, the elephant, is going to take a trip around the world, and if you would like you may take the magic shoes and go with him.

"Weeny lives in the jungle and if you put on your magic shoes they will take you to him at once.

"I hope that you will have a nice time and that you will see many interesting things.

"Lovingly yours,
"The Fairy Queen."

"Hurrah!" cried Nick.

"Goody!" cried Nancy.

And into the magic shoes they jumped in a hurry.

Puff, whizz, swish! Away they went through the air like two little comets, until they came to the jungle.

And there was Weeny packing his satchel.

"Hello!" he called. "I thought you would be here soon. The Fairy Queen told me to expect you. Did you bring any peanuts along?"

"We never thought of them," said Nancy, regretfully.

"Well, never mind. It's too late now," said Weeny. "Besides most likely we'll run into a peanut tree."

"Peanuts don't grow on trees," said Nick.

"No, I guess they grow in paper bags," said Weeny. "There! I'm all packed now. I'm not taking much. Only a nighty and a tooth brush and my specks. Hop on my back now and please hold my satchel. I don't think I forgot anything."

Now it is no small matter to hop up on an elephant, but if you have magic shoes you can hop to the moon, so up jumped the Twins and off they started, all three of them on their vacation.

"I think I'll visit my circus friends," said Weeny. "It's far cheaper to visit friends than to go to hotels."

"Oh, were you ever in a circus?" asked Nick.

"Sure, said Weeny. "That's what elephants are for."

"Then why aren't you still " asked Nancy.

"I didn't like to be scrubbed with a broom like an old carpet," said Weeny, "so I ran off."

"How can you cross the sea?" asked Nick. "It's pretty wide."

"The Fairy Queen touched me with her wand and I learned to fly with my ears," said Weeny. "I am also a good swimmer. I can go anywhere."

TOWARD WORLD CITIZENSHIP

In exchanging pulpits as a principal feature of Civic Sunday, the clergy, of the city of Belleville, Ontario, are setting in motion forces which reach far beyond the immediate aim. Three years ago the Belleville Chamber of Commerce suggested a "Better Citizenship Sunday." Then the interchange of pulpits began and the sermons have proved an inspiration to high ideals and more devoted service in the community field. Not only so, but there has resulted greater good fellowship and neighborliness among churches as well as among citizens. Moreover, the exchange of pulpits affected the Church of England, which has permitted the Presbyterian and Methodist pastors to preach in Emmanuel Church, something which would not have been possible except the preachers be avowed friends of church union. Thus the re-union of Christendom as well as the religious and civic unity of a municipality are furthered by a simple and practical act of patriotism.

SWIMMING HEALTHFUL

Vacation days at an end, Mr. Mann was inclined to slip back into his careless routine of living.

"Doing any swimming?" the physical director asked him when they met one day.

"Not since my vacation," answered Mr. Mann.

"That's what they all say. They all go away for two weeks or a month, start getting their physical selves built up and then come home feeling pretty peppy; they go at top speed on the little energy newly acquired or slide back in their chairs and take on a large sized bay window.

"You fellows have an idea that you can get through the year on the two weeks or a month that you use in getting back to nature.

"The least you can do is keep up one form of exercise. For chest, shoulder and body development generally there is nothing like a good course in swimming. It's fine for the wind of gents like yourself; gets you in the habit of breathing more regularly and forces breathing.

There's a good thing about our gymnasium and the relief from the plunge is enough to help you tone up by itself.

Go through a good course of exercises and then jump in the tank. Or get down to the lake or seashore on Sunday if you can. And if there is no place to swim take a good shower and rubdown after your exercise."

A VETERAN LOOKS AHEAD

"I have been associated with Methodist preachers of the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries," says Rev. A. G. Harris of London, Ontario, himself sixty years an ordained minister in Canadian Methodism. Born in Oxford county near Ingersoll in 1841, converted at a camp meeting in 1859 sent to his first circuit at Belmont in 1864, he attended the organization meeting of the Hamilton conference in 1874 after the first great union and its re-organization in 1884 after the first great union and its re-organization in 1884 after the second and final reunion of Methodism. "I've known Methodist preachers of three centuries," he said recently on the occasion of his diamond jubilee in the ministry, "and I can say that we are going into union again, and carry ing into it a rich and glorious heritage."

ANNUAL SOCIAL AT ST. MARTIN'S A BIG SUCCESS

Over Twelve Hundred People Attended Annual Event At Ennismore

A FOWL SUPPER.

Many Attractions Provided For the Afternoon and Evening.

Another of the successful socials that are a yearly feature in the history of St. Martin's Parish, Ennismore, took place yesterday, when some twelve or thirteen hundred people attended the annual social and fowl supper of the township, held in the hall and adjoining grounds of St. Martin's parish.

A very enjoyable afternoon and evening was spent by the throngs of people who attended the event, and patronized the various attractions.

An excellent fowl supper was served in the hall, where the tables, covered with white cloths, were adorned with vases of flowers, and streamers of colored crepe paper extended in long lines over the supply tables on the raised platform.

A bevy of industrious ladies and energetic waitresses had charge of arrangements here and in the basement where the children were served separately. Home made delicacies of every kind loaded the tables.

Out of doors, there were illuminated grounds, where the various booths did a brisk business throughout the fine summer evening. A sale of fancy and useful articles drew a crowd and there were plenty of things of every description on sale. A fish pond, a "housie house" game, a "kill the cat" stand, and a couple of booths, where fruit, ice cream, soft drinks and candy were dispensed, made up the list of attractions.

An unfortunate early casualty of the evening prevented the attendance of the chief actor in a game which always draws an enthusiastic attendance, that of shying balls at a perambulating gentleman of color.

In charge of the lottery booth was Miss Clara Murphy, assisted by the Misses Mary O'Rielley, Reta Cavanagh, Annie Sullivan, Mary Killen and Florence Sullivan. Ticket sellers at this booth included Messrs Ken Killen, James Harrington, M. Crough, Arnold Crough and James McGuire, while Messrs J. J. Duffus and W. Y. Scollard were busy attendants at the sale.

W. F. Cavanagh, assisted by Messrs J. McGuire, Jos. Holland, T. T. Crough, W. Carroll and P. Galvin, were at one both where ice cream and soft drinks were sold, while those in charge of a second where fruit and candy were also on sale, were the Misses Norah Killen and E. A. Murphy, and John Scollard.

Miss Mary McGuire had charge of the fish-pond, Messrs J. J.Morency and Jack Perdue of the "kill the cat stand," and the "housie-house" game was supervised by Messrs Fergus Crowley, Martin Flood and Willie Cavanagh.

In the suppen hall, dozens of ladies, married and single, officiated, assisted by boy and girl pupils of the high school. The general convenor was Mrs. Daniel Cavanagh, with a committee composed of Mesdames J. Johnson, P. Cadigan, M. Geary, Wm. Hawkey, M. Doran. Ladies in charge of the tables were Mesdames M. Sullivan, K. Hickson, P. Murray, J. Shannahan, P. Galvin, Jas. Gifford, and the tables in the basement were placed in charge of Mesdames D. Hickson, D. Costello, P. Twomey, T. T. Crough.

Various ladies assisting in divers capacities included the following: Mesdames J. P. Flood, E. Murphy, R. Killen, M. Twomey, F. Scollard, S. Harrington, James Holland, W. F. Cavanagh, Jas. Garvey, John E. O. Donoghue, John J. Young, B. Flood, Jos. Morissey, T. J. Crough, P. Y. Crowley, Wm. Kearns, Joseph Holland, D. Holland, Wm. Harrington, Geo. McNerney, Jas. Killen, Wm. Young, Ed. Boys assisting included F. Crowley, H. Moloney, J. McGuire, J. Harrington, Jas. Gifford, M. Young, V. Murphy, T. Killen, M. J. Cavanagh, S. Twomey, N. Gannon, J. Young, W. Cavanagh, L. Flood and G. Cavanagh.

Men who assisted at the door and gate and in the supper hall included Messrs. D. Crough, Sr. Jos. Hanran, Wm. Harrington, P. O'Reilley, W. Cavanagh, J. P. Flood, M. Geary J. Costello, D. Hickson, S. Harrington, E. Sullivan, Henry Killen, Jos. Doran, D. Holland and P. Y. Crowley.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Re-union of the Adams Family—Masons Win Ball Game—Personals.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 22. — Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Slush, Mr. and Mrs. William Reynolds and two daughters motored to Thomasburg, Wednesday, to attend a re-union of the Adam's family. Mrs. Reynolds is the daughter of Mrs. Slush. Mr. and Mrs. Adams are not members of the family who held the re-union but were invited on account of bearing the same name.

In the year 1835, three brothers, Johnston Adams, who was Mrs. Slush's father, Edward and James Adams, emigrated from Enniskillen, Ireland and settled on farms at Thomasburg, the land at the time being covered by forest. The three homesteads are still in possession of descendents of the original settlers and the family has so increased that there were over 300 members from all parts of Canada at the gathering.

Preparations had been made to hold the re-union on the farm that had been occupied by the late Edward Adams, and tables to accommodate over 150 guests at one sitting were placed in a grove. Rain, however, made it necessary to change the programme and the crowd adjourned to the village of Thomasburg where the Oddfellow's Hall was rented for the day and dinner was served in that building. There was a game of ball and other athletic sports in which the young people took part.

Mrs. Slush resides with her husband on the farm on the west side just beyound the town limits. Her father, the late Johnston Adams was 27 years old when he settled at Thomasburg and he died 20 years ago at the age of 94. All of his srurviving children were at the reunion.

Off to the West.

Over 40 residents of town and district left on the 6.38 train this morning to work in the harvest fields of the West. Some of these will proceed from Peterboro on the C. P. R. while the remainder will go to Winnipeg by the C. N. R. The C. P. R. for the first time in tis history has attached lunch cars to these harvester excursionist trains where the passengers can purchase meals of something less than prevailing restaurant prices.

FIRE DESTROYED A BETHANY BARN

John Challice's Large Barn and Contents Burned Yesterday at Noon.

BETHANY, Ont., Aug. 22.—Mr. John Challice of the 8th line Manvers, west of the village lost his large barn and contents by fire at noon yesterday. Mr. Challice's son Leslie had just removed three horses from the stables and was hitching them on the binder in a field immediately behind the barn, when he heard his father calling, "The barn is on fire" and rushed to his assistance but nothing could be done. The fire is of unknown origin. Mr. Challice just completed his threshing of fall wheat which was a heavy yield and in addition to the hay crop which was estimated between 50 and 60 tons he lost 1200 bushels of fall wheat 800 bushels of old oats and 200 bushels of barley. The live stock was all out on pasture with the exception of seven pigs which were consumed in the fire. Mr. Challice's loss will be a heavy one although he had insurance on the barn. A thresh ing separator the property of Mr. W. McMasters which was left in the barn from theshing was also burned.

Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy of Niagara Falls, N.Y., are spending a few days the guests of Mrs. Kennedy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wake.

Mr. M. Card of Porterville, Ont., is the guest of his brother Mr. W. Card.

Miss Hannah Staples is visiting her sister, Mrs. F. Galbraith Port Hope, Ont.

Mrs. W. Card who has been holidaying with friends in Belleville has returned home.

Quite a number from here attended the ball game in Peterboro on Wednesday evening.

CONGRATULATES MacDONALD

MELBOURNE, Australia, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press Cable).—Premier S. M. Bruce of Australia has telegraphed Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain congratulating him on the reparations settlement.

Premier Prendergast of Victoria, addressing an assembly of Labour supporters, paid warm tribute to the inspiring example of Premier MacDonald who has done, he said, more to preserve peace in Europe in a few days than others have done in years.

GIRL FOUND DEAD.

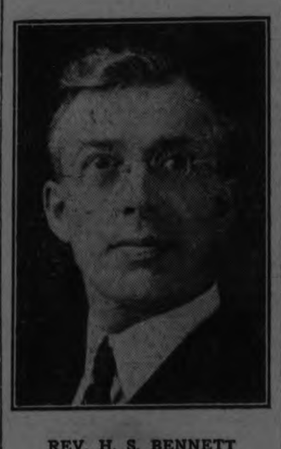
MONTREAL, August 22 (Canadian Press). — Alice Dugel, aged 30, was found dead in her room at 396 St. Lawrence Boulevard yesterday, the discovery being made when a taxi-driver who had been commissioned to drive her to Chambly, asked the proprietor of the house to waken her.

It is thought her eath was caused bp something she had taken to drink last night, and there will be an inquest to-day.

MINISTER HAS A NEW CHURCH

Rev. H. S. Bennett, of Campbellford, Resigns Charge.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 22.—Rev. H. S. Bennett pastor of the Baptist church, has resigned his charge to accept the pastorate of the Church at Springford, near Brantford. He will preach his farewell sermon the last Sunday in August.



REV. H. S. BENNETT

Mr. Bennett who is a young man has spent four successful years in the charge from which he now retires. The church has made steady progress in membership and in contributions under his pastorate and the Sunday School and young people's societies have also prospered. A comfortable residence for the pastor and his family has also been secured on Sebastapol street.

Mr. Bennet is a gradute of McMaster University. Before coming to Campbellford he held pastorates at Virgil, Churso, Que., and at Simcoe in Victoria County. For the past year he has held the position of secretary of the Ministerial Association and always took a prominent part in the discussions. Local clergymen and citizens generally as well as the members of his own church will regret his departure which congratulating him upon being called to so important a charge as the one to which he is going.

H. ROLLINS WON

MADOC, Augusts 22.— The results of the competition for the best standing crop of oats in this district were as follows:

Harcheles Rollins, 94 points.
Jas. A. Caskey, 93 1-2 points.
C. J. Smith, 92 points.
Henry Kells, 91 points.
John Fenn, 90 1-2 points.
J. S. Empey, 89 1-2 points.
Chas. Robinson, 88 points.

There were twenty-seven farmers in the competition, and the judge remarked that these crops were the best and cleanest he had judged this year. Two other farmers received enough points to make them eligible to compete in the Field crop competition classes at the Canadian National and Central Canada Exhibitions, but not sufficient to win one of the prizes given in this section. These men were John Lewis, who had 87 points, and Will Stewart who had 86 points.

Crops Excellent.

The crops are considered excellent, plump, heavy and a great height. There was some smut, and thistles were a source of trouble this year, but no red rust. On the whole the farmers are well pleased with the results of their labour.

Very little threshing has been done so far. Mr. James Caskey has his cutting all done, and to-day threshed his winter wheat and barley. The barley yielded 37 bushels to the acre and the wheat 35 bushels to the acre.

Some of the barley sowed early did not get warm weather at the proper time to bring it to a full head, but despite that drawback prospects are very fair indeed for a good yield.

Fifty To The Acre.

There are several fields of oats in this district that are liable to yield 50 bushels to the acre.

For the most part the Alsike is not dry enough to thresh yet.

Alsike Runs 125 Bushels.

An exceptional yield of Alskie is recorded near Tweed on Mr. Peter Casey's farm. He is reported to have a yield of 125 bushels from 12 acres.

Milk is holding well and cheese is on the gain. The price of hogs is raised slightly and are better prospects for live stock.

NEWS OF HASTINGS.

The Death of Estella Baker—Personal Mention.

HASTINGS, August 22. — The death occurred in Montreal on Wednesday evening of Estella Baker, wife of Mr. Charles Summervy. The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon and interment will take place in Warkworth.

Deceased was a sister of Mrs. H. B. Wilson and Messrs Malcolm and William Baker of Hastings.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Thompson and family of Shelburne, are the guests of the former's parents at the amnse.

OBITUARY.

ARTHUR JORY.

LAKEFIELD, August 22.— The death occurred yesterday of Arthur Jory in his sixty-fifth year, after a lengthy illness.

Mr. Jory was born in the township of Douro, the second son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Jory.

He is survived by his widow and two daughters, Mrs. Roy MacDonold and Mrs. Glenn Madill, the former of Meachim, Sask., and the latter of Ottawa. Five brothers also survive, Samuel of Brandon, Man., Albert of Oshawa; Edward of Refina; Robert of Lakefield and Frank of Beamsville. Three sisters are: Mrs. Joseph Lemay; Mrs. James Millar of Lakefield and Mrs. McCloy of Melville, Sask.

Mrs. Madill is expected home to-night. She had accompanied her husband to Dawson City on a trip for the Canadian observatory. Mrs Lemany and Mr. Robert Jory were visiting in the western provinces and are expected home to-morrow.

The funeral will he held on Sunday at 2.30 from the family residence, Douro and internment will be in Lakefield cemetery.

The late Mr. Jory was a staunch and life-long member of Lakefield Methodist church and was well known and highly respcted throughout the community.

BARBARA NEVILLE.

The death occurred last evening of Barbara Edith Neville, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelles Neville, of Montreal, and grandchild of Rev. and Mrs. P. H. Neville, of Peterborough, at the latter's home, corner of Charlotte and Park Streets.

At the present time the father of the deceased is in Bermuda. The child was just one year old, and in the passing of the young life great sorrow is brought to the parents and grandparents.

The funeral ,which will be private, will be announced later.

CRIMEA VETERAN DEAD.

Sergt. Lawrence O'Keefe Died Yesterday In His 95th Year.

TORONTO, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Veteran of Crimea and of the Sepoy Mutiny, Sergt. Lawrence O'Keefe, died yesterday in his ninety fifth year at his home here.

Son of an officer who fought under Wellington at Waterloo, father of Great War Veterans, a veteran himself of Inkerman and Sebastopol and Delhi, his passing recalls the Great Empire campaigns of a century.

He was born in Queen's County, Ireland, and at the age of 16 spirit of adventure asserted itself and he enlisted in the 61st South Gloucester light infantry.

HURT TWO POLICEMEN

Windsor Man on Suspended Sentence—Fined as Drunk.

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press).—George Clarks, 45-years-old, Tecumseh Road East, convicted a week ago of assaulting a Windsor policeman, was freed on suspended sentence yesterday by Magistrate Gundy in Police Court. Clarke was fined $10 and costs on a drunk charge and ordered to pay $39 and costs on assault charge. Two policemen were injured by Clarke while he was being arrested ten days ago.

MAY DIE OF BEE STINGS

Farmer and His Horses Laid Low by Attack in Chester, N.Y.

MIDDLETOWN, N.Y., Aug. 22.—Stung so severely by bees that he may not survive. Edward D. Green of Chester is suffering to-day at his home, while one of his horses is deranged and will probably die.

Green was running a mowing machine and struck a beehive. Bees by the thousands assailed the farmer and his horses. They would have been stung to death had not persons who were passing rushed to their assistance.

BELIEVED DROWNED.

SARNIA, August 22 (Canadian Press). — Carl Mannier, aged 45, of this city, is missing, and is believed drowned in the St. Clair River.

With Mr. and Mrs. Lets, friends, he went fishing in a small boat last night. He brought his companions ashore early, and returned to the fishing ground.

He was last seen alone in the boat by a Point Edward man about 9.30 o'clock.

When he did not return all night or yesterday, the police were advised, and inquiries are now under way.

Mannier lived at 347 Bright Street and was employed in a local grocery.

LIPS ARE WINDOWS OF PERSON'S BODY

Eyes Capable of Finer Distinctions and Glow With More Intense Fire.

BY GEORGE BRITT

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—"Lips correspond to the body and eyes to the soul in the make-up of facial beauty."

Madame Louise, Chicago beauty expert, draws the analogy.

"Lips are more 'sensuous, more crude in expression," she thinks. "Eyes are capable of finer distinctions and glow with more intense fire. But just as some artists express themselves through mind and soul in poetry, and others through their bodies in the dance, so some people have more beautiful and expressive eyes and others perfect cupid's bow lips.

Careful Attention.

"If one is to be beautiful, the lips must be given just as careful attention as the eyes.

"But that doesn't mean giving them two coats of red paint, like a barn. Often, little or no lip rouge is needed. Too much is always bad. The style today is to use a minimum of rouge and to apply that not by any formula or pattern, but according to individual type and to the occasion at which it is to be worn."

A girl with a full face and high natural coloring may ordinarily use more red on her lips and apply the paint to a larger area than the narrow faced type, according to Madame Louise. Naturalness is the guide, and no admiration for a different style of cupid's bow should lead astray.

For business wear natural, untinted lips are the best sort. The girl should either leave the lipstick at home in the morning or apply it with the lightest, most faintly caressing touch.

With afternoon dress, a suggestion of cherry tint is beautifying.

Extreme Style.

And occasionally, for evening wear with extreme style of costume, it is permissable to widen the bow and deepen the color. But with care.

"The natural beauty of the lips produced by brave, unselfish, spiritual thoughts is more important than paint," Madame Louise says. "Color can do little more than illuminate the expression underneath. And it can't always conceal the undesirable qualities revealed in the lips."

JAPAN BUYS LAW LIBRARIES.

HAMBURG, August 22. — Japan is systematically buying valuable German libraries. The Tohokh University recently acquired the library of Doctor E. Seckel, a celebrated professor, and Tokio University has purchased the 8,000-volume library of Doctor Nubecker, a Heidelberg jurist.

GAVE BIRTH WHILE IN AN AMBULANCE

Mrs. John Scott Gave Birth To Girl on Way To Hospital.

KINGSTON, Aug. 22. —(Canadian Press).— Mrs. John Scott of Sydenham, while on her way to the General Hospital, gave birth to a girl, in an ambulance. The birth took place at the village of Cataraqui and kindly women of that village who had been hurriedly summoned because of the urgency of the case, proved as ministering angels under the circumstances.

Later, the interrupted journey was continued and two women, residents of that place, accompanied the mother and her newly born babe to the hospital and gave every possible assistance until the hospital was reached and medical attention was available. This afternoon it was reported that both mother and child are doing well.

THREE WERE KILLED.

Fast Express Train Struck a Buggy at Level Crossing.

WATERFORD, Aug. 22. — Two aged women and a baby were killed near Port Dover Junction yesterday afternoon when the buggy in which they were driving was struck by a fast express at a level crossing on the Michigan Central line.

Mrs. Robert Bain, aged about 80 years, was driving from her home at Brandy Creek to La Salette, and accompanying her were Mrs. Jane Phillips, also of Brandy Creek, and latters little grand daughter, some seven or eight months old. There is a clear view of the tracks in both directions at the spot.

From the force of impact the buggy was hurled some distance to the side of the road. By the time the train had come to a stop and crew had rushed to the rescue, the three people were dead. The horse was killed instantly.

MADE A SURVEY

Over Three Thousand Unoccupied Stores and Dwellings in Toronto.

TORONTO, Aug. 22.— (Canadian Press). — Investigating the statement of Howard Smith of the Canadian Manufacturers Association that 7,000 stores and dwellings were idle in Toronto, Toronto real estate board, through an accurate survey which covered every street within the ctiy limits, was able to fix number of unoccupied stores and dwellings at 3,916.

STABBED WITH KNIFE.

Chinese Cook in Toronto Used Butcher Knife.

TORONTO, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press). — During an altercation which, police say, started over an argument on cooking meals, Harold Moates, aged 27 years, was stabbed in the abdomen with a butcher knife causing severe internal injuries, which a doctor at the General Hospital last night feared would prove fatal. Harry Low, chinaman, born in Vancouver, is being sought by detectives on a charge of wounding Moates.

From what the detectives could learn last night, Moates was employed as a chauffeur for Mr. Montgamery. Low was employed as a cook. Last evening Moates and Low had words and a fight started in which it is alleged the chinaman stabbed the chauffeur and then escaped.

SPINE FRACTURED.

Walked Around For Two Weeks After the Accident.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Harry Goldberg, an employee of local building wrecking company, when subjected to an xray examination by Dr. W. J. Stevenson, yesterday afternoon, was found to be in amazing condition of walking streets with his spine fractured. Goldberg was injured two weeks ago when a quantity of lumber fell on him but he did not seek medical aid until pains in his back forced him to act.

END OF "FLAPPER CYCLE"

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S CAMPAIGN FOR DRESS REFORM INDICATES NEW TREND IN FEMININE AFFAIRS.

(BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS.)

NEW YORK, August 21. — The old-fashioned "Sunday-go-to-meetin' dress" will soon be with us again if the campaign started by the Catholic women of America proves successful.

The first question to be taken up at the fourth annual convention of Catholic Women at St. Louis in November will be the matter of decency in dress.

Even before Pope Pius recently manifested his disapproval of sleeveless gowns in church, Catholic women in this country had been working to restore the Sunday gown, which now seems as antiquated as the corset and the bustle.

"The Catholic women of Italy are trying to fix upon a church costume with sleeves at least three inches below the elbow, a collar no more than three inches from the neck, and skirts not more than seven inches from the ground," explained Mrs. Michael Gavin, president of the National Council of Catholic Women.

"We do not believe such extreme limitation would be popular or necessary here in America," she continued. "Dressing is a matter of personal taste so long as decency is observed, but some standard must be set.

"We have suitable costumes for all activities of women. We all recognize that golf costumes belong on the links and bathing suits on the beach. Evening gowns are all right for the ball room but they are all out of place in church.

"Since we recognize that certain clothes are appropriate for certain places, why not have a modest, suitable costume for church attendance? It need not be costly or elaborate—just decent."

If the move for more modest dress for church gains ground it is believed that the movement for modesty in dress will affect women's styles generally.

"Modesty pledges" are now being sent out to hundreds of thousands of Catholic women.

With such a situation looming it appears that the Flapper Cycle has about run its course.

As it is now, girls wear their best bib-and-tucker every day. If they wear sleeveless, low-cut gowns when in quest of the weekly wage, it is but another step to appear in church in such raiment.

Mrs. Gavin says appropriateness is the first requisite of good taste in dress. Many girls do not realize they dress immodestly, she says. They are merely thoughtless.

"Our aim to promote modesty in dress was at first for appropriate church dress," she says. "Now it really has the deeper ideal of forming feminine taste and to make the woman worker more modest and inconspicuous as a means of protection against vulgar men."

The Catholic women have not defined their own standards in dress as yet. Nor have they set any rule except for observing modesty. In November they will get down to cases and say just what is decent and indecent in dress.

Then they will mobilize—700,000 strong—for decency.

MODEST

IMMODEST?

Miss Elsie Gay demonstrates dress called "improper" for church wear in the new movement.

OLD REBEL SURRENDERS.

90 Year Old Rebel in Mexico Gives Himself Up to Government.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press). — General Higenio Aguilar, 90 years old rebel, surrendered yesterday to the Federal government. Last year, he joined De La Huerta movement, operating in the state of Vera Cruz. Aguilar has been known as an eternal rebel. He started his military career in 1861 fighting against the French invasion.

MAKE BIG HAUL.

Bandits Make Away With Silk Valued at $50,000.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22—(Canadian Press).—Deadwood Dick's robbery of Blackhill's stage on streets of Lead S.D., was outdone in New York yesterday when six bandits, during busiest hours of forenoon, made off with a truck load of silk valued at $50,000 from Madison Avenue aid Twenty Third street, kidnapping the driver and his helper in a sedan.

On this occasion there was no Buffalo Bill to ride to the rescue and the truck, and silk and men vanished without leaving a trace.

Hundreds of by-standers at the time were too amazed to interfere and both truck and sedan had vanished by the time they had sensed what the proceedings meant.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 22. — The Masons defeated the Oddfellows in a return game of softball at Exhibition Park last night by a score of 28 to 25. The game was lively from start to finish, and at the end of every innings the score was close. The following players took part:

Masons — Birmingham, Bonnycastle, Henson, Douglas, Twigg, Tinney, Ironsides, Denyes, Wiggins.

Oddfellows — Holmes, Osborne, Robert Dunk, McMullin, McEachern, Sherwin, Montgomery, Ross Dunk, Poulton, and Harry Anderson, sub.

Holmes made three home runs and two triples.

The batteries were: Holmes and Osborne for the Oddfellows, Bonnycastle and Birmingham for the Masons.

Held a Shower.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Denton Mainprize, Inkerman Street, was the scene of a quiet wedding on Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock when their eldest daughter, Evelyn, was married to Mr. Walter Lawrence of Marmora Township. Rev. W. Bloye, pastor of the Free Methodist Church, performed the ceremony, only the immediate family and relatives being present. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence will reside with her parents for the winter. The bride was married in her travelling suit of navy blue.

On Wednesday evening some of her neighbours and friends met at the home and gave her a miscellaneous shower at which she received some nice presents.

The young couple motored to Marmora on Thursday and will go to Trenton on Friday for a few days. They were unattended.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Oakley, of Hastings, spent a couple of days this week visiting their two daughters, Mrs. Charles Bedford, Front Street, and Mrs. W. Lowe, corner of Garry and Wellington Streets.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb. Frederick and son Billie, of Toronto, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Mitchell, Victoria Street, motored back to their home on Thursday. Mrs. Mitchell went to Toronto with them.

Miss Ida Adams had a gathering of young friends at the home of her parents, when a handkerchief shower was tendered her, and Miss Mary McArthur, who leaves to-day for the West.

Rev. H. S. Bennett and family, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Adams, will spend to-day at Rice Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Bidgood, accompanied by their niece, Miss Blanche Bidgood, left on Thursday for Toronto, where they will visit relatives for a few days before going to Hailey bury.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Butten, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Dorothy and Miss Dorcas Marshall, of Round Lake, motored to Peterboro, Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Nasher of Peterboro, spent Tuesday with Mrs. Jos. Douglas, corner Kent and Church streets

Mr. Harold Maguire of London, Ont., is spending a few weeks holidays with his father, Mr. S. A. Maguire, Sebastapool street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Anderson and daughter, Canrobert street, and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Battisby, Front St., who took a motor trip to Ottawa for a few days, returned to their homes on Friday.

Miss Dorothy West, who spent her vacation with her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. F. J. O'Connor, at Syracuse, has returned to her home, Gary street.

Mr. Howard Forrest, who had a serious operation in Peterboro Hospital a short time ago, is getting along nicely according to word received by a friend from him.

Dr. and Mrs. O'Connor motored over to visit his mother, Mrs. Jas O'Connor and sister, Mrs. West.

Resumes Business

J. I. Adams who gave up active work last winter on account of ill health has resumed business in premises on the Bridge street side of the Windsor Hotel Block.

Born—On 19th of August to Mr. and Mrs. William Mechetuk, a son.

BONES OF CAMEL IN KANSAS LAKE

Three Species of Desert Wanderer Were Uncovered.

LAWRENCE, Kans., Aug. 21.—Half a ton of fossil bones all of them new for the University of Kansas museum and some of them new to science, have been discovered in Sherman county, Kansas, according to H. T. Martin, curator of the University's museum. Mr. Martin and Curtis Hesse, laboratory assistant, spent four weeks this summer near Goodland, Kans., and shoveled more than 100 tons of sand in uncovering the fossils.

"Parts of at least fifteen species of mammals were recovered," said Mr. Martin. "These included three species of camels, one as large as a small giraffe, the smallest the size of a sheep, two species of rhinoceros three species of three-toed horse, dog, cat, peccary, deer and three species of mastodons.

"The fossils were found in a formation that apparently had once been a small lake bed, some 300 feet square, and several feet under ground, making it necessary to use a plow and scraper to get down to the fossil-bearing sands.

"The bones, which are of a jet black, were found scattered over the entire space, but parts of bones that we sometimes found widely separated fitted together perfectly.

"Apparently," said Mr. Martin, "these bones were distributed by freezing, either through ice on the lake, or a glacier. That is the only way I can explain the sharply broken bones and their distribution. No complete skeletones were found.

"We are highly pleased with the results of the trip, for it will add greatly to the scientific knowledge of the animals that once roamed western Kansas."

FLORIDA STARTS TO BUILD ROADS

Overseas Road Between Key West and Mainland To Be Built.

KEY WEST, Fla., Aug. 22.—Contracts have been signed and things are shaping themselves for an early beginning on the first units, at both ends, of the long-dreamed-of overseas highway between Key West and the mainland of Florida, a distance of approximately 150 miles.

Contracts signed by the county commissioners of this (Monroe) county call for construction of the roadways and bridges from Stock Island to Saddle Bunches and the causeway and bridge from Key Largo to Dade county.

Approximately 25 miles of the road are provided for under the contracts just signed, about equally divided in distance at the two ends of the line, Stock Island upon which the city of Key West is located, is about two and one-half miles from Boca Chica and the latter is approximately one mile from Saddle Bunches which the Sugar Loaf, will make it possible to extend the road for more than 15 miles without further bridging. After leaving Sugar Loaf going eastward another stretch of islands makes it possible to extend the road 30 miles or more with minimum bridging.

The undertaking represents one of the most spectacular pieces of construction in the country, and its completion will match the famous overseas railroad built by the late Henry M. Flagler. The latter road, undertaken down the east coast of Florida about a quarter of a century ago, later was pushed on to this city by throwing up of coral rock from the bottom of the seas upon which to build the roadbed for mile after mile.

NEWS OF BETHEL.

Farmer Hit on the Head By a Pulley—Personals.

BETHEL, Aug. 21.—G. W. Fife had the misfortune to get badly hurt. While drawing in wheat, the rope broke when the bundle was near the roof and one of the pulleys struck him on the head, inflicting a very bad cut, which had to have medical attention.

Mr. and Mrs. Borland of Peterborough, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reid.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Patterson and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Fife.

Lorne Fife, of Norwood, visited his brother, Mr. E. Fife, on Monday.

SWISS GLACIERS.

BERNE, August 22. — Scientific observations seem to show that the Swiss glaciers are receding. The advance during the last ten years has come to a stop.

From 100 observations taken last year, 55 glaciers were found to be receding, and only 25 advancing, whereas in 1916, 63 out of 100 were advancing forward.

The last great period of retrogression was between the years 1856 and 1908, but since 1908 the greater part of the glaciers appeared to be going forward until last year, when the new period of withdrawal set in.

BLACK CHIFFON.

Black chiffon is being used very charmingly for coat dresses and despite the fact the material is perishable it follows very close tailored lines.

NEWS OF COBOURG.

Well Known Resident Passed Away—Personal Mention.

COBOURG, Aug. 20 (Special).—Many friends learned with a great amount of regret of the death, on Sunday, of Mrs. Machlin, wife of Mr. John B. Machlin, of Machlin Settlement, Haldimand Township. Mrs. Machlin had not been well since last April, when she had an attack of 'flu and bronchitis. Later it became apparent that she was suffering from a more serious illness. About the end of July she came to the hospital here for treatment, and is was hoped up to Tuesday of last week, that there was improvement, and that she would shortly be able to return to her home. Instead, she took a turn for the worse, and the culmination of her good life here came on Sunday, when she entered into rest.

Mrs. Machlin, before her marriage Miss Emma Williams, was a daughter of the late Mr. John Williams, and was born at Norwood, where her girlhood days were spent. Twenty-six years ago last June, she was married at Peterboro by Rev. S. J. Shorey, then pastor of George Street Methodist Church at Peterboro, to Mr. John B. Machlin.

They went to reside upon the farm in Haldimand, which has since been her home. Mrs. Machlin was a faithful member of the Bethany Methodist Church, and associated herself helpfully with its activities and with all efforts tending to the betterment of the community generally. She was a kindly neighbor and friend and a devoted wife and mother. Her passing has removed one who will be much missed in home family circle and community life. Mrs. Machlin was in her 61st year.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Machlin is survived by one son, John, on the homestead, and by a widowed sister, Mrs. Carton, of Peterboro, and a brother, Mr. John Williams. With all very much sympathy is felt, and especially with husband and son. Deceased's only daughter died some years ago.

The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon. Service was held at the family home by her pastor, Rev. J. N. Lovelace, after which the cortege left for Bethany Cemetery, where interment took place in the family plot.

Much Thieving Reported.

Chief John C. Ruse located a car on the base line near the Ash residence. He was also informed that an auto, motor-cycle, two cheese and seven pounds of butter were stolen from the Bayside Cheese Factory near Belleville. Two tires were also stolen at Brighton and two tires at Cobourg. The police located one tire in the swamp near St. Peter's Cemetery and another at Pratt's Pond.

Local and Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Massey, of Saskatoon, are visiting with friends in Percy Township.

Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison and daughter, Miss Mabel, and Mr. and Mrs. Downs, of Cavan Township, motored in to attend the Horse Show.

Mr. and Mrs. Josh. Swain, of Cavan, went up to Fergus on Thursday to attend the marriage of their son, Clark.

Miss Violet McAndrew and Miss Dorothy Anderson spent a few days in Oshawa with Miss F. Smith.

Mrs. Sarah Richards has returned to her home in Castleton after a pleasant holiday spent with members of her family in Saskatchewan.

Mrs. J. E. Thompson, Warkworth, spent a few days at the home of her son, Mr. Claude Thompson, here.

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Robins, Toronto, were in town for the events of Horse Show week.

Mr. R. A. Laidlaw was down from Toronto for the Horse Show.

Mr. James L. Ray, Belleville, was one of the well-known visitors to town during the week.

SUICIDE HIS PERORATION.

LEMBERG, Poland, August 22.—As a climax to his speech of protection against Polish Government's neglect of war invalids, a young cripple shot himself dead here at a meeting before his listeners could interfere.

AFTER ALL There's Nothing To Equal Zam-Buk FOR THE SKIN!

FOUR WERE KILLED.

Fast Passenger Train Struck Heavily Loaded Truck.

CRANFORD, N.J., Aug. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Four men were killed and at least twenty persons injured when a Philadelphia and Reading passenger train travelling at a high rate of speed on the tracks of the Central Railroad of New Jersey struck a truck of the Newark Paving Company, loaded with crushed stone at Lincoln avenue crossing on dividing line between Cranford and Garwood to-day.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

PROHIBITION AND PROGRESS.

How long ought a wife submit to the dictation of her husband? How long should a normal, respectable woman who becomes a wife submit to having her personality ruled and ignored by the 'iron dixit' of her lord and master? How long must she obey him?

In the answer to these questions you will find the answer to Prohibition. For Prohibition, unlike all other laws, is made to punish the good as well as the bad. It ignores the right of respectable people to be respected so long as they are respectable people. It ignores the best type of humanity. That it should punish those who deserve it is what all agree to—even the guilty themselves. But that it should put its autocratic heel on the neck of the very best of the strong and courageous of the people is intolerable and will not long be tolerated It is indeed an indescribable impertinence. But almost worse than that it arrays one portion of those people upon whom a nation depends against the other. Where the rights and liberties of the subject are not respected there can be no peace. That surely has been demonstrated often enough to satisfy all those who are intellectually capable of being convinced.

No brain but that of a child in the body of a man or woman could ever suppose that people will on any pretense whatever give up their liberties. In fact, when prohibitionists themselves are given a dose of their own medicine they grow frantic with anger and excitement. This world has given evidence enough that it cannot come to much by force. Prohibitionists point to the alleged fact that fewer drunks appear upon the scene than before. This, of course, cannot be put down even if true to lack of liquor since people can make, under the name of home-made wine, all the strong stuff they wish for. What is it due to then? To heavy fines and imprisonments and —mark you—these were the very things which prohibitionists cried out against in the old days as tending to punish the family of the drinker, and not the drinker himself.

And yet under the O.T.A. the heavier fine now strips the family of every cent they have and the longer gaol term puts the breadwinner in prison for a very much longer time, and the family is left to a worse fate. Since heavy fines and punishments for drunkenness are down to a restoration of czarism. We have had enough of that. When kings and nobles were in the saddle, riding over the people, it was bad enough, but putting "beggars on horseback" to override them is making the whole thing ridiculous as well as objectionable.

OSTRICH TRIMMING

Ostrich is frequently used instead of fur as a summer trimming since it gives the soft, fluffy, flattering effect of fur without suggesting its warmth.

PREPARE FOR THE AMERICAN FLIGHT

Z-R-3 Being Fitted Up For Trip From Germany to America.

FRIEDERICHSHAFEN, Germany, Aug. 21.—(United States).—Engineers of the Zeppelin Company to-day are predicting that the Z-R-3 will fly to America in from fifty to one hundred hours, when the flight is made the first week in October

The Giant Dirigible this morning was straining at its leashes after having gulped down some 100,000 cubic meters of buoyant hydrogen. It is being held down by great cans of water ballast.

Early morning found the men crawling ant-like through the great air vessel completing the finishing touches before the trial flights which are to be mad enext week. One of the final motors has been installed and it keeps up a constant deafening roar as it revolves. Mechanics are allowing the motor to run for several hours before pronouncing it fit for theflight. The compasses and steering apparatuses are in place and work is being completed in the pilot and guest cabins which are to the front. A radio room has been fitted up and the radio will be capable of picking up Londpon, Paris, Berlin and New York during the voyage to Lakehurst N.J. The dirigible is also fitted out with a wireless station with a radius of 2,500 kilo meteres. The Zeppelin will make 75 to 80 miles an hour but will probably maintain an average speed of about 60 miles an hour on the American flight.

DEATH RATE DOWN IN FIRST MONTHS

Peterborough Lost 8.45 in Thousand Population—16.39 Last Year.

Peterborough's death rate last year was 16.39 per thousand population and the birth rate was 26.68 per thousand population. The total number of deaths was 355 and of births 578.

The record of the previous five years is:

	Births	Deaths
1918	449	355
1919	455	293
1920	581	364
1921	586	320
1922	584	359

Child Mortality

During 1923 there were 42 deaths of children under one year of age only half of the 1921 record of 81.

In the first seven months of 1924 there have been 308 birth and 183 deaths. This is at the rate of 14.22 births and 8.45 deaths in every thous and people in the city.

England's Deaths Down

A despatch from London says the death rate of Great Britain during 1923 was the lowest ever reported, being only 11.6 per thousand for the entire population. Infant mortality also touched its lowest recorded figure during the year with a rate of 69 per thousand. Britain saved 45,000 babies' lives above the average of the first decade of the present century. There is a fly in the ointment in the fact that births were down 22,000 below the record of 1922. Another disturbing feature of the figures, is the increase in the spread of small pox due entirely to the incompetence of local authorities. During the year nearly 80,000 cases of tuberculosis were noted.

PRINCE IS READY TO MAKE HIS TRIP

He Will Leave Southampton For United States Tomorrow Morning.

LONDON, August 22 (Canadian Press). — The Prince of Wales has packed his trunks, bid good-bye to his cronies, and with the exception of a few official matters to be attended to to-day, is ready to hand over his valuables to the purser of the steamship Berengaria, which will leave to-morrow from Southampton to take him on his second visit to the United States.

The Wales trip this time will lack the exclusiveness of his first visit, which was made in a British man-o'-war, for the capacity of the Berengaria has been packed by debutantes, who far various reasons are cutting off their European trips to hurry home on this particular liner.

The suite of the ex-Kaiser has been re-decorated for His Royal Highness chintz-covered chairs and draperies and new furniture.

The adjoining suite will be occupied by Lord and Lady Mountbatten, who are accompanying the Prince.

The Prince's wardrobe will be limited to three trunks and some smaller luggage, containing sufficient clothes to spread new styles for men throughout Canada and the United States.

BOYS NOT STUPID.

Walter Bachrach Says Loeb and Leopold Have Paranoid Personalities.

CHICAGO, August 22. Canadian Press. — That Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, have paranoid personalities, was the direct statement made to-day to Judge Caverly, by Walter Bachrach, one of the attorneys trying to save the lives of the admitted murderers of Bobby Franks.

He devoted much of his argument to an analysis of medical testimony, asserting that the state alienists had not had enough opportunity to study the youths. "We do not claim that the boys are stupid, or do not realize where they are," said Mr. Bachrach, "but that the fact that they are of high intelligence, and do realize it, are taken in connection with the circumstances, evidence that they are paranoiacs."

Thousands Gathered Around Union Station Long Before Trains Were Due.

TORONTO, August 22 (Canadian Press). — Speeding Westward to assist in garnering this year's grain crops are about 5,000 men and women of all ages, and varying in circumstances, who left Toronto early this morning by the Canadian National Railway and Canadian Pacific Railway trains.

Hours before the trains were scheduled to start, thousands of embryo harvesters gathered around the Union Station with a varied assortment of baggage, which included in many cases all kinds of weird musical instruments.

Included in the concourse were many old-timers, who reminisced of last harvests when the services had been much less comfortable than they now are.

There were those who were going for the first time after having been out of work for many weary weeks and months, and there was also an exceptional number of students, who took the opportunity afforded to help them accumulate a few extra dollars for their next term.

There were in all four trains.

TWO COUSINS DROWNED.

Garnet Gallagher and Percy Gallagher Lost Lives Near Coldwater.

COLDWATER, August 22 (Canadian Press). — Garnet Gallagher, 19, of this town, and Percy Gallagher, 17, of Norwood, Ont., cousins, who were working for a farmer near here, and who have been mysteriously missing since Tuesday last, were drowned while swimming near here.

Their bodies were found last night.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

LOSE WEIGHT.

Breakfast—One cup hot water with the juice of ½ lemon, 1 slice crisp whole wheat toast.

Luncheon—Stuffed tomato salad, 1 gluten roll, 2 tablespoons raspberry crush, 1 cup diet egg flip.

Dinner—One cup clam bouillon, 1 stuffed baked pepper, 1 head lettuce with 1 hard boiled egg and 2 tablespoons well seasoned lemon juice, 2 tablespoons cantaloupe ice, 2 macaroons.

Bedtime—One cup skimmed milk.

Total calories, 1051. Protein, 211; fat, 291; carbohydrate, 549. Iron, .0197 gram.

Diet Egg Flip.

One egg white, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 cup skimmed milk.

Beat white of egg until stiff with sugar. Beat in lemon jeuice and add milk. Serve very cold.

Total calories, 144. Protein, 49; fat, 7; carbohydrate, 88. Iron, .005 gram.

The tomato is stuffed with cabbage, cucumber and pepper, served on a bed of lettuce with 2 tablespoons diet dressing.

The pepper is stuffed with vegetables and nuts. Beware of most "made" vegetable dishes. Many fattening calories may be lurking in them in innocent guise. A thick, rich white sauce or several eggs will change a harmless green vegetable into a dangerous fat-producing food for the earnest but unthinking "reducer."

GAIN WEIGHT.

Breakfast—One large ripe sweet pear, ½ cup cooked cereal with 4 tablespoons cream, 1 creamed egg on crisp toast, hot water.

Mid-morning lunch—One large glass orange juice, 2 peanut butter sandwiches.

Luncheon—One cup cream of spinach soup with 2 tablespoons whipped cream, stuffed tomato salad, 2 slices nut bread, 1 tablespoon butter, 4 tablespoons raspberry crush with 2 tablespoons whipped cream, 1 chocolate cup cake, 1 cup whole milk.

Afternoon tea—One glass chocolate malted milk, 2 lettuce sandwiches.

Dinner—One cup clam bouillon, 1 stuffed baked pepper with 2 tablespoons cheese sauce, 4 tablespoons buttered steamed rice, 1 head lettuce with 1 hard boiled egg and 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 2 Parker House rolls, 1 tablespoon butter, 4 tablespoons cantaloupe ice, 4 macaroons.

Bedtime—One cup whole milk.

Total calories, 4194. Protein, 421; fat, 1690; carbohydrate, 2083. Iron, .0208 gram.

When you stop in at the corner drug store and have a chocolate malted milk you must add about 400 calories to your total for the day. And if you indulge in an egg malted milk you will imbibe about 500 calories.

French dressing was planned for the stuffed tomato salad in the luncheon menu. When the mid-morning lunch or afternoon tea is particularly rich in fat the salad for luncheon or dinner should be simply dressed.

A YOUNG MAN KILLED.

Fell From His Bicycle and Fractured Skull.

TORONTO, August 22. — Melville Styles, aged 23, who was married only three weeks ago, died this morning form a fractured skull caused by falling from his bicycle or being hit by a motor car while he was on his way to work.

FOLLOWED ADVICE.

Doctor: "Well, you are certainly looking better than I expected to find you.

Patient: "I think it is because I followed your instructions on your medicine bottle."

Doctor: "Very likely. What were they?"

Patient (grimly): "Keep the bottle tightly corked."

YEARN TO BE SUIT MODELS

Girls Besiege Garment Firms, Though Hours Are Long and the Work Is Hard.

Little boys want to be firemen, big boys want to be millionaires, and girls of most sizes want to be cloak, suit and dress models.

The little boys are often content to swing on the chain in front of the firehouse, and the big boys are satisfied to read about what the millionaires do in their leisure. But the girls go out by hundreds and bid determinedly for a chance to achieve their ambition.

Seventh Avenue, between Thirty-second and Thirty-eighth Streets, is colorful at this time of year with fair and not so fair aspirants seeking opportunity to show apparel at its best to the critical retail trade. Madison Avenue hasn't seen so many of them since the industry moved westward, yet it sees enough of them to prove that exhibiting garments, even garments belonging to some one else, is a vocation greatly esteemed.

The temperature notwithstanding, this is the season when the ready-to-wear manufacturers offer their Fall and Winter lines to the retailers. Fur has been used lavishly for trimming, hence modelling this year is somewhat less refreshing than surf bathing. Still, custom must be followed, and it has long been the thing in the wholesale garment trade to press the sale of cool-weather merchandise in July and August, reserving January and February for the airy togs of Summer.

Girlish Sixteen Esteemed.

Manufacturers seeking models to animate their products want only those girls to whom nature has been very kind—kind but not generous. The perfect thirty-six is no longer deemed perfection. The girlish sixteen is the type desired. She is a slightly elongated thirty-four. Five feet plus seven to nine inches is the ideal height.

Celia Mahoney hires the manikins for one of the largest coat and suit manufacturing concerns in the Garment Central Capitol. She suspects that the girls in New York who want to be models are outnumbered only by those who want to be movie stars.

"They never stop to consider," she says, "whether they might not be more suitable for models in lead pencil factories. They picture themselves as strutting through gorgeous showrooms, bored but beautiful, overcoming buyers from Sedalia, Mo., and Ottumwa, Iowa, with awe and admiration. They want to be close to costly and alluring coats and suits for a few hours a day, even though the evening finds them wearing again their own commonplace dresses.

Trying on Garments Hard Work.

"When we advertise for models we draw about ten times as many as we need, but even this turnout fails to yield one-half of the total we are seeking. The model business is not and will never be anything for most of them.

"Perhaps there wouldn't be such a scramble for the jobs if the girls knew more about the labor involved. Many women may not believe it, but it is possible to get sick of clothes, even of those of great price. Modelling doesn't consist of posing. It's work—harder work, I'd say, than stenography or telephone operating.

"We employ eight models to show a line of almost one hundred numbers. The customers usually view the full line. The garments pass by them in the showroom in rapid succession. The girls walk out of the dressing-room and parade before the buyers, giving them a look at the front and the back of the garment and calling out its number and the price. At times the buyers stop the girls in order to examine the merchandise closely and make critical suggestions to the manufacturers.

"Each girl exhibits twelve or thirteen garments whenever the full line is shown. This is done, during the season, on an average of six times daily. It is 'off again, on again, manikin,' seventy or eighty times a day. The fact that three-piece suits are so important for this Fall makes the work just now more difficult than usual, for the girls must put on what amounts to a dress and then don a coat.

"The hours are from eight-thirty in the morning until five-thirty at night. Of course, there are periods of rest—there have been too many in the last few seasons. But there are enough showings in the ordinary day to make the models hate the sight of finery.

"It isn't enough for a girl to qualify as to measurements alone. She must have charm and grace. Some models can make a fifty-nine-fifty garment look like hundreds of dollars, while others can take a hundred dollars off the looks of a coat or a suit priced at a hundred and ten. This is true, despite the fact that the models get little or no attention.

Models Who Rise.

"Most models receive thirty dollars a week, although some firms pay as high as forty. The work is seasonal; there is ample employment for experienced models during three months of each of the two yearly seasons. When business is not active, the seasons are cut to two months. We retain only two models throughout the year."

Modelling leads often to better things Many models rise to be head of the showroom and receive seventy-five dollars a week. More than one big manufacturing firm has partners who once were models. Perhaps such women have become designers and thus won their high place; or it may be that their intelligence and their courtesy have attracted the favor of a host of visiting buyers, and the firm desires to keep that favor.

Daughters of wealthy families have become cloak models just for the fun of it; and when the theatre season is dull, chorus girls may take up the work. The trouble with the stage girls, it is said, is that they are often unwilling to let the garment be the important thing. The successful model is the one who remembers that she is only substituting for the tailor's dummy that once served the trade.

Miss Mahoney estimates that about 40 per cent. of New York cloak and suit models are married women and homemakers. She has high regard for the character of any one willing to undertake and endure the toilsome work.

"There isn't such prejudice against modeling as there was a few years ago," she says. "When a girl became a model in the old days, I suppose the old folk turned her picture to the wall. The trials of Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model, have given people exaggerated notions of a serious and respectable calling."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor Peterboro Examiner,
Sir,

Will you allow me a little of your valuable to enter a solemn protest against the unchristian uncharitable speech of Dr. Norris at Massey Hall on Sunday last. I feel after all the envenomed shafts hurled by the speaker at another body of fellow christians really did more harm to their author than to any member of the Catholic church, but is it decent that in a city that professes to contain so much christianity there can be permitted such unchristian propaganda or that an audience can be found to listen to it?

And if the statements made were true it would not have been quite so bad, but they were not.

Take for instance, the statement that Rome was in favor of Germany in the Great War. In the name of Ananias, what foundation is there for such a scurrilous falsehood? Catholic Belgium, Catholic France, Catholic Italy were allied against Lutheran Germany. 32 1-2 of the United States army and 35 per cent of their navy were adherants of the Church of Rome. England sent her Roman Cahtolics in their hundreds of thousands, and so did her dependencies. The Turk fought for Germany—did Rome favor the Turk How many thousands of Catholic Priests left their parishes, many of them to make the supreme sacrifice.

Again, the statement that the Catholic church teaches that a priest is exalted above angels is a wilful, deliberate untruth, neither are the other statements any better founded.

When his man from Texas talks about the whole world rising up against the Catholic church, he should be careful how he throws a boomerang. The great founder of the Christian religion told his disciples that the world would hate them. It may be that when the great battle of Armageddon is fought it will be on the lines of this talk, but shall we find the Dr. and his audience against the Church of God in that day? Versum sap. The church is not of this world and the world hates it. We do not have to read the speech of hate at Massey Hall to learn that fact.

Dr. Morris suggested that the Hal should be hired by the Catholic church to refute his false statements. I hope no such step will be taken. The church does not need that the scurrilous attacks of irresponsible visitors from Jesse James neighbourhood should be given the cheap notoriety of a meeting in Massey Hall. Let him vamp his head off—no doubt it pays. The church is above such petty attacks and prefers to rest its case on truth

Thanking you for giving a loyal soldier and British subject this space in your paper,

ARE WORKING MEN GETTING 'NINEPENCE FOR FOURPENCE'

British Medicos Criticise Operation of National Insurance Act

PANEL DOCTORS

Use Hidden Funds to Enlarge Hospitals and Increase Staffs

Panel doctors came in for severe criticism at Bradford when the British Medical Association held a discussion on the question: "Has the National Insurance Act justified its existence?"

Speaking from the point of view of the insured person, Tom Harland, a plumber, of Bradford, said: "I well remember Lloyd George's promise of 'Ninepence for fourpence'; I wonder if we are getting that ninepence. Some doctors do not give of their best, and this helps malingerers to draw on the funds of societies to the detriment of the good member.

"There are few cases where doctors need report against them. Why? Because so many insured persons are afraid of a doctor."

Miss Florence Godfrey, a prominent woman worker, of Birstall, spoke of the lack of the human touch and sympathy.

"Why," she asked, "are we not allowed to send for a doctor during the night unless it is almost a matter of life and death? A panel patient is just as liable to serious illness as an ordinary patient.

Interesting remarks on the doomed medicine bottle were made by Dr. A. Barnes. "The bottle of medicine is only a symbol,' 'he said, "but it has become an idol.

Dealing with neurotics, Dr. Barnes said: "When a millionaire loses half his money and goes into a nursing home his illness is put down to business worry. When the same thing happens to a working man he is called a malingerer.

"The cause is the same. Neurosis is produced by chaining a young man to a monotonous machine for overlong hours."

He predicted that at an early date the hospital out-patients' departments would break down badly under the strain.

"I have at times," he said, "a dream of the future, when the vast hidden funds of the Insurance Act will be loaned to hospitals to enlarge and develop them, and the money returned to the funds in services rendered by a properly equipped and organized scheme of paid consultants seeing insured persons under more leisured conditions."

MOTORIST TAUGHT SEVERE LESSON

Sent to Prison For Being Drunk in Charge of Automobile

Imprisonment for one month, a fine of £50, with £15 15s. costs, and endorsement and suspension of his license for five years were the penalties inflicted on Charles Burgess, aged thirty-four, a merchant, of Museum-chambers, Bloomsbury, W.C., who was convicted, at the Marylebone Police Court of having been drunk while in charge of a motor-car, and driving it to the danger of the public. Notice of appeal was given.

"It is one of the worst cases I have heard," said Mr. Hay Halkett, the magistrate, when he passed sentence.

It was stated that Burgess drove up Highgate-road on the wrong side, and knocked down and ran over Herbert Clarke, of Evangelist-road, Kentish Town.

Clarke was dragged some yards and then run over. He was severely wounded in the head and leg, and was unconscious when picked up.

When it was pointed out to Burgess that he was on the wrong side of the road he replied: "We always drive on this side in France."

He admitted that he had taken "about five gins" within an hour before the accident, but denied that he was drunk. He attributed the accident to hesitation on Clarke's part.

Mr. Muskett, for the police, said that Burgess had "rather a bad record." "Apart from other matters of a serious character," said Mr. Muskett, "Burgess had been thrice convicted for dangerous driving, and also for felony."

UNFOUNDED CHARGE

Bayswater Woman Who Lost £400 Pendant Had Taxidriver Arrested

A woman's loss of a platinum and diamond pendant, valued at £400, had a surprising sequel at West London Police Court, where Henry George Squires, taxi-driver, was charged with stealing the jewel.

Mrs. Beatrice Welford, of Westbourne-gardens, Bayswater, the owner, wished to withdraw the charge, but the magistrate insisted on her giving evidence. She then said that Squires drove her home in the early hours of yesterday morning, and on arriving at her flat she missed the pendant from her neck, and told him to drive to the police station in order to report her loss.

He was there charged.

Mr. Boyd (magistrate): Why do you want to withdraw?—Because I found the pendant afterwards in my dress. I will pay Squires reasonable compensation.

Mr. Boyd ordered Mr. Squires to be discharged.

Did Horse Object to New Bathing Suits On Ramsgate Beach?

There was a panic amongst the holiday-makers on Ramsgate sea front when a horse used at a bathing machine establishment took fright, possibly at some of the latest fashions in bathing costumes, and rushed across the sands, knocking over deck chairs as it went along.

It dashed on to the esplanade, and did not stop until it reached the harbor. Several people had narrow escapes.

"SHOCK DRUNK" THROUGH COLLISION WITH BUS WAS GOOD DEFENCE

That a collision will produce drunkenness was the novel point raised at Marlborough street Police Court in the case of Arthur Henry Gunn (61), taxi-driver, who had been arrested after a collision with a bus in Oxford street on July 15.

Dr. Spurgin, divisional police surgeon, said that Gunn, when he was called to him, was physiologically drunk, though not very drunk.

Mr. Wilberforce: The doctor has given his evidence in a Very conscientious way. He says the effect of a collision upon a person who is not drunk might be to make him drunk. I discharge Gunn.

POLICE DOG SCARED GASOLINE THIEVES

But Lost Them When Puzzling Out Knotty Problem

WHICH ONE?

Four Marauders Separated And Left Canine Chaser in Quandary

Trained as a police dog, a fine Alsatian wolf-hound, owned by a Putney constable, put to flight petrol thieves at 3 o'clock in the morning recently.

Four men in a Ford car burgled the Pioneer Petrol Filling Station, Kingston Vale, broke open a bin, and were running away with 18 cans of gasoline when the bold Alsatian appeared on the scene.

The dog was on patrol with his master, Police-constable Charman, attached to the Putney Station.

The dog was the first to spot the men and, growling like the Hound of the Baskervilles, sprang after them.

SCARED THIEVES.

Tugning for a moment in their flight, the thieves caught a glimpse of the ferocious-looking animal, and promptly dropping their booty sped off in different directions.

This adroit move so puzzled the awe-inspiring canine Sherlock Holmes and his attendant "Watson" that the thieves managed to get clear away.

One clue that they left behind was their six-seater motor-car, and Scotland Yard is busy following up this and other clues.

"This big Alsatian certainly frightened the men away, and made them drop their booty," said Major Salmon, who runs the galosine station, to a newspaper representative.

DOG PUZZLED.

"Although he has been splendidly trained he seems to have been completely nonplussed when the running men scattered, not being able to make up his mind which to follow.

"He must have argued that if he caught one he was bound to miss three. And trying to solve this knotty problem he thus let opportunity slip. When Charman came up the chase was hopeless.

"I have often seen Charman going his round with his dog, and he certainly needs it, as he has not only a very lonely beat, but possibly one of the longest on the division.

"The constable and the dog are great pals, and when I next see them there will certainly be a big dog-biscuit for one of them!"

ROMAN HEATING ROOM UNEARTHED

One of Finest Specimens in Existence Discovered at Folkestone

S. E. Winbolt, the archaeologist, whose discoveries of the remains of a Roman house eighteen inches below the surface of the East Cliff, at Folkestone, caused a sensation last April, had a further success when his workmen opened out a magnificent hypocaust, or heating-room, with sixteen stone buttresses.

Previous excavations had already led Mr. Winbolt to the conclusion that such a chamber was concealed nearby, and it has proved to be one of the finest specimens in existence.

This was not the only thrill. Work on the plunge bath which is being excavated revealed a complete series of plug-holes, and even one of the nails which fastened the marble slabs to the mortar.

Another coin was found, showing on one side Romulus and Remus with the wolf, their foster-mother, and marked P.L.G., the initials of the great Gaulish Mint at Lyons. The head of an Emperor, probably of the third century, is on the other side.

Discoveries of an earlier Roman wall in three rooms show that the site had been built on more than once.

ON TIME

Elephant at Wembley Exhibition Did Not Know Pageant Postponed

An elephant that takes part in the Pageant of Empire at Wembley gave an unrehearsed turn one night last week.

He broke loose from the farm at the side of the Exhibition, doing damage to some of the buildings, and had enjoyed half an hour's liberty before he was sighted by his pursuers.

The elephant was then heading for the Stadium at a pace that suggested that he was anxious to be in time for the performance, but he apparently did not know that it had been postponed.

Coaxing words by an Indian keeper which might have conveyed this information to the elephant arrested his progress, and he was persuaded to return to his shed.

BRAVE WOMAN WENT TO MAN'S RESCUE

A woman bather made a plucky but vain effort to rescue Sydney Newbolt, 35, of Cavendish-road, Harringay, London, from drowning at Clacton yesterday.

Newbolt, who could not swim, got out of his depth. When the woman swam to his help he pulled her under, and she just freed herself in time.

GENERAL CHASED BY LONDON BOBBY IN PALL MALL

Broke Traffic Regulations en Route to Review Ground

NO SALUTE

Chauffeur Was Told to Drive on When Stopped by Constable

An incident in Pall Mall, when a general motoring to a review in Hyde Park was chased by a policeman in another motor-car, terminated at Marlborough-road Police Court yesterday.

Maj.-General Sir William Thwaites, commanding the 47th (2nd London) Division, was fined £3 for aiding and abetting Private James Edward Jones, R.A.S.C., in failing to stop, at the request of a policeman, a motor-car Jones was driving on June 21. Jones was fined 1s. for not stopping and £1 for driving in a dangerous manner. Both had pleaded not guilty.

Mr. Herbert Muskett, for the Commissioner of Police, said that the Commissioner, before whom all the facts were brought, insisted that the summonses which were issued should be submitted for magisterial investigation.

"DANGEROUS ACT."

"At the time of the incident," said Mr. Muskett, "the general was in full uniform and proceeding on military business. The car was driven on the wrong side of a temporary refuge in Pall Mall. It was an extremely dangerous act. There was very nearly a collision between the general's car and an omnibus.

"The policeman stopped the car and pointed out to the general's chauffeur the danger to the traffic. He took no notice of the General, but the latter said to Jones: 'Drive on. Don't stop,' and the car proceeded.

"The policeman got on another car and gave chase, overtaking the general's car, which stopped. The general then said: 'I take the responsibility of this,' and added that he would report the matter to Brigadier-General Horwood (the Commissioner of Police), and that he was in a hurry. The policeman, who was an ex-Regular soldier, saluted the general after taking particulars.

"The general did, in fact, report the matter to General Horwood."

General Thwaites, giving evidence, said that he was holding an inspection of his division in Hyde Park that evening, and was in a hurry to get there.

He said to the policeman. "What is it all about, constable?" The man, he alleged, took not the slightest notice of him, but talked to the driver.

He told Private Jones to drive on. His chauffeur was between "the devil and the deep sea." He had been ordered by the police to stop, and by himself to drive on. He thought the constable—Police Constable Hearn—treated him rather insolently.

Mr. Mead, the magistrate, remarked that the policeman had said that when he first stopped the car he did not recognise that there was any one of the general's position in it, and he (the magistrate) believed what the policeman had said. It seemed to him that what was rankling in the general's mind was "this saluting business."

The general said it was not rankling in his mind at all. He was well disposed to the police.

Mr. Muskett said that this matter of saluting came to a head some time ago when the question of an officer striking a policeman with a sword was under consideration.

Mr. Mead said the salute by the police was an act of courtesy.

Sub-Divisional Inspector George Abbiss stated that the regulations were that sergeants and constables should salute military officers when addressing them or addressed by them.

MOTHER BURNT GIRL WITH HOT POKER

Only Fact of Being Cripple Saved Her From Prison Term

For burning her 10-year-old child with a hot poker, an invalid mother was fined £5 at Chichester Police Court.

The magistrates told the woman, Mrs. E. E. Redman, of Highfield-road, Bognor, that had it not been for her crippled condition, she would have gone to prison for at least three months with hard labor.

The girl was seen going about with a scar on her neck, and the mother admitted having inflicted the injury with a poker.

She said the girl was troublesome and untruthful, and that she told her she would burn her fingers because she had taken some strawberries from a cupboard.

The girl struggled, she added, and the poker touched her neck. She denied any real intention of burning the child, saying she only meant to frighten her.

GIRL'S VENDETTA

Young Woman Prefers Jail to Giving Sureties For Peace

"Don't find sureties, father, I shall hit her again," cried out Elizabeth Nicholls, an 18-year-old Maltby girl, when bound over at Rotherham yesterday for assaulting Mrs. Florence Merriman, a neighbor.

Miss Nicholls was only bound over at Rotherham West Riding Court on Monday for another assault on Mrs. Merriman, and immediately the parties left the court the girl went up to Mrs. Merriman and struck her.

The magistrates, in response to her present threat again to assault Mrs. Merriman, advised her to think the matter over carefully as the alternative to sureties being found would be one month in prison.

The girl: Then I'll serve the month.

SWIMMING BATH BAPTISMS.

During the annual convention of the International Bible Students' Association, at Hull, thirty students, including sixteen women, were baptised at a local swimming bath. They wore long overalls, and were wholly immersed.

BRITISH HONORS ARE NOT TO BE BOUGHT IS COURTS DECISION

Contractor Failed to Recover Money Paid College for Knighthood, as Judge Held it Was Illegal Act and Derogatory to Dignity of Sovereign

Mr. Justice Lush, having heard legal arguments on the jury's findings, yesterday dismissed the claim of Col. George W. Parkinson, contractor, Blackpool and London, against the College of Ambulance, Ltd., London, and Mr. E. E. Harrison, its managing secretary, to recover £3,000 which he had paid to the college on an alleged representation by Mr. Harrison that he would receive a knighthood.

The jury had found that Harrison had fraudulently represented that he was in a position to undertake the contract to secure the knighthood and so induced Col. Parkinson to part with his money. Mr. Justice Lush said the case raised questions of considerable public importance. He did not think there was sufficient evidence either of holding out of Harrison by the college or of actual authority. He did not think the council who controlled the affairs of the college did anything to mislead Col. Parkinson. Harrison's duty was to collect subscriptions and not to make contracts or give undertakings to secure titles for subscribers. He (Mr. Justice Lush) must therefore deal with the case upon the footing that Harrison acted throughout without the authority, actual or ostensible, of the college.

AGAINST PUBLIC POLICY.

The first question to be considered was whether the contract was against public policy and therefore illegal. He could not feel any doubt that a contract to guarantee or undertake that an honor would be conferred by the Sovereign if a certain contribution were made to a public charity or if some other service was rendered was against public policy and therefore an unlawful contract to make.

Apart from being derogatory to the dignity of the Sovereign who bestowed the honor, it might produce most mischievous consequences. It would tend to induce the person who was to procure the title to use improper means to obtain it and it would tend to make him conceal facts as to the fitness of the proposed recipient of the honor.

Moreover, if this were a lawful contract it would be possible to bring an action if the stipulated title were not obtained or if the money were not paid. No court could try such an action with any propriety or decency.

"The contract, in my opinion," said the judge, "is one that could not be sanctioned or recognized in a court of law. Such a contract as this which Col. Parkinson and Harrison made is in my judgment an illegal and improper contract to enter into."

This contract being against public policy, and being of the character he had described, could Col. Parkinson still rely upon the fraud of Harrison and recover damages against him, and could he as against the college recover the £3,000 which the college had received through that fraud as money had and received to his use? Col. Parkinson knew he was entering into an illegal and improper contract. How could he say he had suffered loss through being defrauded into making a contract he knew he ought never to have made? The answer was that he ought not to have made it.

Col. Parkinson had himself to blame for the loss he had incurred, and it was no excuse to say that Harrison was more blameworthy, which was all he could say.

THE £3,000 A DONATION.

"He is really bringing this action," continued Mr. Justice Lush, "because he has failed to obtain the promised title. He cannot get back the £3,000 from Harrison because Harrison never received it. The £3,000 was given to the college as a donation. The matter was at an end as far as the college was concerned.

"In the result I dismiss the action. Col. Parkinson has said he brought it to put a stop to an improper practice and not to recover the money for himself. Be that as it may, I am compelled to hold that the action is not maintainable. Harrison has increased the costs of this litigation by denying fraud. He has acted oppressively, and I make an order depriving him of his costs."

VANISHING CAR IN FAMILY LAWSUIT

£1,350 Damages Awarded Against Son-in-Law for False Arrest

LINKS COMEDY

Childs Had Plan to Keep Car for Daughter's Use

A £2,500 motor-car, with a trick of "disappearing" while the driver was playing golf, figured in a dispute between a father and his son-in-law, heard in the King's Bench Division.

An action for false imprisonment brought by Mr. Frederick Childs, a shipowner and company director, of St. Gildas, Llanishen, Glamorgan, against his son-in-law, Mr. Tom Lewis, of The Court, Llanishen, had been referred to the High Court for argument on the findings of a Swansea jury.

Mr. Justice Lush said the two men had been partners eight or nine years ago, but appeared to have quarrelled.

Childs bought a motor-car, and wanted his daughter to have the use of it. He gave her written charge of it. Her husband had two cars of his own.

Later the father found that his son-in-law was using the car, so he made up his mind to get it back again.

Finding one day that Lewis had taken the car to the golf links near Cardiff, and left it unattended, the father got into the car, drove it off, and placed it in a garage at Newport. Lewis got it back again, but Childs again resolved to get hold of the car. Again he found it outside the golf links, and once more he drove it off.

He took it home, but, having no garage there, put the car in his garden under some bushes, and removed the carburetter and a wheel.

At 11 o'clock that night the son-in-law discovered where the car was, and, against the wishes of his wife, took three policemen to his father-in-law's house.

MIDNIGHT VISIT.

They arrived at midnight. Lewis got the car into working order and had the father-in-law arrested on a charge of theft.

Childs was taken to the police station four miles away, but released, and left to walk home, while the son-in-law and the policemen drove back in the car.

Childs was a director of an insurance company receiving £350 a year. His co-directors saw a report that he had been given into custody on a charge of theft, and insisted on him resigning his office.

The theft charge, however, was dismissed and, on an action for false imprisonment, Childs was awarded £1,000. The jury also gave special damages of £350.

Mr. Justice Lush upheld judgment for the father-in-law for £1,350 and granted a stay as to £850.

"ACT OF GOD."

Earth Tremors in Coal Mine Caused Fears of Big Disaster

A series of earth tremors occurred in the neighborhood of the Maltby Main Colliery, South Yorkshire, and as a precautionary measure the 400 men in the workings were withdrawn and the night shift will not descend.

No one was injured, but it is probable that the pit will be closed till a report is made.

The tremors were felt at the village of Maltby, nine miles away. Houses were shaken and hundreds of alarmed residents rushed to the colliery fearing a disaster.

Mr. Pickering, agent to the company, describing the occurrence as an "act of God." He said there were four distinct bumps which were felt above and below ground.

There was an explosion at the pit on July 28, 1923, when twenty-seven men lost their lives.

GERMAN RED HAS TO GO BACK TO BERLIN

Reached England as Stowaway After October Fighting in Hamburg

NO PASSPORT

Was Arrested at Communist Meeting With Sheltering Comrade

Emil Malchow, 46, a German Communist, was charged at Bow street Police Court with having, as an alien, landed in the United Kingdom without permission. Thomas Alfred Jackson, of Addington-mansions, Highbury Grange, Islington, was summoned for harboring him.

Mr. Muskett, for the Commissioner of Police, said Malchow appeared to have landed from Hamburg on June 27, and had resided at Jackson's flat. Malchow was arrested at a Communist meeting which Jackson was addressing at Finsbury Park. He had no passport, and in his possession the police found revolutionary leaflets printed in German, a view of a German fortress, and a code.

Malchow stated that on October 23 last he was engaged in fighting for the Communists against the Government at Hamburg. Rifles were taken from him and others by the police and he fled to Berlin. He afterwards came to this country as a stowaway.

Jackson said he first saw Malchow in the book shop of the Communist Party in King street, Covent Garden, and gathered that he was "wanted" in Hamburg in connection with the Communist rising last October. He understood that Malchow was a ship's engineer or seaman, and that he entered this country on his ship's papers. He offered him shelter as an act of fraternal obligation. Had he known that the Aliens Order had been disregarded, he would have felt under a grave moral difficulty in refusing shelter to a comrade.

The magistrate (Mr. Graham Campbell) sentenced Malchow to a month's imprisonment with hard labor and recommended him for deportation ,and fined Jackson £10.

"FELO DE SE."

Widow Attacked by Engineer Has Remarkable Escape from Suicide

Mrs. Georgina Blanche Payne was wheeled into Maidenhead Police Court in a hospital chair to give evidence at the resumed inquest on John Brewer Hopkinson. The man, a motor engineer, who lodged at Mrs. Payne's house, killed himself on the night of July 14 after shooting her in the neck with a revolver.

Mrs. Payne described, in a voice that was almost inaudible, how, on her return from a charabanc trip to Brighton, the man was waiting for her and forced a quarrel.

Mrs. Payne went to bed to escape him, but Hopkinson knocked at her door at midnight, and, when she refused to let him in, burst the lock. He tore the bed-clothes from her and swung her off the bed.

The woman then told him that he would have to leave the house in the morning, and Hopkinson answered, "We will both leave tonight." Mrs. Payne ran to open the window, and, although she heard no shot, felt something hit her in the back of the neck. She fell to the floor unconscious, and when she recovered she saw the body of Hopkinson lying in a passage.

The coroner and the jury, in expressing sympathy with the woman, said that she had a remarkable escape. A verdict of "Felo de se" was returned.

TRIPPERS LAND A SHARK.

Trippers to Black Rock, Brighton, helped to recover the body of a large shark, six feet long, and weighing about half a ton, which had been washed in by a strong tide, and was pulled ashore after an hour's strenuous work.

BARONESS BECOMES HOTEL KEEPER IN EXCLUSIVE AREA

Daughter Set Fashion, in "Shingling" Before Marriage to Prince

USE FAMILY HOME

Prominent in Society and Collector of Antiques And Paintings

The Baroness d'Erlanger, prominent in London society for many years and an enthusiastic devotee of rare old paintings and antiques, has applied for a music and dancing license for Falconwood, her old home at Shooter's Hill.

The house, which has been in the d'Erlanger family for sixteen years, is now converted into a residential hotel, and will be opened this week. Falconwood stands in large grounds near Woolwich, and is provided with tennis courts and a fine ballroom.

Baron Emile d'Erlanger, who became a naturalized British subject in 1891, has been keenly interested in the Channel tunnel scheme for a number of years, and is chief engineer of Emile d'Erlanger and Co., the old-established firm of foreign bankers.

Baroness Catherine d'Erlanger is the daughter of the Marquis de Rochegurde, and married in 1895. Her daughter, formerly Miss Baba d'Erlanger, who was married last year to Prince Jean Louis de Faucigny-Lucinge, is said to have set the fashion of "shingling."

CARELESS TRADER CAUSED TROUBLE

Visiting Belgian Couple Arrested for Uncommitted Diamond Theft

Liendert Vischschraper, diamond merchant, and Jeanne Cajot were charged at Bournemouth on Saturday with stealing diamonds valued at £125 from the shop of George W. Pascall, jeweller, of the Triangle, Bournemouth.

It was stated that the couple were shown a wallet containing loose diamonds, and after they had left the shop the jewels were missed.

Both protested their innocence, the man saying that he was a member of the Amsterdam Diamond Club. A remand was ordered and substantial bail fixed.

After the case was disposed of Mr. Pascall returned to his shop and then found the diamonds in a letter-filing case that had been on the file when Vischschraper and his companion visited the shop. Mr. Pascall went to the police at once, and the magistrate, Col. W. Dickson-Dickson, and the accused were recalled.

The position was explained, and the magistrate discharged both the accused, with an expression of regret at their arrest.

Vischschraper was so overcome with joy at the termination of the affair that he kissed the policeman in the court.

TRIPLE TRAGEDY OF NEIGHBORLY AID

Aged Woman Helps Another—Both Die—Shock Kills Husband

At Patricroft, near Manchester, an aged woman named Mrs. Law, of Philips street, was taken seriously ill. A neighbor, who was sitting with her, called in another neighbor, Mrs. Loynds, who helped to lift the woman on to the bed. The woman was then dead.

Shortly afterwards her husband, Reuben Loynds, arrived home from work. He was so overwhelmed that he collapsed, and died in a few minutes.

Mrs. Law was aged 71, Mr. Loynds aged 60, and his wife aged 56.

HIS OWN "VICTIM"

Too Well Disguised Constable Attacked as Loafer by Citizen

A London constable disguised himself to such good purpose that he was not only roughly handled as a loafer, but lost a charge of assault on the ground that it might have been justified.

Charged at the South-Western Police-court with street betting and with assaulting a constable, Henry Crowe, a dealer, of Sheepcote-lane, Battersea, said the policeman looked "worse than a beggar."

When the "beggar" caught hold of him by the collar he hit out, thinking he was being attacked.

The magistrate (Mr. Forbes Lankester) said it might be necessary for a constable under certain circumstances to disguise himself, but a disguise was calculated to cause misunderstanding, if not alarm. It was quite possible the man thought a beggar was attacking him. He would be discharged.

UNKNOWN'S REQUEST

Richmond Suicide Asked to be Cremated Without Delay

An envelope bearing the words "Cremate without delay" was found in the pocket of a man aged about sixty who shot himself in sight of passers-by in Friars-lane, Richmond.

A number of stamped letters, one addressed to a Surbiton solicitor, were also found. In another pocket was a small watch to which was attached a gold bracelet, a medallion containing the photograph of a woman, and a passport.

Mr. H. Fisk, 75, for 28 years clerk to the Portsmouth justices, is dead.

H.R.H. the Duke of York unveiled this handsome memorial at Queen's University, Belfast, during his recent visit to North Ireland.

V.C. WINNER STOLE FROM A BANK

Soldier With Fine War Record Yielded to Sudden Temptation

BOUND OVER

Court Dealt Leniently With Offender Who Had Varied Career

Arthur Evans, V.C., 33 of Wimbledon, was bound over for 12 months at Wealdstone Police Court on a charge of stealing £500 from a safe at Lloyds Bank at the British Empire Exhibition.

Evans was a messenger employed at the bank, and Mr. Exeter, who prosecuted, said he was arrested after making a voluntary statement. It appeared to be a case of yielding to sudden temptation, and he asked the Bench, in view of Evans' exceptional war record, to deal with him leniently as a first offender.

Evans handed in a lengthy statement which was not read in court.

Official records show that Arthur Evans was gazetted on March 31, 1919, in his own name as having won the Cross in the previous year (Gazette, Oct. 30, 1919), under the assumed name of Lance-Sergt. Walter Simpson, 9th Batln. Lincolnshire Regt.

After an adventurous life, including terms in the Navy and the mercantile marine, control of natives working on the Panama Canal, and exploring in Central America, Evans, in the name of Walter Simpson, joined the Lincolnshire Regiment three weeks before the war began.

He won his V.C. when, with a reconnoitring party, he swam a river which was too deep to ford. He crept up alone in the rear of an enemy machine-gun post, shot two Germans, and caused four others to surrender, and finally covered, under heavy fire, the withdrawal of the officer of the patrol, who was wounded.

"COME BACK TO ERIN" WAS PLEA TO DUKE

The Duke and Duchess of York have ended their first visit to Northern Ireland, and left Belfast on H.M.S. Wryneck for Stranraer, where they took train for London.

During their stay the popular cry was "Come back to Erin," and the Duke, replying in Belfast to such an invitation, said both the Duchess and himself sincerely hoped it would be possible to return, not once, but many times, adding with a smile, "Need I say more?"

Among the gifts made to the Duke was an Irish blackthorn walking-stick, mounted with a gold crown and six gold stars, representing the six counties of Ulster.

The Duchess received from the mother of the Labor Minister for Northern Ireland a bouquet of Ulster roses and white heather.

Boy Lost Battle And So Brought Victor To Court

A boy of 13 prosecuted a second lad of the same age for assault in Kingston Police Court.

He said the "defendant" kicked his sister, and when he went to the rescue he received a black eye.

The Mayor: Who told you to bring the summons?

The Boy: My mother, sir.

The Mayor: The other boy says you threw stones at him. Did you?

The Boy: Yes, sir; but I missed. (Laughter.)

The Bench dismissed the summons with a caution.

ONE ARMED HERO IN BATHING FATALITY

A number of bathers were on the beach at Sutton-on-Sea, Lincolnshire, when Edmund Paxton Hood, the manager of the Nottingham branch of an insurance company, was swept out to sea by a strong current.

The first to attempt a rescue was a one-armed man, Captain Harold Quinney, of Southport. He was helped by his father, but failed to bring Hood ashore.

Captain Quinney's courage was commended by the Louth coroner on Saturday, when a verdict of accidental death was returned at an inquest on Hood.

FROM STOWAWAY TO MILLIONAIRE MEMBER OF PARL'T.

Great Shipowner Once Poor Immigrant Leaves Immense Fortune

HEAVY DUTIES

British Treasury Benefits to Extent of Million and Half Pounds

Sir Robert Ropner, Bt., the Stockton shipowner and shipbuilder, who represented the town in Parliament as a Conservative Tariff Reformer for some years, left the enormous fortune of £3,615,828.

This represents unsettled estate. His settled property, in addition, is considerable. The Treasury will benefit from death duties to the extent of about £1,468,000.

Sir Robert was a Prussian, born in Magdeburg, and was intended for the Lutheran ministry, but he came to England at the age of eighteen, a poor and friendless lad—the story is that he stowed away in a steamer to avoid conscription—and entered a shipping office at West Hartlepool.

Within five years he was in business, with a partner, as a coal exporter and shipowner.

The business throve, and fourteen years later he became its sole owner. Branches were opened in Cardiff and London, his sons joined him, and he took over a shipyard at Stockton and developed it out of all recognition.

KNIGHTED.

Mr. Ropner extended his interests to coal mines and banks and other important undertakings on the north-east coast, and was knighted in 1902. Two years after he became a baronet.

By his will Sir Robert bequeathed £50,000 to each of his daughters, £50,000 to his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Walter Ropner, and £10,000 to his son Walter. Preston Hall, Stockton, his residence, goes to his son Leonard, and fifty shares in Sir R. Ropner and Co. are given to each of his sons John and William.

One hundred shares in the company are left between his sons Emil and Leonard. The residue of the property is bequeathed to his sons John, Emil, William, and Leonard equally.

Among recent millionaire estates which have yielded windfalls for the Treasury are the following:

Lord Allendale	£2,006,770
Mr. J. Constantine, shipowner	£1,563,195
Mr. F. Bibby, shipowner	£1,129,482

NEAT BANK THIEF ROBBED BARCLAY'S

Opportunist Snatched Bundle of Notes From Teller's Desk

Banknotes worth £750, tied in bundles, were snatched from the counter of Barclay's Bank, in Commerce-road, Portsmouth, by a thief who escaped.

The robbery occurred during the busiest period of the morning. A customer was paying in a deposit and was joined by a stranger whom the cashier took to be the customer's friend, and therefore paid no particular attention to him.

On the counter were bundles of banknotes worth £1,405, checked, and ready to be sent to headquarters.

THIEF'S RUSE.

The cashier left for a moment to go to another part of the counter, whereupon the stranger diverted the attention of the customer to some object outside the bank, put his arm under the grille and snatched three packets, containing £750.

The cashier did not at once miss them, and when he did the stranger had gone.

The thief is described as a man from forty to forty-five years of age, height about 5ft. 6 in., fairly well-built, pale, with white hands and pointed fingers, and dressed in a dark green suit, with a black bowler hat. The numbers of the notes are known.

Put on Silk Stockings And High Heeled Shoes To Commit Suicide

Wearing silk stockings and high-heeled shoes, Arthur John Drewett, a 17-years-old Birmingham clerk, was found hanging in his bedroom.

The boy's father, at the inquest, said his son was interested in amateur theatricals. He had started his holidays on the day of the tragedy.

Recording a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane, the coroner said no motive had been discovered. It was probably a sudden uncontrollable impulse.

The lad's employers were so pleased with him, added the coroner, that they had promised him an increase in salary on his return from holidays.

Centenarian Astronomer Dies After 101st Birthday From Heart Attack

Mrs. Thomas Styan, of Sevenoaks, who celebrated her 101st birthday on August 4, died the following day as the result of heart attack.

Born at Stockport, when George IV. was on the throne, Mrs. Styan married an East Indian merchant. Their honeymoon journey to Scotland by stage took three and a half days.

She had a keen interest in astronomy, and to the end kept a telescope in her bedroom to study the heavens at her leisure.

At her 100th birthday celebration last year, when six of her seven sons and daughters and their grandchildren were present, Mrs. Styan received a kindly message of congratulation from the King and Queen.

YOUNG COPS WIN.

Byersville Sluggers Are An Unlucky Aggregation.

Another victory was registered for the Young Cops when they defeated the Byersville Sluggers in a Bantam League fixture by a score of 6 to 4 last night.

Jack Deaneard must have had his ponies shod with horse shoes, for with a small percentage of the breaks the Byersville Sluggers might have been on top. It was a remarkable game, for the losers had 10 men left on bases as compared with 2 for the winners. Wilson, the Byersville twirler, struck out 9 and Cripps 5, while Cripps passed 9 and Wilson only 2. Line-up:

Byersville Sluggers — Rogers, Wilson, Rogers, Saunders, Taylor, Rightmeyer, Tranter and Wilson.

Young Cops — Payne, Cripps, Deaneard, Collins, Cuff, Grose, Jones, Gordon, Masterson and Fields.

Score by innings:

Young Cops . . . . . 201 012x—6
Byersville Sluggers . . 001 010 2—4

Umpires — Rogers at plate and Thomas on bases.

WHY WOMEN HATE TO WASH DISHES

Takes From One and a Half To Two and a Half Hours Each Day Washing Dishes.

Many a man has wondered why women so vehemently hate a task that, according to their light, involves the washing of only a "few" dishes. They will probably continue to wonder unless enlightened. Letting them try their hands at dish washing unfortunately enlightens them only a little—from the masculine viewpoint at that.

Few men realize that the apparently insignificant task of washing dishes takes approximately one and a half to two and a half hours out of every housewife's day, the exact time depending upon the amount of dishes. The largest part of this time is spent standing at the sink or table with hands in hot, greasy water, which is anything but pleasant. A little of this may be good for our hands and our general well-being, but three doses a day, every day in the year, is, as Kipling would say, quite another story.

Aside from the unpleasantness of the task there is the really vital question of time, for time thus spent after the evening meal is robbing every husband and wife of the intimacy they should enjoy every evening of their lives. This was never brought home to me more vividly than the other day when I overheard a new-married couple talking.

"Really, dear," said the young husband, "we simply must contrive to spend a little more time each evening chatting. First thing you know we will find ourselves living a humdrum existence, like so many people around us are doing. You know we married because we wanted to be together more and get to really know each other, but I find that instead of seeing more of each other we are seeing less. Don't you think so?"

The girl's reply was exactly the kind any woman in her position would have made. She was crowded for time, getting dinner, serving it, clearing the table, and, finally, washing and drying the dishes. The strain was too great and sapped the energy which she might have used for interest in other things.

Is It Fair?

Is it fair to rob your husband and yourself of those precious hours of discussion upon which depend so much of your future happiness? Of course, it is not. Yet each of us has to decide her own problems. But the answer to this one is—in fact, to all the problems connected with crowding our days with work instead of devoting at least a fraction to our husbands, family and self cultivation—use, make liberal use of every known electrical household help you can afford.

Sacrificing married happiness and companionship for household tasks is, I think, a very big price to pay. To-day when a man marries he does so for companionship as well as a home, and it is almost entirely up to the woman whether or not he will get it.

The happiest homes are those where husband and wife enjoy the highest degree of companionship, which is only possible when both have plenty of time to devote to each other. So it is easily seen that while the electrical dish washer may not bring happiness into the home it will go a long way toward aiding it just as will the electric range, clothes washer, ironer and the rest of the now almost indispensable household helpers.

My electric dish washer has given me many happy hours with my husband. It takes me exactly 10 minutes to clear my table, scrape the dishes and put them into the rack of the washer and start it washing. While that is going on I fill the pots and pans with water and let them soak over night. Then I wash my hands and freshen up a bit, and by that time the dishes are washed. I drain the water, rinse them and let them dry in the rack. I put them away the next morning.

I am convinced that women hate dish washing not altogether because it is an ugly task, but because without, perhaps, analyzing the reason they are conscious it is responsible for depriving them of something—which is, of course, the only real happiness.

YEARS OF TRAVEL

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 22.—Sightseeing in a covered wagon, with "Chicago in two years" as the first goal, is the plan of Louis Dana Johnson, a local artist, who has left here with his family on a journey of five or six years.

In a trim gray prairie schooner, Betty Lou, aged 2, plays under the shelter of the canvas. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson and Barbara, aged 11, hike along the highways. Mr. Johnson expects to "knock off a year" in Chicago to study art. He then will continue to "hit the trail" until he and his family tire of the novelty. The schooner, which he constructed, is fitted with everything for a home and a school.

ABSENT-MINDED.

The absent minded professor, who had been attending a lecture all the evening, returned home very late and rather muddled. On entering his bed-room he thought that he heard someone move under the bed! "Who is under there?" he called out. "No—one," replied the burglar. "Funny!" said the professor. "I could have sworn I heard someone there!"

TAKES 3 YEARS TO BUILD SHIP

And It Takes Over 9 Years To Train a Crew to Man Her.

OTTAWA, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press.)—"I must, in duty, remind you that it takes three years to build a ship and nine years to train a crew to man her." Thus Vice-Admiral Sir Frederick Field declared at a dinner given here in his honor last night by Hon. E. M. Macdonald, Minister of National Defence. Sir Frederick was speaking in reply to a toast of his health and that of officers of special service squadron, proposed by Premier King and seconded by Sir Robert Borden, Canada's Premier during the war.

Premier King spoke in high terms of the work of the navy in the war, of the value of the cruiser, of the special service squadron, and, on behalf of the Dominion Government, extended a warm welcome to Canada.

There were some, the Prime Minister continued, who were apt to criticize Canada's navy and in this connection he was reminded of reference in Bisley Who's Who to Sergeant Burke, winner of this year's King's prize. In that Who's Who, declared Mr. King, the only reference to Burke was: "New blood."

"The Canadian naval service," he went on, "is a new blood in the great naval power which has meant so much in the history of the world. But should a critical situation ever arise, I think of new blood in any department of our national life may be expected to do its part in the manner which will do credit to the whole."

THOUSANDS HEAR ARTHUR MEIGHEN

King Promised To Make Tariff Reductions in 17 Leading Commodities.

EUGENIA FALLS, Aug. 22. — (Canadian Press).— What Canada wants through this period of business depression is the return to the national policy which aims to retain Canada for Canadian people according to the slogan which Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Conservative party, broadcast at this centre yesterday to a gathering of several thousand people from the northern counties, gathering in honour of Mr. Meighen was a public picnic when citizens rlivened and stood through two hours of preliminary speaking in order to hear the utterances of the Conservative leader, while Mr. Meighen touched upon many phases of administration of the King Government. The point which he emphasized most was that the time had come when the people in general could no longer overlook the importance of an adequate tariff protection for Canadian farmers as well as for Canadian industry and that the only thing which could allow Canada to take her proper place among nations of the world and fulfil her legitimate destiny was to return to the national policy of Sir John A. MacDonald, adherance to tariff policy of King government, he said, meant that commerical and agricultural strangulation of Canada while adherance to natural principles of higher tariff meant that Canada would have her opportunity to fulfil her natural destiny. According to the present government of Canada it was a case of government by barter wtih a definite number of Canada's manhood bartered with each stroke which the King government made in an attempt to hold to the reigns of office. Mr. Meighen put it that the King government held its grip upon office only through bartering off tariff reductions to progressives, it may have been perfectly true that during his pre-election promises the present Premier threatened to make tariff reductions in seventeen leading commodities, including food stuffs but nothing appeared to be farther from mind of the government than that such threats should be put into commission.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

HOME-MADE WINE.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Some little time ago you published a reply to an inquiry about home-made wine. Your authority, Mr. Jos. Wearing, City Solicitor, stated that the good woman of the house could make her home-made wine under the O.T.A. as of old without fear of having a constable tapping at the door and spying upon her movements. You were wrong, and Mr. Wearing was wrong This extract from The Globe gives the true state of the O.T.A. law:

Jailed For Six Months For Having Liquor Mash.

(Special Despatch to The Globe.)

Chatham, Aug. 20. — A fine of $200 and costs of six months in jail was imposed on J. Lequelle this morning, in the County Police Court, on charges of having mash suitable for the manufacture of spirits in his possession. Lequelle decided to take the jail sentence.

Any woman or other person making dandelion, rhubarb, grape or other wine which may happen to go over 2 1-2 per cent. is liable to a $200.00 fine or 6 months in gaol, and it is only fair for The Examiner to let people know what the real O.T.A. law is. It would be a terrible thing for some poor woman to have to go to gaol because she did not know what the prohibition law means.

"Ship Ahoy!"

All the nice girls love a sailor,
All the nice girls love a tar,
For there's something about a sailor,
Well, you know what sailors are!
Bright and breezy, free and easy,
He's the ladies' pride and joy;
Falls in love with Kate and Jane,
Then he's off to sea again—
Ship Ahoy! Ship Ahoy!
(Repeat the Chorus,)

"Land of Hope and Glory."

Land of Hope and Glory,
Mother of the Free,
How shall we extol thee,
Who are born of thee?
Wider still and wider
Shall thy bounds be set;
God, who made thee mighty,
Make thee mightier yet.
God, who made thee mighty,
Make thee mightier yet.
(Repeat the Chorus,)

THE SPIRIT OF NICOLAI LENIN

(By J. W. T. Mason.)

Nikolai Lenin the dead leader of atheistic Bolshevism, lies embalmed in a public place in Moscow, disavowing in death the irreligious materialism of his own Soviet, as the Russian people seek spiritual consolation at his bier.

The Soviet, though elevating materialism into a scientific creed to destroy spirituality, has called upon science to make a perpetual spiritual reminder of the lifeless body of Lenin.

Chemical matter has been added to the matter of Lenin's corpse, and Lenin has been saved from the dust. In a glass-covered case he lies in continuous state, exposed for public worship, inspiring the unanswerable argument of man's overwhelming intuition of life's spirituality.

By the doctrine of Bolshevism, Nikolai Lenin was only a speck of vitalised matter. Cause followed by effect. Materialism explaining the beginning, the climax, the end, the matter devitalised. Disintegrating dust to be thrown aside like other dust. There was nothing sacred, nothing spiritual in the image made of matter and called Lenin alive; how much the less could one believe in his spirituality after death.

And yet, the Soviet, so glib with atheistic formula while Lenin lived, could not repeat the mockery over his coffin. Something had gone; something more than matter. What remained, indeed, was no more than matter; but it had housed that which was more. It had served as the instrument of a soul.

To have incinerated Lenin's body and scattered the dust indifferently to the breeze would have been sacrilege to the followers of the Soviet. Yet why if atheism is true and only materialism matters? The Bolshevik catechism has no answer.

Nikolai Lenin taught materialism and atheism, but his doctrines are interpreted in spiritual terms by his followers. Atheist and materialist though he was, he gave spiritual inspiration to the Russian masses, for we teach better than we know. The Russians cannot give up that which he taught them was Lenin—his material body, now in statuesque repose. But to them it is far more than a statue made of matter than never bore life. It is the body of Nikolai Lenin's soul.

Deep in man's subconscious mind is the knowledge that atheism is false and materialism is not an end in itself, but only a temporal form so far beyond man's comprehension that there must be a higher interpretation still. Man refuses to accept the negation of himself in any final form.

The subconscious impetus if life has been acquiring knowledge of Reality for many millions of years. Self consciousness, however, is only a few thousand years old. Self-consciousness understands only the surface view and is inexperienced even in translating that. But subconsciousness knows life and death from the inside as its own familiar environment. Thus, Russia, turning to the dead body of Nikolai Lenin in religious awe, reflects the subconscious knowledge that there a spiritual centre of life had its being on earth.

The petty effort of self-conscious immaturity to find life's explanation in terms of dead matter serves for some while the body lives, for the body seeks to make itself the only omnipotence. But let life vanish, leaving no more than dead matter behind, and the complacent theory of materialistic atheism crashes to the earth. For in the dead is proof to the living that there is a difference between matter and life.

So, Nikolai Lenin, leader of atheistic materialism in life, has become in death a centre of spiritual inspiration. By authority of the Soviet, a smile has been pointed on his lifeless lips. It cannot be ironical. Rather, it is the sign of understanding that comes to the dead and enlightens the living in their presence.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

ENID BENNETT IS FILM STAR, WIFE, AND MOTHER TOO

Heroine of "The Fool's Awakening" Combines Acting With Home Life.

An important person indeed is Enid Bennett—wife of Fred Niblo, noted director, mother of a lovely baby, and an actress of distinction, with as varied a role off the screen as on it.

Her latest part is the leading feminine character in Metro's production of "The Fool's Awakening," which starts its run at the Regent Theatre on Friday and she plays Olive Gale, an heiress.

Immediately after completing her education in York, Australia, which was her birthplace, Miss Bennett launched out on a business career. While she was working in an office in Perth, Australia, which is a few miles from her home, she saw an advertisement for someone to play a minor role in a play. It was Fred Niblo, who was touring the country with his theatrical company, and who needed an extra player. Enid Bennett applied and was accepted. This was the beginning of a long and varied career in which she played with Niblo, Otis Skinner and many other stage celebrities. She toured Australia and the United States and then started on her screen career, as an ingenue.

Thomas E. Ince productions were her first, and she appeared in "Fuss and Feathers," "The Vamp," "What Every Woman Learns," "Hairpins," "Her Husband's Friend" and "Silk Hosiery." She also appeared opposite Douglas Fairbanks as Lady Marian in "Robin Hood" and her performance in this spectacular production was proclaimed as one of the finest interpretations ever brought to the screen.

In Metro's picturization of "Your Friend and Mine," Miss Bennett played the leading role, and her performance of Poppy Faire in the Metro-Niblo production of "Strangers of the Night," scored a decided hit.

Miss Bennett's appearance is the sort that brings to mind the artist's dream of the perfect model. She has golden brown hair, expressive hazel eyes, and a slender, graceful figure. She is five feet, three inches tall, and weighs 110 pounds.

As Olivia Gale, in "The Fool's Awakening," she has an exceptionly fine part.

AT THE ROYAL.

Gladys Walton's "The Town Scandal," Bright Comedy Drama.

Not so long ago Zion City, Illinois, got into the newspapers with quaint ideas about Sunday blue laws Then another little town drew a bit of publicity when some of its townspeople objected to the ringing of the curfrew bell on the ground that it disturbed the peace and tranquility of their slumbers. It drew a laugh, did that request, but it did get mention in the papers.

The Murphysburg Purity League had ideas almost equal to the Utah Anti-smoking Law — almost. The women of the league met in righteous assembly each with a pocketful of new ideas. Their husbands accompanied them to the meeting but their ideas were veiled. They spoke not.

Mrs. Blank suggested that they concentrate to evolve another pleasure that they could decre a sin. Mrs. Extra Blank made a cinch out of that.

"Let's make it 'ice cream sodas'," said Mrs. E. B.

Then along came Jean Crosby, a chorus singer and dynamited the whole show.

'The Town Scandal,' a Universal attraction, starring Gladys Walton, has a comedy wallop that, combined with dramatic action provides real entertainment. The picture opened at the Royal Theatre last night.

CANDY MATINEE FOR THE KIDDIES

In addtion to the programme with special appeal to the young folks, a bag of candy will be given to every child attending the daily matinees. The programme includes Gladys Walton Buddy Messenger, Fred Thompson and other novelties.

BEN ALEXANDER AND LLOYD HAMILTON IN SELF MADE FAILURE AT ROYAL ON MONDAY.

"A Self-Made Failure," the production which is to be shown next Monday at the ROYAL THEATRE has been pronounced by many of the film critics as the best farce comedy of the year.

The picture includes every ingredient which has made motion pictures a popular entertainment. The director, William Beaudine, has not missed a chance. Most of the tears in it come from convulsive laughter but some will come from sorrow and deepest tragedy that have been intermixed with a plot that is largely in the nature of a farce.

The success of "A Self-Made Failure" threatens to even surpass McDonald's former successes, "Pen rod and Sam" and Boy of Mine," Ben Alexander, who won fame in both of those attractions will again be seen in McDonald's latest. This time he is the boy companion and tramp-pal of Lloyd Hamilton, one of the best fun makers on the screen to-day.

The cast also includes: Matt Moore, Patsy Ruth Miller, Mary Carr, Sam De Grasse, "Chuck" Riesener, Victor Potel, Dan Mason, Harry Todd, Alta Allen, Priscilla Moran, Joe McCray and "Cameo," the "Penrod and Sam" dog.

AT THE CAPITOL.

A chorus of "ohs"and "ahs" punctured the atmosphere last night at the Capitol Theatre as an amazed and delighted audience witnessed the unfolding on the screen of Paramount's widely-heralded "Wanderer of the Wasteland." By the time "The End" was flashed on the silver sheet even the most blase of those present would hav been willing to testify that it was the most unusual film offering of the season. It is a pleasure to record that the picture more than fulfilled the nigh expectations aroused by the adavnce reports that had been circulated about it.

"Wanderer of the Wasteland," adapted from Zane Grey's well known story marks a radical advance in photoplay production in view of the fact that the picture was photographed entirely in color, something heretofore never attempted in a full-length feature. Aside from its novelty the picture proves conclusively that colored photography, the philosopher's stone of the motion picture world, has at last been perfected for practical purposes.

Zane Grey has reason to feel mighty grateful to Irwin Willat who directed the picture. Mr. Willat left nothing undone that would insure a deluxe production. The actual scenes mentioned in Mr. Grey's book—the mountain and the desert country of Arizona and Death Valley, California —were used as backgrounds for the swiftly-moving story so that we see Nature's handiwork in all its madvellous gorgeous colorings.

A well nigh perfect cast was picked to interpret the various roels. Jack Holt makes an ideal hero, Billie Dove is a vision of loveliness, Noah Beery is a "desert rat" and Kathlyn Williams has a fine role.

The story of the "Wanderer of the Wasteland," is set in the atmosphere of the western spaces, with much of the action filmed in the famous Death Valley. Adam Larey (Jack Holt) is the hero, who becomes the "Wanderer of the Wasteland," of the desert, after he has, as he thinks killed his own brother in a fight, and blinded the brother's companion, Collishaw. In his wanderings in the desert, he comes upon the daughter of a madman of Death Valley, and through her, finds freedom and love.

The comedy, "Get Out and Get Under," is a Harold Lloyd mix-up, with the versatile comedian at his best in one of those fantastic pictures in which he excels, with a variety of hilarious situations comprised in a chase after a girl.

JUVENILE FINALS.

Maple Leafs and Curlers Clash at the Exhibition Grounds To-night.

A win for the Curlers to-night will give them the City League Honours over the Maple Leafs while if the Leafs come through with a victory the league will be once more tied up and another game will have to be played to decide the winner.

The Leafs are determined to come through with a win to-night over Alex. Kay's gang, but to do so they will have to go the limit. Both teams are so evenly matched that whatever team gets the breaks will win out. In former games these teams have provided some snappy ball and they will likely do the same to-night.

SOCCER NOTES

New York Take Two From St. Louis—Hornsby Gets 7 Hits in 7 Chances.

DODGERS BLANK SOX

ST. LOUIS, August 21—The New York Giants took both games of a double from St. Louis to-day, 8 to 4 and 12 to 1.

Rogers Hornsby, Cardinal second baseman, made seven hits out of seven times at bat, two of which were home runs, bringing his total home run record to 18. Kelly, Meusel and Southworth also drove out circuit clouts.

Hornsby's second home run which came in the sixth inning of the second game, was the only score the Cardinals could tally off Barnes. Scores:

Phillies In a Wreck

CINCINNATI, August 21.—Rixey was in good form to-day, while Mitchel and Couch were hit freely, the Reds winning easily from Philadelphia 11 to 0. The visitors were late in arriving, due to a train wreck and the game was started 45 minutes after the scheduled hour. None of the Phillies was injured in the wreck. All four of the hits made off Couch were three baggers. Score:

Mitchell, Couch and Henline, Wendell; Rixey and Hargrave.

Sox Can't Hit

CHICAGO, August 21.—Chicago could collect only four hits off Rube Ehrhardt, while Brooklyn made most of its hits count, and white-washed the locals 2 to 0, it being the third shut out suffered by the Cubs in two days. The visitors bunched three of their hits for the first run and Fournier smashed the ball into the left field bleachers for the other tally, it being his twenty fifth circuit drive of the season. Score:

Brooklyn	100	000	001	2	7	0

"SHE'S BETTER THAN HELEN WILLS"

That's What Coast Says of Another Helen, Now Starring on Court.

BERKELEY, Calif., Aug. 22.—"Lady-in-waiting to Queen Helen Wills," is the title which the coast has bestowed upon Helen Jacobs, 15-year-old girl of this city.

In her is seen the successor of that list of California tennis stars—Mary Sutton Bundy, Mrs. George Wrightman, Mary K. Browne and Helen Wills —who have gone east and won highest tennis honors.

Miss Jacobs will make her debut in the east next month when she competes in the National Junior championships at Philadelphia. This event, incidentally, was the first eastern triumph for Helen Wills who, at 15—Miss Jacobs' age now—won the junior title. That was in 1921 and again in 1922.

Gets Same Coaching.

Miss Jacobs is following in Miss Wills' footsteps on other matters also. The schooling, the experience, the coaching, all has been the same. And both prior to their eastern debuts had won the Pacific Coast championships in both the junior and girls' divisions.

Experts agree that Helen Jacobs is even more advanced in her playing than was Miss Wills at the same age.

W. C. Fuller, the man who coached Helen Wills to a national title and now has Miss Jacobs under his tuition, gives a comparison not at all unflattering to the younger set.

"There is not much difference in the speed of the forehand drive at present," says Fuller. "Miss Wills has a better backhand stroke, though little Helen's backhand is good. But it has not the finish of that of the other girl.

Better Than Helen Was.

"But Helen Jacobs' service is fully as speedy as that of Miss Wills, and her court covering may be a little better than that of the national champion. However, she lacks the anticipation that comes from greater experience, although I cannot criticize her ability to sense the play.

"In the majority of departments, Miss Jacobs has an edge on Miss Wills at 15."

Carmen Tarilton, coast tennis star, who defeated Miss Wills when the latter was just 15, and who gained a triumph over Miss Jacobs very recently, concurs in this later opinion.

"I feel safe in saying that Miss Jacobs plays a better game now than Helen Wills did at her age," she declares.

AINSMITH AND CADORE FIRED

And Several of Giants' Regulars May Follow as McGraw Cleans House.

FOR MISCONDUCT

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 22.—The camp of the Giants was in a turmoil last night. Leon Cadore, pitcher, and Eddie Ainsmith, veteran catcher, have been shipped back to New York by Manager McGraw who declares that they will never play again under the shadow of old Coogan's Bluff in the uniform of the Giants.

Furthermore, the pilot has threatened that two and possibly three of the regulars on the team also will be "fired" unless they return to the straight and narrow path, from which he maintains they have been wandering frequently of late.

The condition of Cadore and Ainsmith when they joined the club, following the exhibition game at Akron on Sunday was only the climax, according to McGraw, who said he could forgive and forget a couple of times perhaps, but there was a limit to his patience.

Rescued From Minors.

Cadore, who served under Wilbert Robinson in Flatbush for several years, was taken into the Giant fold only a month ago after the pitcher had obtained an unconditional release from the Vernon Club of the Pacific Coast League. He had been used to finish two games for the Giants and had shown considerable promise as a relief twirler.

Ainsmith was released by the St. Louis Cardinals last Summer and finished the season with the Dodgers, who let him go last Winter. He applied to McGraw for work and the Giants' manager had been using him briefly out in the bull pen warming up pitchers and as a backstop during the batting practice.

The poor showing made by the Giants on their present Western jaunt undoubtedly convinced McGraw that something was wrong and he conducted a quiet investigation which may lead to a general house-cleaning even though it may mean the disruption of the team at the crucial period in the pennant race.

McGraw evidently hopes that the severe punishment inflicted upon Cadore and Ainsmith may serve as a warning to the regulars who have been lax in their observance of the training rules.

C.G.E. DEFEAT EXAMINER 3-1

Good Game in Mercantile League—Examiner Supply Fielding Features.

FINE PITCHING

In one of the fastest and best contested games of the Mercantile League the C.G.E. defeated the Examiner 3-1. Last night's win was the fourth in a row for the C.G.E., who are now well in front in the second half of the race. The game was featured by good pitching and fast fielding, the Examiner contributing most of the fielding features.

McDonough hurled them in for the Electricians and worked good. He was very wild at times and issued six walks. The Examiner gang could only collect three hits off his delivery and he fanned twelve of them.

Scates did the heaving for the newspaper crew. He was touched for seven hits, but he issued no walks. He fanned four. The Examiner team gave their pitcher airtight support, only a couple of errors being chalked up.

The fielding features were all contributed by the Examiner the C.G.E. getting no chance to show their wares as McDonough practically did it all. Bill Collins at short for the newspaper gang turned in a great game. He had eight hard chances, including an unassisted double play. Collins speared them from all over and covered the difficult position like a big leaguer. Taylor at first base knocked down a couple of red hot drives and retired the batters. He made a great shoestring catch of a pop fly about ten feet from the plate. Elliott in left field had a great catch of a hard fly and he displayed great throwing ability. Baker knocked down a hard drive from Ahern's bat and threw the runner out at first.

The C.G.E. opened the first with two runs. Mahood first up singled. Bradley followed with another single, Mahood taking second. McDonough fanned. Griffin singled scoring Mahood, Bradley pulling up at third and Griffin second. Lebarr got a cheap hit when Clarke misjudged his fly to center, Bradley scoring, and Griffin taking third. Lebarr stole second. Barrie cut a vicious line drive to short which Collins speared and doubled Lebarr off second. It was a nice play by the shorstop.

The Examiner scored one in the first. Baker first up walked. Taylor also followed suit with a complimentary. Dugan popped a high one to McLeish and Baker who had dashed for third was doubled up at second. Taylor stole second and third and scored when Collins doubled to right field. Marchen fanned for the third out.

There was no more scoring until the fifth inning when the C.G.E. counted another. Williams leading off hit to Dugan who threw over Taylor's head, the runner reaching second. McLeish fanned but Mahood beat out a bunt, Williams getting third. Mahood stole. Bradley looped a single just behind second. Williams scoring and Mahood taking third. Bradley stole second. Scates stopped further scoring by fanning McDonough and Griffin.

The teams lined ups as follows:

C.G.E.—Mahood, c; Bradley, cf; McDonough, p; Griffin, lf; Ahern, rf; Lebarr, 1b; Barrie, 2b; Williams, 3b; McLeish, ss.

Examiner—Baker, 2b; Taylor, 1b; Dugan, 3b; Collins, ss; Marchen, c; C. Clarke, rf; Elliott, lf; H. Clarke, cf; Scates, p.

EXAMINER PROTESTS GAME WITH C. G. E.

Claim Umpire Erred in His Decision on Wrong Batsman.

The Examiner team have entered an official protest on last night's game with the C.G.E. They claim that Umpire Cobb erred in calling Baker out when he batted out of his turn. The official rules state that a player who bats out of his turn is not out until he becomes a baserunner. If the error is discovered before the batter becomes a baserunner the batter in whose turn he is batting in goes in to bat and takes the count that was on the batter who batted out of his turn. The count was one and one when the error was discovered. Baker retired in favor of Scates who should have been batting. Umpire Cobb called Baker out and Scates went in. According to rules Baker should not have been called out and Scates should have batted with the count one and one on him. Manager Dugan of the Examiner team feels confident he can win the protest on these grounds.

JOHNSON STILL KING

Mixes Curves With His Fast Ball, Says Babe Ruth.

NEW YORK, August 22. — "Walter Johnson is a far better pitcher to-day than when I broke into the American League," says Babe Ruth, champion slugger of the universe.

"When I first faced Johnson he was a speed ball pitcher, pure and simple," continued Ruth; "now no pitcher in the American League mixes them up better than Johnson.

"In the old days when hitting against Johnson it was customary for me to get set for a healthy swing, as I felt pretty certain I would have nothing but fast ones served me.

"Now it is entirely different. Johnson has a mighty good curve, that he breaks in on the bat handle of the left handers. It is impossible to hit it hard. His slow ball upsets entirely the batter who is looking for speed.

"A fast breaking curve and a change of pace makes Walter Johnson a much better pitcher. That has been my experience in batting against him."

Such a glowing tribute from so great a batsman as Ruth should set at rest any reports relative to Johnson slipping.

About five years ago Johnson appeared to be going back a trifle, but in this, his eighteenth year in the majors, he looks as good as ever.

EVERYTHING SET FOR TO-MORROW'S PLAY-OF CLASH

Both Ponies and Petes Confident on Eve of Season's Biggest Game.

HECKMAN TO PITCH.

Petes' Ace Will Duel With Either Kelly or Gallagher at Riverside.

Everything is set for tomorrow's Central Ontario League play off at Riverside Park between the Kingston Ponies, winners of the first half and the Petes who grabbed the second half title by winning their last nine games in succession.

President McFarlane and Treasurer Walsh of the O.B.A.A. will be among the celebrities on the side lines when the teams are sent away in the first clash for the prized Central League pennant and the right to enter the series for the senior championship of the province.

There will be hundreds of other visitors from outside points and everything points to a new attendance mark.

The Petes have won their last four games from the Ponies.

Can they add another tomorrow?

Naturally the Kingston fans say not.

They point out that the Ponies won the first half and could afford to take it easy in the second and they intimate that the Limestone crew have a lot of reserve strength for the big series.

May be so—but they should not forget that Heckman did not start against them at all in the first half, that he won his three starts against the Ponies in the second canter and that altogether in thirty-four innings the Lee-Daley combination have only been able to nick five runs off the Petes' ace—and but one counter in the last twenty innings.

In other words the Limestone gang have failed to fatten their batting averages against Heckman and they have to face him to-morrow when he has only pitched five easy innings in two weeks.

Either Kelly of Gallagher will do the gunning for Kingston tomorrow.

Each is a good southpaw but the Petes have beaten both handily this season and they are confident that they can do it again.

The Kingston team will line up with either Kelly or Gallagher in the box; Riekman or Rice, catching; Purvis, 1b; Somerville, 2b; Compeau, short stop and Batston, 3b. Cherry will play centre field and Nickle right while Gallagher if he is not the choice for the hill top may patrol left field.

The Petes will send into action the same battle array as swept through the second half race.

"Play ball" will be sounded at 3 o'clock sharp and three umpires Frank Hallinan, Bill Benson and Si Dell will have charge of the proceedings.

A memorable ball game and a capacity crowd should be the order of the day.

TORONTO, August 22 (Canadian Press). — Toronto defeated Jersey City 13 to 4 in the third game of the series here yesterday. Faulkner on loan to the visitors was batted out of the box in the first innings when the home team crossed the plate eight times.

"Wally" Stewart hurled for the Leafs, and it was the southpaw's 21st win of the season. Sullivan hit a home run in the sixth inning with Miller on base, and it was his second circuit clout in as many days.

Ottie Miller again starred at short, accepting twelve chances without an error, and bringing his total to 104 without a misplay. The score:

Jersey City	120000001—	4	6	3
Toronto	81001201x—13	17	1

Newell, Franks and Freitag; Stewart and Stanage.

Bisons Move Up.

BUFFALO, August 22 (Canadian Press). — Brown's wild pitch with one out and the bases full in the ninth here yesterday enabled Kelly to score and Buffalo won the second game of the series from Newark, 10 to 9. Anderson hit his twentieth home run of the season in the third inning. The victory put the Bisons in fourth place. The score:

Newark	002030202—	9	11	2
Buffalo	402000103—10	16	5

Ellis, Swaney, Brown and Dougherty; Proffitt, Fisher and McAvoy.

FIRST HALF FINAL

Lockworks and Westclox Meet Next Tuesday Evening.

Next Tuesday evening at Riverside Park the Westclox and the Lockworks will clash for the championship of the first half. Both these teams boast good players and the fans can be assured of a great game. On their first meeting in the first half of the league the Clockmakers came through with a victory by a one-run margin. When these two teams met in the second half the Lockworks trimmed the Westclox by a three run margin. The play-off game for the championship was delayed on account of the league not being able to secure an open date at Riverside. Next Tuesday the Bankers and Quakers were scheduled to meet but the Bankers defaulted to the Quakers, leaving an open date. This was at once taken to play off the championship fixture.

The Westclox have a good aggregation of ball players on their line up. The Lockworks also boast a formidable aggregation, so a good game can be looked for.

RAY SCHALK FINALLY BREAKS DOWN

This Will be the First Season He Hasn't Caught More Than One Hundred Games — Career Packed With Brilliant Feats.

Ray Schalk, brilliant catcher of the Chicago White Sox, is apparently to be denied a certin goal that he had set.

For 11 consecutive years Schalk has caught 100 or more games. He hoped to stretch the record to an even dozen, then rest on his laurels. However, a series of injuries have practically killed his chance.

Schalk has passed the peak of his game. Years of hard work have taken their toll. The wonder catcher of the White Sox admits it.

"I guess 100 games is a little too much for me now," says Ray, "but if I ever get my hands in good shape again there is no telling what I might be able to do."

At present Schalk is playing with three badly injured fingers on his throwing hand. Most catchers wouldn't even don a uniform under the circumstances. Schalk loves the game. Perhaps that in a measure explains the greateness that he has attained.

Glutton for Work.

While far from being husky, Schalk is built on sturdy lines. One would never expect a player of his physique to stand up under 11 years of hard service, in which he caught from 106 to 151 games.

From 1912 to 1924 Schalk has taken part in 1444 games, an average of some 131 games per season over a period of 11 years. The big league schedules call for 154 games. This will give some idea of how little the rest of the White Sox catching staff has had to do over that stretch of play.

Schalk's record of 11 consecutive years, in which he caught more than 100 games each season, is more than double the best National League performance, five years by Chief Myers when with the New York Giants.

Most Unusual Career.

Schalk's career in the American League fairly teems with brilliant performances. The feat that pleases him most is that he has made a put-out at every base in the infield, quite unusual for a catcher.

While Schalk may never again catch 100 games during a major league season, he is far from being through as a catcher, still is one of the most valuable in the majors.

As a matter of fact, there will probably be a place for Schalk in baseball as long as he cares to stick to the game. His knowledge of the catching game makes him invaluable to a club in its development of pitchers.

Always noted as a smart player, the managerial field is open to him should he care to take a whirl at directing a club.

Catchers of the Schalk type come about once in a score of years.

Australians Qualify Against "Little Bill" Johnston and Griffin.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Australia's tennis team of Gerald Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood, a team of spirit, stamina and skill that would not say die when defeat seemed imminent and the brother combination of Robert G. Kinsey and Howard O. Kinsey from the Pacific Coast, conquering Olympic champions, came out victors yesterday in the semi-final round of the national doubles championship tournament. It took five sets for each to assert themselves in matches that were worthy of the title play.

"Little Bill" Johnston and his partner, Clarence J. Griffin, three times winner of this championship, went down before Australia's daunt-

SOCCER NOTES.

The Thistle and G.W.V.A. meeet in the semi-final of the Peck Cup at King Edward Park on Saturday afternoon, August 23rd at 3.30 prompt. Referee, Alex Mitchell.

The Quakers and Woollens play a league game at the Oval on Saturday, at 2 o'clock prompt. Referee, Jack Clark.

Special meeting of the P. and D. F.A. on Monday evening in Chamber of Commerce Rooms at 8 p.m. prompt. Representatives and Executive please attend.

The G.W.V.A. will represent Peterboro in the Ontario cup proper. They will be up against the Ottawa team—the Sturgeon F.C. in the first game and the game must be played on or before September 1st. If they are successful at Ottawa, the Peterboro soccer boys will have Oshawa here in the next round.

The Canadian Woollens F.C. have notified the P. and D.F.A. that they cannot play in the Final of the Peck Cup, owing to mostly all their players being away on their vacation. Last year, arrangements were made with the Trades and Labour Council to play the Final on some other date which may be so done again this season, otherwise there will be no Peck Cup Final.

If Peterboro wants to win the Plenty Cup, it is time that the team was chosen so as to get down to practice and through training under a capable trainer who must be the sole advisor and responsible to the Executive to see that all the boys train as scheduled, otherwise it will be useless. Let's get behind this and put it over.

Farmers' Stores Closing.

Only Half a Dozen Remain of Over Thirty Co-operative Branches—Outlook For Thesee Not Good.

WOODSTOCK, N.B., Aug 21.—Only about half a dozen of the thirty-odd United Farmers' Co-operative Store established in New Brunswick several years ago, are being operated to-day, and several of these which are still doing business are likely to be closed within a short time.

Elimination of the stores one after another is result from the process of settling up the affairs of the enterprise, which was first known as New Brunswick United Farmers' Co-operative Limited, and which later expanded and became known as Maritime United Farmers' Co-operative Limited.

When the enterprise ran upon the rocks in its financial course, a change was made by an Act which passed the legislature making the various stores separate enterprises and continuing the general company as a parent organization. Under this arrangement each of the individual stores became responsible for a specified proportion of the debts of the parent organization, which had made a compromise with the creditors.

There has been on the part of the creditors, however, an insistent demand for settlement, and they have pressed the parent organization to such an extent that writs have been issued out of Chancery Court by the parent company against the branch companies and through that process branch stores have been closed up one after another until, as stated above, only about half a dozen still remain in operation.

AGRARIAN LEADER TO FREE BALKANS

Formation of a Federated State of Free Nations in Balkans.

ZAGREB, Jugoslavia, Aug. 22.—During his stay in Moscow Stepan Raditch, the anti-Pashitch leader, has developed more emphatically than ever before his program for the normalization of the Balkans.

This Republican-Agrarian program includes the formation of a federated state of free nations in the Balkans. This is to be employed as the basis for the organization of a Balkan-Danubian federation on the same basis. In this way Raditch hopes to remove the grievances of all racial minorities, including those in the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, those in the Rumanian Kingdom and also the Slovaks in the Czechoslovakian republic.

Concerning the Croatian peasantry, Raditch has caused it to be given out here that they must win their liberties, and cannot expect to have self-government offered to them on a silver platter by Nikola Pashitch.

In the absence of Raditch, who has been declared an outlaw by the Pashitch party, the Radicl press has abandoned in some measure the consideration which it previosly observed toward the person of the king and its attacks upon the throne are becoming menacingly pointed.

Pashitch cabinet is availing itself of this fact to strengthen its hold upon the sovereign, who is rapidly being placed in the position of adhering to Pashitch through thick and thin as the only method of dealing with the anti-monarchial menace.

Mr. Kenneth Connor has returned from a few days' outing at Weslymkoon Lake.

Miss Morna Wallbridge, of Toronto General Hospital, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Wallbridge.

Mr. John Dougan, of Vancouver, is renewing acquaintances in town after an absence of nine years. He says he finds conditions here very much improved.

Miss Barbara Foote, of Norwood, is spending a holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Foote.

Rev. T. H. H. Hall and Mrs. Hall were in town for a few hours, on their way from Weslymkoon Lake to Merrickville.

Mr. Wm. Hart, postmaster, goes to Salmon Lake to-morrow for a few holidays.

Miss Vera Balance, of Odessa, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Jas. Aylsworth.

The condition of Mr. J. Marcellus, who is seriously ill, shows some improvement to-day.

Dr. Wm. Dafoe and Dr. Cameron, of Toronto, were with Dr. W. A. Dafoe of town for a couple of days.

Mrs. P. J. Alexander of town and Mrs. R. Vanderwater, of Foxboro, are camping at Moira Lake.

Some citizens of Madoc have succeeded in growing some very fine specimens of gladioli, ranging in colors from dark crimson to shell-pink and purple. Flower lovers are rejoicing in the beautiful blossoms so plentiful this year, in spite of the backward season.

FINANCE HARVESTING.

Canadian Banks Prepared to Share in the Work.

CALGARY, August 22 (Canadian Press). — Canadian banks are once more prepared to come forward and provide any credit to finance the harvesting of the crop in Western Canada this fall, according to the statement made here yesterday by J. A. C. Kemp, of Toronto, chief inspector of the Bank of Commerce, who is at present on a tour of Western Canada.

"The banks have the best feeling for the farmers," said Mr. Kemp, "and the bankers still have plenty of confidence in the West. All that is necessary is for the people to be a little bit careful, work hard, and use what they have to the best of their ability."

Mr. Kemp said that conditions in Ontario were good, and this also applied to Quebec, the Maritime Provinces, and British Columbia.

HASTINGS WON THE BALL GAME

Defeated Orland in a League Game—Home Run Recorded.

HASTINGS, August 22. — Hastings defeated Orland in a Northumberland League game on Wednesday afternoon. The game opened up on even footing, neither team scoring in the first innings. The locals only made one in the second, and three in the third. Owing to an error in the fifth Orland tallied five runs. With one more in the fifth totalled their full number.

The star play of the game was when Herrington, the locals' first baseman, made a home run. Stevenson, who pitched excellent ball, had fifteen strikeouts to his credit. In the sixth innings, Collins came up to bat and received the ball in his arm. After taking first and trying to steal second, the ball again hit him on the head.

Orland put up a good fight for the game, and played excellent ball.

Mr. J. Downs as referee and C. Varcoe of Roseneath as base umpire were fair in all decisions.

The new score board was used, and proved of great benefit to the fans.

The line-ups were:

Roseneath — Dawson, p; Varcoe, c; zufelt, 1b; Honlin, 2b; Innis, 3b; Moran, rf; Moran, lf; Richardson, cf.

Hastings — Stevenson, p; Scriver, c; Herrington, 1b; Cruickshank, 2b; Collins, ss; D. Lemoir, 3b; L. Lambert, cf; Keagan, lf; P. Lemoire, rf.

Score by innings:

Hastings	000051000—6
Roseneath	013031000—8

Protest Entered.

On the protest which the Hastings team entered against Brighton in the game played at Presqu'uile, Hastings has decided to fight the protest. The Brighton wrote the local secretary asking if Hastings would consider the proposition of playing the game over again, but still wanted the local team to pay their own expenses and go against Brighton.

This the team would not consider at all, so the protest will be fought out in the near future.

LEAGUE WINNERS.

Finals Played in the School League Yesterday.

Mr. J. Abraham's team from the Queen Alexandra playgrounds were winners of the Playgrounds Baseball League in the final played on Thursday at 2.30 at the Oval. The game was well fought and things were pretty even up to the fifth innings, then the Alecs forged ahead, and the final score was Queen Alexandra 14, Central 3.

The Teams.

Queen Alexandra — J. Johnson, c; B. Sturgeon, p; G. Coleman, 1b; K. Baker, 2b; R. Walton, ss; T. Maudsley, 3b; G. Jarvis, rf; L. Abraham, cf; J. Sturgeon, lf.

Central — S. Cohen, c; H. Spry, p; C. Magee, 1b; H. Dormer, 2b; H. Zacks, ss; M. Baker, 3b; H. Sage, rf; T. Graham, cf; A. Spry, rf.

The championship pennants were presented to the winning team.

THREE MEN KILLED.

Received Injuries While On Construction Work in Toronto.

TORONTO, August 22 (Canadian Press). — Thre men died yesterday of injuries inflicted while they were on construction work.

One man was suffocated in an excavation. Two died as the result of falling from a scaffold.

Falling from a scaffold on the side of the new Vale of Avoca Bridge, J. J. McDonald, aged 32, plunged a distance of sixty feet to his death.

Buried in quicksand, eleven feet below the street level at Bloor Street and Runnymede Road last evening, Francesco Marido, an Italian labourer, was suffocated.

Marido and another workman, Angelo Meli, were working in an excavation which was being made for the erection of a gasoline service station.

Gordon Morris, aged 60, Booth-Royd Avenue, died in the General Hospital of a fractured skull. Last Tuesday Morris was working on the Varsity Stadium, when he fell from a scaffold.

Ingersoll Made Profit From Old Boys' Reunion

INGERSOLL, Ont., Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press).—From a financial viewpoint the Old Boys' and Girls Re-union of last week was a pronounced success. Treasurer M. J. Comiskey, of the Big Eight has prepared a statement showing that the total receipts were $6,6666.80, while the expenditure was $4,968.01, leaving a surplus of $1,698.79. It also was stated that during the re-union 1,935 Old Boys and Girls registered.

EUROPEANS TO COME TO CANADA

Hungarian and Danish Families Negotiating—British Scheme Favored.

SETTLEMENT TIMELY

LONDON, August 22.—Canadian Press Cable).— According to one authority, if the new settlers' agreement with the British Government had not been signed. Canada would have been turned into a continental Europe for farmers. Negotiations are already proceeding for fifty Hungarian families and overtures are being made regarding Danish settlers.

The scheme between the Overseas Settlement Committee here and the Western Australia has broken down the Labour Government there objecting to the cost and other hindrances. Six thousand men within five years was aimed at for the group settlement scheme. Each member would be entitled to wages while breaking the land. These, however, would not exceed ten shillings daily. The Governemtn were to provide material for the houses, fences, and were to look after a suitable water supply. They were also to provide reasonable equipment for the farms.

Victoria had a scheme for settling 2,000 but the applicants were expected to have a capital of £300. The New South Wales scheme contemplated £600 from each settler.

Favored By Press.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press Cable).—While the new Canadian settlement scheme by no means created a furore, such press comment as has already appeared seems favorable. The truth probably is that overseas settlement has so long hung fire that it has come to be regarded as the fald of well-meaning but unpractical zealots.

Some protectionist organs advance the argument that if we emigrate our farmers we must ensure them their future market within the bounds of the Empire.

Noel Buxton, Minster of Agriculture, maintained Wednesday, that the present governement was as deeply concerned as any other for the prosperity of the rural population. The greatest blot on the agricultural page were the inadequate wages so scandalously prevalent, he said. He had hoped the Liberals would help Labour towards a complete system of wage regulation, he stated, but though many of them would go a long way others would not support the central wage board at all, he added.

The NUT CRACKER

BY JOE WILLIAMS

SOCK ABSORBERS.

Sock absorber is thick-eared product of the hook-and-jab trade who thrives on high-powered punishment and triple-decked misery.

Used to be known as human punching bag, but even punching bag has been known to desert its moorings and admit, "enough."

Mr. Madden always goes into his fights expecting to finish second best, and so far he has never finished any worse.

'Tis proud boast of sock absorber that he never knows when to quit ....Might boast farther and confess he never knows anything.

If it is heroic and magnificent to stick out your jaw and invite brother blacksmith to pat you tenderly with stout-size anvil then we prefer being obscure strap hanger in suffocating subway.

Mr. Bartley Madden of New York and addled points east is latest Queensbruy creation in facial wreckage and muscular debris.

Mr. Madden's record is immaculate except for a victory scored over one of the native hams out in Indiana.. Mr. Madden explains the phenomenon by saying he was double crossed by home reefree.

"Why, I lose all the way to this palkula and to make it certain I takes a double portion of socks in the last round and then what does this crook do but turn around and give me the decision."

Apparently Mr. Madden lacks the subtle finesse of old Jim Flynn, Carl Morris and the sock absorbers of the past .....Those babies were always bad enough to lose, with no one casting a dissenting brick.

Morbid commentary on this situation is that customers seem to delight in spectacle of human sap emulating an animated chopping block with glassy stare.

They stay till last drop of gore is spilled, applaud robustly and chirp, "Well, you can't say he wasn't game."

And you can't say he wasn't dumb, either.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

Courage is a great asset in any sport. In none more so than baseball.

In a season that extends over a playing period of six months, calling for the best that is in him, baseball is the acid test of the great athlete.

In every sport certain athletes stand out because of reputation for great courage.

* * *

Walter Hagen is one of the most colorful figures in the golfing world, because he has often achieved greatness under the most trying circumstances.

* * *

When a situation develops that calls for a display of real courage, the old fighting spirit, Hagen seldom fails.

Being human there are times when he is unable to arise to the occasion, but they are the decided exception.

The courageous athlete is one who gives his best regardless of how hopelessly he is out of the running.

Some years ago Hagen was also among the also-rans in the British open. It was apparent after the second round that he was out of it.

Did he pick up his ball and quit? Not Walter Hagen! He played to the finish as carefully and courageously as if he was still a contender.

* * *

It is surprising the effect the courage of a certain athlete can have on the rest of his team mates. It inspires them with a confidence that makes for success.

* * *

Southpaw Wells of the Detroit club is a striking example of the part courage plays in the success of the individual and team.

Wells, only a year out of college, recently started a game against the Boston Red Sox. He was wild, hit rather hard and taken out about the middle of the game.

"He's going to be a great pitcher, has plenty of courage," remarked one of the Tygers, after Wells has been removed.

"Can't keep that bird from making good!" replied another; "he's smart and has plenty of nerve."

At least a half dozen of the team sang the praises of Wells to me even though he had not looked very good in his start against the Red Sox. Every player dwelled on the fact that he had plenty of courage.

In his next start he beat New York in the game that ousted the Yankees from first place, Detroit taking the lead.

That contest was a test of courage. Wells made good the boasts of his teammates.

* * *

During the past ten years I have seen a number of pitchers break into the majors with as much and more stuff than Wells, yet they failed to make the grade. Lack of courage was the reason.

Courage is essential to great success in the sport world.

SPEED LAWS VARY SAYS MOTORIST

Windsor Constables Allow 35 Miles and Brantford Only 25 Per Hour.

ONE LEGAL SPEED.

As evidence of the diversity of opinions prevailing as to the speed at which a motorist can travel on the open highway, where there is no traffic the following letter appearing in the Brantford Expositor affords a good example.

It is well known that 25 miles an hour is the only legitimate speed, but according to general opinion based on obitur dictums and statements from officials such as the writer to the appended article quotes as authority, many motorists believe that provincial officers in the proper fulfilment of their duties are instructed to take the amount of traffic into consideration before hauling a motorist into court.

For this reason, when a car is travelling at 30 or 32 miles on hour on a good road, where there is a freedom of traffic, some are of the opinion that a traffic constable will not pull them up, while experience has taught others that when travelling over 25 miles an hour, there are entirely at the mercy of the constables, whom the following writer terms "officious".

Motor Travel

Sir:— Quoting from your yesterday's Expositor what High Constable Wharton says that a person may "when there is no traffic and a man exceeds 30 or 35 miles, he does so at his own risk and will not be brought to court." Now this is very misleading to motorists who travel in the vicinity of Brantford. Brantford is talked about far and wide as being very small in this very thing. If a toufists or any other persons for that matter, is found going over 25 miles per hour he is hauled to court and fined which I know from experience. Now the above named constable has a very sensible view of the whole matter. But what are we to do. On one part of the province we are told we may go 35 miles per hour on a clear road in safety. I might say I motored down to Windsor last week and talking with some of the officials along the road they said you may travel at 35 miles per hour, without any fear. So I did with pleasure, and I notice that every one also did and some much faster and there were no officious officers stopping everyone that came along. But suppose I am a tourist. I come across at Windsor. I am told I may go 35 miles per hour and all will be well and come east. Everything is all right until I get near the city of Brantford, then a man on a motor cycle comes along puts up his hand and yells "Stop, Stop!" You do so. You are informed you are traveling at the great speed of 33 miles an hour, therefore you must come to the court where you are fined $10.00 and costs or $15.75. It is a pity we have not more men like Wharton, through the county, men who use common sense before the exact letter of the law, and I venture to say before two years the speed limit will be 35 miles per hour: But common sense must be used with any speed even if it were 5 miles an hour I claim a good driver can travel 35 miles per hour with absolute safety to all.

L. BRAUND.

ABSOLUTE NONSENSE.

Fruitless To Try and Send Radio Message To Mars.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Attempts now being made in the United States to establish radio communication with Mars were branded as "Absolute nonsense by Professor A. S. Eddington, world renowned astromoner of Cambridge University here last night Prof. Eddington is a member of the British Scientists party now touring the west.

The whole thing is too absurb for words," said the Professor. "Even if Mars was inhabited and the people there could understand our signals there is no possibility of crossing vast space between atmosphere of two great planets. Sound waves circle within earths armosphere and cannot pierce its bounds.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

REICHSTAG HEARD CHANCELLOR MARX

Report of Reparations Pact on London Conference Given Out.

BERLIN, Aug. 22. — (United Press.)—With the public in a tense state of expectancy the Reichstag convened to-day to hear Chancellor Marx and Foreign Minister Stresemann give their report of the reparations pact of London. Every available seat in the gallery was taken by holders of special cards of admission, all the leading diplomatic sections were occupied and police were stationed at strategic points throughout the Chamber to prevent any disturbances. A two-thirds majority is necessary to ratify the accords agreed by the German representatives for putting the Dawes report into effect, thus far the government's preliminary skirmishes with the Nationalists upon whose vote ratification will depend have brought no definite decision. It is understood however, that the Nationalist group are leaving the door open with an eye to obtaining the government's promise to enact agrarian tariffs or admit Nationalists into the cabinet.

If an agreement can be reached on either basis it is probable that a sufficient number of Nationalist deputies will abstain from the vital vote to ensure the majority needed. Otherwise a general election will be called for which the Socialists are very eager. After hearing Marx and Stresemann the Reichstag planned to recess until Monday.

HARVESTERS LEFT FOR WEST TO-DAY

Peterboro Sent Her Quota, Over 150 Leaving on Morning Trains.

Peterboro is bereft of a number of her unemployed, as a result of the Harvesters' Excursions that left the City to-day.

Fully 150 left this morning via C.P.R. and C.N.R. This doesn't include all of this district's quota as several left for Toronto the day before yesterday on single tickets, so that they could board a western excursion train there, on Thursday night. Other excursions will leave on September 3.

Of those who boarded to-day the majority were young men who took advantage of the opportunity to earn a good summer's wages, obtaining their transportation at reduced rates when the East is experiencing more or less of an industrial depression. There were others, who are experienced engine men, who have worked on threshing outfits before, and who feel that plenty of work and good wages awaits them, upon their arrival. Then again, there were young men who never before had seen the great north west that grasped the opportunity to combine travel and adventure with their employment Some of these no doubt will not return should the open spaces and climate of the great prairies appeal to them.

COMMUNISTS FORCED REICHSTAG TO ADJOURN WITHOUT HEARING MARX ADDRESS ON CONFERENCE

In Type For Late Berlin Editions, But Obstructionist Deputy Prevented Its Delivery.

DEFIED PRESIDENT WHEN ORDERED OUT

School Teacher Member Just Laughed at Command To Quit the Chamber—No Police Protection.

CABINET DEPARTED.

Address To-day Lays Stress On Effects of Rejecting London Agreement.

BERLIN, August 23 (Canadian Press). — A lone Communist yesterday succeeded in defying the Reichstag's rules of order and President Wallraf's bell for more than three hours, finally forcing an adjournment of Parliament and compelling the Cabinet members to retire from the Government bench without having submitted the Government's statement on the work of the international conference in London.

President Wallraf was helpless in the face of the Communist's obstructionist tactics, as the House rules do no permit of such an expedient as police intervention, and Dr. Ernst Schwarz, a graded school teacher and Communist deputy, therefore laughed off the President's order to quit the Chamber.

Ministers Disgusted.

Chancellor Marx, Foreign Minister Stresemann, and Finance Minister Luther, who were prepared to discuss the London agreement, looked on in disgust while the Reichstag's house committee sought to find a solution to the ludicrous situation.

Chancellor Marx finally left the Government bench, followed by Dr. Stresemann and the other members of the Cabinet.

President Wallraf will make another attempt to convoke the Reichstag to-day. Deputy Schwarz having been excluded for twenty sessions, and it is hoped that the postponed reading of the Government's statement will proceed without hindering disturbances.

The text of Chancellor Marx' speech had already been released, and was in type for the late street editions of the newspapers when the disturbance in the Reichstag began. It will be delivered along with the statements by Dr. Stresemann and Dr. Luther to-day.

Effects of Rejection.

The Chancellor will recapitulate the proceedings of the London conference and will point to the parties of the Reichstag the grave effects of a rejection of the conference pact, especially since resumption of negotiations in a new conference is highly problematical.

The Chancellor also will stress the significance of United States participation pointing out that approval of the accord reached in London is an urgent necessity in order to retain active interest of the United States in the reparation negotiations.

Situation Obscure.

The parliamentary situation still is obscure although there is less talk of possible dissolution in the event that the nationalists persist in their present vague threats to oppose the London settlement.

Represenatives of the Conservative parties were yesterday summoned by representatives of the Industrialists, and told that resistance would be illogical and pernicious.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Renchsbank, appeared before the committee on foreign relations, and warned the members of the menace to the German currency situation in the event that the London pact is disavowed. He also declared that such action would force him to make heavy curtailments in the present credit accomfodation.

TEACHERS VISIT NORTH ONTARIO

Leaving Sunday Evening For Intensive Study of Geography and Industries.

186 IN THE PARTY.

TORONTO, Aug. 23.—One hundred and eighty-six Ontario school teachers, with two Public school inspectors, representing Teachers' Institutes throughout the Province, are leaving on Sunday evening for an intensive study of the geography, resources and industries of Northern Ontario. H. E. Bryson, principal of the Silverthorne Public school, is the chairman of the, committee in charge and Charles E. Fraser, principal of the Harning Ave school, Toronto, is secretary. W. J. Dunlop of the department of University Extension, is director of the party. Among the centres to be visited are Sudbury, Creighton, Coniston, Sault Ste. Marie, Canyon Siding, Hearst, Kapuskasing, Cochrane, Porquois Junction, Timmins, Iroquois Falls, New Liskeard, Haileybury, Temagami and North Bay.

This is the fourth of these annual educational tours, the purpose of which is to familiarize the children of Southern Ontario, through their teachers, with the special features on the northern part of the Province. The trip is under the auspices of the Ontario Educational Association.

SLICK BANDITS MAKE BIG HAUL

Ride Nine Floors On Elevator With Crowd and Then Escape.

GET $100,000.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(Canadian Press).—Two bandits bound the proprietor and a customer in the offices of Feldenheimer and Jacoby, jewelry dealer, in Maiden Lane, during the noon rush, robbed the establishment of $100,000 worth of diamonds, casually rode nine floors in a crowded elevator to the street and lost themselves in Broadway's lunch hour crowds yesterday.

The robbery brought detectives on the rush. All exits of the building were placed under guard until every man inside identified himself and accounted for his time but late last night no arrests had been made.

The robbery was one of the coolest and most daring in the long history of Maiden Lanes diamond trade At noon Alexander Feldenheimer, partner in firm, and Mark Wollin, diamond dealer were in a display room where Wollin was negotiating the purchase of stones from Feldenheimer, Two wallets filled with diamonds lay on the counter. Suddenly two strangers appeared in a door between compartments usually locked but yesterday unaccountably open.

One stranger whipped out a revolver and backed Feldenheimer and his customer to the wall, according to Feldenheimer. The other pulled a roll of picture wire from his pocket and bound and gagged them. The bandits then seized two wallets and hastened out of the office, pulling the door shut quietly behind them. They then caught an elevator and went to the street.

ALFRED SMITHERS DEAD.

Succumbed To Long Illness In His Seventy-Fourth Year.

LONDON, August 23. — After a lengthy illness, Sir Alfred Smithers, former chairman of the Grand Trunk Railway Board, died here yesterday. He was 74 years old.

The late Sir Alfred Waldron Smithers was born on October 4, 1850, and was a son of the late William Henry Smithers, of the Bank of England.

He represented the Chislehurst division of Kent in the Comons from 1918 to 1922, was formerly deputy chairman of the Southeastern and Chatham Railway, and Chairman of the English Association of the American Share and Bond Holders.

Rains Halt Cutting But Are Benefit Elsewhere

WINNIPEG, Aug. 23.—(Canadian Press).—Despite the setback to the crop in its ripening stages in many districts throughout Western Canada the recurring rains of the past two weeks have proved of great benefit to other points where moisture was needed to aid the grain in filling out.

Giving continued favorable weather wheat-cutting operations are expected to become general throughout the three prairie provinces by the end of August. Early wheat cutting, which was halted by recent rains is now being resumed and, according to reports from scattered points in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, yields, are well up to the average.

HERD REGISTER HELD AS MODEL

British Scientist Pays Tribute To Canada's System of Registration.

RESEARCH URGED.

SASKATOON, Sask., August 23. —(By Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).— Rats may spread foot and mouth diseasre. This was the suggestion made by Dr. W. J. Dakin, professor of zoology, at the University of Liverpool who addressed agriculturalists and zoologists in a symposium here on Friday.

Professor Dakin told of experiments at Liverpool which have proven that rats may be infected with the disease and that lesions develop which are characteristic of the aliment in cattle. This work indicates a likely means of transmission, he said. The spread of the maladv from farm to farm has never been fully understood and the previous contention was that new cases developed by contact with the droppings of infected animals. It is more probable that the rats are responsible, Professor Dakin indicated. The disease is hard to study because the garm which causes it is so small that it passes through the finest filters, he explained.

Research Lags.

Dr Dakin reported a reaction against slaghtering as a method of coping with outbreak of foot and mouth disease It is now known that animals which recover possess an immunity This is an important point In any event the money which is being spent on indemnities for animals killed is out of all proportion to the investment in research and dwarfs the sums spent in bringing scientific aid to the farmer Animal pathology is lagging behind other lines of research, according to the zoologist Veterinary medicine has scarcely attained the positon of a science, he declared, The farmer needs more assistance than he is getting Prefers Raw Milk .

Tribute was paid by the scientists to Canada's campaign for registered herds. "Your methods deserve the highest praise," he said, "The quality of Canadian milk particularly in the big cities is remarkable. Pasteurization cannot replace the untreated milk from registered tuberculosis-free cattle. Clean, raw milk is far to be preferred. The Canadian system will likely he held up as a model when the scientists return to Great Britain, where the movement for registration is still in infancy."

VEHEMENT FRENCH DEPUTIES THRESHED LONDON AGREEMENT

Eight Hour Debate Evoked Barbed Criticism of United States and Britain.

MacDONALD "FALSE."

Socialist Welcomes United States' Participation In European Affairs.

PARIS, August 23 (Canadian Press). — A general assault on former Premier Poincare's Ruhr policy and Communist Leader Cachins arraignment of the United States and Great Britain as "warlike Imperialists" yesterday occupied a solid eight hours' debate in the Chamber of Deputies on the agreement reached at the international conference in London.

There were sundry references to Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain as a "false friend of France," and the Dawes reparation plan came in for a heavy cross-fire from M. Cachin and Leon Blum, Socialist leader.

Strong in Her Right.

Premier Herriot defended himself frequently, enunciating the high idealistic standard that "France's right must be her strength," and blaming the admitted weaknesses of his negotiations upon the errors or pledges of previous governments.

M. Blum, who is one of the most able debaters in the Chamber, made a lengthy speech, which he prefaced with the announcement that his followers would vote confidence in the Government. Nevertheless, he attacked the Government and the Dawes plan freely.

"Poincareism is dead indeed," he said, but then he launched on into an attack on a statement attributed to Charles G. Dawes to the effect that the experts' plan would have been impossible it France had not occupied the Ruhr.

"The truth is that the Ruhr occupation dragged us into the Dawes plan," M. Blum added vehemently, while the deputies of the Left applauded.

Thanked Herriot.

Near the end of his address, however, the Socialist leader put in a good word for the Premier.

"We thank the Premier," he asserted, for having begun to establish European solidarity and for having brought the United States, so long absent from Europe's affairs, to turn anew towards us who have need for her aid."

This last remark evoked several jeers rom the extreme Right and the extreme Left, M. Cachin shouting: "Oh, they aren't disinterested."

The night session was opened by Lieutenant-Colonel Jean Fabry, who, dealing with the question of France's safety, expressed the fear that after having obtained the evacuation of the Ruhr, there would be movement for the evacuation of the Rhineland.

To this M. Herriot replied: "Not for an instant has there been any question of that," and Lieutenant-Colonel Fabry retorted that since there no longer was any real check on German disarmament, the occupation of the Rhineland was France's only guarantee.

MARS TURNED TRICK.

Earth Shot Through Between the Sun and Mars Last Night.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.— (Canadian Press.)— The best advertised sky show of the year has played its one night stand. At eight last night, daylight saving time, the earth shot through between the sun and mars and straightened out for a run to the equinoxial post, where she is due on September 22nd. She turned the trick so neatly that not a passenger was jolted or frightened. So far as New York is concerned, nothing whatever came of it, according to all reports. Protem astronomers who looked at the south-eastern horizon a couple of hours before midnight, saw an unusually fine, big, red star blazing there. And that was all.

COMBINATION

White chiffon and ostrich are an almost unbeatable combination for the summer dance frock.

FARMERS STUNNED.

Three Horses They Were Driving Killed By Lightning.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Aug. 23. — Fred. McKay and Stanley Bennett, of Rest Zorra, had a narrow escape from death yesterday morning during a thunderstorm which passed over the district. They were out in a field cutting oats at the time when a bolt of lightning struck their machine, instantly killing three of the horses which were pulling it. Mr. McKay and Mr. Bennett were both stunned by the force of the shock, but suffered no material injuries.

ACCUSED OF ARSON.

St. Mary's Man Charged With Setting Dentist's House on Fire.

ST. MARY'S, Ont., Aug. 23. — James B. White, of this town, was Friday afternoon committed for trial before a jury by Magistrate Makins, of Stratford, on a charge of setting fire to a frame dwelling owned by Dr. C. W. Coupland, local dentist.

RETAIL TRADE RATHER QUIET

General Tenor of Weekly Business Report — Little Change in Week.

RAIN AN OBSTACLE.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 23. —(Canadian Press.—The weekly trade report of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association Limited, follows:

Halifax—Wholesalers and retailers report falling off in sales during the past week due largely to continued rainy weather.

St. John—Wholesalers report assorting fairly good and moderate fall shipments are going forward. Retail trade continues fairly satisfactory. Collections fair.

Montreal — Wholesalers report practically no change over last week Sales continuing up to expectations Retail trade somewhat quiet. Special sales prevailing.

Toronto—Wholesale trade reports business consists of sales in summer lines and these being taken up by public rapidly. Preparations under way for Canadian National Exhibition and this is adding a nice stimulus to local trade.

Winnipeg — Wholesalers report sales up to expectations and improvement expected in future due to satisfactory crop reports. Retailers report business quiet, but improvement looked for in near future. Collections slow.

Regina—Both wholesale and retail business quiet with very little change from previous week. Collections slow.

Saskatoon— Both wholesale and retail report business quiet. Collections slow.

Calgary— Both wholesalers and retailers report conditions generally are very quiet at present time due no doubt to holiday season and business interests awaiting the taking off of the crop. Collections inclined to be slow.

Edmonton—Recent crop reports good and have added stimulus to business conditions. Outlook promising.

Vancouver — Wholesalers report improvement in all lines of trade due to buyers week. Retail trade fair. Collections fair.

CRUISER BILL PASSED.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Aug. 23.—(Canadian Press).).—The Senate yesterday passed the Defense Equipment Bill which authorizes a grant of £2,000,000 for the construction of two 10,000 ton cruisers.

LOEB'S MOTHER WAITS VERDICT

Long Distance Wire Will Carry Court Decision If Favorable.

DARROW BEGINS.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Mrs. Albert Loeb, mother of Dick Loeb, will receive the news of her son's fate in Charlevoix where she has remained in seclusion since the opening of the trial of her son and Nathan Leopold Jr., for the slaying of Bobby Franks.

The long-distance wire will carry the news directly to Mrs. Loeb if the verdict of Judge Caverly sentences the boy slayers to the penitentiary which is the best the family can hope for; but to Ernest Loeb, Dick's 24-year-old brother, if the judge's sentence imposes death. In the latter case, it will be Ernest's task to break the news to his mother.

Brother Promises to Telephone

"Mother will remain at Charlevoix," said Allan Loeb, Dick's older brother. "I have promised to telephone as soon as Judge Caverly pronounces sentence. If it is the worst, I'll tell Ernie and he'll have to break it to mother."

"Even if we are lucky enough"—young Loeb used the pronoun "we," with true kinship identifying the rest of the family with Dick and his crime—"even if we are lucky enough to get a penitentiary sentence, I doubt if mother would come to Chicago to see Dick before he started for Joliet. It would be easier—and simpler—for her to see him there."

Shuns Public Sympathy

Dislike of newspaper notoriety that would attend her visit if made to the county jail would be the real reason for Mrs. Loeb's reluctance. The family has throughout the trial made no "sentimental" appeals for public sympathy—which might be accomplished most easily by the appearance of Mrs. Loeb and the newspaper stories and photographs her appearnce would occasion.

Nathan Leopold, Jr., takes calisthenics for his brain as rigorously as some youths exercise their bodies. And music, which to most people is an emotional pleasure, is to the boy who is now standing trial with Richard Loeb for the Franks slaying only an "intellectual exercise."

He is able to keep up this form of exercise in jail. The other day, for instance, he played the piano. To the other prisoners who crowded around to hear him it was sheer pleasure—to the player it was only the multiplication table done in cadences.

Can Fool Other People

Leopold has studied music all his life. He is not a musician, however but he can fool other people who are not musicians into thinking he is, he says.

"I have been taught to play correctly: I read pretty well at sight; I believe I know the correct position, but I am not a musician," he said.

Leopold has been taught the correct emotional response—that is, he knows how to simulate fire or tenderness, gentleness or ardor, according to the composer's italicized notations above the score but the response is not in his soul. He is only a player piano that correctly turns out the notes.

No Music in Soul

"I am not a musician," he repeated. "I get intellectual pleasure out of playing, and particularly in my sense of mastery over the instrument — but there is in music in my soul.

"I am particularly fond of brilliant compositions. Rimsky-Korsakov is one of my favorites I like his 'Chasse a pied' particularly."

Leopold attended symphony concerts regularly for a time. He quit going when his mother died—they had always gone together.

"I liked going—but I liked it because it was mathematical perfection," he concluded.

Darrow Begins

In the most brilliant speech ever delivered in this little court room a speech fairly throbbing with emotion, Darrow yesterday blamed "misguided youth" for the murder of little Bobby Franks. The 67 years old attorney, his heavy hunched

NONE MORE PROSPEROUS THAN CANADIANS, LARKIN DECLARES

High Commissioner to Great Britain Deprecates Over Emphasis On Advertising Canada—Wouldn't "Accord With National Dignity," Explains a Leading Tea Advertiser.

ACCOUNT OF HIS STEWARDSHIP.

OTTAWA, August 23. Canadian Press.—"Last year $2,170,170 of outstanding foreign debts due to Canada was collected through our office in London, and this year we hope to collect more than $4,000,000," said Hon. P. C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner to Great Britain, in outlining the work done by the overseas office, in an interview at the Laurier House last evening. Mr. Larkin attended a meeting of the Cabinet here in the morning and reviewed the activities of the London office.

Canada, said Mr. Larkin, was less dependent upon the rest of the world than any other country. No people in the world were more prosperous There had been some criticism, he said, to the effect that Canada had not been advertised sufficiently. Canada was one of the most independent countries in the world to-day and an over-emphasis on the advertising of the country was scarcely in accord with national dignity.

"It will probably be six or seven months before we are in our new building on Trafalgar Square," said Mr. Larkin. The delay has been chiefly due to certain strikes in the building trades. "The Dominion government offices will be concentrated under one roof, instead of being scattered into four sections of London, and economies will be effected by reducing the staff." Mr. Larkin hopes to secure for the new Canadian property the same immunity from taxation and extraterritorial privileges that are granted to the property of other governments in London. All the details are completed for occupation. The entire furnishings of the building will be Canadian.

Review of Work.

Mr. Larkin reviewed the work of the Overseas office during the past year. The preliminary arrangements for Canada's representation at the Imperial Conference were adjusted, the early work respecting the Canadian building at Wembley, and the discussions with the British Treasury Department regarding the settlement of war finances were carried on and concluded through the High Commissioner's office. Negotiations with Greece and Roumania which terminated in the acceptance of the bonds of these countries in security for their debts, were conducted by the London office. Adjustment of the amounts due to Canada from the French and Belgian governments, and the final settlement with the British Board of Trade respecting Canada's rights to certain enemy property were negotiated through the Canadian office.

Concessions Won.

Speaking of the concessions won on marine insurance rates by extension of the season of rates on hulls from Halifax, Mr. Larkin said: "We are hoping that the same rates will be extended to cargoes and that St. John will be put on the same basis as Halifax."

Foot and mouth diseases had closed many of Great Britain's ports to Canadian cattle. The spread of the disease there "was a real tragedy for them. "Our pure bred cattle are now admitted but we are not satisfied and they are making concessions gradually." The discrimination of rates against Canadian flour on the Atlantic were "now removed and will not occur again," said Dr. Larkin.

The personal services rendered to Canadian overseas had greatly increased During five weeks this summer 305 Canadians made personal calls at the Canadian offices, and many hundreds made use of the advantages offered to travelling Canadians.

U. S. RIFLEMEN FOR FRIENDLY CONTEST

Party Arrived at Ottawa — May Renew Palmer Cup Match.

CONNAUGHT RANGES, Ottawa, Aug. 23.— The party of visiting United States' riflemen, visiting here to shoot a friendly international match with a picked team of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association, arrived here Friday afternoon. The match will be held here on the Connaught Ranges on August 28, and it is generally expected will result in the renewal of the Palmer international competitions interrupted in 1914 by the war.

The visiting team, all picked shots from the National Rifle Association of America, includes the following team:

Captain Major K. K. V. Casey; Adjutant Lieutenant Commander E. E. Wilson; Major Fulton, Lieutenant Trichill, Lieutenant Phillips, Captain Tupper, Lieutenant Mollerstrom, Major Canavon, Lieutenant Conrad, Sergeant Pulver and Sergeant Blade. One other marksman, not known, will be added to the team next week.

The visiting marksmen will stay here at the ranges for the week and will practice with the rifles "Lee Enfields" supplied by the D. R. A. These rifles are equipped with new aperture sights and have taken the fancy of the visitors.

PAROLED BOY'S PLEA FOR WORK

Wishes To Make Restitution For Mother's Sake and Go Straight.

STARTS ON FARM.

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 23. — A pathetic letter has been received by Alan Stroud ,superintendent of the Ontario Employment Bureau here from a young convict who has just paroled after serving two years of three year term in Portsmouth penitentiary. The writer said that he would make good and do what was right for his mothers sake. He said he desired to make full restitution for what he had done.

The letter was in part as follows: "I wish to know if you could get me work and have it arranged that so much of my wages be handed over to you and you could see the people I wronged got it. I am a good man and am an experienced lineman, I am also a good farm hand."

The letter concluded with these words: "I do want to be a good boy."

Mr. Stroud has secured work for the writer on a farm with some kindly people who will do all they can for him.

BUSINESS FOR CANADA.

80 Per Cent. of Canadian Exhibitors Are Delighted They Went to Wembley.

LONDON, Aug. 23. — (Canadian Press). — It was learned here last night that a Canadian Dry Milk dealer at the Empire Exhibition at Wembley sold his output for the next five years to a British firm. The output is valued at $800,000. Canadian cheese found a splendid market throughout the exhibition. Eight thousand pounds of cheese was bought weekly by caterers at Wembley who also introduced it at all their London cafes.

A Canadian Fruit display brought orders for more than a million boxes of assorted fruits. Eighty per cent of Canadian Exhibitors are delighted that they came to Wembley.

FORTY BUSHELS TO ACRE.

Harry Foster of Tweed, Threshes 440 Bushels From 21 Acres.

TWEED, Aug. 23.—Mr. Harry Foster had a very unusual yield of wheat. An eleven-acre field has yielded more than forty bushels to the acre—that is, over 440 bushels. He is, of course, delighted, and says that the crops in every way are good in this district. Even the corn is better than usual, in spite of the adverse weather conditions. The rain is delaying harvesting operations, but has not been sufficient, so far, to do any damage.

NEWS FROM CAVAN

CAVAN, August 23. — Rev. F. and Mrs. Staples, Belleville, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Matchett.

Miss Edna Heaslip, of Yelverton, is visiting her cousin, Miss Muriel Matchett.

Mr. D. J. Hunter and family and his mother, Mrs. David Hunter, visited friends at Valentia on Tuesday.

Miss Alma Perrin has returned from visiting friends in South Monaghan.

Mrs. Gleeson, Toronto, is the guest of Miss E. Hutchison.

Ray Staples was up from Whitby to play with Bethany team in the Mackey-Bethany league game in Peterborough on Wednesday.

A few of the families of Cavan Centre held a picnic on Wednesday afternoon on Mrs. Eber Syer's lawn. A very enjoyable time was spent.

FOR GUEST ROOM

It is well to see that pins, sewing materials, books, stationery, ink pens and a wastebasket are kept in the guest room.

Sealed Tenders addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Breakwater at Oshawa, Ont.", will be received at this office until 12 o'clock noon (daylight saving), Thursday, August 28, 1924, for the construction of a breakwater at Oshawa, Ontario County, Ont.

Plans and forms of contract can be seen and specification and forms of tender obtained at this Department, at the offices of the District Engineers, Equity Building, Toronto, Ont.; Royal Bank Building, London, Ont., and at the Post Office, Oshawa, Ont.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on printed forms supplied by the Department and in accordance with conditions contained therein.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Minister of Public Works, equal to 10 per cent of the amount of the tender. Bonds of the Dominion of Canada or bonds of the Canadian National Railway Company will also be accepted as security, or bonds and a cheque if required to make up an odd amount

Note—Blue prints can be obtained at this Department by depositing an accepted cheque for the sum of $20.00, payable to the order of the Minister of Public Works, which will be returned if the intending bidder submit a regular bid.

By order,
S. E. O'BRIEN,
Secretary.

Department of Public Works, Ottawa, July 30, 1924. 9-16-23-3087

CORDOVA WHEAT IS 48 BUSHELS

Four Loads of Oats Threshed 250 Bushels — Potatoes in One Hill Feed Family.

MARMORA SLOW.

MARMORA, Aug. 23. — Threshing operations in this district are held up through the frequency o rain.

Though no threshing outfit has appeared locally it is reported that Mr. Steenberg's outfit is busily engaged at neighboring Cordova.

Threshing is also going on in Rawdown township.

48 Bushels to the Acre.

Here one farmer rejoices that his piece of fall wheat yielded 48 bushels to the acre. Another farmer claims that 250 bushels of grain were threshed from 4 loads of oats.

Corn stalks are reaching quite an altitude.

Cabbages most naturally are of first class quality.

Those who have grown m.'et say that they were never better repaid.

Potatoes Plentiful.

In illustration of the superabundance of the potato crop, Mr. Wesley Grant affirms that sufficient potatoes for himself, wife and three sons have been obtained from one hill alone.

The enforced suspension of hay-making is becoming serious for many farmers.

NEWS FROM CAVAN.

Women's Institute Held a Good Meeting—Personal Mention.

CAVAN, August 23. — The Cavan Women's Institute held their August meeting at the home of Mrs. R. S. Staples on Friday afternoon.

The president, Miss McNeil, conducted the meeting.

A number of letters were read from those who, on account of illness, had been remembered by the Institute by gifts of fruit or flowers.

It was moved that a vote of thanks be tendered the trustees of the Community Hall for the use of it, kindly given for the sewing class in May. Also a cash donation was voted. A vote of thanks was passed to those who helpel arrange the hall and loaned the sewing machines.

It was decided to apply for another circulating library, the last one having been returned.

Dr. N. H. Sutton, Peterborough, who is the health officer for this district, was present, and addressed the ladies on medical inspection of the schools by doctors and nurses. He said it was the intention of the Health Department to have a demonstration along this line in several districts, and thought that probably Millbrook ad Cavan might be one of these districts. He had interviewed the local health officer, Dr. H. A. Turner, and found him in favour of the plan. He asked for the co-operation of the Institute members. His address was listened to with interest, as the Institute members had been considering the idea of medical inspection of the schools.

Lunch was served by the hostess, and a social time enjoyed.

Mrs. E. Sye extended an invitation for the Institute to meet at her home in September.

Among those present were Mrs. M. Sutton, Miss Josie Sutton, Mrs. Purser, Mrs. Lloyd Sutton, Miss E. Hutchison, Mrs. Gleeson, Miss N. Sutton, Mrs. A. Elliott, Miss McNeil, Mrs. J. Kennedy, Mrs. Hunter, Miss F. Hunter, Mrs. Sisson, Mrs. Sye, Miss L. Syer, Mrs. F. M. Staples, Mrs. D. White, Mrs. J. Perrin, Mrs. B. Sharpe, Miss J. Lough, Mrs. R. McCamus, Misses Ruth, Eleanor, and Mary Sharpe and Mrs. J. Smith.

THE MEANING OF "SEMI-TRIMMED"

"Semi-Trimming" is one of the greatest developments of the wallpaper industry. It is an exclusive, patented feature of Staunton Wallpapers. In Semi-Trimmed Wallpaper, the selvage, instead of having to be trimmed off with straightedge and scissors or knife, is simply knocked off by rapping the ends of the roll on floor or table. This means a tremendous saving in time and a cleaner and more accurate job.

WALLPAPER contributes more to the atmosphere of your home than any other detail of furnishing. It makes a room appear cool, or warm, or bright, or dignified according to your will. Wallpaper is the background against which your friends must view your furniture, your hangings, your pictures. Wallpaper expresses your personality—your taste—your culture.

Are you satisfied with your walls?

Re-decorate them now with Staunton Semi-Trimmed Wallpaper. Use Semi-Trimmed not only because it offers a wide variety of patterns and color treatments to choose from, but because it means a quicker, more economical and more satisfactory job than you can get with any other paper.

Your dealer will show you this famous line.

COBOURG AND THE DISTRICT

Detour on Highway Between Cobourg and Port Hope —Old Cemetery Vault Found.

COBOURG, August 23. — Owing to paving operation being in progress on the Provincial Highway between Cobourg and Port Hope, there is a detour. Leaving Cobourg motorists drive north on Ontario street, past the home for the aged, an as far as Dale at the base line which is then followed westward to Welcome. The road is stated to be fairly good.

Old Vault Found.

Work is going on at the present time levelling the grounds around St. Peter's church. As men were at work there this week a hole in the ground was noticed just east of the church in the old cemetery which has not been used for interments for many years. Investigation showed there was a vault about 12 feet by 10 feet the bricks in a good state of preservation. It was constructed for the accommodation of three bodies but in it was found only a leaden casket made to conform to the shape of a human body. On the west side of the vault was a door and leading down to it only a few feet from the church building were steps, all being well preserved. As to who is buried there is beyond the ken of any person who has been interviewed in connection with the occurrence. The vault is probably a century old at least. It is probable that further excavation will take place to ascertain if there is any name or inscription. When the casket was found it was turned on the side. It was carefully straightened, and citizens have viewed it with interest.

Soft Ball Games.

Great interest is being taken here in the closing games of the Softball League.

The Sheiks have won Group 2 by defeating the Baltimore Orioles.

The C.N.R. also defeated the Heavy Battery and are now tied for second place with the Baltimore Orioles.

The B.Y.P.U. defeated the Kilties. That disposes of the games for the week. The standing of the league now is:

Group 1.

	Won.	Lost.
Kilties	6	3
Hydro Sparks	5	3
K. of C.	5	3
All Stars	5	3
B.Y.P.U.	4	5
Rotary Club	0	8

Group II.

	Won.	Lost.
The Sheiks	8	1
Baltimore Orioles	6	3
C. N. R.	6	3
Dye Works	4	5
Heavy Battery	2	7
Longslow Ltd.	1	8

There are several postponed games and some scheduled games to be played yet, and the managers are being urged to get busy and keep their team down to work in order that the play-off may be put on in good time.

FINE CROP LOST IN A BARN FIRE

John Challice, of Bethany, Had His Wheat Harvested When Blaze Came.

BETHANY, Aug. 23.—Fall wheat is all in the barn and the oat crop is being put in. The yield, in the majority of cases, is predicted to be heavy. Mr. John Challice had approximately 30 acres of fall wheat which threshed out in the neighborhood of 1,200 bushels, which he unfortunately lost when his barn was burned.

Threshing in the neighborhood is temporarily stopped on account of the fine harvest weather. A week or ten days and threshing will be in full swing

MADOC FLOODED OUT.

Heavy Rain Yesterday Turned Streets Into Canals.

MADOC, Aug. 23. — Madoc was drenched with an exceedingly heavy rain about four o'clock yesterday afternoon, accompanied by thunder and lightning. The rain swept down the streets in sheets resembling a small cloud burst. The sewer openings on St. Lawrence street in the business section had evidently become clogged, and before long the street appeared to be turning into a Dutch thoroughfare with canals instead of pavements. Unfortunately no boats were any nearer than two miles away and consequently those who were in the stores had to stay there and those who desired to go in could only stand helpless in the middle of the road and gaze in amazement at the change so suddenly wrought in well-known places. A car, which had been left in front of Bristol's planing mill was sunk in water to the hubs of the wheels, and when the downpour had ceased, had to be towed out. Small boys waded gloriously in the muddy water, but the fun was soon over when the street commissioner appeared and risking his life on a raft made of a floating door, proceeded to open the vents. By eight o'clock the scene from Holland had vanished and in its place were dismal muddy streets enveloped in a thick midt.

It might be well for the city fathers to inspect the underground passges before the next rain storm.

Mrs. Orchie Kincaid of town with Dr. and Mrs. Pincock of St. Cathar ines, is camping for a few weeks at Algonquin Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hill and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hill of Belleville, were in town to-day.

Miss Norah Gibson of Montreal, is the guest of Mrs. George Robinson.

PEAS YIELD 25 BUSHELS

Herbert Hennessey, of East Emily, Threshes Peas That May Run Up To 30 Bushels To Acre.

EAST EMILY, Aug. 23.—Herbert Hennessey threshed his peas with a yield of between 25 and 30 bushels to the acre. The fall wheat in this district is turning out an abundant crop, but the other grains are not yielding so well. Not many fields of oats have been cut yet.

Potatoes are bountiful and are selling for $1 a bag. Other vegetables are good.

The raspberry season, with its wonderful yield, is nearly over.

Eggs have gone up in price a few cents, the present price being 30 cents. Butter is 30 and 35 cents.

LOEB'S MOTHER

shoulders seeming to sag under the weight of responsibility walked slowly about in the narrow space before the bench.

His deeply furrowed face was a tragic mask.

"If the court please," Darrow began, "it has been almost three months since the responsibilities of this case have been placed upon me and my associates. It is a trouble that I would have gladly been spared but for my affection for the members of these families.

"It is a responsibility almost too great for anyone to assume, but we lawyers can no more choose than the court can choose."

A good sized riot which broke out when crowds of men and women stormed the doors to the court room to hear Darrow make his argument.

With Darrow as the magnet, thousands of persons gathered about the building and despite strenuous efforts by forces of police, many of them rushed their way into the building. They broke through police lines on the various floors and surged into the hallway leading to Justice Caverly's court where a large force of officers and deputies held the crowds in check.

"If we fail, it will not be for lack of money but on account of money," Darrow cried when order was restored, smashing his right fist on the bench. "Poverty is sometimes fortunate and it would be fortunate in this case.

"We are here with the lives of two boys imperilled—with the public aroused. And for what?" and Darrow's shaggy head shook vigorously forward and backward, "For what?" he repeated.

"Because their parents have money.

"Nowhere in the records of Illinois can we find a human being under the age of 28 or 30 has been sentenced to death after pleading guilty.

"I have heard nothing during the last month but the cry of blood. I have felt nothing from the state's attorney's office but the breath of hate. The things they have preached is a disgrace to a savage race."

BABY'S OWN TABLETS ALWAYS KEPT ON HAND

Mrs. David Gagne St. Godfroy, Que., writes:—" I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my three little ones and have found them such an excellent medicine that I always keep them on hand and would strongly advise all other mothers to do the same thing." The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which quickly relieve constpation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and promote that healthful refreshing sleep which makes the baby thrive. They are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A FIRE FIGHTING PUMPER.

Whether Peterborough requires a triple combination pumper as an adjunct to the fire fighting apparatus of the city is a question for careful consideration. The pumper is intended to increase the pressure of water directed on a fire in order to reach the top floors of high buildings, and to provide pressure where the water is drawn from a pool or rive. In Peterborough there are no high buildings, the pressure is good, and no necessity exists for drawing water from standing pools.

If, as suggested, the pumper were taken to assist in fighting fires outside the city limits, it would serve for a few minutes or seconds until the wells became exhausted. A very few strokes of the powerful pumper would dry up the best well.

The question that the City Council should carefully consider is whether a pumper or a chemical truck or some other piece of apparatus would be most serviceable under the conditions prevailing in Peterborough. Precedent should not hold the council from progressive action, nor should the members be stampeded into purchasing a white elephant in the form of a piece of apparatus designed primarily for large cities with sky-scraping offices, unless its worth here is shown.

Peterborough's fire protection is a matter calling for liberal thought and conservative action.

WELCOME THE PREMIER.

Visits of Canadian Premiers to this city have been perhaps necessarily, so few that the presence of the Right Honorable MacKenzie King in the heart of the new federal riding of West Peterborough next Thursday merits the respectful recognition of the general public.

He is coming as the Premier of Canada, and if to Liberals he is also their political leader, he is none the less to every citizen the titular leader of the Government of this country, its chief representative, a personal symbol of Canadain democracy and its most cherished institution of free and responsible government.

Those who hold to political principles and policies different from and opposed to those emunciated and carried out by Hon. Mr. King and his Government may find that a generous gesture of respect to the office and person of the Premier, who is also a Liberal, strains their own party spirit, but it might be said that upon them devolves in a special way, the duty of exemplifying their high conception of citizenship by a practical expression of esteem for the head of the Federal Government.

It is felt that this reference is unnecessary, for Canadians generally are as dutiful and respectful to their Premier as are the people of the United States to their President, irrespective of party and presidential tours are invariably featured by unanimous ovations.

Hon. Mr. King has been well received in Western Ontario, and Peterborough should not fail in its opportunity of next Thursday. The business section of the city should be abundantly decorated. Many visitors are coming from nearby towns and villages to greet the Premier, and the local demonstration should not be lacking in color and cordiality as a tribute of respect to the person and office of the president of the Canadian parliament.

DOCTOR HEARS SECRETS.

Is the doctor taking the minister's place as a spiritual adviser? Dr. Samuel Eliot president of the American Unitarian Association and son of Harvard's great president, says:

"The province of the doctor's profession has been greatly widened during the last decade. Many mental and nervous troubles have been acknowledged to have a physical root—this leads to the baring of mental and spiritual anguish to the physicians in hope of relief."

The real situation, a bit deeper than that, is that people are attempting to obtain from the medical profession something they can get only from religion.

The World War, as every physician has observed, has made nervous maladies the most common and alarming of all human maladies.

Doctor's offices are crowded with patients who, though nothing definitely can be found physically wrong with them, are, nevertheless, sick people.

Neurasthenics and neurotics—a mighty crop of them—have been created by the worry of war days.

Some doctors attempt to find the roots of these maladies is improper functioning of the thyroid adrenals and other endocrine glands. Others trace the maladies to and lose them in the intricacies of psychoanalysis and psychiatry.

The majority of these troubles are spiritual. And the only cure for them is spirituality—religion.

The doctor hears strange confessons—domestic troubles, sex entaglements, business disappointments causing melancholy broodings that undermine the health.

The doctor learns the secret life of his patients.

And, if he is a wise physician, he comforts them spiritually in addition to prescribng tonics, heart stimulants, nerve sedatives, blood pressure reducers and other remedies.

But the doctor's spiritual powers are limited. A good many people who think they need medicine really need the solace and peace of religion.

Humanity is more spiritually than physically diseased.

STUDY OF MAN.

Here is a youth who killed his father because he was "tired of his swearing about the house," and there is another youth who killed an aged hermit because he thought the latter had accused him of stealing chickens. A Los Angeles young woman passed hundreds of dollars worth of bogus checks in San Francisco "because she hated the town."

A Minneapolis young couple, 19 and 17 years, abandoned their 10-day-old babe to unknown hands because "it was the baby or the automobile—we couldn't take care of both." An overgrown Maryland boy killed a man so that he could get possession of three cents the latter had.

Mary MacGuire, once rich but now old and infirm, dies alone and penniless in a Kansas City basement after 29 years of fighting loyalty to four sons, all of whom were criminals and desperadoes. An old bent man goes, each day, to the office of Indiana Supreme Court clerk to pore for hours over the transcript of an alimony case that was decided against him many years ago.

A Minnesota couple buys an old, gruesome and discarded auto-hearse and will change the curtains and windows, put in a regular bed and employ it as their home during a 3,500-mile auto trip.

A West Vrgini Republican, piqued because a neighbor named his new-born babe after Davis, responded by naming his twins "Hell" and "Maria."

Hundreds of visitors daily visit the grave of young Calvin Coolidge and they have literally hacked a nearby stone fence to pieces and carried the broken rocks away as souvenirs.

"Comanche," General Custer's famous war horse and one of the two living things to escape the Little Big Horn massacre, now stands, stuffed, in the museum of the University of Kansas, and "Comanche" has had seven tails since his death because souvenir hunters have robbed him a hair at a time, all thinking they were securing hairs from the original tail.

The most interesting study of mankind is man. View your newspaper of the day from that angle and you will, as is here set down, find things to strain your logic, your philosophy and your wonder.

MACDONALD'S UNCONVENTIONAL WAYS.

When British Labor took over the Government it was foreseen that foreign policy would take a great deal of Ramsay MacDonald's time. It was not foreseen that Labor's achievements at the end of its first Parliamentary session would fall almost entirely in the domain of foreign affairs. Mr. MacDonald has dealt with no domestic issue that bulks so large in the public mind as his treaty with Soviet Russia and his management of the London Conference. In actual results obtained the two, of course, cannot be compared. The Russian treaty as it stands today means very little. It has been well described as only an agreement to agree at some future time. In essence it is only a desperate last-moment device to stave off a rupture of negotiations. The ratification of the Dawes plan, on the other hand, is an achievement of the first magnitude.

It is not to detract from Mr. MacDonald's energy and statesmanship to point out that the way had been prepared for his successes. Possibly he has worked wonders, but he has not worked miracles. The times were ripening for a settlement like that concluded at the London Conference. The Dawes Committee was appointed and began its work under MacDonald's predecessor. The great body of British opinion would long ago have accepted an arrangement like that which has been worked out by MacDonald and Herriot. But nearly five years of post-war manoeuvring had seemingly exhausted the resources of the two older British parties. Like many of the Generals who during the last phase of the war started out with the advantage that nearly all conceivable mistakes had been made by their predecessors, MacDonald began with the advantage of being a new man. The conventional methods of the older statesmen had failed and the country felt there was nothing to lose in giving MacDonald his chance.

The difference in personal approach has counted. Wholly unconventional was the Prime Minister's method with regard to Russia. He upset precedent by recognizing the Soviets before negotiating with them. He has gone a good deal further by signing with them a treaty that is not a treaty but only the expression of a desire to be friends—at least on one side. Thus he has seemingly laid down the principle that in international negotiations the first thing to do is to agree and the next thing to determine precisely what one has agreed about. Perhaps that is not a bad principle if everybody can be got to live up to it. In some respects MacDonald has proceeded along more familiar lines. The secrecy with which the Russian negotiations were carried on and the suddenness with which the treaty was sprung upon Parliament come perilously close to the old diplomacy. And MacDonald agreeing to guarantee a loan to Russia after declaring that such a thing was out of the question is strongly reminiscent of some elder statesmanship.

His unconventional approach was at its best in the Dawes negotiations. His letter to Poincare, soon after taking office, struck a new note in diplomacy. It was written from heart to heart, instead of from Downing Street to the Quai d'Orsay. Still more striking was that sudden trip to Paris undertaken for the purpose of saving Herriot. That was almost like an international Parliamentary bloc of MacDonald-Herriot against Curzon-Poincare. It was audacious and it succeeded; in large measure because the very human gesture appealed to a tired world.

When we say that the personal element contributed notably to the success of the recent conference, it becomes more difficult to speak in sweeping terms of the mischief that diplomats wreak. Personal diplomacy can promote peace as well as war. Whether we will it or not, the only way the peoples can speak to each other is through their representatives. The one essential is that the diplomats should speak like men instead of getting themselves snarled up in formulae.—New York Times.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Aug. 22.—Prices during the week were scarcely changed from the previous week. For choice butchers' over 1,000 lbs. each $7.25 a cwt. was paid, and for handyweight the top was $7, although $8 was paid for an extra choice bullock on Thursday. The bulk of real good handyweights sold at $6.75 a cwt. and ordinary good butchers' averaged $6.25 a cwt. There was considerable discrepancy in the prices for medium butchers' and some claimed to have bought these as low as $4.50 a cwt., although any good mediums sold at $5 to $5.50 a cwt. Very common killers sold at $3 to $3.50 and had to meet the poor quality stuff sent down from Winnipeg.

The best beef sellers are the babies, and not enough of these are available. Choice tops bring $10.50 a cwt. and those not quite as breedy or finished $8. The public demand for baby beef is growing, and there are a great many reasons why this should be so. Butchers' cows were easier, except for the choice fat kind, which sell for export and to the Jews. These held at $5 a cwt. and better, but good cows were generally below $4.50 and mediums had trouble in reaching $3.75 a cwt. Common cows were $3, and some emaciated canners sold at $1 a cwt.

Very few butchers' bulls came to market this week and bolognas were easier at $2.25 to $3 a cwt. Milchers and springers had a steady trade. Choice Holstein springers sold up to $90 each and good Holsteins or Durhams went around $60. Quite a number of cars of stockers and feeders were shipped out during the week. A good load of 900-lb. Herefords cost $5.90 a cwt. but a lighter bunch was had at $4.60. Good quality western heifers around 500 lbs. each sold from $2.50 to $3 a cwt. Rogers & Maybee will want about 1-2000 cattle for export the incoming week and this should at least guarantee a steady market for all the good quality butchers that might arrive.

Local dealers availed themselves of the Buffalo market for calves this week and shipped freely. Buffalo tops on choice calves touched 13 cents a pound and this drew tops here up to 10½ cents. Good calves were 9 to 10 cents and mediums 8 to 9 cents, and best common calves were 6 cents. This market does not want the heavy rough calf as these give salesmen trouble to sell. The week sees calves a full dollar a cwt. higher.

Contrary to general opinions lambs firmed up to 50 cents a cwt. from Monday last. Tops for the week were 13¾ cents a pound and the bulk sold from Tuesday on at 13½ cents. Choice light sheep are scarce and firm at 7 to 7½ cents, and good yearlings are bringing 9 cents.

Hogs have steadily advanced for three months from a bottom of $7 a cwt. to $10.50 a cwt. f.o.b. Slim supplies are keeping the price up and packers are not objecting to taking small numbers at the high figure. They are hoping to stop and further rise and will certainly do so if shipments show any increase.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, August 23 (Canadian Press). — There is a stronger feeling in the market for fresh seconds, which is attributed to the increased demand for this grade on account of the somewhat limited supplies of the higher grades available.

It is reported that considerable trading is going on in storage eggs, but no export business is reported.

Toronto steady, jobbing specials 48, extras 42 to 43, firsts 36 to 37, seconds 28 to 30.

Montreal firm, specials 45 to 46, extras 42 to 43, firsts 36, seconds 29 to 30.

Manitoba market nrm, receipts light. Jobbing extras 33, firsts 31, seconds 25.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, August 23 (Canadian Press). — The tone of the cash oat market was easy, but without price change. The undertone to the flour market is weak, with indications of price recessions shortly. The millfeed market is moderately active, but the rolled oats market is quiet. The tone of the baled hay market is firm. There is no change in eggs. Prices for butter are maintained. The cheese market is firm. The bean market is strong, with one-pound pickers selling around $3.00 a bushel.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, August 23 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday:

Cables 4.4988

WINNIPEG LIVE STOCK.

WINNIPEG, August 23 (Canadian Press). — Arrivals: 402 cattle, 41 calves, 275 hogs, 41 sheep and lambs.

Trading on the cattle market opened yesterday with all classes inclined to be inactive. A few good offerings were absorbed at prices steady with Thursday.

The hog market was steady, thick smooths selling at $9.75, with a few up to $9.90. Bidding was weak on the sheep and lamb market, a number of quality sheep selling around $5.00.

A THOUGHT

A GREAT START.

The most encouraging thought for the boy born of modest-means parents is that the sons of the rich seldom survive their handicap. Rich sons get an expensive education and naturally form extravagant expectations. They often forget that the family pocketbook may be speculated away, and when this happens—when Dad goes broke (as they often do), Midas moves out of the mansion and the spoiled son succumbs to the shock.

Modest means in youth are a blessing to any boy. Riches are a real obstacle. If your parents are just comfortably off, you are the direct descendant of a great start in life.

Best In The 4-Cylinder Field

The motoring public is rapidly coming to realize that in practical results the good Maxwell is to the four-cylinder field, what the Chrysler is in six-cylinder practice.

Practically complete absence of vibration, sterling reliability, new ease of riding and driving, remarkable performance, and equally remarkable economy produce for the owner of this car a far higher degree of motoring satisfaction and value.

Until you know first hand what the good Maxwell now is and what it does—you are simply in no position to judge cars from the standpoint of the most recent development.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

CHICAGO, August 23 (Canadian Press). — Sharp new setbacks in the price of corn resulted yesterday from a rush of selling due to hot weather favourable to the growing crop.

The closing in the corn market was nervous, 1 3-4c to 3 5-8c net lower, December $1.08 1-2 to $1.08 5-8, with wheat unsettled 3-4c to 1 3-8c down; September $1.25 3-8 to $1.25 1-2 and December $1.30 1-2 to $1.30 3-4; oats 1 5 8c to 2 1-8c off; and provisions showing 5 to 20 cents decline.

It appeared to ge a generally accepted opinion that rapid advancement of th corn crop would result from the prevailing high temperatures. The tenor of crop reports coming in was much more hopeful than has been the rule of late, and although the market scored numerous rallies none proved to be of a lasting character. Lowest prices of the day were reached just before the close, and were about 12 cents under Monday's top level.

TOO MANY HOME CARES.

One Reason Why So Many Women Are Weak and Run-Down.

The work of the woman in the home makes greater demands on her vitality than men realize, and there is always something more to do. No wonder women's backs ache, and their nerves are worn out. No wonder why they get depressed and irritable, suffer from headaches, and always feel out of sorts. But of course all women are not hek that. What is the difference?

A woman with plenty of healthy red blood in her veins finds work in the home easy; her vitality is at par. This points the way to health in women who feel run down and depressed. Make new rich blood. You can do it with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills have the marvellous property of building up the blood and toning up the nerves. That is proved by the case of Mrs. H. Eppinger, Scott street, Vancouver, B. C., who says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills brought back my health and strength and restored my nerves to normal condition after other medicines had failed. It was after the birth of my second child that I became so anaemic and nervous that I thought that I would lose my mind as well as my strength. I tried several medicines but got no relief until I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After using a few boxes of these I could see a change. I felt stronger; my appetite was better; I slept better, and my nerves were stronger. I continued the use of the pills for some time, and again found myself a well woman, and I can sincerely say that my health has since been the best. I can cheerfully recommend the pills to all weak, run-down women."

You can get these pills from your druggist or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

A QUICK RETORT.

A taxicab driver recently got the worst of a wordy bout. An old man with a wheelbarrow would not get out of the way, and cabman shouted: "You ought to be wheeling a pram!" "And you ought to be in it," replied the old man.

A GREAT BOOM FOR NEW WIGS

Bobbed and Unbobbed Find New Wigs Are the Best.

BY MARIAN HALE

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—In the good old days if a woman wore a wig, she kept it to herself because she wore it for the same reason she wore false teeth—to remedy a deficiency of nature.

Today a woman may own half a dozen wigs which she changes as often as she changes her frocks, and she doesn't care who knows it.

You see her in the morning with less difficulty doing so than in the afternoon she may have soft ringlets all over her head, and by evening she may be wearing a topknot.

Obviously nature is not so speedy. Hair can't do much better than six inches a year, not matter how you coax it. So the only way to obtain such variety in one day is by cooperating with some reliable wigmaker.

Skillfully Made.

The modern wigs are so skillfully made that if a woman wished to keep the matter of wearing one a family secret she would have much less difficulty doing so than in the old days when a wig had a way of looking less like hair than anything else.

But the idea of the modern wig is not to deceive, but to please and to fit a woman for any emergency.

Bobbed hair is comfortable and most appropriate when wearing a garconne frock or a sport outfit. But when one is all dressed up in ruffles and silks, one needs hair—and that's where the wig helps you out.

Of course wigs became fashionable when bobbed hair became so popular. Long-haired ones are a positive boon to the woman who has cut her hair and then learns ,alas, that her hair was her crowning glory. Short-haired models are equally convenient for the woman who won't sacriifce her hair for a temporary fad but must have bobbed hair

Great Boon.

They have not only been a boon but a positive salvation to the woman whose husband has threatened to leave her if she bobs her hair or to the woman who would lose her job if her employer caught her with hair.

Undoubtedly wigs have come into our complex life at a time when we need them most. Long may they wave!

The woman in the photograph shows you how you can have a boyish bob, a curly bob and long Godiva-like locks in just the amount of time it takes you to adjust three wigs.

And the best part of it is that in one she is a blonde, in one a brunet, and a red head in the third, making her just three times as dangerous as ever before.

SLIPPERY.

Russian oil output is mounting rapidly—seven million tons expected this year, or three-fourths of normal pre-war output.

With such a plum ripening, you will hear more kindly words about the Soviet from sources connected with our Wall Street and London's Lombard Street. Russia, her gigantic natural resources barely touched, is the next country on the programme of foreign exploiters. The Russians will benefit in the exploitation, however, so maybe it' for the best. China will be the last reserve.

MARITIMES AND THE WEST

Rev. A. D. Richards, the new president of the Alberta Methodist conference, is typical of the gifts which the Maritime Provinces have made to the strengthening and solidifying of the life ow Western Canada. He went to the foothills twenty years ago from the pastorate of Victoria Church, Sydney, N.S., is thoroughly acclimatized on the prairies and has made his mark there.

In the Western conferences of the Methodist body the former Maritime men are noted for their insistence on orderly, enduring growth. Coming from regions where prosperity never takes on the general dimensions of a boom, they instinctively hold out for steadiness in advance and frugality in expenditure. When economy and hard work in the face of difficulties are very much in order, it is natural that the men of Scottish and Yorkshire descent from Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island are leaders for the time both in church and in business.

ENSHRINING LOCAL HISTORY

Gifts of artistic furnishings to churches as memorials to relatives have long been deservedly common in the Church of England, but it is only recently that this method of enriching the church building as a shrine of community and family values has taken hold in her daughter organization, the Methodist Church The Central Avenue Methodist Church, Bridgeburg, Ont., bids fair to be particularly fortunate in this respect. Mrs. A. E. Henry first gave a communion table in memory of her son who fell at Vimy Ridge, and now gives two five-light torcheres in memory of her husband and another son. The service of dedication was made doubly impressive by the attendance of the local Masonic lodge. Woman's devotion and the sad opportunities furnished by the Great War are strong factors in providing historical associations in permanent form to the churchesr of Canada of various denominations.

SKYWARD.

The round-the-world flight by American airmen has held attention so closely that few of us "caught" what may be a more important achievement later—the try-out of the first flying freight car at Mitchell Field, Long Island. This plane can transport three tons of freight.

Planes will carry passengers, express and freight, in tremendous volume. It may seem incredible now—but not any more than was the case when the first steam railroad was being deevloped. Or maybe you recall the laughs that greeted the first "horseless carriages."

THE VALUE OF A COMMA

The wife of a sailor handed the pastor of a church the following note:

"Peter Bowers having gone to sea, his wife desires the prayers of the congregation for his safety."

The minister glanced over it hurriedly, and then said:

"Peter Bowers having gone to see his wife, desires the prayers of the congregation for his safety!"

FABLES ON HEALTH

BE CAREFUL OF WATER.

Be careful of the water you drink on your week-end or vacation trips during the summer months!

Such was the warning to Mr. Mann and other residents of Anytown.

While most running streams are likely to be free from pollution, and while most springs are a pretty safe bet, still it is wise to inquire regarding the water in any district.

Wherever the slightest suspicion obtains in out-of-the-way places, the water may be boiled with but little trouble.

Typhoid and other fever ravages have been prevalent in several regions already this summer.

Pure water is easily obtainable in most sections, but where far-away spots are reached by automobile, the gamble is not always a good one. The ounce of precaution that lies in boiling the water is certainly better than the inroads of a fever epidemic.

A small quantity of chlorinated lime will help kill the germs that may be living in the water, but for safety's sake it is better to build a fire and kill the germs and get rid of the impurities through boiling.

7 STEPS
That Mark an Amazing Achievement

ENDLESS claims could be made for the unequalled value offered in Overland and Willys-Knight Cars—based on what owners tell us. But claims are only claims. Facts, though, are facts. Here, then, are cold, unbiased facts that cannot be questioned.

Government Reports of Automobile Registrations show that in Toronto in January, 1923, Willys-Overland occupied tenth position. Registration reports for the month of July, 1924, show Willys-Overland advanced to third position.

Truly an amazing achievement. Certainly there can be only one reason: the public has found the greater balance of value in favor of Overland and Willys-Knight.

These facts are even more significant when it is realized that Toronto is the centre of automobile competition in Canada—operating practically 10% of the motor vehicles in the Dominion.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Heavy Fog Enveloped the District Thursday and Fridays Night—Harvesters Leave.

ETake 1 Campbellford and fgb!

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 23.—Thursday and Friday night there was a heavy fog over this district and as the weather was warm the farmers are becoming alarmed that the grain standing in stooks on the field will sprout. There is a large quantity of oats and barley which it is impossible to secure owing to the frequent showers. This is bad enough but the situation will be more serious if the unfavorable weather starts another growth. On some farms there is still hay that was cut some time ago coiled in the fields.

Western Harvesters

F. W. Wood, agent for the C.P.R. has sold tickets to the following residents all of whom left Friday morning for the western harvest fields:

William Hunt, Grant Anderson, D. Sullivan, George Benzine, Jesse Hunt, Jennie Nelson, Harriet Little E. Myrtle Ford Carman Hay, John Ramnier, E. Mitchell, A. Macomb, J. G. Harmel, Arthur Stewart, J. O. Sarginson, Sam Flint, Earl Labrash, W. J. Sanders, S. R. Hutton, Jim Henderson, Earl Craighead, Margaret Clark G. Longmore, Mary McArthur, Walter Train and Walter Anderson.

The competition between the two railway lines for this western excursion business is keener this year than ever and both companiees have not only put a lunch car on every train but have added a special coach for women. The result is that more than the usual number of the latter class of passengers have gone west this year.

The morning train yesterday also carried passengers from Hastings, Hoard's Station and from other points along the line.

MRS. JANE WHYTOCK FUNERAL AT MADOC

Large Number of Relatives and Friends Present—Stores Closed.

MADOC, August 23. — The funeral of the late Mrs. Jane Whytock, relict of the late James Whytock, took place yesterday afternoon at two o'clock from her residence on Durham Street to St. Peter's Presbyterian Church.

A very large number of relatives and friends gathered to pay their last respects to this time-honoured and well-known resident of Madoc.

Rev. Mr. McCormick preached a comforting and fitting sermon from the text: "And I heard a voice from heaven saying, Write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, said the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours, and their works do follow them," Revelation 14, 13.

Mr. McCormick likened these words to an arch of which the keystone was the phrase, "In the Lord." Quoting the first part of the text without these words "Blessed are the dead which die," he pointed out how cold and comfortless religion would be without the promise of eternal life, and the thought that the dead were with the ILord. How impossible it would be for bereaved ones to believe those words without the keystone, "In the Lord." How, then, was one to attain to that condition? If people do not live in the Lord, neither can they die in the Lord. It would be impossible to turn away from a life in which there was no thought of God to secure such a state of blessedness in a minute's time. Rather must people strive to live a pure and noble life, following in th footsteps of the Saviour that they may be prepared for that holy and beautiful life to come in which the first step was to "die in the Lord."

Mr. McCormick referred in feeling terms to Mrs. Whytock, who was in many ways a wonderful woman, who had done many acts of kindness and had lived an unselfish life. The large family represented to-day testified to the life of sacrifice and loyalty Mrs. Whytock had lived. Going on to the second part of the text, the speaker considered the words "rest from their labours." How sweet a thing it is to rest, and to rest from a life well spent. "And their works do follow them." It is as if one's good works intercede for one at the throne of grace. To think that every act of kindness, every little unselfish deed was making intercession for us that we may awake to peace, no more sorrow nor tears nor pain, in that better land, which has been prepared for us. She whom we mourned to-day had gone to that heavenly home, leaving a gap which no one could fill ,a break in the family which meant a sad loss to all, a loss to the church of which she had always been a true and devoted member, but how comforting it was to remember that she was one of those who had not wandered far away from the things which the Lord would have us love, and of whom it might be said: Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord they rest from theid labours and their works do follow them.

The pall-beacers were six of Mrs. Whytock's grandsons, Messrs. Whytock and Alan Fox of Picton, Norman Whytock, Carl Whytock, and Charlie Hill of Madoc, Dr. Arthur Whytock of St. Catharines.

The floral offerings were many and beautiful, testifying to the esteem in which Mrs. Whytock was held by all.

All the stores were closed yesterday afternoon out of respect and sympathy for the bereaved family.

The Whytocks have been prominent in business circles for many years.

BALCONY FELL WOMAN INJURED

Mrs. A. Stewart, of Madoc, Thrown to Sidewalk at Marmora.

DROPPED 12 FEET.

MARMORA, Aug. 22. — An accident of a peculiar and distressing nature happened on Forsythe street shortly after noon on Thursday. Mr. and Drs. Walter Colster reside in rooms above the stores rented by Miss Quinn and Mr. Fred Lee. A wooden balcony jutting out from the upper storey was used by the Colsers as accommodation for outdoor plants. On the day in question Mrs Colster's aunt, Mrs. A. Stewart of Madoc, stepped out on this balcony to examine a very beautiful plant, when without warning the whole fabric descended to the cement sidewalk below, a distance of some 12 feet. Through the fall Mrs. Stewart sustained among othre injuries a brok en leg. Being an elderly lady her accident is of grave concern to her relatives. Though she was wearing glasses at the time, it is remarkable that they were neither damaged in the least way or jarred off. Mrs. Colster had a narrow escape from falling, just managing to catch at the screen door and so pull herself back into the room.

Old Copy of "Guardian."

Mr. Hugh Shannon, a highly respected resident of Marmora township, has in his possession a copy of a newspaper which must be considered a rarity. It is a copy of the Christian Guardian, dated 1838, one of the old Methodist publications of this country.

Exhibits from Mine.

Messrs F. A. Bapty and W. Williams are attending the Canadian National Exhibition with exhibits from the Deloro Smelting and Refining Co's plant.

Miss Ruth Wannamaker, formerly of the Public School staff here, paid a visit to town Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles McInroy and family commenced their holiday tour on Thursday.

Miss Margaret McCoy is visiting relatives in Madoc township.

Miss Clema Hamilton returned to her home in Toronto on Thursday.

No remedy can cure all ailments of the human body, but an immense number of people suffer from aches, pains and diseases symptoms when their real trouble is lack of iron in the blood. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the nourishment out of your food. Without iron your food merely passes through you without doing you any good; you don't get the strength out of it. There is one universally known tonic that has helped thousands because it contains iron like the iron in fresh vegetables and like the iron in your blood.

OBITUARY.

SARAH ANNE THOMPSON.

Sarah Anne Thompson, relict of the late William King, passed away this forenoon, succumbing to an illness from which she had been ailing for nearly a year, in her 69th year.

In the death of her beloved and only son, the late Samuel King, who predeceased her about seven weeks ago, it is felt that the career of the aged parent, who was grief-stricken over the loss of her son was hastened.

She was a Presbyterian and faithful member of St. Paul's church. All her life she wasa resident of Peterboro or vicinity and widely known throughout the district.

There survive to mourn her loss three daughters, Mrs. H. Darling, Smith; Mrs. V. Tully, Springville and Mrs. Craig of Peterboro.

The funeral wil take place Monday at 2 p. m. from the family residence, 601 Water street, Rev. Robert Pogue officiating, proceeding to Little Lake Cemetery, for internment.

CITY'S BURDENS HEAVIER

Country churches may be feeling the pinch because of the moving away of friendly families but congregations in the cities tend to increase, with heavier financial needs as one result. In Toronto the sum of $60,697 was laid out for extension of churches by the Methodist folk in the twelve months just ended This one denomination formed two new "circuits" or charges and built three new churches in the same period. Church membership increased from 37,162 to 38,231, and Sunday School population increased even more swiftly so that provision of school accommodation for a total of 34,451 pupils was a big item in building outlay. For all purposes Toronto Methodism raised $1,279,648, or slightly over $100,000 per month, and found these amounts scarcely adequate to cope with growth and needs.

BRITISH BUYING DUTCH SHIPS

English Builders Disturbed Over This Unexpected Foreign Competition — Reason For Home Depression.

TRADE UNIONS BLAMED

According to Herbert N. Casson, London Correspondent for the Wall Journal, two or three sensations during the last two or three weeks have occurred in the shipbuilding trade of Great Britain.

Sir Robert Horne declared in parliament that British companies had placed orders in Holland for nine new ships. This official statement followed the startling information revealed by Sir Thomas Royden, head of the Cunard Line, when he said at a meeting of shareholders that there are 52 ships being repaired at Rotterdam and 48 of them are British.

Then the Harland and Wolfe Shipbuilding Company of Belfast tried to float $20,000,000 or new preference shares and 88⅓% of them were left with the underwriters. The floatation was the flattest failure that London has seen in years.

As a climax to the alarming reports came a frank letter from F. L. Dawson, a big English shipbuilder published in the Daily Mail. Mr. Dawson admitted that he had already bought three ships from shipbuilders in Holland; and he asserted he had saved $127,500 by so doing.

British Think Dutch Cannot Build Good Ships.

Hitherto, it has always been strongly maintained in Britain that the Dutch cannot build good ships. A Dutch ship sells for 20 to 30% less than an English ship.

As one shipbuilder told me: "A Dutch ship in delivery looks spruce enough, but very soon the varnish wears out and reveals a shoddy job.

But this view is being challenged by men who have been to the shipyards of Holland. They report that the new Dutch ships are quite as good as those that are built in Britain.

This is a new and unforseen danger to British shipbuilding; and the shipbuilders are thoroughly alarmed. Even Sir Eustace d'Eyncourt, the head of the Armstrong Whitworth Co., admits that "there is a real danger of our shipbuilding industry being undermined by this new foreign competition."

One shipping company—the Furness Withy, has decided to defer ordering new ship until British prices are lower; but most people agree that shipping companies have a right to buy ships in the cheapest market.

The British people are, consequently, taking one more bitter dose of their own medicine. They are holding fast to their doctrine of Free Trade, insteading of making any effort to keep their money at home.

The death of Lord Pirrie, too, was a severe blow to the British shipbuilding industry. He was the oldest and most independent and powerful of all the ship builders.

His place at the head of Harland & Wolff's has been taken by Lord Kylsant; but this can only be a temporary ararngement.

Lord Kylsant is the head of four shipping companies, operating 330 ships of 2,00-0000 tons. Also, he is the president of the London Chamber of Commerce. He is man of great energy. He gets things done. But he has aged rapidly in the last few years, and cannot continue to carry his present responsibilities.

His big shipyards at Belfast are empty. I saw them several weeks ago and there was only one small ship being repaired. A works built to give employment to 5,000 workmen was practically deserted.

Reasons For Present Depression.

There are two main causes of this depression in shipbuilding—first, the subsidies that are being given to foreign shipyards; and second, the unreasonableness of British trade unions.

The Shipbuilders' Union has got out of control. It has repudiated its own elected leaders. It has broken its contracts. Not long ago, the shipyard men at Southampton struck against the orders of their leaders; and the Olympic had to be towed to Cherbourg for repairs.

As for the shipyard men at Clyde, they have become notorious for their unruliness. They are known throughout Britain as the wild men of the Clyde. As a result, the jobs that formerly went to the Clyde shipyards are now going to Rotterdam.

The rate-cutting war of the past three years has had an effect, too, on the shipbuilding industries.

All the new nationalized fleets of America, France, Canada Australia, Portugal and Brazil have vied with one another in a rate-cutting competition.

These fleets do not have to make profits. Not one of them did. The American fleet lost $200,000,000 last year, according to figures that have been sent to England.

Never before have rates been as low as they are now, on certain commodities. You can, for instance, send 14 pounds of wheat from New York to Liverpool, fo one cent.

In spite of this long catalougue of disasters, there are a few economists who are predicting a boom in shipping. They are basing their predictions on graphic charts, and upon the general principle that booms must follow depressions.

But the fact remains that in the whole world, at the moment, there are only 786 ships being built, to maintain a world fleet of 33,000 ships. Only two countries, Germany and Japan, showed an increase last year in the tonnage of their ships. On the whole, there is 2% less tonnage at present than there was a year ago.

GIFT FOXES START GIRL ON BUSINESS

Girl Has One of the Most Thriving Businesses in Canada.

BY MARIAN HALE

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Feed your fox—don't wear it.

That is what Marjory Walton did, and it started her in one of the most thriving businesses in Canada.

When two pet silver foxes were presented to her, she did not convert them into neckpieces even as you or I might have done, but she began breeding foxes and started the Oakville silver black fox ranch in Ontario which is now paying splendid dividends.

"The first year I raised five pups" she explained. "This encouraged my brother to go into the venture with me and we have succeeded beyond our most sanguine expectations. I have insisted upon fewer really high grade animals rather than many of an inferior grade. What we started as a hobby has proved to be a good business proposition."

Miniature Exhibit.

Miss Walton is going to bring a miniature of her fox farm to New York this fall when she will show her foxes at the Women's Activities exhibit, which is put on annually by the New York League of Business and Professional Women.

She will not only bring several of her prize animals, but will tell just how she goes about the job of raising them.

"First of all," she points out, "you must be fond of animals. The fox is one of the most intelligent of beasts. I really look upon my day's work as recreation, because the animals are so clever.

Feed Moderately.

"Then you must procure only the best stock obtainable. You must feed them moderately and look out carefully for sanitation. Your market is always ready for your supply once your reputation for quality is considered."

Showing foxes at an exhibition presents some difficulties, of course but Miss Walton believes they can be overcome. And she is sure that many women in the United States will see the possibilities of this business for themselves, once it is pointed out to them.

"It's an ideal job for women, and very profitable if properly managed," she maintains.

MY FATHER.

My father is the finest man in all this world to me;
He's all that's good and brave and true, the things a man should be;
There never was a better friend or wiser one than Dad;
He's just the truest-hearted pal a fellow ever had.
My father's creed is faithfulness; he seeks to serve his God,
His loved ones, and his fellow-men; content is he to plod
Along the quiet ways of life; he wants no tow'ring fame.
Or mighty wealth—his goal is this: A pure, unsullied name.
My father is the kind of man that I would like ti be;
He's wholesome, gentle, just, sincere —the soul of honesty.
I want to live a life like his, and, oh, I want to prove
My right to bear my father's name, and share his priceless love.

RIGA'S FAIR EXHIBITS GOLD

RIGA, Aug. 23. — Twenty-five countries, including Soviet Russia, were represented at the fourth Latvian International Agricultural and Industrial Fair held in Riga this summer. The Soviet display consisted chiefly of textiles, wood work and specimens of minerals and other articles from Russia's natural resources. These included placed gold from Siberia.

KNITTED SCARFS

Knitted scarfs have large monograms in wool or silk embroidered on one end.

SWAT THE WEEDS IS NEW SLOGAN

City Slogan Should Be Spick and Span For Reception of Premier King and Lieut.-Governor, Says Mayor Turner.

EVADE THE FINE.

This summer has been ideal for the growth of weeds as evidenced all over the City in vacant lots and even on the streets themselves.

Now is the time say horticulturists to commence weed cutting, before they go to seed and blow about, lodging in well kept grounds and gardens, to the annoyance and disgust of citizens, who take pride in their grounds.

Mayor Turner's Request

"We will have several distinguished visitors, during the next few weeks, who will be shown over the City and everything should look at their best," said Mayor Turner.

The Honourable MacKenzie King, Premier of Canada will visit us Thursday, August 28th and a great reception is being planned and citizens should vie with each other, in having everything spick and span, with colours flying, to add to the warmth of the welcome remarked His Worship.

To-day comes news of a visit from His Honour Henry Cockshutt, Lieut Governor of Ontario who has consented to open the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition and again a chance to show a visitor around the City.

City Amongst Offenders

The City authorities are offenders as far as weed cutting is concerned and Mayor Turner has been quoted as saying there will be a clean up of city property, which will be an object lesson to private citizens, other wise the Police Department will have to exercise its authority in enforcing the delinquents to cut their weeds.

However, a clear up has been promised, but not before it is urgently needed.

LABOR M.P.'s COMPLAIN.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Members of the Labour party who have been elected to Parliament find that the salary of $2,000 yearly is barely sufficient. In fact many of them have to supplement their official income by week-end speaking engagements, lectures, and writing magazine articles.

It is said by several members that one of the most expensive items is that of entertaining visitors from constituencies who call to "see how their member is getting on," and incidentally to have a look around and be entertained on the famous terrace or tea or lunch.

LARGE CROWDS AT MASQUERADE

Lakefield Affair Turned Out To Be a Huge Success.

MANY IN COSTUME.

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 23—The masquerade held in the Riverside Pavilion on Thursday evening was a decided and unqualified success both in point of numbers and also in the number of persons in costume and the originality displayed. Music was furnished by Hendren's Orchestra and the young people thoroughly enjoyed the dancing, varieties, such as streamer dances and balloon dances, were introduced and were very popular and added to the enjoyment of both spectators and dancers.

The judges who were Miss Graham, Dr. J. R. Fraser Messrs. G. J. Elmsley and J. W. Ridpath, found great difficulty in deciding on the prize winners as there were a number of costumes which were in the running and worthy of mention.

The prize for the ladies' fancy costume was awarded to Miss Ivah Windsor as the "Sultana of Turkey" and for the ladies' comic costume to Miss Constance Stuart as a "Maid of Chinatown." The prize for the mens' fancy costume was awarded to Mr. Louis Sabatino as the "Sultan of Turkey" and the men's comic costume to Mr. Roger McMahon as a "Skeleton", which was a wonderful impersonation and the special prize to the smallest lady in costume went to Miss Aileen Brown as a "Clown." CONFIDENCE IS SHOWN HERRIOT

Chamber of Deputies Defeat Motion By Vote of 305 To 209.

PROTECT FRANCE.

PARIS, August 23 United Press). —Mr. Herriot received what was tantamount to a vote of confidence early this morning when the Chamber of Deputies ,by a vote of 305 to 209, defeated a motion by the Opposition, which called for an adjournment.

The motion came after a day of attacks on the European policies of ex-Premier Poincare, directed by the Socialist leader, Leon Blum, by various interpollations relating to the conference.

Blum sought to show the wisdom of the Herriot policy and to demonstrate that Poincare's tactics had been the chief obstruction to the resortation of peace on the continent.

Blum declared it was necessary to jettison Poincare's programme in order to reach an agreement on the Dawes plan.

This is Herriot's second vote of confidence in two days.

On Thursday the Chamber rejected an opposition motion to postpone the debate on the Dawes plan until it was considered by the Foreign Committee of the Chamber.

With his vote of confidence on Saturday morning, Herriot is now considered to have won a certain victory for the Dawes protocols.

The Dawes reparation plan has only a consultative character, and constitutes only a moratorium," Deputy Louis Dubois, who was president of the Reparation Commission for two and a half years, declared this morning in opening the debate in the Chamber on Premier Herriot's statement of the results achieved at the recent international conference held in London.

He attacked the adoption of the Dawes report as weakening the Reparation Commission, and insisted that "May, 1921, state of payments remains law, and one can return to it at any time because it is part and parcel of the Treaty."

To this Premier Herriot replied: "You are right. It is the duty of all of us to defend France's maximum rights."

The Chancellor's speech, which was held up because of Communistic rowdying, was a plain spoken warning, as well as a sturdy appeal to the Reichstag's conscience carefully to consider the alternative in the event it decides to reject the agreement initialled by German delegates in London.

"Who will assure us that it will be possible to re-enlist American participation, which, under the slogan of the Dawes reports has at last emerged from its aloofness, if one of the essential parties to the past now fails to obtain its ratification at home?" he asked the deputies.

PRINCE SLIPPED OFF.

Outwitted the Killjoys Who Gathered at the Steamship Pier.

SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 23. — (Canadian Press).—Prince of Wales who is sailing for America on the Berengeria, to-day, outwitted those intending togive him a ceremonious send off by slipping quietly aboard the vessel early this morning.

The Prince who is leaving to visit his ranch in Alberta, will attend the inter-national polo matches at Meadow Brook, Long Island and pay a visit to President Coolridge at Washington before going to Canada Determined there should be no ceremony in connection with his sailing, His Royal Highness, late last night slipped quietly out of London by automobile, spent a few hours at the Isle of Wight, about 20 miles from here, boarded the Berengeria without hardly being noticed and immediately went to bed.

ANNUAL TEACHERS' TOUR.

One Hundred and Eighty-Eight Teachers Will Make the Tour.

TORONTO, Aug. 23.—(Canadian Press.)— On Sunday evening, one hundred and eighty-eight representatives Ontario teachers are leaving for a tour of the northern part of the province, under the auspices of the Ontario Educational Association. For this trip, which has now become an annual fixture, each Teachers' Institute in the province is asked to select two representatives.

When the Institutes meet in October and November, these representatives are expected to give detailed reports of what they have seen and heard in Northern Ontario. In this way an impetus is being given to true study of real geography, because these teachers are receiving first hand impressions of the great north country and are able to teach geography as it should be taught.

BONE TRANSPLANTED.

Professional Golfer Had Shinbone Grafted On His Spine.

TORONTO, Aug 23. —(Canadian Press).— With ten inches of shinbone transplanted to his spine, Norman Bell, professional golfer formerly with Thornhill golf and country club, is walking about the streets seemingly in perfect health and is giving golf lessons to friends who are seeking his instruction. Operation which Mr. Bell underwent in Toronto General Hospital, last winter, was performed by Dr. W. E. Gallie and is similar to operation W. Johns, Hopkin's Hospital, Baltimore, described this week as most remarkable piece of surgery.

Mr. Bell was taken ill in Spring of 1923 and was said it was doubtful if he would recover. On advice of Dr. Gallie Mr. Bell was kept outdoors from early spring until late fall, motionless on couch. He recovered his strength and underwent the operation early in January.

THOMPSON'S REPORT.

Six Nations Reserve Has Been Greeted With Every Approval.

BRANTFORD, August 23. — Canadian Press. — The recent publication of Cofonel Thompson's report, regarding the conditions prevailing on the Six Nations Reserve, has been greeted with every expression of approval by the "loyalist" faction here. These members of the band are openly jubilant regarding the criticisms which were directed against the "Council of chiefs" system. Chiefs and leaders of Deskanes' faction have not openly expressed approval or disapproval, but it seems to be generally conceded on the reserve that the publication of the report was followed by considerable weakening of the "separatist" cause.

CAR MAKES TRIP IN FOUR HOURS THAT TOOK ISRAELITES 40 YEARS

JERUSALEM, Aug. 23.—A small American automobile in four hours today did what it required the Israelites forty years to accomplish in their exodus from Egypt to Palestine.

This was the crossing of the Sinai Desert, the wild and barren region between the Gulf of Suez and the Gulf of Akabah, a distance of about 130 miles.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

WOODSTOCK, Ont., August 23. — Fred McKay and Stanley Bennett of West Zorra had a narrow escape from death yesterday during a thunderstorm, which passed over this district.

They were in a field cutting oats at the time when a bolt of lightning struck their machine, instantly killing three horses which were pulling it.

Mr. McKay and Mr. Bennett were both stunned but suffered no material injuries.

One day an Irishman was taking home a goose, but on the way he called for a drink at the public house, placing his bird on a seat near by. When he was ready to go he was surprised to find that the bird had disappeared. On going outside he saw a man with it, and said. "What have you got, my goose for?"

"Oh, I took it for a lark!" was the reply.

"Took it for a lark!" said Pat. "You wouldn't be much of a judge at a bird show."

ATTEND ANNIVERSARY.

St. Thomas' Church at St. Thomas, Ontario, Has Long History.

Mrs. and Miss Burnham have returned from St. Thomas, where they were the guests of Major Ermatinger.

They were present at the one hundredth aniversary of old St. Thomas church (Anglican). In this comparatively new land, centenaries are of more than passing moment and this one was fittingly observed.

At the service, held August 3rd, the centennial message from the pulpit was given by Right Rev. David Williams, Bishop of Huron and all the Anglican clergy of the district were present.

Imediately after, the graves of prominent people and some of the former rectors were decorated, with hymns and prayer at each grave.

Among the old rectors of this church, was the Rev. Mark Burnham who was in charge for 23 years before removing to Peterborough, where he made his final home.

The late Bishop Baldwin is said here preached his first and last sermon in this church.

It is the oldest church standing exisnt between Arnhurstberg and the Mohawk church on the Grand river, near Brantford. It is built of bricks made in the Kettlecreek valley and the brick is coated with rough cast mortar.

The original weather vane is still on the spire and has only stopped working years ago. Beyond the roof being altered there has been but few repairs but now the building will have to be overhauled as the floor gave way, just as the last of the large crowd left the building. Examination showed dry rot had started in the timbers underneath.

BAND CONCERT

Regarding the concert to be given on Sunday evening, the Rangers Band would like it known that this is not a schedule concert, but one given freely by the band themselves.

The schedule, drawn up by the city council, will be completed on Friday evening next, but owing to the long lapse between the last concert and then, and the many requests from the public, the band has decided to give an extra concert, and as Sundays seem to be more popular than Fridays, the above date has been chosen for the purpose.

Programme.

By kind permission of Lieut.-Col. Bradburn the band of the Peterboro' Rangers will give the following programme in Victoria Park, Sunday evening, at 8:15 p.m.

God Save the King.
March, "Old Comrades," Teike.
Overture, "Raymond," Thomas.
Cornet Duet, "Mountain Echoes," (Bandsmen J. Minnicolo and B. M. Peryer).
Opera Bouquet, Excerpts from Grand Operas, finishing with the finale to "William Tell".
Valse Concerto, Krier.
Intermission.
March, "The Middy," Alford.
Grand Selection, "The Bohemian Girl," Balfe.
Extract, "Simple Avew".
Hymn—Selected.
O Canada.

REGISTER ALL LETTERS OF VALUE.

The Post Office registration system is designed to afford maximum protection to valuable letters. Every possible measure is taken to ensure the absolute safety of registered mails, and so successful has the Post Office been in perfecting the registration system that not one registered article in forty thousand is lost.

When you register a letter you are given a numbered receipt and the same number is stamped on the letter. From that time until the letter is finally delivered a complete record is kept of its handling. Every clerk who receives it has to sign for it, and he in turn gets a receipt before he passes it on.

Naturally, this is an expensive procedure, but it is done so that your registered mail may be given absolute security.

In the exceptional case when registered mail is actually lost, the sender is protected to the extent of the value of the article at the following rates:— Indemnity up to $25 for a fee of 10c. Indemnity up to $50 for a fee of 20c. Indemnity up to $75 for a fee of 30c. Indemnity up to $100 for a fee of 40c.

For your own protection, the Post Office asks you to register all letters of value.

FISH AND GAME MEMBERS PICNIC

Pleasant Afternoon Spent at Barnard's Landing on Rice Lake.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 23. — The first picnic held under the auspices of the Fish and Game Protective Association took place on Thursday afternoon at Barnard's Landing, Rice Lake. With a membership roll of nearly one hundred, it was expected that a large number would motor to the picnic grounds, but only a comparative few availed themselves of the outing, possibly the fact that personal invitations were not issued, in addition to the lack of adequate publicity, accounting for the smallness of the attendance.

However an enjoyable afternoon was spent, the hearty thanks of the entire party being extended to Mr. R. H. Edmunds who was most thoughtful in seeing that everyone had a trip on the lake in his motor launch.

Rev. G. S. and Mrs. Gervan and family, who have been camping at Deyell's Landing during the first three weeks of this month, completed their holiday outing by a week's stay at Kew Beach, near Toronto. Mr. Gervan is now taking his pastoral work, Rev. J. Wilks having supplied during his absence.

Mrs. E. S. Burnham, who has spent the past two months with friends at Beaverton, Cannington, Chemong Park and Peterborough, returned home this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Allen, Mrs. J. H. Grassett, and her sister, Mrs. Crease, and two daughters, of New York, Miss Kathleen Lancashire, and brother, Henry, and Mr. D. Fowler, enjoyed a trip through the Kawartha Lakes on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Lough, of Toronto, visited friends in Millbrook and Cavan this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stanton, who were visitors in town this week, have returned to Toronto, taking Misses Martha and Marguerite along with them for a two weeks' visit.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Blackwell and two sons of Toronto, Mrs. T. W. Blackwell, of Lindsay, and Mr. J. Blackwell, of Detroit, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Ingram this week. Mrs. Ingram and daughter, Vanita, accompanied them on their return trip to Toronto and will visit in the city, taking in the exhibition.

Mrs. J. Bingham spent a few days this week with Mr. and Mrs. W. Barrie of Peterborough, joining them at their camp on the Otonabee river.

Mr. Ralph Yarwood, who has been taking a summer course in art at Toronto University, spent the week end, the guest of Mr. A. A. and Miss E. Needler, joining his mother who has spent the last three weeks with friends in Millbrook and vicinity.

Mr. C. Guy and son, of Chicago, recently called on friends in Millbrook and Cavan, motoring into Ontario for a holiday trip. About forty years ago Mr. Guy was in the jewellery business here, and built the home on Regent street which later became the property of the late Senator Kirchoffer, and is now owned and occupied by Mr. L. S. Clarry.

Mrs. M. Murray and daughter, of Toronto, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Howden, 8th Line, Cavan.

AVIATOR MISSING.

U. S. Fliers Are Expected At Indian Harbor Sunday.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., August 23. — The manager of the Marconi Company's station here this morning, received a message from the United States destroyer Lawrence, off Indian Head Harbor, Labrador, declaring that the United States round-the-world fliers were expeced at Indian Harbor on Sunday. The message contained no reference to Lt. Locatelli, the missing Italian aviator.

'Johnny Doesn't Like Milk'

"But, Johnny doesn't like milk! I can't make him drink it." How often we hear this plaint from fond mothers. Mothers who realize the value of this wonderful food and want their children to derive the benefits which experience proves come from its use.

Do we stop to consider that there may have been some controllable cause for this dislike on Johnny's part? Milk neither sweet nor sour is often times even more objectionable to the refined taste than after it has actually turned. Children or adults who have tried to like Milk in this border-line condition may have acquired an unexplainable dislike for even the best Milk.

That is why we have gone to more than ordinary expense in perfecting our methods; so that with reasonable care, even in the hottest weather, you and your family may have milk that you will love to drink.

And Should Consider the Best Moves For Playing the Game.

The Peterborough Business College enjoys a reputation for efficiency in training young people for a successful business career of which its principal and teachers may well be proud. And the readiness with which a large percentage of its graduates find remunerative positions in outstanding trade and commercial offices, testifies to the thoroughness with which this college keeps abreast with the requirements of modern business houses.

While not guaranteeing positions for its students, still the principal assists in every way to secure openings for them. In fact, through Principal McKone's own personal interest graduates of both sexes are holding in Cleveland, Buffalo, Detroit, Ottawa, Toronto, Windsor and other large cities, responsible and lucrative posts with prospects for rapid advancement. For instance, one young man of 20 years of age, who graduated from the Peterborough Business College two years ago, is now engaged in Windsor at a salary of $2,000.00 a year; another graduate started in Buffalo at $130.00 a month (on probation, so to speak, his salary was increased to $1,800.00 a year the second month, and his future looks brilliant. Then practically each year every worthy and capable student secures a good position, as the demand for them is continuous.

Four Decades of Progress

Established 40 years ago, Peterborough Business College has enjoyed four decades of remarkable progressive success, until to-day it is one of the leading schools in Canada and affiliated with the Business Educators' Association. This latter organization is the standard for high grade business training in Canada.

Principal J. A. McKone, during his 16 years of control, has elevated the school to so enviable a plane for "getting results", that students are attracted from near and far to take up commercial, shorthand or complete office training courses, for which thousands of dollars have been invested in equipment. The class rooms are spacious, lofty, bright and cheerful, and contain more office labor saving machines than probably any school in the whole province.

Young people and especially High School graduates, are on the Checker Board of Life and should consider seriously the "Peterborough Business College move" for playing the game to a successful issue. Many have made this move recently and prospects for capacity Fall Classes are exceedingly promising.

Enroll Now

In this connection it is stressed that early enrollment is advisable to give principal and parents opportunity for consultation as to what courses will best develop those faculties of the student which are the most potential for business training.

The college is situated on the corner of George and Simcoe street, Peterborough, and the office is open from 10 to 4 daily.

Out-of-town students will find home-like boarding and rooming accommodation at reasonable prices. Principal J. A. McKone has a list of good boarding houses and assists his students in locating comfortably.

CUTTING GENERAL NORTH MONAGHAN

Vegetables Are a Record Crop, But Price Has Dropped—Barley and Oats Good.

NORTH MONAGHAN, Aug. 23.—Cutting is general in this district, although the harvest has been retarded a few weeks due to the wet weather. One man has just succeeded in getting his hay to the barn this week, and threshing of grain has not yet started.

Vegetables are a splendid crop, reaching a high record, but, as a consequence, the price is very low.

Wheat is heavy, and oats and barley on Lewis Whitfield's farm are exceptionally heavy. This will be used for feed. There should be a good second crop of clover, the growth being good. The second crop of alfalfa is giving good prospect also, and one farmer has had two cuttings and is expecting a third. His crop is on good loamy land. He paid $20 for the seed, to the surprise of his neighbors, but has already taken over $100 value in alfalfa from the planting.

MAKES CANARIES SING LIKE NIGHTINGALES

German Breeder Keeps Phonograph Record of Songsters' Notes Going All Day.

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, Aug 23.—By use of the phonograph records canary birds here have been taught to sing like nightingales.

August Mumme of Bremerhaven who raises canaries as a pastime, begins to drum the song of the nightingale into the ears of the little birds almost the minute they are hatched by keeping a record running all day long and often half the night.

When the little singers are six or eight weeks old, Mumme places them in a cage near real nightingales, and they are not permitted to hear the singing of any other birds. Eventually, when the canaries begin to sing they quite naturally follow the notes they have always heard and, as Mumme says, "feel as if they were sure-enough nightingales themselves."

A canary nightingale singer is worth about five times that of an ordinary singer among bird fanciers.

WHEAT REGISTERS HIGH AT NORWOOD

Richard Heffernan Reports Forty Bushels of Fall Grain To Acre.

NORWOOD, Aug. 23.—As yet very few of the farmers of this district have done their threshing. Richard Heffernan reports the yield of fall wheat as averaging forty bushels to the acre and barley thirty bushels. Raspberries are still being offered at $3 a crate of twenty-four boxes.

Potatoes are a good crop and are selling at 35c a peck.

DOURO FIELD CROPS GOOD

Only Peas Failed — Winter Wheat and Rye Are Best in Years.

DOURO, Aug. 23.—Harvesting is progressing at a splendid rate despite the frequent showers. Peas are an almost complete failure; winter wheat and rye are the best in years; oats and barley are good, and buckwheat is a splendid stand. Gardens are exceptionally good. Pastures are excellent for the time of year.

The price obtained for July milk was $1.15 per cwt. for the 3.5 test.

Monday was hipping day at Indian River for the U. F. O. Co-operative, and many animals were shipped.

The wild raspberries have been an excellent crop, and most local larders are well stocked for winter.

Mr. Fred Walsh threshed on Tuesday, the wheat yielding well.

School children are very enthusiastic over the school fair, which will be held towards the end of September. Mr. P. G. Towns is sparing no effort to make it a success.

RECORD ROOT CROP.

Millbrook Pastures Unusually Good—Grains Are Average—Peas Attacked By Lice.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 23.—Comparatively little threshing has yet been done in this immediate vicinity except of peas which on light land have been affected by pea lice, but in any case are under an average crop. Most of the barley is cut and in the barns, though some fields are still waiting for the binder, and look over-ripe. On the whole, this grain is an average yield.

Oats are cut in a few cases but much of this grain is still standing, the promise of a good crop now being fairly well assured.

Wheat is estimated in a few cases at forty bushels to the acre, while thirty-five bushels is spoken of as the average expected.

Pastures are unusually good and the root crop has gone ahead rapidly so that it seems a record harvest of roots may be expected this season. While warmer temperatures will be welcomed for corn yet this crop is making good progress. Potatoes are of good size but some rot is predicted owing to the wet weather.

PEACE RIVER IS A GREAT EMPIRE OF WHEAT LAND

Sir Henry Thornton Is Optimistic Regarding Prospects on Prairies—Sees a Great Future.

WEATHER IS GOOD

Railways Are Ready To Handle Western Crop—New Big Cars Go Into Service.

SUDBURY, August 23 (Canadian Press). — A new great empire of the West which will be capable of growing more wheat than at present is produces by all the agricultural land now under cultivation in Canada, was predicted by Sir Henry Thornton, chairman of the Board, and president of the Canadian National Railways in an address delivered before the Board of Trade of Sudbury district yesterday afternoon.

Sir Henry, who is returning from a trip of inspection throughout Western Canada, spoke optimistically of conditions in the Prairie Provinces, and stated that in the Peace River district he had found one of the finest wheat growing countries in the world.

"If only 50 per cent. of the acreage of the Peace River district were brought under cultivation," said Sir Henry, "more wheat would then be produced than is done at present by the whole of Canada."

WELCOME FAIR WEATHER.

WINNIPEG, August 23 (Canadian Press). — Weather conditions continue favourable for the harvest all over the West. Although the Government report says the harvesting operations have not been seriously held up by recent rains, farmers all over the West welcome the fair weather.

Yesterday the temperature rose considerably.

Officials of the railways are getting everything into shape for the handling of the grain crops on their systems.

Facilities on the National this year are said to be much better than those of past years, new rolling stock having been added to the equipment.

More than 37,000 cars are assembled throughout the Western regions awaiting the movement of grain, and of this number 18,000 are distributed to local stations.

Approximately 2,000 cars are a the head of the Lakes, and these will be moved out as soon as the grain starts to come in.

New stock includes one thousand 80-ton cars, each capable of accommodating 2,000 bushels of grain, and these, the largest cars in use, will be in operation for the first time this year.

They will be utilised between the elevators and on the main line either to th eLake head or to Vancouver.

Acre Yields 47 1-2 Bushels.

W. J. Moran, of Orland, Has Good Crop of Fall Wheat —Potatoes Big.

ORLAND, Aug. 23.—M. J. Moran of this place has just threshed part of his fall wheat turned out at 47+ bushels per acre. He has also in prospect just as good a crop of potatoes, which look good for about 1,000 bushels.

Omemee Man Enquires Why Hog Prices Do Not Equal Quotations From Markets

OMEMEE, Aug. 23.—Farmers in this locality are wondering why it is that if they see sugar quoted at $10 a cwt. f.o.b. they can always depend on the price being reliable, but when hogs are quoted at $10 and $10.25 f.o.b. the market price here is only $9.75 a cwt. Why should this not apply to hogs as well as to sugar?

* * *

Interviewed by The Examiner regarding the above query, Gordon Matthews, of the Canadian Packing Company, Limited, said the difference is only apparently against the farmer who sells hogs. If the record is kept over a period it will be found that the man who sells hogs gains on a falling market what he loses on a rising. The buyer, for instance, receives orders today to buy at 10 1-2 cents. On Monday, when he makes the deal in Omemee at 10 1-2 cents, the market price is quoted 11 cents. The farmer apparently loses one-half cent.

But, on Monday, the revised price is sent to the buyer, authorizing him to pay 11 cents. He makes a deal at this price on Tuesday, on which day the market quotes 101-2 cents. The farmer who sells that day gains one-half cent on the market.

Such conditions only exist at times when, as at present, the prices of hogs move upward and downward from day to day. Usually the price paid in Omemee or elsewhere is the same as the price quoted in Toronto and Peterboro'.

THE EXAMINER will be glad to receive the opinions of readers on this and other subjects of interest to the farming community. Address letters to the City Editor.

HASTINGS CROP IS GOOD YIELD

Edward Waters Threshes 37 Bushels to the Acre of Fall Wheat.

RYE EXCELLENT.

HASTINGS, Aug. 23. — Generally speaking, the crop reports for this farming district are very favorable. Showery weather has been general during the month of August, making it catchy harvest weather. However, all crops have made material improvements, making the farmers feel more buoyant now than at any other time this season.

Harvesting operations are well under way, and grains such as fall wheat, rye, and barley, in most cases, are already cut or ready for cutting, and in some localities oats have been ripe enough for cutting.

Buckwheat promises to be a good crop and is now in full bloom. Field corn is rapidly advancing.

Potatoes, up to the present, have been rather slow in coming on the market but bumper crops are expected by some farmers.

Turnips, mangles and other root crops are also a good crop.

Some fall ploughing is being done prior to the sowing of the fall grains.

Acre Yields 37 Bushels.

What is considered to be an extra good yield was threshed recently at the farm of Edward Waters, northeast of Hastings. Mr. Waters had twenty-five acres of fall wheat sown and threshed of 37 bushels to the acre. At the same time he also threshed 552 bushels of rye.

FARMERS BUSY AT LAKEFIELD

Optimistic Spirit as Average and Slightly Better Crops Are Garnered.

ROOTS ARE GOOD.

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 23. — The harvest is in full swing in the vicinity of Lakefield. Most of the farmers having most of the grain crop garnered and while there appears to be no high record for many corps, there is an average with most grains in spite of the cold wet season. An outsanding feature of this remarkable summer is the optimistic spirit shown by the great majority of farmers who have been held up the harvesting over and over by rains which have been real record breakers.

Mr. T. Garvey, of Smith township, reports fall wheat slightly above the average crop, also rye, but peas much below the usual yield. Oats are a fair average and until this week the rain has done no harm.

Root Crops Excellent.

Prospects for the root crop are excellent and potatoes promise extremely well, in many cases far above the average. The corn is fair but slightly below the average. Peas are below average in both field and garden.

Good in Douro.

Mr. G. A. Graham of Douro, reports crops well up to average in most cases. Wheat in his section is good and well up to expectations. Barley and oats are also a good crop. Corn, though not uniform, is fairly good and with some farmers extremely good. Mr. Graham was optimistic regarding the weather and does not predict any serious results from the heavy rains unless a continuance of the same brand of weather should rot the potatoes, which are at present a good crop and showing splendid possibilities.

Roots are a good average and in some varieites well above. Apples are a poor crop, the harvest apples were very fair but there is a poor outlook for the later varieties. Mr. Graham is practically through with his harvest.

Gardens Need Sun.

Local gardeners are hoping for the hot weather denied them earlier in order to ripen the tomatoes which are a splendid crop and show clean, well-developed fruit, but as green as grass. Corn needs warmer weather as the development is slow. Crops of green vegetables, spinach, lettuce, Swiss chord, etc. are especially good, also such staples as beets, parsnips and carrots. Beans were good in some gardens, but the pea crop was below the average. Cabbage will not be above the average.

SEYMOUR FARMS YIELD AN ACRE FORTY BUSHELS

Wheat is Clean and Free From Weeds—May Be 42 To Acre When Weighed.

OATS GIVE THIRTY.

Hume Farm Threshes Lightest Field of Oat Crop Over 30 Bushels To Acre.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 23.—A fair idea of the yield of grain in the Township of Seymour can be gathered from the returns received by Alex. Hume and Son of Burnbrae, who threshed their fall wheat and part of their oat crop Wednesday.

From seven acres of wheat the yield was 284, as recorded by the machine. The grain was clean, free from weeds of all kinds and of excellent quality, running over standard weight. Mr. Hume is satisfied that he will have 300 bushels of wheat when it is weighed. This means a yield of 40 bushels to the acre as the grain came from the machine, or over 42 bushels, if Mr. Hume's estimate as to the weight proves correct.

How Oats Yield.

The oats threshed Wednesday on the Hume farm turned out over 50 bushels to the acre and this grain, too, is well filled. This yield came from the lightest of the oat crop on the farm as the harvest is still standing in the stook. This includes the large field for which Mr. Hume received the first prize in the recent standing field crop competition. Judging from what was threshed Wednesday the prize field should yield 75 bushels to the acre. On the Hume farm there is a 12-acre field of silo corn which is already six feet high.

Messrs. Hume and Son are always careful in the selection of the seed which they use, and before sowing give it the chemical treatment to prevent smut. Last spring they cut all the odd stalks of rye that grew in their wheat and pulled everything in the shape of a weed that could be found. Clean as their wheat is now they will put it through the fanning mill to remove the last foreign substance and will offer the grain for sale for seed among their neighbors. They expect to receive $1.40 a bushel for it. In 1923 the top price for first class seed wheat was one dollar.

Ready For Show.

The 11 head of pure bred Ayrshires that Messrs. Hume and Son will ship to the Toronto Exhibition Friday are standing in the stable, protected from the flies by light blankets. David Hunter, of Grimsby, Dominion field man for the Ayrshire breeders, visited the Hume farm last week and pronounced a young heifer among the show animals to be the finest type of its breed that he had seen anywhere in Canada.

Threshing Delayed.

A number of the farmers in this vicinity are adopting the plan of threshing their grain from the stook, the ideal labor saving method when the season is dry. The showery weather of the past few weeks, however, have delayed threshing operations, but from all sides where the work has been done reports are heard of large yields. Thirty-five bushels to the acre is about the average, G. H. Wallace, and the Little brothers are among those who have already threshed their fall grain.

James Ross, of Brighton Township, reports a yield of 47 bushels of wheat to the acre, the largest so far heard from. Peter Stephen, of the English Line, also had a large turnout.

Comparatively little barley and oats have been threshed but the average yield of the farmer, so far as can be ascertained, is 38 bushels to the acre.

Wheat $1.10 a Bushel.

Wheat is selling for $1.10 at the cereal mills here, the company taking it on their own trucks from the barns just as it comes from the machine. This is an advance of about 30 cents over the prevailing prices a year ago.

The late oats which, about a week ago were as green as grass, are now ripening rapidly and the farmers say that the cool weather is favorable to their filling well.

Altogether, the outlook for the farmer is brightening. On the local market hogs are selling for $10.25; the price of cheese has gone up over a cent a pound during the past week. There are more inquiries for calves and fat cattle. Eggs bring from 28 to 30 cents, and dairy and creamery butter around 40 cents.

ON BETHEL FARMS.

BETHEL, Aug. 23.—The farmers in this district have the most of their hay and wheat in the barn and are busy cutting oats. Alfalfa is nearly ready for the second cutting. No threshing has been done as yet.

CONDENSED CROP REPORTS

Here is a condensation of crop reports from all parts of Peterborough district. The reports, sent in by exclusive Examiner correspondents, fill this page.

NORWOOD. Richard Heffernan threshed 40 bushels of fall wheat to the acre.

ORLAND. W. J. Moran threshed 47½ bushels of fall wheat to the acre.

DOURO. Winter wheat and rye are the best in years.

TWEED. Harry Foster threshed 40 bushels of wheat to the acre.

BAILIEBORO. Wheat averages 30 bushels, with some as high as 50 bushels.

CAVAN. William Pudsy carted 27 loads of wheat off nine acres.

EAST EMILY. Herbert Hennessey threshed 25 to 30 bushels of peas to the acre.

MADOC. Grain is plump, heavy, and a great height. Barley averages 37 bushels and wheat 35 bushels to the acre. Oats may run to 50 bushels.

LAKEFIELD. Crops are above average.

CORDOVA. Fall wheat threshed 48 bushels to the acre. Four loads of oats threshed out 250 bushels.

MARMORA. Potatoes for three meals for a family of five were obtained from one hill.

BETHANY. Good harvest weather has postponed threshing.

HASTINGS. Edward Waters had 37 bushels of fall wheat to the acre.

MILLBROOK. Pastures are exceptionally good, and roots will yield a record crop.

SEYMOUR. Wheat averages 42 bushels, oats run over 30 bushels to the acre, and the heaviest are yet to cut.

N. MONAGHAN. Vegetables are the most plentiful ever known. Grain is heavy, and third cutting of alfalfa is expected.

A Day With the Threshers Of Yesterday and of Today

Some Pioneers Remember the Flail that Threshed the First Grain Raised by Their Fathers on Virgin Soil, Beating the Pathway to Today's Advanced Methods.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 23.—Pioneers of Seymour, who threshed with a flail, otherwise known as "The poverty stick," the first grain raised by their fathers or themselves, on the land cleared up by so much hard labor, are living to-day to see that line of agricultural industry in its highest stage of development. The evolution of threshing from the "poverty stick" to the steam-driven machine has been slow but steady, keeping pace with improvements made in every other line.

After the flail came the open cylinder machine, driven by horse power, and which merely knocked the grain out of the straw, leaving the work of separation to be done by hand. It was thought that the next machine invented, one that separated as well as threshed, was the last word. The horses furnished the motive power, and 500 bushels of wheat and 1000 bushels of oats was regarded as a good day's work—about half what the big machines at present in use are able to turn out.

Then portable engines—that is, engines that did not propel themselves, but were drawn around by a team of horses—were introduced. For a long time farmers looked askance at these contraptions, fearing they would either blow up or set fire to their buildings, and they occasionally, at the outset, did both.

With the greater power supplied by steam, the size of the separators were increased. Then came the traction engine that can not only move itself but is able to draw around the ponderous machines with which the threshing is done. The windstacker took the place of the straw carrier, and the self-feeder threw out of employment a small army of skilled laborers, who in the old days, did that work by hand. Hand feeding was regarded as an art, but, like so many arts, it has been crowded out of existence by the introduction of machinery. Threshing to-day is not what it used to be. The hand feeder is not the only expert worker who has been displaced. With him has gone the man who could build a straw stack warranted to turn the rain, whose reputation was established and whose services were in demand at every threshing in his neighborhood.

Comparative Cost.

There was a time when a threshing machine could be found that would thresh 1000 bushels of oats or half that quantity of wheat in a day, the farmer paying $8 for the outfit. Ten horses and 12 or 15 men were required to operate it. Of this crew the owner of the machine furnished three men and two horses.

The owner of one of the big steam machines to-day charges four cents a bushel for threshing wheat, or rye, and three cents for oats and barley. Give him a full day's work at either class of grain and he can earn from $40 to $60, doing double what was accomplished by his $8 a day predecessor. There are three men and a team of horses in his crew, and these the farmer, of course, boards.

Gasoline Costs More.

If the modern machine is driven by a gasoline engine, the farmer is saved the cost of furnishing wood or coal for fuel, a considerable expense, but for such an outfit he pays one-half a cent a bushel more for having his grain threshed. Everything the farmer buys or hires has certainly gone up in price within the past generation.

Where Threshers Lose.

It must not be supposed that threshing machine owners are getting rich at their vocation. It is seldom that they get a full day's work on the average Ontario farm. At least half their time is spent in moving from one farm to another, and for this, of course, they receive no compensation. While they are moving, however, the wages of their crew are going on.

He has, at least, $5,000 invested in his outfit; the threshing season is short, and the competition is keen. If his machine breaks down he loses time, and the cost of a single repair may eat up his profits for a week.

Then and Now.

The most of men dread a job of threshing, but within the past two decades this work has lost half of its terrors. In the old days the machines were open and belched clouds of choking dust from every aperture. To-day they are enclosed from cylinder to the end of the stacket, so that the men, strenuous as the work certainly is, can labor in comparative comfort. But threshing will always be regarded as the most disagreeable task the farmer has to perform.

Hours of Labor.

In the days of the $8 machines the hours of work were often from dawn until dark, and sometimes the work was continued later by the light of lanterns. In Seymour Township, a dairying district, the threshing machine whistle blows for the start at 8 a.m. and closes down at six in the evening, but this is to give the farmers who are helping a chance to do their milking and get their cream or milk to market. Beside the three in th thresher's crew, nine men are usually sufficient to man a machine. It is nothing unusual when a farmer is threshing here to see seven or eight high-priced cars parked in his lane by neighbors who came in them to help him for the day.

How Threshers Fare.

Threshing-day is a busy season for the farmer's wife as well as for himself. It is likely that the majority of city dwellers have partaken o the royale repasts that are served at church entertainments in the country, where the cooking in every department is above reproach and where every conceivable form of dainty is served. Such people may form an idea of what the country housewife entertains her hungry guests on threshing day, serving them as she does with a meal that would arouse the envy or admiration—depending on his temperament of any high-priced professional chef in the country.

Those Heavy Machines.

There is at present an opinion growing among farmers that the threshing machines used to-day are too heavy and expensive; that if they were lighter and cheaper they would be be capable of doing just as good work and could be hired for less money. Moving them, especially in a neighborhood that abounds with steep hills, is a problem. The big machine was originally designed for the prairie country, where they may be employed for several days at a time without moving. The present-day machine is a heavy load on the floor of the average barn and wracks the building by its vibration.

The manufacturers evidently are beginning to realize that the construction of threshing machines has been carried to excess, and are now building separators of a smaller type and at a price which makes it possible for the average farmer to purchase one for his own exclusive use.

A three-horse binder is the ideal harvester for the Ontario farmer. One of the giant arrangements used to cut wheat in the West would certainly be out of place in one of the small fields of Ontario.

LESS WHEAT IN ITALY

Italy's wheat production this year is expected to fall far short of that in 1923. The estimate for 1924 is 176,368,000 bushels, as against 224,836,000 bushels in 1923, and an average of 183,334,000 bushels a year between 1909 and 1913.

In Texas the beekeepers are pleased over the honey flow, as against last year's low yield.

T. W. BELCH HAS AN ACCREDITED HOLSTEIN HERD

Cavan Man Last Week Succeeded in Having His Dairy Herd Passed by Department.

ALL ARISTOCRATS.

Started Ten Years Ago With Two Head—Clean Bill of Health For Twenty Now.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 23.—T. W. Belch, 5th Line, Cavan, whose well-managed and well-worked farm is about two miles east of Millbrook, has now a fully accredited herd of pure-bred Holstein-Fresian cattle, numbering twenty animals. Dr. Gleason, of the Department of Agriculture, Toronto, was in the neighborhood in his official capacity last week and applied the third and final test to Mr. Belch's herd when a clean bill of health was returned, not a single reacter being found.

Starting ten years ago with two cows, by breeding Mr. Belch has built up his herd to its present fine proportions, and with the exception of one animal, all are either daughters or granddaughters of the two originally purchased. These two cows are still in the herd, the oldest, "Mabel Pink Posch", No. 17354, having been bred by W. Armstrong, of Locust Hill, and bought by Mr. Belch at a sale, when four years old. The younger of the two, "Pontiac Posch Concordia", No. 40359, was bred by Bertram Hoskin, of Grafton, and is now ten years old.

Mr. Belch has his herd on a purely commercial basis and does not follow either the Record of Performance, or Record of Merit tests, but from a private record kept for one year in connection with the cow first purchased when beginning his herd, found that this animal, given the ordinary feed grown on the farm, and milked twice a day, produced 12,000 pounds of milk in 365 days, and the owner is satisfied that his could easily have reached 20,000 pounds had special feeding been done and milking taken place four times a day.

The herd sire, "De Kol Butter Boy Model", No. 55068, was purchased from R. R. Stevens, Bowmanville, who is sales manager of the Durham County Holstein Breeders' Club, and is from an accredited herd. The dam, from which the herd sire was bred, at three years old had a record of 21 pounds of butter in 7 days, and 476.3 pounds of milk in the same period. His grand dam, "Colantha Butter Girl", No. 22629, at three years, had in a seven days' test 30.87 pounds of butter to her credit, and in a thirty days' test 125.24 pounds of butter, and 2240.10 pounds of milk.

Average is 7,000 Pounds.

Milking is done twice a day at the Belch farm, and the average per cow for 365 days is 7,000 pounds, any animal failing to produce at least 6,000 pounds being sent to the abbatoir. A milking machine is used, operated by tread power supplied by using the herd sire for the purpose with a consequent saving of from $40 to $60 per year in gasoline. This is the first year Mr. Belch has tried this method, probably unique in these two counties, and it is proving entirely satisfactory.

The entire farm, both house and barns, are furnished with an excellent water works system, a gasoline engine supplying the power, but this fall Mr. Belch intends to do away with the latter and use the tread power altogether for pumping water for all buildings, as well as for operating the milking machine and the separator. From practical experience this season he is convinced that this method will prove both economical and efficient.

In the winter season the cattle are housed in the basement of the barn where every convenience for feeding, watering, etc., is installed. The herd is fed twice each day, oats being given morning and evening with ensilage, occasionally hay, though the latter may be fed at noon. Some practical experimenting with sweet clover has led Mr. Belch to decide upon its use for ensilage entirely after this season. This year he ploughed under nine acres, using the ground afterward for wheat, and believes that it is superior to summer fallow, fertilizing the soil, keeping the ground well covered, and choking out the weeds.

Owning his tractor and threshing outfit, Mr. Belch has found the best plan in growing sweet clover for seed is to thresh in the field as it falls very easily and much may be lost in drawing to the barn. The price being five dollars a bushel it pays to grow the crop for this purpose, and this year Mr. Belch has twenty-one acres which he will thresh for seed, retaining enough for use on his own farm, and marketing the remainder. Last year from five acres of sweet clover forty-two bushels of seed were obtained which, after keeping out five bushels for planting this season, was sold, netting in the neighborhood of $200.00, the price being then $5.75 a bushel.

Pasturage, being unusually good this season, there has been no necessity to supply any other feed.

Seeks Profit.

To have his herd commercially profitable is Mr. Belch's aim, hence it is not enlarged beyond what is considered best from this standpoint. Last winter, by private sale, seven animals, mostly three-year-old heifers, were disposed of, bringing $800.00 in cash. Male calves are mostly vealed, but in the future may be sold for breeding purposes, now the herd is fully accredited.

All cream is sold to the Lindsay Creamery Company, and hogs are kept to consume the by-products, twenty-eight of the latter being in stock on the farm at the present time. In four months the cream cheques averaged $70.00. Only enough cream is retained to supply the culinary and table needs of the farm, and permit churning sufficient butter for family use.

The first official test of the "Black and Whites" to place the herds on accredited basis, was made on August 11, 1923, as a result of which two cows were placed in quarantine, though they did not give any positive reaction to the tuberculin injection. Ninety days later a second test was made, Dr. Nesbitt of the Provincial Department of Agriculture, being the veterinary who did the work, and this time the entire herd passed without a single reactor. Last week, Dr. Gleason, of the Department, allied the third and final test, when again no reactors were found and the herd is now pronounced clean and fully accredited.

The Ten Little Chickens Followed Little Niggers To Happy Hunting Ground

Ten little chickens, all of them were mine:
One became homesick—and then there were nine.

Nine little chickens, creeping 'neath the gate:
A motor car passed by,—and then there were eight.

Eight little chickens thought a pond was heaven:
One of them went there—and then there were seven.

Seven little chickens tried with rats to mix:
One could not unmix itself—and then there were six.

Six little chickens, playing near a hive:
A little bee kissed one—then there were five.

Five little chickens on the kitchen floor:
One of them got swept up—and then there were four.

Four little chickens, happy as could be:
Little Mabel played with one—and then there were three.

Three little chickens thought gardening they would do:
One pushed the roller—and then there were two.

Two little chickens gave the baby fun:
She squeesed one to make it squeak, and then there was one.

One little chicken flourished all alone:
We've just bought sage and on'ons —to-morrow there'll be none!

FIFTY BUSHELS IN BAILIEBORO

Average Is 30 Bushels of Wheat, But Some Farms Go As High As 50.

ALSIKE SPLENDID.

BAILIEBORO, Aug. 23.—Threshing is well under way now in this district and there are numerous threshing outfits operating, several new outfits having been put on the road this season. Mr. James Falls is travelling a new combined threshing machine which threshes both grain and clover seed, while other outfits are being operated by N. Brackenridge, J. Gainer, Thos. Nurse, and besides these threshers there are numerous company cleaners and engines owned by the farmers of South Monaghan.

Many of the farmers have already threshed their alsike and peas. The former is yielding anywhere from six to nine bushels per acre, which is an excellent yield for alsike; and peas, which have been a failure this year throughout the township, are yielding all the way from ten to twenty bushels per acre, and several farmers have stated that they do not expect to get much more than their seed off the land. The dealers are sending their trucks to the barns, and accordingly as they are threshed they draw them directly to the elevators.

Wheat Averages 30 Bushels.

There has already been considerable wheat threshed, and the average yield this year is around thirty bushels per acre, with some crops going as high as fifty bushels per acre. Barley is only a light crop, and the general opinion is that it will yield around twenty to twenty-five bushels per acre. The farmers are now busily engaged cutting down their oat crop. Many of the oat crops are breaking down badly with the rust, and it is necessary to cut the crop a while before it becomes really ripe. Owing to the fact that it is such an unevan crop, it would be difficult to estimate an average yield. Some farmers state that their oats are a good crop, while others say they are very light; but the grain seems to be well developed, and will, no doubt, be a good quality.

EGG PRICE WAR RAGED BETWEEN OMEMEE STORES

Battle Went Wrong Way For Purchasers When Cost Went From 28 to 31 Cents.

BUTTER DISAPPEARS.

Creamery Is 38 Cents and Dairy Product Cannot Be Purchased—Crop Notes.

OMEMEE, Aug. 23.—The farmers in this district are experiencing much difficulty in garnering the harvest, owing to the frequent showers which continue to prevail. Many fields of fall wheat are yet uncut, and it is feared a second growth may start on the sheaves that are stooked. In most cases, the early oats and barley look exceptionally good, and promise a fair yield. Fields of late oats are threatened with rust, which has made its appearance in some localities, and the crop will be light. The pea crop has been somewhat disappointing in this district; many fields have been almost entirely killed by lice, and in other places, where a fair crop was assured, so much turning and handling to dry them has caused the farmer many extra hours of work.

The buckwheat is putting forth an extra amount of bloom, and a change in the atmosphere will be needed to bring it to maturity.

An estimate of the grain yield cannot be obtained in this section, as practically no grain threshing has commenced yet; H. Jones having started Wednesday on his first job. Mr. Jones has had his clover mill in operation and reports the alsike only a fair yield, and in most places not an average crop.

Egg Price War.

A war on egg prices prevailed in town on Saturday evening. The market price during the week had been 28c per dozen until Saturday evening, when Charles Ivory, the egg king, raised the price one cent per dozen. Later in the evening, two other merchants were informed and the price went up to 30c and still later, the price soared to 31c at another grocery store, and those who did their shopping in the early part of the evening were surprised to find a surplus in their favor upon their return to their basket. This week the market price is 30c per dozen.

Dairy butter has gone out of existence and creamery is selling at 30c per pound.

NINE ACRES HAD 27 LOADS GRAIN

Wm. Pudsy of Cavan Used 45 Pounds of Binder Twine on Small Patch—Very Heavy.

CAVAN, Aug. 23.—Harvesting in this district, Cavan Centre, is progressing as well as weather conditions permit.

There is still a small amount of fall wheat out, as some farmers say, "just when it becomes dry enough to be put in the barn, another shower comes." Considerable grain is cut and almost all is ready to cut. Peas are hard to cut as the heavy rains have beaten them down.

So far there has been no threshing.

All report that the fall wheat is heavy handling, indicating a good yield of grain when threshed.

A Big Stand.

Wm. Pudsy had an exceptionally heavy crop of fall wheat. He had twenty-seven loads of nine acres. It took forty-five pounds of twine to tie it, six hundred feet to the pound.

Late Peas Slow.

The late peas are slow in ripening. The rain seems to have caused a second growth. There are blossoms, green pods and ripe peas on the same stalks.

Wild berries are almost done. They were not a good crop this year.

TWELVE INNINGS WIN FOR TIGERS

New York's Lead Reduced By Detroit in Hard Fought Game.

FIFTH FOR BOSTON.

NEW YORK, August 22. — Detroit reduced New York's lead in the American League race here to-day, winning a hard fought twelve inning game from the world's champions by a score of 8 to 6.

Detroit won in the 12th when Heilmann singled and scored on O'Rourke's triple, a line drive poorly played by Witt. O'Rourke then stole home. Score:

Detroit	100030100002	8	13 4
New York	030002100000	6	15 2

Wells, Holloway, S. Johnson and Bassler; S. Jones, Hoyt and Schang.

ROMDEL BEAT BROWNS.

Philadelphia, August 22. — The Athletics made it two games out of three in their series with the St. Louis Americans, slamming offerings of four pitchers to-day for a 13 to 6 victory. Seven runs were scored by the locals in the first inning off Davis Lyons and Pruet. Rommel, pitching for Philadelphia, eased up in the last inning and yielded five runs. The score:

St. Louis	000000015	6	16 4
Philadelphia	72030010x	13	17 1

Davis, Lyons, Pruett, Grant and Severeid, Collins; Rommel and Bruggy.

WAMBSY'S REVENGE.

BOSTON, August 22. — Boston scored its fifth straght victory and the third o the series over Cleveland to-day by 5 to 4. Coveleskie passed Pinch Hitter Picinich and Flagstead with two out in the eighth, Wambaganss doubled to centre for the two runs the Red Sox needed to win. Geygan, despite two errors, featured in the field and with his hitting. Score:

BISLEY TEAM FOR NEXT YEAR PICKED

Toronto Marksmen Win Six Places—Ottawa Has Three, Including Burke.

CONNAUGHT RANGES, Ottawa, August 23. — The city of Toronto, with six marksmen on the official Canadian Bisley team for 1925, compiled on Friday from the Bisley aggregate here on the closing day of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association meeting, establishes what is considered to be a record in city representation on the team. All six men are expected to stay with the team and proceed to Bisley next year, and one more Torontonian, C. Q.M.S. W. A. Hawkins, who is 32nd man on the list of aggregates, has a good chance of making the team if many of the first 20 drop out as in previous years.

Western Canada, while making a good showing in individual shooting has a very poor representation on the 1925 Bisley team.

Last year the west was represented by eight marksmen while only two westerners made the official team for the 1925 shoot. These are Sergt. Frank Ho Lem, Calgary, and Sergt. H. W. Beaumont, Vancouver. Sergt. Ho Lem of Calgary, has signified his intention of retiring from the team, but his place could be taken by Pte. P. Kinchin, of Calgary, a tyro, who is first on call for the team.

Sergt. J. A. Bowen of Edmonton, and Pte. F. W.Selwood, Vancouver, both of last year's Bisley team, also stand a good chance of being placed on the team if many drop out. They are 25th and 29th on the aggregate.

Ottawa, which was represented by five marksmen on the 1924 team, will have only three representatives at the next Bisley meeting, according to the official record. Sergt. Desmond Burke, winner of the King's prize this year at Bisley, stands fifth in the list, Major R. S. Cross and Sergt. C. H. Tyers are the other Ottawa representatives on the team.

Three other Ottawa marksmen, however, stand a good chance of visiting Bisley next year. They are Pte. A. W. Whitehead, Pte. W. J. Irvine and Sergt. A. F. B. Wilson, Lt A. J. Harvey of the Algonquin Rifles, Timins, Ont., a new man at the D.R.A., also has a good chance in making the team, standing 27th on the list.

Bowling

BOWMANVILLE, Aug. 23.—Messrs. J. L. Jeffries ,Rcbert French, M. B. Chelhall and Alex. Dick (skip) who attended the Dominion Bowling Touranment in Toronto called at the Bowmanville Club House when motoring through that town and played a friendly game on the splendid green with Messrs. C. N. Ruse, Leonard Henry, M. G. V. Gould and Rod M. Mitchell (skip). They played 15 ends and being the town's weekly half holiday a goodly crowd witnessed the contest. The two rinks were very evenly matched till the home rink scored a five end which the Petes failed to overtake.

Mrs. French accompanied her husband and watched the game with great interest.

ROWING IS MOST HEALTHFUL SPORT

Coach of University of Washington Crew Favours This Sport.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 23.—An old belief that college rowing causes heart-strain and damages the future health has been attacked by Russell R. Callow, coach of the University of Washington crews that have won the intercollegiate championship at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., the last two years.

"Rowing," Mr. Callow said, "with proper conditioning and training of men, is a great upbuilder of the human system and will increase a man's life because the sport embraces all those elements that build up the body and keep it fit.

"Dr. Meylar of Columbia University said, after studying the records of 50 years' rowing at Harvard, that oarsmen lived five years longer than any class of men engaged in sport.

"It is my thought that oarsmen live longer than devotees of any other of the so-called violent sports for several reasons. Rowing doesn't call for the abuse of the body or make it subject to such blows, knocks, bruises and fractures as do boxing, football, wrestling, baseball and other major sports.

"Rowing, in the final analysis does nothing but enlarge the capacity of the lungs, fill them with pure air, build up the abdominal muscles and all other muscles in the human frame. It gives to its devotees billions of rays of exhilarating, life-preserving sunshine."

An oarsman improves as he grows older, said Mr. Callow. "A university oarsman is good at 20, better at 25, and if I could have a crew made up of men around 30, new world's records would be set.

DO YOU KNOW BASEBALL?

BY BILLY EVANS

QUESTIONS

1. Is there any particular system used by the umpires in determining what is an infield fly?—B. C. G.

2. If the umpire, with first and second base occupied, and only one out declares a fly ball an infield fly, only to have the left fielder handle the ball and muff it, does the original ruling of infield fly, which automatically retired the batsman, stand? C. V. B.

3. Baserunner interferes with fielder in handling a ground ball. The umpire rules baserunner out. It was apparent that the interference was not intentional, the fielder being really at fault, since in taking a step back he came into contact with the runner.

Does an umpire in rendering a decision on an interference play give any consideration as to whether or not the interference is intentional?—D. M. T.

ANSWER

1. Calling an infield fly is merely a matter of opinion or judgment on the part of the umpire. Any fly ball which the umpire believes can be handled by an infielder with first and second, or first, second and third occupied, immediately becomes an infield fly.

2. The original ruling stands. Once the umpire calls infield fly, the batsman is automatically retired. It makes no difference that the left fielder made the play on the fly and then muffed.

3. At no time can the umpire give any consideration to the intent on an interference play. The fielder always has the right of way and it is up to the baserunner to avoid him. If the interference happens it must be called whether or not it was intentional.

MR. FIRPO IS NO BUNK ARTIST

"All I've Got Is a Right Ha nd," He Says, "But That's Plenty"—Says He Does n't Need Finer Points of the Game.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—There is at least this much to be said for the good Senor Firpo, he does not deal lavishly in the fragrant bunk.

The South American is back in this country to fight Harry Wills. A year ago he was battered to fragments by Dempsey. His crudities were clear to anyone who knew a boxing glove from an Indian love sonnet.

"Firpo will never do until he learns to cover up and to use his left hand," the erudite experts wrote.

It is the custom in ballyhooing prizefights to point out that a battler, beaten in a previous fight, has overcome all his old faults and is now an amazingly inmproved ar ticle.

You will recall a campaign of this nature was pushed energetically by gentlemen interested financially in the return of Carpentier to this country some months ago, a campaign to which Mons. Georges lent enthusiastic verbal assistance.

Against Dempsey Carpentier had shown nothing but a right hand and a glaring weakness in the clinches.

The new Carpentier, the fans were asked to believe had perfected all these deficiencies, and was, in truth, a completely refurbished fighting machine.

That there might be no doubt whatever as to the authenticity of the transformation Mons. Georges himself personally assured reporters that he was, indeed, a changed man.

It subsequently developed that the only difference between the Carpentier who quit Dempsey and the dashing Frenchman now collecting rare specimens of greenbacks in our midst was the manner in which he parted his hair.

Now the good Senor Firpo is not at all like this. He does not ask you to accept him as a new model with all the latest conveniences. He is in every respect the same guileless Firpo that our smart promoters had on display a year ago—and frankly admits it.

All he knows about covering up is that it is a genteel operation relating is some manner to the business of going to bed.

And if he is using his left hand any better it is because knives in American beanies fit more gracefull into the fingers than the native Argentinian cutlery.

Mr .Tex Rickard and others interested in prolonging the box office career of the good senor tried to impress upon him the necessity of enlisting the services of immy DeForest, noted trainer.

"De Forest can teach you the fine points of the game," persisted Rickard.

"Fine points!" exploded the good senor in a rich homeland dialect, "what do I need with fine points when I've got this "

And he held aloft a big, shaggy right fist—the same fist that catapulated Mr. Dempsey clear out of the ring at the Polo Grounds on the night of Sept. 14, 1923.

BEAT UP OFFICER.

WINDSOR, August 23.—George Clarke, some time ago got into an argument with a police officer, which resulted in a doctor's bill in connection with treatment to injuries the officer was said to have sustained, appeared for sentence in the Police Court yesterday.

Clarke himself sported the remains of a black eye and other injuries, as a result of the fight with the police officer.

Clarke asked for another chance, and was given two years' probation. He must also pay $39.00, cost of the Court, and the medical bill.

FOUR MANAGERS PLAY THE GAME

Cobb, Sisler and Harris Follow Tris Speaker's Example in American League.

ARE GOOD BATTERS.

SPEAKER, Cobb, Sisler, Stanley Harris are a quartette of players who are leading their respective teams in more ways than one. All are player-managers and all are recognized as about the best batsmen on the teams they lead. All are fast on the base lines and in fielding; all are stars in their resrpective positions.

It was Tris Speaker that revived the fashion, for the player-manager went out of style when such leaders as Frank Chance, Jimmy Collins, Oliver Tabeau and Fred Clark slipped out of the game. It was the brilint success of Tris Speaker's leadership in putting the Cleveland club in the running that gave President Navin of the Detroit club his cue in picking out a manager and taking up the task of giving Tyrus Cobb, thinking managership and taking up the task of giving Detroit a winning team similar to the one Speaker gave Cleveland, for it was Trisr's bat and his good fellowship with his players that helped the Cleveland club to its high standard.

The game has had many great and successful player-managers Beginning with Adrian C. Anson who, for twenty-two years played first base, batted at a .300 clip, fought umpires and all bleecherites and led the Chicago Nationals through that many seasons of strenuous struggles for baseball honors, was one of the first leaders of this type the game ever had. Anson was a success in every respect.

John Morrill was one of the pioneer player-managers and led the Boston Nationals to victory or defeat from 1882 to 1888. Morrill was a high-class first baseman, but couldn't hit to that degree wherein it was an inspiration to his players. In 1884 Charlie Comiskey, a young player who had been in major league baseball for two seasons previous to that year, was selected by Chris Von der Ahe, owner of the St. Louis Browns, to manage his team and play first base. Thusly began the career of President Comiskey, now of the Chicago club of the American League. Comiskey was leader of the Browns for eight seasons and during that time the team maintained a one-two-three place in the race, also won four pennants in consecutive seasons. Comiskey contributed to the seccess of the team by his wonderful playing at first base and his all-round good fellowship with his players. It was a frequent sight to see Comiskey hug a player who made an unusually brilliant play or made a hit at the right moment. Great was C. Comiskey and his name stands out as one of the most successful and brilliant player-managers.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

The baseball fan is a peculiar critter.

He glories in the making of a new champion, yet the moment a team is so crowned, he usually shifts his affection and pulls for some other club.

The victory of the New York Yankees in 1921 was a popular one. Not since the organization of the American League in 1900 had a New York club won a pennant.

Since then the Yanks have twice repeated. Now it is the field against the Yankees with a majority of fans. Washington is a popular choice because that city has never won a pennant.

An even more pronounced condition exists in the National League this year. The New York Giants-many time pennant winners, are again out in front.

There are those who insist that baseball will be greatly harmed if the New York clubs again win. That is a most foolish assertion. If some other clubs win, such a happening would be more popular with fandom at large, but baseball will in no way suffer.

Last season the alarmists said the third world series meeting between the Yankees and Giants would be a fizzle. They insisted there was no inteerst.

Yet the two clubs broke all attendance records and played to over a million dollar gate.

What are the chances of the two New York teams to again meet in the big series?

Will Detroit, Washington, or St. Louis prove strong enough to nose out the Yankees?

Can the Pittsburgh Pirates after a bad start overtake the Giants?

It's going to be a merry battle all the way in the American League It wouldn't surprise me if the race went down to the last week, perhaps the last day, before the winner is determined.

The first four clubs in the American League, New York, Detroit, Washington and St. Louis, are so evenly matched, there is little to choose between them.

A rather late start and the failure of several veteran pitchers to show until mid-season, has been a severe handicap to the St. Louis club a most dangerous aggregation with a punch.

The Yanks have been through three gruelling races and emerged the victor. Experience may prove a great aid to the New York club.

In the National League, Pittsburg appears to be the lone club that has a chance to beat New York.

The Giants had a five-game lead with about 40 games to go. That is quite a handicap for the Pittsburg club to overcome, but far from impossible.

Pittsburg, at present, is getting the best pitching in the National League. Pitching usually wins pennants.

In Cooper, Morrison, Meadows, Kremer, Yde, Pfeffer and Stone, the Pirates boast seven highly capable performers.

The staff of the Giants appears to be faltering in the stretch.

GETS FIRST HOMER

Johnny Bassler, Detroit catcher, made his first home run in major league competition when he drove the ball into the right field stands at the Yankees' stadium on the recent eastern trip. This is Bassler's fourth season in the big ten, too.

SECOND GAME MONDAY NIGHT

The Leafs, With Their Enthusiasm at Highest Pitch, Will Fly Into Curlers.

Curlers and Maple Leafs will play the second game of the City Championship series at Exhibition Park on Monday evening. The game will start at 5.30 o'clock and all players are asked to be on the field by 5.15 so that the game can get away in good time.

A win for the Curlers will give them the right to go into the finals for the Ontario championship, while a win for the Leafs will once more tie up the round and another game will be necessary to decide the winner. Both teams will fight their heads off on Monday night and the game is sure to be a humdinger as both Wood and Bradley have had a long rest and should be in the best of shape.

BANTAM GAME.

Kiwanis and Maple Leafs Meet Tuesday Night.

The Kiwanis Bantams and the Maple Leafs clash in the play off for city league honours on Tuesday night at the Exhibition Grounds. A win for the Kiwanis' Boys will give them for championship, while a win for the Maple Leafs will tie up the round. Both teams are in the best of shape and all players are requested to be on hand at 5.30 sharp as the game will be a seven innings contest.

FABLES ON HEALTH

When Mr. Mann of any town started on his bacation in his flivver he carried in his pocket a short list of first-aid hints, which might be needed in an emergency.

Some of these were:

Snake bite—Tie a cord tightly about the wound; suck it thoroughly and either cut adjoining parts with sharp knife or cauterize with a white hot iron at once.

In some parts of the west snakebite victims have been known to slash bitten section, inject gunpowder and ignite it.

However, it is now possible to buy a specially prepared cauterizing outfit, which is a great improvement on the mort primitive remedies.

Sun-stroke—Get patient into shade loosen clothing, apply cold water to head.

Poisonous insect stings—Carry iodine swabs for use in cases where stings and wounds may become infected. For milder bites of insects a solution of salt-water or weak ammonia is good.

Burns—Cover with cooking soda, placing wet cloths over it. Also olive oil and soda, or olive and white of egg.

MOTHER DIDN'T SEE IT.

A schoolmaster wrote the following criticism on the edge of a boy's report card:

"A good worker but talks too much."

When the father signed the report and sent it back the card bore in addition to his signature this report: "You should hear his mother." —Greater Flint.

A FATEFUL RIDE.

Clyde Younghorse, a young Indian suddenly oil rich, bought himself a $5000 automobile and drove away. Next day the salesman was confronted by Younghorse again. The Indian was afoot, walked with a limp and bore various contusions and bruises. This was his explanation: "Drive out big car; buy gallon of moonshine; take big drink; step on gas; trees and fences got by heap fast; pretty quick see big bridge coming down the road; turn out let bridge pass. Bang! Car gone! Gimme another one."

ANIMAL.

The theory of evolution, by allying men with the animals, has during and since the war led large numbers of men to interpret life in animal terms, to turn their backs on the spiritual interpretation of life which Christianity offers. So claims Canon Hay Aitken, England's leading revivalist.

He is a bit unfair to the animals. They are entirely natural. Man's wickedness is without exception the result of evading or short-circuiting natural processes.

PETERBOROUGH HAS NEED OF A PUMPER

Alderman Stocker Says General Feeling in Other Centres is That This City is Under-Equipped.

Aldermen Walter Stocker and Malcolm McIntyre have returned from Buffalo where they viewed the most up-to-date fire fighting apparatus in us. There were 1,500 fire chiefs from all parts of United States in attendance.

One of the exhibitions that impressed Alderman Stocker was the extinquishing of an oil and gasoline blaze with a new preparation specially for the purpose. Gas and oil were ignited in a large tank and given two minutes' start, when a tank with the new preparation was brought into use and promptly quenched the flames.

The principal factors stressed at the convention were co-operation between the citizens and the fire departments and the regrettable situation induced by over-insurance.

On the return journey the Peterborough men were guests of the Hamilton fire department, receiving the freedom of the city fire stations and witnessing exhibitions specially arranged for them. Hamilton has three pumpers such as are proposed for Peterborough.

Alderman Stocker expressed the opinion that the pumper is a valuable adjunct to the fire fighting apparatus of any city. It enables four streams of water to be taken off one fire hydrant, where only one is now available. The pressure is stepped up by means of the pumper. "The general impression," he said, "is that Peterborough needs a pumper."

TALK WITH MARS.

Observations of Prominent Scientist—Martians Are Happier.

PARIS, Aug. 23. — (Canadian Press).—"When shall we get into communication with Mars," echoed Camille Flammarion, octogenarian French astronomer to question put by Petit Parisian.,

"Why, perhaps they (the Martians) already tried at epoch of Iguanodon and Dinosaur and got tired As to luminous projections observed on Mars, are they signals or simply reflections of sun on peaks that mystify. I would be as bold to affirm as unscientific to deny. Who knows if this year will settle question."

M. Flammarion has no doubt that there are inhabitants on Mars. "The fact of their existence," he says, "Is natural conclusion from observations of their planet.

"They have no great oceans there, as here but rather little seas—Mediterraneans. Many spotted patches of dark green no doubt are caused by vegetation and marshes with long flowing weeds like famous sargasso-in which descendants of Columbus lost themselves. There are cool rosy dawns, scorching noons and golden sunsets, as with us but more serene harmony.

"The Martians are happier than we and above all much more intelligent. First because their planet is several million years older than our and progress is law; then because they are less governed by matter, gravity there being less. Man or woman of 150 pounds would weigh only 50 on mars. "Besides, as years are nearly twice as long, martian is only fifty when we are ninety four. Finally, climate is more equable."

MYSTERY EXPLODED.

VICTORIA, August 23 (Canadian Press). — So-called mysterious signals picked up by the British Columbia wireless stations recently are not mysterious at all, according to E. J. Haughton, superintendent of the Dominion Wireless Service.

The signals reported to be so "mysterious" were merely those sent from the U.S. radio beacons on their new tonic train transmitter.

A MINE EXPLOSION.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, August 23 (Canadian Press). — Seven state mine inspectors and two mine rescue trucks were rushed to Blaine, Ohio, to-day by the State Division of Mines upon the receipt of word that the Lincoln Mine had exploded, and was burning furiously.

The mine employs about 200 men.

The mine, owned by the Loraine Coal and Dock Company, of Columbus, employed about 200 men.

First reports did not indicate whether any of the men were caught in the mine.

Blaine is near Bridgeport, Ohio, and nearly across the Ohio River from Wheeling, W.Va.

A LIVELY BILL FOR THURSDAY

Two Baseball Tournaments and Tug-of-war Contest on Programme.

COMMUNITY PICNIC.

All season the ladies softball games, played in the Central Park, have attracted large crowds, and a keen interest has been created in this branch of sport. The young ladies have made remarkable progress and vie with the young men in speed and skill.

Softball Tournament.

Next Thursday the fans will be given an opportunity to see just how the young ladies of the rural districts in the riding have developed. Local teams will also be pitted against outside talent, and the fans will have an opportunity to see two local teams match their wares against teams from Lakefield, Keene, Fraserville, Sixth Line and Douro, in the softball tournament, to open on Thursday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, at Exhibition Park, immediately following the speeches.

Baseball Tournament.

In the morning at 10 a.m., a hardball tournament will commence, in which teams from Lakefield, Keene, Curve Lake and Bethany have entered.

The games will be played at Exhibition Park and it is obvious from the entries that some merry battles can be expected.

Curve Lake will be there with their tomahawks. The Indians have proved themselves wizards with the willow and with the coaching they have received from American tourists of late they promise to chase Bethany, Intermediate group winners, to the limit. Keene are a steady aggregation and will be in there trying every minute.

Should Lakefield muster her forces for the fray she too will have a strong aggregation. This outfit are a smart set, but have been troubled all season in getting their men together.

Trophies.

The winning team of the hard ball tournament will be presented with a silver cup, donated by G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., and each young lady playing on the winning team of the soft ball tournament will be presented with a miniature silver cup, donated by Mr. Gordon.

Tug-of-War.

This event will provide the excitement. Curve Lake have a team entered and no doubt they will be a sturdy crew. The county champions, the Board of Works team, will be there to defend their laurels. Jean Hurtubuise is in charge of this contest.

There is also a complete programme of children's races, for boys and girls, as well as a few field events. There is the pole vault for boys 14 and under and the open pole vault, the open broad jump and the open shot put.

Prizes will be presented to the oldest Liberal on the grounds and to the largest family on the grounds.

Entries will close at 2 p.m. on Thursday, August 28.

Alex. Dick is chairman of the Sports committee and has on his committee 30 of Peterborough's leading sportsmen. There will be a meeting of this committee at 7 p. m. Monday evening at the Exhibition grounds and Chairman Dick requests a full attendance.

YOUTH ARRESTED.

Untimely Interruption to the Journey of Would-Be Harvester.

LINDSAY, August 23 (Canadian Press). — A fifteen-year-old youth of this town, named McCabe, has been arrested at Sudbury on information laid by Provincial Officer Storey.

McCabe is said to have stolen the suf of $1,000 from his aunt, who resides here with his parents.

He then purchased a ticket at the C.P.R. Station on the harvesters' excursion to the West.

DETERMINING MAN'S VALUE.

A ton of pig-iron is worth about $30.00. The same material made into structural shapes may be worth several hundred dollars. Made into frying-pans, the ton of iron is worth a few hundred dollars. If made into hair springs for watches it may be worth several thousand dollars. Thus a ton of iron may have very nearly any value, depending upon what it is made into. Yet the iron in the frying-pans is chemically the same as the iron in the hair springs.

A man is a man; but there are some that have frying-pan value and some that have hair spring value. Unlike iron a man's value rests entirely upon himself. He himself is his own fabricator. There is no master mechanic that may perchance come along and transform him from pig-iron into hair springs. Every man must hammer himself into shape; and the energy and deftness with which he usese his tools deter-

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

BELASCO SCREEN STORY OF GOLD DIGGING GIRLS.

Hope Hampton Has Featured Role In "The Gold Diggers."

The Capitol Theatre announces a novel attraction which is to play for next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. They state that their patrons are going to be accorded a special treat as they are going to witness two shows at the same time. It's a show within a show—and both good ones.

"The Gold Diggers," a Warner Brothers classic of the screen is the picture of the week. This photoplay has been adapted from David Belasco's stage play of the same name. The adaptation was made by Grant Carpenter, well known author and director, and it is expected to enjoy even greater popularity than the stage play which ran for two years on Broadway and played in the principal cities of the country.

The picture shows in great detail the production of a big musical comedy. The rehearsals, dressing rooms, the chorus girls "make-up" for the stage, and finally the scene before the curtain.

But the scenes after the stage curtain descends, and the girls are free to do as they please, are different ones and go more deeply into the intricacies of human nature and the fanciful ideas that impel girls of this character to live the lives they do. Their chief pleasure is in extracting money, jewels, clothing, entertainment, etc., from business men of their acquaintance who seek them as a diversion from business.

Thus they go along, dancing, smoking, going to wild parties and making merry, when out of a clear sky, something terrible happens. One of their members falls in love with a wealthy young man, an heir to millions of dollars. But even though the young man wants to marry the girl, he fears to do so, because his rich uncle will disinherit him should he marry a show girl.

Jerry Lamar, the leader of the gold diggers, takes the situation in hand, and how she works out the details of making the uncle consent to the marriage, is something worth while seeing.

The all star cast is composed of Hope Hampton, Windham Standing, Louise Fazenda, Gertrude Short, Francis, Jed Prouty, Arita Gillman, Peggy Brown, Margaret Seddon, Johnny Harron, Ann Cornwall, Edna Tichenor, Frances Ross, Marie Prade and Louise Beaudet. Harry Beaumont directed.

It is a David Belasco production.

MIX TEACHES TONY TO USE SNOWSHOES.

Tom Mix taught his famous cowpony, Tony, a novel trick for his recently completed picture, "The Trouble Shooter," written by the Hattons and directed by Jack Conway at the William Fox West Coast Studios, Hollywood. This story deals with the so-called trouble man for a big power plant, whose job it is to see that wires and cables are kept in perfect condition. "The Trouble Shooter," is compelled to ride through treacherous snowy country to perform his duty. It is necessary that his horse be able to walk on snowshoes. To perfect this important detail Mr. Mix taught Tony the art of snowshoe walking. As for himself, he used skiis.

The picture comes to the Capitol theatre next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

AT THE ROYAL.

ROYAL GETS GREAT FARCE COMEDY WITH SPLENDID CAST FOR MONDAY.

Those who saw "Penrod and Sam" and "Boy of Mine," two of the really worth-while pictures of the year, should see "A Self-Made Failure," which opens next week at the Royal Theatre.

J. K. McDonald, producer of the three, has always been a consistent maker of clean, appealing pictures strongly impregnated with human interest. In "A Self-Made Failure" he has outdone himself and it has been forecast by the film barometer that his last picture is going to be of greater appeal than either of the first two.

McDonald again has William Beaudine as director but has pulled his story from what some considered "kid pictures" to a seven-reel farce comedy that has a larger cast of adults than any film this season, save a few of the more spectacular productions.

"A Self-Made Failure" is interpreted by a cast which includes: Ben Alexander, Lloyd Hamilton, Matt Moore, Patsy Ruth Miller, Mary Carr, Sam De Grasse, "Chuck" Riesner, Victor Potel, Dan Mason, Harry Todd, Alta Allen, Priscilla Moran, Joe McCray and "Cameo," the dog, which won undying film fame when she "died" in "Penrod and Sam."

FAMOUS STARS AT ROYAL ON MONDAY.

It is seldom that a cast is assembled for the same picture with as many real stars in it as "A Self-Made Failure," at the Royal, Monday: Ben Alexander, the boy star, who appeared in "Penrod and Sam" and "Boy of Mine"; Lloyd Hamilton, star of hundreds of comedy successes; Mary Carr, of "Over the Hill Fame"; Matt Moore, Patsy Ruth Miller, and "Cameo," the wonder dog and her seven pups—a show in themselves.

AXES LEVEL FOREST.

Old Hunting Ground of Czar Nicholas II is Disappearing.

BIALYSTOK, Poland, Aug. 23—(Associated Press).—The old hunting preserve of Czar Nicholas II. has begun to disappear before the woodman's axe. The Polish government has grauted a concession to a British company which will cut the timber and ship it to England.

Prior to the war the forest contained more wild game, including bison, than any other district in Europe. But most of the animals were killed off for food by German soldiers when they were masters in this territory.

The Czar's old hunting lodge in the midst of the forest is now occupied by representatives of the British company. The forest became state property after the war, when Poland became a republic.

AT TWILIGHT.

I've been listening all the day to the rain beat on the clover,
I've heard all day the wind, as it set the leaves astir,
And a sparrow feebly piping, ere yet
the rain was over,
And a fragrance from the meadow
came sweeter far than myrrh;
But the rain, the wind, the clover had one song, one cadence only,
And it found my heart and filled it with a pain I never knew Till I sat here in the darkness, grow-
still and sad and lonely,
Till my heart began to clamour,
crying hopelessly to you!

For the First Time in History

Closed Car Comforts at EXACTLY Open Car Cost

Full Size, GENUINE BALLOON Tires

The Easiest Steering and Riding Hudson Ever Built

$2100

F. O. B. Windsor Tax Extra

This Hudson Coach makes history. It is the first closed car ever to sell at exactly open car cost.

And Hudson, alone, can build it. As the largest producer of 6-cylinder closed cars in the world, Hudson exclusively holds the advantages to create this car and this price.

Greatest of All Hudson Achievements

And now full size balloon tires are standard equipment. Do not confuse with "semi-balloon" types. Hudson's are genuine full size balloon tires—33"x6.20". Compare the difference.

Hudson has not simply "added balloon tires." Both running and steering gear have been especially designed to compensate for the radical differences balloon tires bring.

The result is the easiest steering, most comfortable and steadiest riding Hudson ever built. And braking efficiency is almost doubled.

More than ever, "Closed Car Comforts at Open Car Cost" is the uppermost buying issue. Note how fast the Coach is displacing open cars. As the wanted type the Coach maintains the highest resale value against the waning desirability of the open car.

TORONTO FAIR TO OPEN TO-DAY

Forty-Fifth Annual Show Gets Under Way This Morning.

FIELD TO SPEAK.

TORONTO, August 23. — Promptly at eight o'clock this morning the turnstiles were thrown open for the 45th annual show of the Canadian National Exhibition, and, since the exhibition of 1924, wears the designation of "Empire Year," the people of the whole of the Dominion, and of many other lands, will be given an opportunity to study progress which has been made in Canada in the past year, and to observe many of the links which hold the British Empire together.

One illustration of the fact that there is still a big buying power in Canada has been furnished by the records of the trade exhibition of British goods which opened early this week. Reports from industries are that all goods on display have already been sold out, and while these articles will be retained for exhibition purposes, the indications are that the buying power is still there. Some of the other exhibitors have made similar reports.

While the turnstiles were thrown open at eight this morning, the official opening will not be held until 2:30 in the afternoon, when Vice-Admiral Sir Frederick Field, K.B., K.C.M.G., commanding officer of the Special Service Squadron of the Royal Navy which is touring the world, will deliver an address from the main band stand, and will declare the great fair open for the 45th successive year.

Later during the exhibition the empire will be represented by a squad of 200 British tars who are sailing with the fleet.

UNIVERSE ENERGY IS RUNNING DOWN

Sun's Heat Is Going To Waste Every Day.

SASKATOON, August 23 (Canadian Press). — "The sun's heat falling on a piece of the Sahara Desert 40 miles square during a space of six hours, is equivalent to all the coal burned on the earth in one day," was the statement of Dr. Edwin Closson, of Washington, at the University of Saskatoon last night.

"We must solidify some of this sunshine," he said.

Dr. Slosson stressed the fact that the "energy of the universe is running down," and he urged scientists to find a way of wind it up again.

Oh, why was he taken, so young and so fair,
When earth held so many 'it better could spare;
Hard was the blow that compelled us to part
From one whom we loved, so dear to our hearts.
We do not forget him, we loved him so dearly,
For his memory to fade from our eyes like a dream.
Lips need not speak when the heart mourns sincerely,
But grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.

Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
Lies within the heart concealed.
His lovin- face we never forget,
Though years may pass away;
The loss of him we sadly feel
As keen as that first day.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

In Christian religious life, there is only one course of action, that brings victory. Those who fail to come into subjection to the law of the Spirit, have defeat and dissatisfaction, causing some to give up Christian living altogether. There are only a few who learn the way of continuous victory; and very few of those who make a practice of preaching know experimentally of the victorious life. It goes to show the truthfulness of the words of Jesus: "Few find the way of life." Matt. 7:14. Those who enjoy the freedom of the Spirit know of the truth of the words in I John 1:7. Nothing but divine assurance will deliver from doubt and bring satisfaction. Very good—what about the others, who have not this special salvation? "God is love." He willeth not the death (eternal) of any, but rather that all should live. The great day of judgment of trial, when man shall, under most favorable conditions, be on probation for eternal life, will tell. Only the finally wilful wicked shall be returned into death (the second death) from which there shall be no resurrection.—M. T. Butcher.

HARVEST PRODUCE ON MARKET PLACE

Berries and Vegetables Indicate Coming Fall—Potato Rot Threatened.

Peterborough market did a brisk business this morning in the first really warm day in some weeks. The weather had its effect on the purchase of fruit and vegetables, and in the market building cream and butter were carefully preserved by ice.

Butter ranged generally from 38 to 40 cents a pound with one vendor offering it at 36 cents. Eggs ran from 30 cents for small samples to 32 and 33 cents. Chickens were 35 cents a pound and cream sold at 25 cents a pint.

In the vegetable section, potatoes took another drop in price, several vendors offering good looking specimens at $1 a bag. Others held out for $1.25, with a general price of 25 cents a peck. A farmer from Ennismore expressed the opinion that prices may increase when present digging is exhausted, since the wet weather is almost certain to produce rot in the growing crop.

Other vegetable prices were: beets 5 cents a bunch or six bunches for 25 cents; carrots, 5 cents a bunch; cucumbers, 40 and 50 cents a basket or 3 cucumbers for 10 cents; peas, 10 cents a quart; green peppers, 40 cents a dozen or $1.50 a basket cabbage 5 and 10 cents each; cauliflower, 20 cents each; and small cucumbers 70 cents for a 6-quart basket.

Tomatoes on the market square were universally priced at 50 cents a small basket for the choice specimens, while indoors the prices were 15 cents for 2 pounds or 25 cents for 4 pounds.

Fruit was plentiful, green plums at 15 cents a quart; red plums 10 to 15 cents a quart or 60 cents for a 6-quart basket, Duchess apples, 25 cents a peck; gooseberries, 2 quarts for 25 cents; mulberries, 18 cents a box, 2 boxes for 35 cents; blueberries $1.90 an 11 quart basket; huckleberries, 20 cents a quart, and bananas 30 cents a dozen.

Light honey sold at $1 and $2 for five-pound and ten-pound containers respectively. This brand of honey will be scarce this year, the vendor said, due to the wet cold weather and the failure of the alsike crop.

At the auctioneer's block, an automobile climbed in price from $50 to $62.50, beyond which price all efforts of the auctioneer failed to raise it. The owner held it for $75, offering free transportation over the roughest city street to show the powers of the car to a prospective purchaser.

NOTICE

I wish to announce that I have taken over the business of Mr. A. E. Hawthorne, Warsaw and kindly solicit your patronage.

Electric Decoration Was An Example of the Art Creative.

That Miller, Powell & Watson, 438 George Street, this city, stand on an elevated plane for Electric Decoration is evidenced by their splendid work at Oshawa for Old Boys' Week. Entrusted with the contract for decoratively illuminating that town, their work reflected the skill of masters in the art creative for striking light effects. No less than 2,000 lamps were used in producing a brilliantly colourful and arresting night picture, which elicited unstinted praise from both visitors and town folks.

Miller, Powell & Watson compose one of the not a few firms here who have put and are putting Peterborough on the map where super-skill and enterprise are called for in their own particular lines.

L. O. L. 50 MOONLIGHT.

One of the most successful moonlights held this year, was run off last night by the L.O.L. 50 Lodge, the boat leaving at about 8 o'clock and returning about 10.30. The boat was well filled with both old and young and while the young couples danced to the excellent music provided by Aitken's orchestra, the older ones took much pleasure out of the music provided by the L.O.A. concert band. Fred Smith on the Piano, with the orchestra, enlivened the orchestra up a great deal, and the dance floor was crowded all the way down and back.

Although it was rather foggy on the water last night this did not hinder the enjoyment of hte pleasure seekers and everyone had an enjoyable time.

FRENCH CHAMBER APPROVES THE LONDON AGREEMENT AND VOTES CONFIDENCE IN PREMIER HERRIOT

Debate Begun By Deputies on Thursday Was Concluded Late Sunday Morning.

PREMIER DEFENDED HIS LONDON COURSE

Probity of France Demanded Assent to the Formula Adopted By the Allies.

SUPPORTED BY FOCH.

Marshall Reported as Saying Versailles Treaty Sufficiently Guaranteed Security.

PARIS, Aug. 25. — (Canadian Press).—The Chamber of Deputies has given its approval to the London conference methods for putting the Dawes plan into execution and has voted confidence in Premier Herriot's government, 336 to 204, some 26 more votes than its normal majority. The debate began Thursday afternoon and ended at 4.30 on Sunday morning. Thirty-five hours of the time was spent in speech-making.

After the Communists had succeeded in disturbing the first day's debate by noisy rowdyism, the discussion maintained a high level, devoid of unseemly incident which so frequently mar the chamber's proceedings.

The impassioned tone of M. Herriot in his speech Saturday night was in marked contrast to the matter-of-fact statement which he made in the opening.

Premier Herriot defended the Dawes plan and the London agreement in a two-hour reply to his critics. He took as his theme, "France must do what is right."

First Fruits of Hope.

M. Herriot, frankly admitting that "we bring you the first fruits of hope," and not "complete peace," told the Chamber that any of the deputies would have done as he did under the circumstances. Throughout, the Premier tried to keep the defence on high moral grounds and endeavored to show that he could not use the Ruhr as a club at the London conference because M. Poincare in behalf of France had given his word that it was not a military occupation, but merely protection for the economic mission. So, when the mission was withdrawn why should the soldiers stay?

"France," continued the Premier, "whether represented by you or by me could not say: 'I will keep my promise if I am paid.'

"I did all I could at London, even supporting a thesis in which I did not believe. But you also would

French People Prefer Gleam of German Gold To "First Gleam of Hope"

PARIS, August 25.—Commenting on Premier Herriot's address in the Chamber of Deputies which proceeded a vote of approval of the government's action at the London conference, the Figaro yesterday expressed dread of the dangers France runs through trusting in the good nature of the premier, which it considers so liable to be exploited by others.

His final phrase — "The London accords do not bring entire peace; we bring only hope of it",—leads the Temps to say "the country after four years of feeble peace is asked still to carry forward the realization and live on hope. The country is wearied of hope."

Want Reparation

The figure in which M. Herriot sees the first gleams of dawn rising over the London fogs, proclaiming that France is clear of the night, with its pangs and bloodshed, evokes the comment: "The people of France would much prefer the gleam of the gold mark."

There is some disposition to obtain fuller details of Marshall Foch's opinion respecting France's security, as to when and how he said: "The conditions of the treaty of Versailles are largely sufficient for France's security," as Foch is credited with an earlier opinion that permanent occupation of the Rhine would constitute the true security of the country.

Guarantees Weakened

The opposition speech which made the greatest impression was that delivered by M. Reibel, former minister of liberated regions. He defined the Dawes plan as "the offspring of our operations," and refused to vote approval of London conference proceedings because as he expressed it: "All are convinced that the Dawes plan is the best which France has yet obtained, but I consider that the London conference has weakened France's position and diminished the guarantees which our country held from the occupation of the Ruhr, both as regards reparations and security itself.

Kid McCoy's Mother Is Reported Near To Death

LOS ANGELES, Calif., August 24—Mrs. Mary E. Selby, aged mother of Kid McCoy, former prize fighter under indictment for murder of Mrs. Theresa W. Mors, is reported to be dying at her home here.

Weakened in health by an attack of heart disease about a year ago, Mrs. Selby collapsed when her son became involved in the alleged murder of Mrs. Mors and since has been waging what physicians say is a losing battle for her life.

ACCUSED OF THEFT OF AUNT'S SAVINGS

Youth Took $1,000 and Started Off With the Harvesters.

LINDSAY, Ont., Aug. 25.— (Canadian Press).—Adam McCabe, Jr., aged 16 years, was arrested on board a harvest special at Sudbury, Friday night, charged with stealing $1,000 in cash from his aunt, in Lindsay. Geo. Price and Bert Williams, also of Lindsay, are also held as they had some of the stolen money on them. $200 has been recovered.

McCabe, a short red haired lad in short breeches was easily apprehended. The money was stolen from its hiding place between the bed springs yesterday morning and the young lad with his chums bought harvester tickets for the west.

Officer Storey left for Sudbury Saturday to bring the lads home. The $1,000 it appears is the life long savings of an aunt who lived in the same home. Mrs. McCabe, mother of the young lad is in a serious condition and has not been acquainted with the boy's escapade.

Another Oshawa Paper Reverts To Three Issues a Week.

OSHAWA, Ont. 25 Oshawa Telegram, local newspaper published by the Alger Press Saturday announced that on Monday the newspaper would revert to three issues a week instead of daily.

The days of publication will be Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Nine months have elapsed since the paper jumped from a weekly to the daily field.

The reason for reverting to three times a week is said to be due to high publication costs. The other newspaper, which serves Oshawa and district the Ontario Reformer, also publishes every other day, Tuesdays, Thursday and Saturdays.

ANNUAL GAP SWIM.

Ideal Weather For Toronto Swimming Events.

TORONTO, Aug. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Ideal water and weather conditions prevailed for the fourth annual gap to gap swim, about two miles, Saturday afternoon, when George Young, 16-year-old marvel, and winner of four long distance events this season, won, and broke the record made by Tommy Walker last year. Young's time was 54.20, thus clipping 6 minutes and 42 seconds from the record.

Young led all the way, and used a perfect Australian crawl. He was never in danger, and finished 5 minutes and 17 seconds ahead of Shier Mendelson, who also broke the old record. Tommy Walker finished in eighth position.

In the ladies' section Alice Hardy showed the way in 71.25, clipping 6 minutes and 30 seconds off the record made by Kathleen Norgate last year. Miss Norgate finished second, followed closely by Miss Irene O'Byrne and Olga O'Byrne, Irene's younger sister.

Olga is but 10 years old, and finished in sixth position.

PROSECUTOR EXAMINING "KID McCOY"

Here is Norman Selby (Kid McCoy) being questioned by District Attorney Asa Keyes (left) and Detective Herman Cline following his arrest in Los Angeles as the slayer of Mrs. Theresa Mors. McCoy was taken after a wild gun rampage in the streets in which he wounded three persons.

WANTED! BY LEAGUE OF NATIONS, PRACTICAL PLAN TO PREVENT WAR

Draft Pact of Mutual Assistance To Be Discarded—New Project Proposed.

CHECK AGGRESSION.

Momentous Assembly of Disarmament Section To Seek Means of Arbitration.

GENEVA, Aug. 25. — (Canadian Press).—With a view to a general repudiation of the draft pact for mutual assistance, the disarmament section of the League of Nations has drawn up an outline of a new tentative project. The new project provides that any member of the League may call the attention of the Council to the existence of danger of war in some designated region, whereupon the Council will meet for an immediate investigation.

If the Council finds that danger actually exists it will invite the affected countries to withdraw their armies 50 or 100 miles from the frontier, to order the stoppage of all aviation, to cease all war preparations and mutually to agree to submit the question in dispute to the world court of justice or some arbitration tribunal. A nation refusing to submit such dispute will be regarded as an aggressor nation, and the other world powers signing the pact would prepare to mobilize against the offending nation.

Security Paramount.

Disarmament and security will be the two great subjects of debate in the forthcoming assembly. All preliminary studies on disarmament by the experts of the League of Nations are based on the assumption that a general reduction of armaments is only possible to the extent whereby the powers agreeing to a reduction will possess guarantees and lose their fear of aggression against national security.

A second assumption is that the further limitation of naval armaments in an extention of the Washington agreements will so affect submarines, cruisers and aircraft that it will be only possible if accompanied by a simultaneous agreement to reduce land forces.

Looking to Washington.

League officials say that they emphasize these two axioms at this time because of repeated reports from Washington that President Coolidge intends later to convoke a new conference on disarmament. The question is freely asked here whether in taking the lead in new disarment parleys the Washington Government is disposed in principle to take some responsibility with reference to an international arrangement concerning guarantees for security.

The disarmament agenda of the Assembly is heavy. Besides a general reduction of armaments and the question of security, it includes consideration of a draft project for international control of traffic in arms, which the United States helped to frame and which will doubtless be submitted to an international conference at a future date, the question of the control of private manufacture of arms and the outstanding project to extend the principles of the Washington naval conference to non-signatory powers.

HUMAN HAIR USED.

New Use For Hair Taken From Those Who Have Been Bobbed.

LONDON, Aug. 25. — (Canadian Press).—Human hair is being used here by some women to decorate their coat collars, cuffs and even their blouses.

One women, seen in Piccadilly, wore a long black coat with edges of collar trimmed with Auburn hair. Cuffs were similarly adorned, while more human hair hung from edge of front of her blouse. Monkey fur which has been the rage for a time, has apparently found rival among those tresses have been bobbed or shingled.

STOWAWAYS HID IN EMPTY CABIN

Two Glasgow Men Said They Nearly Starved in Canada.

FINED FIVE POUNDS.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Instead of secreting themselves in the coal bunkers or hold as is customary for stowaways, two Glasgow men hid in an empty saloon cabin of a Canadian Pacific steamer. When arraigned in court on this side, following their arrest, they said conditions were very bad in Canada, and that they had practically starved to death. When returning they stayed in the cabin at night and went on deck in the day time and mixed with the third-class passengers. They also took supper, which is the only meal the passengers are not charged for. The court imposed on each a fine of £5, or an alternative of 30 days in jail.

THE YIELD WILL RETURN A PROFIT TO THE GROWERS

Producer Will Make Just As Much Money as Last Year —Railways Lose.

TORONTO, Aug. 25.—(Canadian Press) In special despatch from Edmonton T. Stuart Lyon, managing editor of the Toronto Globe says: "Crops in Manitoba especially in northwestern portions of province promise to be best since 1915, but they are two weeks late, and there is disposition to cut rather green. Yield will be profitable to growers.

"In Central Saskatchewan, both East and Northwest of Saskatoon there are considerable areas scarcely worth cutting, but even there late rains have greatly improved pastures and coarse grains, so that farmers are more cheerful than they were,

"Crops in Northern Alberta are excellent, and prosperous season here is assured. Cutting will be general next week.

On whole the harvest throughout west—in opinion of leading authorities with whom I have talked—will be fully as profitable as that of last year to everyone, except railways and harvesters who depend on bulk, rather than upon per bushel value."

SHOT BY POLICE.

Greek Coffee House Proprietor Shot and Drowned at Detroit.

DETROIT, August 25. — Vasilious Koutsumnus, 42 years old, a Greek coffee house proprietor, was shot and drowned in the River early on Saturday, Patrolman Arthur Wilson, of the first precinct reported.

Koutsumnus was flashing a light toward the Canadian shore, when about 200 feet from the river at the foot of Second avenue, shortly after 2 a.m., when the officer approached. When the man ran towards the river Patrolman Wilson fired three times, and Koutsumnus fell into the water, the body was recovered three hours later a bullet wound was found in his head.

FRANCO-GERMAN PACT IS DENIED

German Delegation at London Present Formal Report to Reichstag.

RATIFICATION SEEN.

BERLIN, August 25.— Chancellor Marx, Foreign Minister Stresemann and Finance Minister Luther, the three German delegates to the London international conference, gave the Reichstag on Saturday a formal accounting of their stewardship of Germany's interests in the settlement of the reparations problem. That the government made out a strong case for itself was the concurring opinion of the ranks of the middle parties and the Socialists while the official declaration is believed to have had a decisively sobering effect upon the Nationalists.

Ludendorff's fascisti party and the Communists were the only heckling factors at the session. The foreign minister's spirited defense of the German procedure at London netted him frequent outbursts of vociferous applause, not only because of his effective recapitulation of the negotiations with Premier Herriot, but also for the caustic manner in which he disposed of the heckling interruptions.

Majority Expected.

Last night the government's prospects of obtaining a decisive majority for the ratification of the London pact are viewed as highly favorable especially as the Hegt-Von Tirpitz party has not yet succeeded in uniting its Reichstag delegation on a definite attitude.

Meanwhile scores of protesting telegrams from the occupied areas and delegations from the Ruhr, representing political, civic, social, industrial and labor organizations, regardless of partisan affiliations, are bombarding the Reichstag with petitions demanding an unequivocal ratification of the agreement on the Dawes plan reached in London.

In the Reichstag Foreign Minister Stresemann, in a fighting speech, defended the German delegation's work at London and severely criticised the attitude of the Nationalists. He pointed out the difficulty the German representatives had in inducing Premier Herriot even to discuss the Ruhr question. The speaker emphatically insisted the London negotiations clearly proved that Germany could not obtain the evacuation of the Ruhr by merely asking for it.

No Secret Agreement.

The existence of any secret agreement connected with the forthcoming Franco-German commercial negotiations, Dr. Stresemann denied. He claimed that the immediate evacuation of Offenbourg, Appenweir and the impending evacuation of other areas of the Rhineland constituted a great success for the German delegation and were proof of M. Herriot's good will. The German government, he continued, would do its utmost to endeavor to induce France to realize that the fulfillment of the Dawes report required an early evacuation of the Ruhr.

The foreign minister, in conclusion, expressed the conviction that the powers interested in Germany's economic recovery, would never again permit anyone to seize pledges by means of sanctions.

"The government," he declared, "therefore asks the Reichstag to give Germany this opportunity to anticipate a prosperous future."

ITALIAN FLYER WAS PICKED UP OFF GREENLAND

Lieut. Locatelli Was Afloat Amongst Icy Water For Three Days and Three Nights.

FOUND IN TIME.

Italians Grateful For Energetic Efforts of American Navy.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—(United Press).—Lieut. Locatelli, Italian aviator, who had been missing since Thursday, has been picked up by the United States steamship Richmond on the coast of Greenland, the Army Air Service was advised officially here to-day. A despatch received by a naval radio from the U.S.S. Raleigh stated that the Richmond had picked up Locatelli at 11.24 last night.

The despatch said: "Locatelli found, latitude 59.56, longitude 39.48. Sighted 11.24 p.m. Embarked passengers. All well." The message was interpreted as meaning that the Italian had been forced down in the heavy fog banks raised by melting icebergs, just before she reached the Greenland coast. If this is correct, he had been buffeted about in his plane in the gale-swept icy seas for three nights and three days.

The cruisers were running short of fuel oil just as Locatelli was found. It was feared by the officials here that the hunt might have to be abandoned by most of the cruisers before many more hours.

FAMILY ESCAPES ROSENEATH FIRE

Alfred Sherwin's House Totally Destroyed—Family of Seven Asleep.

ROSENEATH, August 25. — The residence of Alfred Sherwin was totally destroyed by fire at midnight, and the family of seven narrowly escaped death. Mr. Sherwin is the village blacksmith.

The fire was first noticed by Clerk Sandercock, who roused the inmates of the house and spread the alarm. Mr. Sherwin and his family just managed to escape with their night clothes and a few articles they picked up in their precipitate flight.

Neighbors who formed a bucket brigade were able only to save two couches.

The loss of the house and furniture amounts to $3,000, and in addition to this there were notes to the value of $5,000 burned in the building. Of the family, two are children, 3 years and 5 years of age.

The absence of a strong wind alone saved the surrounding buildings.

Family Escapes.

Locatelli had rations for seven days aboard his plane, and it is felt that he did not suffer from lack of food. It was apparent to naval officials that his mechanic was safe and taken aboard the Richmond with him.

The Americans will probably get to Indian Harbor, Labrador, tomorrow night, and the Richmond, with her rescued castaways, should arrive at the Labrador coast about the same time.

MIGRATION FROM LAKES.

Influx to Stoney Lake Waning; Migration Increasing.

Stoney Lake is gradually being abandoned by campers and cottagers. The migration is most noticeable with the Americans, who usually stay at hotels.

Mr. Herbert Tucker, who conducts the Stoney Lake 'Bus Line, said that he was not taking as many to the Lakes as he did a month ago. Most of those who do go back now are Toronto people, who have cottages, but the migration of the permanent summer residents has commenced. That is those who own cottages and annually spend the summer months at the Lakes.

RICE LAKE CAMPS.

BAILIEBORO, Aug. 25. — The Trail Rangers from Millbrook Methodist church are enjoying an excellent holiday camping at Rice Lake.

Their time is pleasantly spent in swimming, fishing, boating, playing ball, and all other healthy amusements which are beneficial to the boys' health.

Messrs. F. N. Alcorn and Chas. Garside are endeavoring in every way possible to make the time pleasant for the boys, and are sparing no time to make the boys enjoy themselves.

Among those present are Kenneth Skitch, Nellis Roland, Joe and Willan Wood, Aubrey Todd, Keith Barnard, Bruce Freelove, Gordon Blue, George Clarke and others.

CANADA CEMENT COMPANY BUYS DICKSON COMPANY POWER SITES

Purpose Generating 3,500 H.P. For Operating Big Cement Mill at Lakefield.

THREE PROPERTIES.

Sites at Young's Point, Lakefield and Old Lock 3 Acquired—Completing Steel Work.

LAKEFIELD, August 25. — The Dickson Company of Peterboroughave disposed of all their property in Lakefield, including their water-power site, to the Canada Cement Company Ltd.

It is the intention of the Cement Company to develop the water-power to its full capacity for electrical power to operate their new cement plant now in course of construction.

The purchase of this water-power gives the company three power properties—at Young's Point ,Lakefield, and Lock 24, formerly Lock 3.

From these three plants 3,500 h.p. required to operate the mill will be obtained.

This deal was closed on Saturday. The Hydro-Electric Commission was also negotiating for this power.

It is the intention of the Canada Cement Company to improve the raceway and to erect a modern power plant.

This will be the only mill of the Canada Cement Company owning its own water-power.

The steel contract for the superstructure will be completed by the Dominion Bridge Company by 15th September.

Titled Speeder Fined.

Pictured here is Lois Sturt, sister of Baron Alington, of England. Despite her titled connections and her social prominence, a London judge fined her $40, took her license away from her, and rebuked her severely. She was charged with speeding in her auto late at night.

Londoners are comparing this treatment with that accorded Miss Abby Rockefeller daughter of John D. Jr. in a New York police court. New York city officials are still investigating the circumstances under which Miss Rockefeller, the heiress to millions, escaped punishment of any kind, even though she had been brought into court for the second time.

BRITISH LABOR PARTY DIVIDED

OPPOSING LEADERS.

LONDON, Aug. 25. — (Canadian Press).—A national minority conference, presided over by Tom Mann, well-known Labor leader, now being held in London under the auspices of the Red International orf the Labor unions, adopted Saturday a resolution expressing the opinion that the existing workers' organizations no longer respond to the new demands of the workers for united action to secure their common aims. The workers were therefore forced into a struggle with their present leaders in order to secure their more immediate needs. It was declared that the conference had decided to create a national organization under the name of "National Minority Movement," which would be responsible for directing and co-ordinating the activities of the workers' movements.

The mover of the resolution said the workers had to fight, not only the capitalists, but the trades union bureaucracy, and to go on strike against the orders of the trades union leaders. They did not want any hot air about arming the workers for a red revolution, but it was only by revolution that the workers could smash the barriers which were keeping them in servitude.

HON. T. A. LOW HOME.

MONTREAL, Augs 25.—(Canadian Press).—Among the passengers arriving in Quebec Saturday was Hon. T. A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce. Hon. Mr. Low returned from London, England. He left Quebec immediately for Ottawa.

A WARNING

When your eyes ache, sting or feel tired, it is Nature's warning—they are strained. If you are wise you will heed that warning and have your eyes examined, thus probably preventing serious eyesight trouble later on. See W. H. Lacey, Optometrist, 410 George street. Phone 1160.

TORNADO KILLS TEN.

NEW ORLEANS, La. August 25—Ten persons were killed and nine injured when a tornado demolished the St. Phillips Church at St. Patricks, La., about forty miles from here at 3.30 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

APSLEY PIONEER DEAD.

Mrs. Harriet McKay Had Lived Half Century in North.

APSLEY, August 23. — Another of the pioneers of this district, in the person of Mrs. Harriett McKay, pased away on Tuesday last, after two months' illness, in her 74th year.

Mrs. McKay was born in Nottingham, Eng., and settled here with her first husband, W. Earnshaw, nearly half a century ago. Of the immediate family surviving there is one sister in England, her husband, William McKay, William Earnshaw, of Apsley, and Oliver of Port Arthur, sons of the first marriage, two sons, John and Elijah at home, and one daughter, Mrs. Bert McIlmoyle, of Apsley.

The funeral, which was largely attended, took place on Thursday, at St. George's church, Apsley, of which the deceased was a devoted and active member, the Rev. C. A. G. Spence officiating, interment being made in the family plot in the churchyard.

Mrs. McKay was highly esteemed by all and her loss will be keenly felt.

Mr. R. G. Devey of Peterboro took the services at the five stations in the Apsley mission the last two Sundays in the place of Rev. C. Spence, who is taking a vacation. All the services were well attended, and Mr. Devey's addresses were much appreciated.

The Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's, Peterboro, very kindly presented St. Stephen's, Chandos, Sunday School, with a supply of Prayer and Hymn Books, for which both the scholars and Mr. Philip Tanner, the teacher, are deeply grateful.

Jimmy Hendley, Apsley's oldest inhabitant, and reputed to be 96 years old, is still hale and hearty, and is busy at the present time cutting his marsh hay.

LOCAL IMPROVEMENT NOTICE

TAKE NOTICE THAT—

1—The Council of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough, intends to construct as a local improvement, a sidewalk on the west side of Armour Road, from Douro street to Clifton street, and intends to specially assess part of the cost upon the land abutting directly on the work.

2—The estimated cost of the work is $900.00, of which $405.00 is to be paid by the Corporation. The estimated special rate per foot frontage is $.90. The special assessment is to be paid in twenty annual instalments.

3.—A petition to said Council will not avail to prevent its construction but a petition against the work or the manner in which it has been undertaken may be made pursuant to section 9 of the Local Improvement Act to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board by a majority of the owners representing at least one-half of the value of the lots which are to be specially assessed therefor.

Expressing a spirit of good will and friendship, a tablet and three flags were presented to the city of York, England, by its god-child in America, the city of New York. A committee consisting of Rodman Wanamaker, Grover A. Whalen, William Dodge, A. C. Pearson, H. H. Charles, Francis H. Sisson, A. E. McKinnon and William H. Rankin, conveyed the message to England. Above may be seen the Duke of York and the Mayor of York and other British notables accepting the tablet.

CANADA'S EXHIBITS AT THE EXHIBITION

Travellers To The World Fair Tell Examiner of Experiences.

Mr. George Smith, a well known track runner of the eighties, and Mr. Thomas Bromwich, both of Pittsburg are at present visiting at the home of Mr. J. M. Brooks, 199 Dalhousie street, on their return from the British Empire Exhibition, via Montreal.

Both men speak very highly of the Canadian exhibits at the world fair, claiming that the exhibits from Canada are by far the best and cause much more interest than any of the other exhibits from many countries.

Mr. Bromwich says that the Canadian orchard scene is wonderful and that it is worth a trip over to see this alone. He says that you could spend a week looking at the Canadian exhibit alone. While some of the other countries' exhibits are very good these men state that the Land of the Maples surpasses them all.

Another striking scene is that of the Prince of Wales' ranch, made in butter. Every part is made of butter and thousands of people gather each day to see it. There are even birds perched in the trees of butter, but the birds are also made of high grade Canadian butter.

Mr. Smith says that he was much surprised when he found that some of the cities of England are lighted by gas, but he was more surprised when he ran into Harry Hutchinson, an old foot runner, he had not seen in 4 years.

Mr. Smith was the first American to win a handicap in England and he performed this feat in 1881.

WALES SET SAIL FOR N. AMERICA

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Aug. 25 (United Press).—The Prince of Wales sailed for America today aboard the giant Cunarder Berengaria, to witness the polo matches for the America Cup at Meadowbrook next month, and afterwards to take a brief vacation on his Canadian ranch. The Prince is occupying the Berengaria's famous "Imperial Suite", designed for the ex-Kaiser, when the great liner was in German ownership and named the Imperator.

The Prince makes no secret of his delight at being able to make the trip to the United States, and at the recent London Pilgrim's banquet to Secretary of State Hughes, he said: "I always keep in mind the possibility of a proper tour of the United States—and I always look forward to that—but even my flying trip to see the polo matches will enable me to get to know that great country better."

Jumped at Chance.

The invitation from the American Polo Association to witness the international matches came at a very happy moment, and the Prince jumped at the chance of shedding the cares of state for a few weeks in the democratic atmosphere of the United States. British sportsmen are highly pleased that he should be there when England's polo champions are contesting the international championship at Meadowbrook, and the Prince as a keen polo player will also extract much enjoyment from that part of the trip. The Prince has lent a number of his best ponies to the British team, and it is a matter of personal regret to him that he is not really a sufficiently good player to represent England in such matches. However, he expects to participate in several practice games. Also he intends having a good time socially, for nothing pleases him better than informal house parties, and incognito rambles.

The only folk who resent his departure are the matchmaking mammas, who think it is high time that the heir to the throne selected a wife—preferably, of course, mamma's own pet lamb. So far, however, the Prince has evinced no desire to enter the bonds of matrimony with anybody's pet lamb, and the fact that he will be away from England for two or three months, precludes the possibility of the long-awaited announcement of his engagement—if any has been arranged yet, which is extremely doubtful—for at least that period.

Enterprising American girls still have a chance.

FAILS TO AVERT PAIR BLACK EYES

Butcher's Knife Helpless Against Pair Youths Handy With Fists.

SARNIA, Aug., 25. — When a party of hilarious young men entered the store of Samuel Jacks, Samuel was pleased at the prospects of business. When they helped themselves to tomatoes and cucumbers his pleasure was dissipated, and when bologna and ausage showed signs of going the same way as the tomatoes, Samuel grabbed a butchers's knife. Thereupon two of the youths, Stephen Hurlock and Norman Montagne, resorted to their fists, and Samuel received two black eyes. Dr. William Logie in police court to-day described the injuries as ecchymosis, but pressed by counsel admitted that this merely meant a pair of ordinary "shiners."

Magistrate Gorman fined the young men $10 and costs each. and game

The Government Building at the Canadian National Exhibition should again be one of the most interesting structures on the grounds. Among other exhibits to be made by the Ontario Government will be a section from the Provincial game preserves containing two beaver dams, one of which will have 15 of the industrious little animals at work. Bears, deer, moose and other live specimens will also be shown.

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR THE HOLIDAY CROWD

Stoney Lake Passengers To Lindsay To-day Will Not Come By Regular Train.

The steamer Stoney Lake this morning took a party of holiday makers, numbering over 200, from Peterboro to Lindsay, by way of the Lift Lock. Ideal weather added to the pleasure of the trip, which is one of the most successful of the season. The party will return tonight by special train from Lindsay, arriving here between 8 and 8.15 by Canadian National.

Music Day at the Canadian Nationa Exhibition will be on Thursday, August 28th, when there will be band, instrumental and vocal competitions and a series of outdoor concerts about the grounds by outstanding choral and operatic organizations.

THE GUMPS—HOMEWARD BOUND

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Young Girl Fell From Running Board of Car—Horse Ran Away—Car in Collision.

CAMPBELLFORD, August 25.—Hilda Hollenby, a young girl employed as maid in the home of J. A. Irwin, was seriously injured on Sunday when she fell from an automobile, alighting on her head.

Miss Hollenby was with the family at their cottage at Bradley's Bay, and during the afternoon climbed on the running-board of a car for a short ride. She fell, alighting on her head.

The injured girl was able to walk to the Irwin cottage, and said nothing of the accident. While attending to her household duties, however, she collapsed. She was taken at once to Mr. Irwin's home in town, where she received medical treatment.

At last accounts she was doing as well as could be expected.

Horse Ran Away.

A horse and buggy, belonging to Mr. Lewis Dunk, who lives on the English Line, became frightened, and the horse dashed down the street as far as the corner at Bridge Street, where it ran on to the sidewalk and straight for the plate-glass window in Armour's boot and shoe store. It would have broken the glass, but its feet broke the grating at the bottom of the sidewalk, which not only saved the window, but stopped the horse. There was considerable excitemest for a while, but the horse was soon caught. Fortunately so one was in the buggy, and pedestrians got away from the sidewalk in time, thus avoiding any serious accident.

Car in Collision.

As Mr. Thomas Hooper, who lives about a mile out of town, in Seymour East, was coming out of the Presbyterian shed, a car driven by Mr. Eugene Dunlay, collided with the buggy and the horse was hurt, its leg being badly broken, so much so that the doctor said it would have to be shot.

Church Service by Radio

The attendance at the local churches was rather light last evening, due to the fact that so many people are out of town as well as to the heat. A number of neighbors gathered on the porch of A. P. Hind Front street where they enjoyed a church service by radio. This included a sermon by a preached in Pittsburg, an organ recital in a church in New York and a band concert in Springfield, Mass.

The Regent.

The programme at the Regent this week is as follows:

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday—Pola Negri, in "Shadows of Paris," and "Heavy Seas," a Pathe comedy. A French ivory set, consisting of comb, brush and hand mirror will be given to the holder of the lucky number Monday night.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday—Harold Lloyd in "Why Worry?" and another episode of the Ruth Roland serial, "Haunted Valley."

FRENCH CHAMBER

have revolted and recognized that it was impossible to bargain in a question that was simply a matter of what was right."

At one point of his speech, M. Herriot shouted:

"You are going to judge me. I will have no rancor if you judge unfavorably."

Foch Quoted.

Marshal Foch became an issue for a moment when Deputy Schmidt averred that the Marshal had said publicly: "The policy of isolation is detestable." The deputy added that Marshal Foch had always favored M. Herriot's views. But the Premier quickly interrupted with: "Foch is too glorious a soldier to be dragged into this. The Government will bear the responsibility."

He called upon General Desticker, chief of Foch's staff, and General Nollet, Minister of War, to give the military views. General Desticker said that Marshal Foch had been consulted and had "declared formally that the military occupation of the Ruhr should not concern France's security, and the Marshal considered the conditions of the Versailles treaty amply sufficient."

Ruhr the Chief Topic.

The Ruhr dominated the day's debate, just as the Premier said it hung like a pall over the London conference. The pros and cons of M. Poincare's policy were argued all over, with scant attention to the real question. But out of it all M. Herriot got a good deal of comfort in maintaining his position that he did the best possible under the circumstances.

Internal politics overshadowed the foreign policy, but the attacks on the Government apparently were rather to put the opposition on record and establish points for future use than with any hope of succeeding M. Herriot.

M. Reibel extracted a denial from the Premier that Francey had bound herself to communicate with England all the details of her forthcoming commercial negotiations with Germany.

DELORO WON IN PLAY-OFF GAME

Roseneath Team Went to Pieces and Gave Game To Visitors.

(By a Staff Reporter).

ROSENEATH, Aug. 25. — Deloro won the first game in the play-off between the winners in the first half of the Trent Valley and Northumberland Baseball League on Saturday by a score of 17-7. There was something wrong with the home nine, and if ever a team had an off day it was the leaders of the Northumberland League, who were expected to uphold the reputation that they had so fairly won as the best hitting nine in the League. They made hits enough to win an ordinary game, but it was in the field that they failed. Leach did good work in the box, both as a twirler and fielder, and if he had been given any kind of support, the tally against him would have been different. Nearly a dozen smashes by Deloro batters that had to be recorded as hits could have been registered as outs if the Roseneath boys had played in anything like their usual form. Deloro has a fine team of gentlemanly young players, whose team work is excellent, but the visitors had no license to walk off with so easy a victory. There was a good crowd on hand to witness the defeat of their favorites, and everything went off smoothly, the work of the umpires, both of whom were Central League men from Cobourg, Skitch, who worked behind the bat, and Boundy in the field, went without challenge.

It is some time since the Roseneath team played a game before the one on Saturday, and they were out of practice. Their defeat demonstrated one thing—it is impossible to pick up a team from the farm, factory, bank, office and surgery and pitting them against a seasoned nine like Deloro, and expect them to win. Some of Roseneath's best players were away. Dr. Armstrong, whose favorite corner is left field, started as the guardian of third base but in the fourth inning was shifted to left, and there redeemed himself for a couple of miss-plays by making two hard running catches.

Davey, the clever and reliable young shortstop, on account of a recent injury, played the game with practically one hand and both his fielding and batting showed a slump.

But the game was not without brilliant plays on the part of Roseneath. One of the best catches of the day was made by R. Thackeray, who leaned half way over the wire strung behind the home plate to keep back the spectators, and captured a foul fly.

Ada, Deloro's centre fielder, sent up a high fly that sailed over Wood's head. It was good for three bases, but egged on by the catcher at third Ada attempted to stretch it into a homer. He was caught a good two yards from the home plate by a sharp piece of fielding, Moore making a fine throw to Davey, who relayed it to Thackeray.

Moore's double in the fifth sent in two runs ,but he died at third when he made a dash for that bag.

The score:

Deloro.

82,500 AT EXHIBITION.

Largest Crowd That Ever Attended Exhibition on Opening Day.

TORONTO, Aug. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Saturday was the greatest opening day the Canadian National Exhibition has ever seen.

All day the busy clicking of turnstiles told of the advent of eager thousands and when the day was done a record had been established which brought wonderment even to es exhibition officials.

The attendance figures for the first day stand at 82,500, an increase of six thousand over last year, and the largest number of persons to attend the exhibition on an opening day in its entire history.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

LOSE WEIGHT.

Breakfast—One-half cup apple sauce, 2 pieces unbuttered gluten toast, 1 cup hot skimmed milk.

Luncheon—One cup clam bouillon with 1 poached egg, 4 toasted bread sticks, ½ cup combination vegetable salad, 1 fresh plum.

Dinner—Three ounces broiled porterhouse steak, 3 tablespoons steamed cauliflower, 1 ounce escarole with 1 tablepoon emon juice, ½ cantaloupe filled with mixed fruit, 1 thin slice whole wheat bread.

Bedtime—One cup skimmed milk.

Total calories, 1116. Protein, 292; fat, 255; carbohydrate, 569. Iron .0201 gram.

If you are beginning to diet to reduce you may feel very weak and tired and perfectly miserable and generally blue the first day or two. If this is the case and you are the mother of demanding youngsters, you will be wise not to be too radical. Above all, don't try to "do" without breakfast or think you can brace yourself up on coffee. This breakfast of apple sauce, toast and milk is nourishing and hearty.

You will find that as you eat less food and learn to get along without butter and sugar and cream you will feel better and need less food. Your stomach will slowly shrink to normal and that empty, gnawing feeling will go away.

The person who inherits a tendency toward stoutness must watch her diet closely if she would control the tendency. It can be done, however, and comfortably, too.

GAIN WEIGHT.

Breakfast—One-half cup apple sauce, 1 slice salt pork in ½ cup cream sauce on whole wheat toast, 2 cornmeal muffins, 1 tablespoon butter, hot water.

Midmorning lunch—One cup cocoa, 3 "saltines."

Luncheon—One cup clam bouillon with 1 poached egg, 4 toasted bread sticks, 1 tablespoon butter, ½ cup combination vegetable salad with 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 2 slices rye bread, 2 heaping tablespoons peach tapioca with 2 tablespoons whipped cream.

Afternoon tea—One large glass fruit punch with 2 cheese and preserved ginger sandwiches.

Dinner—One cup cream of mushroom soup, 3 ounces broiled porterhouse steak, 4 tablespoons French fried potatoes, 2 tablespoons steamed cauliflower in 2 tablespoons cream sauce, 1 ounce escarole with 2 tablespoons French dressing, ¼ cantaloupe filled with mixed fruits, 2 hard rolls, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon preserves.

Bedtime—One cup whole milk.

Total calories, 3907. Protein, 428; fat, 1688; carbohydrate, 1791. Iron, 0216 gram.

When your breakfast is heavy and rich in fat, drink hot water. A light breakfast is helped out by the use of cocoa.

If you are a busy woman who must make her cocoa for the mid-morning lunch, you will undoubtedly decide you "haven't time." But if you are sincere in your effort to gain weight you will find the midmorning lunch very much worth while. And don't "lunch" standing. Sit down and rest!

OBITUARY.

BENJAMIN LYNDS

HASTINGS, August 25. — The death occurred on Sunday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George Smullen of Benjamin Lynds, in his eighty-fourth year.

Deceased was born in Truro, N.S., and came to Ontario a year ago. Since last September he has made his home with his daughter. Three sons and six daughters survive.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, interment being made in Trent Valley Cemetery.

MADOC, Aug. 25.—Mrs. Stewart, wife of D. E. K. Stewart, a prominent lawyer,, died suddenly this morning. She had attended church last night, apparently in her usual good health.

CAUGHT WILDCAT.

Set Trap to Catch Mink, But Was More Successful.

SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 5—(Canadian Press).—Gordon Koepke, resident of Southampton, set trap on his premises on Grey street Saturday night with view to catching a mink suspected of making nightly raids on his chickens.

This morning he was surprised to discover a large wildcat caught fast in trap.

NEW AIR SERVICE.

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 25. — (Canadian Press).—Sir Keith Smith, noted Australian aviator, who has arrived here to supervise Australian undertakings at Vickers, Limited, a big British engineering firm, says he intends to investigate the possibilities of an air service between England and Australia with the view to laying the foundations for such a service.

THOUGHTS VAGRANT

From Geo. Hrrison Phelps' "Bhartee Way"

"There's wisdom in women, of more than they have known,
And thoughts go blowing through them, are wiser than their own."

Thoughts went blowing throug Rupert Brooke, who wrote that couplet, [illegible] than his own. Thoughts go blowing through your head that are wiser than your own—vagrant inspiration that bubble suddenly up from the impenetrable surface of your subconscious mind sparkle for a moment and burst, and disappear.

Moments of inspiration—flashes of genius—plain happy thoughts—call them what you will. But if you are wise you will honor them as the finest flower of your thinking. And you will take the pains to write them down before they dissolve into forgetfulness.

I suppose, of course, that there are learned men with fat brows and sedentary breaths who can sit down anywhere, at any time, and go to thinking.

Hume, they say, was such a man. Before he opened a book it was his custom to take a walk and recall everything that he already knew about the subject treated therein—as a grocer looks over his shelves before laying in a new stock of pickles.

Doubtless if Aristotle were to enter a depot and be told that his train was an hour late, he would sit on a bench between the pretty girl and the sociable drummer, knit his brows, and proceed to manufacture an hour's-ful of apothegms.

Good usable thoughts can undoubtedly be produced automatically, eight hours per day, as a machine will produce clay vases. But it still remains true that the finest original creations in ceramics were wrought by inspired artisans, hundreds of years ago, when the impulse was not so deliberate or sustained.

A man can go to his desk at 9 A. M., take up his pencil, pinch his chin, and produce the business idea of the month. The thing is possible. But it is also rare. More plausibly, it leaped willy nilly into his mind at the shaving glass an hour and a half earlier, or earlier still in the "dim, blue hours of the night."

My favorite philospher is Jonathan Edwards, of Colonial fame. I never read a line of his works and probably never will. But I like the way he wrote them. When he came home at night, slips of note paper were pinned here and there about his person. These he carefully detached and arranged in their proper order. The result, perchance, was an essay on Original Sin or The Freedom of the Will.

There is something human and understandable about that sort of thinking. You can imagine the great man clambering over a hedge-stile in the October rain. A rheumatic twinge pinches his knees. The deluge seeps through the brim of his hat. Suddenly he gets a thought. Out comes pencil and pad. "My days run through me as water through a sieve," he writes, and carefully pinning the inspiration to the seat of his pants, proceeds meditatively into Salem Village.

"One's thoughts fly so fast," writes Samuel Butler, "that one must shoot them. There is no use trying to put salt on their tails." That is the reason Butler himself gave for his habit of writing down in his now famous notebook, the wise, beautiful and curious thoughts that flew in and out of his mind so fast.

John Locke, the philosopher-psychologist, carried a note-book in his pocket to catch the scintillations of common conversation.

On hearing Whistler say something particularly clever, Oscar Wilde exclaimed, "I wish I had said that!" "You will," answered Whistler. He was jabbing his rival wit, of course, but the fact remains that Wilde's sparkling pages were enlivened from the notebooks he kept. He took his thoughts—and those of others—when they came—shot them on the wing.

Hobbes carried a pen and inkhorn in the head of his cane to capture fleeting ideas.

Pope always kept a brace of candles burning at his bedside so that he could record his night thoughts.

A certain business man in New York returns from a railroad trip, a golf jaunt, or a dinner party with the envelopes in his pocket covered over with scribblings.

Trusting your best thoughts to memory is like turning over your daily profits to the safe-keeping of a five-year-old boy.

If you happen to be a business man—take notes.

If you happen to be a writer—keep a notebook. As in the case of Samuel Butler and little Marie Bashkirtseff, it may prove to be your 'magnum opus'.

STRANGE CASE IN BUFFALO.

An extraordinary situation is discovered by the Buffalo police. Over in Italy a convicted murderer was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1883. He served 36 years of his time and escaped. Smugglers brought him to America. So runs the police claim. He contends he was pardoned by the king.

Three years ago he started a small grocery store in Buffalo. On arresting him recently for deportation, police made this peculiar discovery: Under his store, in the cellar, he had duplicated his Italian prison cell—a small room with one barred window where he slept at night on a hard cot. Electricity was available, but he denied himself the use of anything except a small kerosene lamp. This was his only bedroom comfort.

From this strange case we learn much about the power of habit. A man, after spending 36 years in a prison cell is "lost" anywhere else. The cell, however miserable, becomes home to him.

Occasionally there are similar cases in the news.. where men, released after long prison terms, beg to be sent back to their cells, or commit crimes to get back.

What is home? It is a gilded palace, if you live there. It is the most wretched hovel on earth, if you live there.

Another way of looking at this Italian's case would be to assume that he was not, as he claimed, pardoned from prison. In which event this subjection of himself to a personally-created prison at night might be viewed as one way of punishing himself.

He escaped from involuntary imprisonment and incarcerated himself half of the time in voluntary imprisonment.

In other words, he carried his prison with him.

Is that not so with most law-breakers?

The man wanted by the police may escape arrest. But he is forever surrounded by the stone walls and steel bars of imagination. Memory is constantly punishing him for his crime, if he has conscience. If he has none, he still is in the worst penitentary of all—the Prison of Fear.

In democracy we talk a lot about freedom. By which we mean chiefly political and religious freedom. But genuine freedom is enjoyed only by the man or woman with a clear fear. A mysterious force is conscience. So also is fear. Both are ways of wise nature to make us punish ourselves for our trangressions.

There is no escape from the remorse or fear of the haunted and hunted man.

THE RIGHT VIEWPOINT.

Hon. J. S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, left for Europe a few months ago, with the feeling that things in Canada weren't at all promising. He returned with a different viewpoint. "Now," he told an Ontario gathering Tuesday, "I feel after spending these months in the old lands, that Canada has no peer as a land of peace and plenty." Exaggeration, you say. Not at all. We often find ourselves too close to a picture to gain perspective. It takes a visit to less favored countries to reveal to us what a great country this Canada of ours really is. We may not be rolling in wealth but we have vast potential resources beside which the vaunted riches of the ancient empires pale into insignificance But without the human element and work they will be as naught. What is needed now, at this moment, is more of the spirit and determination of our forefathers and less of the flabby "blue ruin" talk. Such talk only destroys confidence and nurtures the fear that endangers our moral fibre. Red blooded Canadians have no use for it.—Border Cities Star.

CHANNEL TUNNEL PROJECT.

When recently Premier MacDonald told a deputation that he had summoned a special meeting of the Committee on Imperial Defense to consider the subject of a tunnel between France and England, the subject for the first time entered the field of practical politics.

Mr. MacDonald, himself, proposes to take the chair of the committee, "in order to show the great importance which the Government attaches to the subject." Mr. MacDonald also asked that all former Premiers who have sat on the committee attend the meeting, and they have promised to do so.

Mr. MacDonald stressed the fact that he wanted to lift the question out of party politics and get the very best advice from those who were able to speak with authority thereon.

The total cost of the undertaking is estimated at £29,000,000 to be raised jointly in France and England. No technical difficulty is anticipated and it is expected that trains will be running inside of four years from the start of the work and that this will give employment to 12,000 men who at present are idle in England.

The subject of an international tunnel is one that has been often approached, and it looks now as if it were on the way toward accomplishment.—New York American.

ANOTHER HERO PASSES.

The retirement of Viscount Grey from the Liberal leadership of the House of Lords is an instance of the ease with which public men pass into oblivion.

Grey of Falloden ten years ago was the central figure of the most dramatic hour in Britain's history.

When Germany's gray battalions marched toward the Belgian border the eyes of all the world were on this quiet man, with firm, grave face. The destiny of an empire and the future of civilization were in his keepng. And Grey rang true. His message of assurance to France and the restrained dignity of his ultimatum to the German war lords thrilled every British heart. They epitomised the spirit of the Anglo-Saxon, and they should be remembered among the most precious documents in the empire's archives.

Grey was faced with a terrible and frightening responsibility. He did not falter either in the prompt firmness of his decision or in the effcent clearheadedness with which he handled its tumultuous consequences.

"One crowded hour of glorious life
Is worth an age without a name."

Grey had his crowded hour, and met it like a conqueror. There is something tragic in the quietness with which he now steps off the stage of public life almost unnoticed.

Grey, Asquith, Kitchener, Lloyd George, Jellicoe, Bethmann-Hollweg, Hindenburg, Lundendorf Von Tirpitz, Joffre, Clemenceau—and a score of others. How mightily they loomed in our affairs a few short years ago. And how easily they have passed. Today it is MacDonald and Herriot and Marx. Tomorrow it will be someone else.—London Advertiser.

"TOO MUCH STYLE."

Mr. J. A. Banfield of Winnipeg, President of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, who is in Ottawa for the annual convention of the organization, has given an interview which presents some new angles on the nation's commercial situation. Mr. Banfield sees no reason for "calamity howling," and deplores the gloomy spirit which he finds prevailing in the East. He declares that the basis of profit for the retail merchants is on a par with what it was in 1912, but that the overhead expenses had increased from 40 to 50 per cent. Merchants are suffering from "too much style," he remarked sentitiously, and quoted as an instance the boot and shoe trade. Manufacturers kept on inventing new styles, which the public was quick to adopt. The consequence was that merchants became stocked up with goods that were almost unsalable.

Mr. Banfield has undoubtedly put his finger on a potent source of trouble. The policy which he deplores might be all right for the manufacturers, keenly competing amongst themselves for novelties, but it is unquestionably bad for merchants and for the consuming public. The era of extravagance following the war has left its wake and made conditions doubly difficult for stable trading. People have been educated into buying only the very latest fad in clothing. Unless it is the "dernier cri," it is taboo. So long as prosperity was abounding and all had plenty of money to gratify their whims, no doubt this hectic fight after fashion was conducive to a quicker and larger turnover. But conditions have changed; the movement of goods is not so rapid as it was, and the accumulation of stocks is a serious matter for the retailers.

After all, the remedy lies as much with the public as with the manufacturers. If the latter cannot be persuaded to content themselves with the production of stable, conservative lines, customers, at least, are at liberty to exercise their discretion. It stands to reason that what is good for the merchant is, in the long run, good for the manufacturer, and it is certainly best for the pocket-book of the purchaser that fashion should not be too frequently or too violently changed. There is no doubt about the justice of Mr. Banfield's charge. Not merely the merchants, but the public at large is suffering adversely from "too much style." There is need for revision of the prevailing ideas as to what is "good for trade."—Hamilton Spectator.

AT 26 CENTS PER HEAD.

Because Captain Henry W. Parker, senior officer of H.M.S. Repulse, of the British Special Service Squadron, visiting Canadian Waters, told a Halifax audience the simple truth that Canada's contribution to the Empire's naval defence is but 26 cents per head, a new uproar has broken out and Mr. E. M. MacDonald, our Minister of War and Civil Head of our Three-trawler fleet, has begun an "investigation."

What is Admiral MacDonald to investigate? The figures given by Captain Parker are neither new nor inaccurate. They have been quoted at Westminster time and again; they have been produced in our own House of Commons; they are embalmed in the pages of Hansard. Here is exactly what we pay compared with the rest of the Empire:

Great Britain—$12.40 per head for defence per year; $6 for the navy.

Canada—$1.40 per head for defence; twenty-six cents for the navy.

Australia—$2 per head for the navy.

New Zealand—Ninety cents per head for the navy.

South Africa—Twenty cents per head for the navy.

If Mr. MacDonald wants to investigate this, all he has to do is to take the Auditor-General's report, find out just what our fleet cost us last year and divide the amount by the figures of our population. This as easy as getting a headache from home-made beer.

And as to whether or not Captain Parker really said such a thing, why, of course he said it. Why not? Englishmen, whatever their other faults, are not hypocrites. And when we have begun the habit of going over to England and, figuratively speaking, of shaking our fist under the nose of her Prime Minister, telling him the while that if he dares to do this, that or the other thing, without consulting us, or letting us tell him how to do it, we'll knock the Empire galley-west—well, should we be surprised if occasionally a blunt-spoken Briton rises to drawl out that our talk comes a little cheap?

And that is the precise truth. Reading the utterances of Mr. King, for example, with his talk about "co-operation" and Canadian rights, one would get the impression that we were paying for the whole Empire, while England simply ran it. But the stark, ugly, humiliating truth is that we are indulging a lot of cheap talk, that we are 26-cent patriots, that we are not pulling one hundredth part of our weight in the boat, that, in a word, we are just simply spongers.

And when we start blustering and threatening to "investigate" when people point to us with scorn, we simply add to our cheapness.—Ottawa Journal.

Laura Carroll.

The death occurred at the Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, on Tuesday evening, of Laura, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carroll of this place, after an illness of only a few days.

The deceased, who was a student at the High School, was of a kind and lovable disposition, and was a general favourite in the school, as well as in the home. She will be greatly missed by the young people. There are left to mourn her loss, besides her ather and mother, three sisters, Mrs. Peter Perdue and Florence at home, Mary, nurse-in-training in St. Mary's Hospital, Rochester, and two brothers, Basil of Rochester, and Clare at home.

The funeral was held on Wednesday morning from the residence of her father to St. Luke's Church, Downeyville.

Double Funeral.

The funerals of Laura Carroll who died in Lindsay on Monday, and Andrew Morrissey, who died in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, were held on Wednesday morning at ten o'clock to St. Luke's Church, Downeyville, where requiem mass was said by Rev. Father Galvin, who afterwards conducted the services at both graves. The ceremony was very solemn, as it rarely happens two funerals take place at the same hour in a country parish, and it never happened before at Downeyville. The funeral of Andrew Morrissey came from the east, and the other came from the south, both meeting at the church.

The pall-bearers for Laura Carroll were six cousins, James H. Leslie, Charles and James S. Lucas, Martin and John Carroll, and for Andrew Morrison, John O'Halloran and Seldon Meehan of Lindsay, Albert Ryan of Peterborough, Dennis Duffy, Fred Fitzpatrick and Morgan O'Neill of Emily.

The sympathy of the community goes out to the relatives of both families in their loss.

A BIBLICAL RETORT.

At a meeting in Ireland, a jockey who was not very successful at getting his mount past the post first, was accosted by a repute' wit. "I say, do you know what happened to Balaam?"

"The same as has happened to me," answered the irate jockey: "an ass spoke to him."

SOME HINTS FOR THE WOMEN ONLY

Feminine Fashion World May Be Divided Into Two Eras Soon.

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (United Press).—The feminine fashion world may be divided into two eras as far as underwear is concerned — the white lingerie era and the colored silk era.

Not so long ago, women of refinement would include no undergarments in their wardrobe unless they were made of the finest of white linen and embroidered in handwork. They considered silk underwear too "Parisian" and colored underthings lacked the refinement required by the gentlewoman.

To-day white undergarments are decidedly passe. The poorest of shopgirls adopt imitations of the flimsy colored silks and wear colored voiles. We sleep in silk nightrobes which would have shocked our grandmothers. These are minus sleeves, and with decollette necklines. We defy the winter's snow by wearing gauze silk stockings and low satin pumps and seem to grow hardier by doing so.

Whenever something new is brought out in the way of underwear, we take it with a grain of salt and wait until the faddist has adopted it before purchasing it for ourselves. But the flimsier and more colorful it is, the surer it is to remain in style.

Black Undergarments.

Just now the black underthings are being introduced and women have their fingers crossed, waiting to see how these will go with the fashionable world. There are black satin girdles lined in pink georgette, black undervests, step-ins and brassieres. At first, we think, "How terrible to wear black next to the body." But a few years ago we thought it would be terrible to wear color of any description.

Even white handkerchiefs have passed out of fashion, and to-day we carry little colored silk or linen squares which match our costumes. Of course, handkerchiefs are small items in the wardrobe, but they show the way styles are changing. No well-dressed woman carries a white lace-trimmed handkerchief these days. On the other hand, her kerchief may be of brilliant red crepe de chene or purple chiffon.

Those who have felt the luxury of silk underthings will never be content to return to cheerless linens. The average woman would rather own one silk petticoat than three cotton ones. And in the long run, the silk garment is, perhaps, the most durable. It is easily laundered, lends itself better to the present slender silhouette, and wears well. It can be recolored at every wash if one wishes. The satisfaction of knowing that one is silk from the "skin" out is well worth the additional cost.

Just now lace is being used more extravagantly than ever on undergarments. Step-ins have yokes of lovely lace and are edged about the legs with corresponding lace. Medallion insets are again coming into style and contrasting colored ribbons adorn everything. Costume slips also follow the vogue for lace, being scalloped and lace-edged about the hems and with lace yokes. Fine pleating is also being used, despite the fact that the first laundering plays havoc with the pleats.

Lingerie silks have a wide range from China silk, crepe de chene, triple silk voile, satin, etc., to the sheerest of georgettes and chiffons. Recently introduced are step-ins which use two tones of georgette or chiffon, one layer posed over the other. This does away with the transparency of the material and, at the same time, produces softer coloring. Ribbons, which trim these models, are also two toned.

Black trims everything these days, even to the shoulder-straps on the colored underthings. One no longer has pink or lavender satin straps showing beneath one's sheer frock, unless the frock itself is of those pastel shades. With all dark gowns, the narrow black satin shoulder-strap is being used. For evening occasions silver or gold straps are preferred.

At the notion counters one can buy little tape shoulder-strap confiners, which can be sewn in one's frocks. These come in black and white and have snappers so that when they are attached to the shoulder seam of the frock, they hold the straps of the undergarments secure from view. Nothing is more untidy than half-soiled shoulder-straps showing at the batteau neckline. Dark frocks always have a tendency to fade on one's shoulder-straps and one must be extremely careful to keep these straps from view.

Pajama lounging robes are both new and interesting. Many of these can be quite easily made by the home dressmaker as they are very simple and rely upon contrasting combinations for their charm. Black satin trousers combined with jacquettes of colorful figured silk are very easily made, and are as attractive as many of the more ornate models.

HANDS.

Women's hands are getting larger, a glove maker claims. He says the average glove is a size larger than it used to be, also cut wider. Behold, here, the workings of the law of evolution. Human body changes through the centuries.

Your ancestors had lower foreheads. Scientists say that the groove extending to your nose from the middle of your upper lip is an hereditary scar from prehistoric forerunners, who had split upper lips like a rodent. Few modern men can squeeze into the armor worn by the average warrier five centuries ago

BLOUSE PLAYS BIG PART IN COSTUMES

Tunic Blouses May be Beltless or With Narrow Ribbon Belt Knotted at One Side.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Dame Fashion has had little to do with the blouse for several seasons other than to regard it for sports wear. This fall, however, she will give the blouse one of the most important parts in the fashion show.

The new blouse is made on long tunic lines, and reaches within 10 inches of the hem of the underslip. It has the appearance of a well-assembled frock. Crepe de chine, georgette, chiffon and satin are the materials chosen for the tunic and these are often lavishly embroidered in border effect at the hem.

Tunic blouses may be beltless or with a narrow ribbon belt knotted at one side. They invariably follow the straight line mode and are often so scant as to require slits at the sides or up the front. Again, they may have the circular flounce which begins just below the knees and extends all the way around. In this case, the upper portion of the blouse is usually of a light material while the flounce is of black satin or crepe de chine. Joining the tunic to the flounce will be a wide band of embroidery suggesting the tones of the upper blouse and the flounce. The underslip always keeps to the color of the flounce.

Many of the newest tunics follow the Spanish mode by using wide fringe instead of the circular flounce. Figured crepes make up well this way as they give the effect of the Spanish shawl. Such frocks are to be worn for formal occasions.

Sleeves Vary.

Sleeves of the tunic blouse are both long and short. Sometimes they are tight-fitting, sometimes mere caps, and again, entirely lacking.

Nearly all of the blouse manufacturers are sponsoring these long tunic blouses, and many are making matching slips to accompany them. They feel that if the blouse is to return it must return in the semblance of a dress.

Buckles trim many of the Parisian felt hats. Loops of ribbon are run through them or the felt itself is cut and the buckle run through it. Cloche shapes are disappearing in Paris, and hats with flexible brims and high crowns are being worn. The height of the high crown is lessened as the hat is worn very low over the eyes. Rounding, head-shaped crowns are not being worn at all by the Parisians.

It is rumored that black and brown hosiery will rule in autumn. A lady hosiery which matches the costume is appearing. Nude tones are worn mostly for evening occasions and the newest evening shade is "daybreak," a silvery pink, which is lovely with silver slippers.

A stroll down "petticoat lane" informs one of the recent changes in the petticoat and costume slip. To begin with, the costume slip will be more important than ever this coming season owing to the popularity of the tunic which necessitates an underslip. There are several slight changes in the costume slip. Firstly, the waistline has been raised about an inch and a half. This is because we are steadily getting back to the normal waistline and we are beginning with the costume slip. Whereas, the present slip is made with a waistline which corresponds with the waistline of the dress, the advance models are all showing the raised waistline so that when a transparent frock is worn the normal waistline is suggested in the undergarment. Then, the latest slips show a decided narrowness about the hem. The slender silhouette is responsible for this. Tunics are all slender and the underskirt must be even more slender than the tunic. Crepe, black satin and crepe de chine are the usual materials used for the slip, and black is, by all means, the most popular shade, as black as can be worn with numerous tunics. For instance, a black slip may be worn under printed chiffon, ecru lace, black chiffon, or under a tailored tunic.

NAMES.

John and Mary are losing out as the most popular names for babies, birth registration officials report from various parts of the country.

Fancy names are in demand, reflecting the widespread desire for individuality and distinctiveness, which is a natural reaction from generations in which people were content to be as alike as cookies. A tendency also manifested in unwillingness to adopt anything and everything heralded as "what's correct" by style-makers.

HOW UNCLE SAM PROTECTS CROP

Guarding of Report Means Millions to the Speculators.

By WILLIAM J. McEVOY.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 (United Press).—Stealing the crop secrets of the Department of Agriculture is as difficult as breaking the vaults of the United States Treasury. They are protected by an elaborate system of double-check precautions.

Secrecy is maintained in the compilation of information and the estimate of future crops in order that speculators will not rush the stock market before the complete reports are issued.

Advance farm information means millions on "the exchange". It means falling prices or rising prices, and unprincipled men are willing to go to any ends to get the jump on their rivals.

From field agents all over the country, reports on crop conditions are continually pouring in on George Connors, superintendent of Telephone and Telegraph at the Department of Agriculture. Connors is the only man who has an opportunity to peruse the many reports before the Crop Reporting Board considers them and compiles estimates of yields, production, etc.

In Code.

But Connors, ignorant of the official department code is unable to interpret these communications, as all are sent in cipher. Almost immediately upon their receipt, Connors carries the reports to Secretary Wallace's office, where they are placed in a strong box until the day the report is scheduled to be made.

In company with the secretary or a personal representative, the information on the nation-wide condition of crops is removed from the strong box on the day a report is to be made, by the reporting board and Connors.

In a fourth floor corner room of one of the many buildings occupied by the department, in the shadow of the Washington Monument, the compilation of the report, which may be on the estimate of next year's wheat crop, of the condition of the present cotton crop, is begun.

No Signals.

To prevent a possible "bought" member of the board from signaling to a confederate outside on the trend of the report, windows in the board room are made of a composition that cannot be seen through. Signaling by adjusting the shades is impossible because there are no shades.

The government has not stopped here. Radiators in the room are completely boxed so that a system of tapping pipes cannot be employed. All other pipes in the chamber also are enclosed in wooden cases, while a mechanical device, recently devised by Connors, is put into operation the night previous to the board meeting, to deaden all telephones in that quarter of the building where the board is located.

Members of the board usually gather about 5 o'clock in the morning to begin tabulating information from field agents and mold the report into shape. When they have completed, usually about 10:30, they remain in the board chamber until shortly before 11 o'clock, when they go in a body to the pressroom, where news representatives are waiting with open telephones to transmit the report to their offices.

At two minutes to 11, the newspapermen are ordered into a marked-off section of the room while Connors places copies of the report in its final form upon the telephone tables. When Connors yells, "Go", there is a scramble for telephones and the secrecy is lifted until the next report is about to be drawn up.

As an indicator of what importance them reports are to stock markets and brokerage houses, two financial news services connect their phones at the department with their New York offices in order to prevent a delay of even a minute or two in getting it on the ticker. Telegraph companies which have lines into the large stock markets also have men on the ground to tick off the report

Connors has been with the Department since 1908 and has handled virtually every report since then. On many occasions he has been invited by "mysterious people" to dine out or accept some other "gift", but he has steadfastly refused even to acknowledge these invitations or offerings.

May Not Gamble.

By an act of Congress, Connors and members of the crop reporting board are forbidden to frequent brokerage firms or stock markets or to be seen in company with persons engaged in that business. Also they are prohibited from visiting race tracks and are ordered not to speculate in any product that the board might report on.

Has Been Done.

A number of years ago, an employee of the department, who came in close contact with reports of field agents, sold official information to speculators, thereby reaping a harvest. He was on "Easy street" before the government took steps to prevent the premature announcement of what a report would contain.

Shortly after this employee was removed from the department, information again began leaking out, and after several months of investigation it was discovered that the leased telegraph wire of the department, over which all but nearby reports came, was being tapped at the government fish wharf, several blocks away. This outlet soon was plugged up, and now officials believe that the secrecy of the crop reports is airtight.

WEATHER.

Ojibway Indians report that salmon trout up north have their eggs matured two months ahead of time this year. Ordinarily these deep-water fish spawn after October 24. Looks like an early fall.

FAULTY.

How are your eyes? Out of every 100 industrial employees, 44 have defective vision, a survey shows.

"That's a pretty good showing, after all—probably better than that is the case with stomach, brain, liver, lungs and other important organs of the body. Nature would give us better physical machinery if she wanted us to be here longer instead of jut on an observation trip.

DOOMED.

"The novel is doomed," declares Mr. Hilaire Belloc. He says so, emphatically and exhaustively, to the extent of two full columns in the "New Statesman." Here is a sample:

"It is doomed as effectually as was doomed, round about the year of Waterloo, the English decasyllabic rhymed, heroic, iambic, didactic poem. It is doomed as surely as was doomed towards the year 1880 the evangelical treatise. It is doomed as surely was was doomed, not late in Queen Victoria's reign, the printed, the collected sermon. It is petering out; it is wobbling; it is on its last legs; it faints for breath; it has upon it those unmistakable signs which are the forerunners of the end. It has grown vapid. It has lost its norm. It gropes. It spreads blindly. It is about to die."

RECKLESS OF HIM.

Second Cannibal: "Serves him right; we warned him not to eat the grass widow!"—Awgawn.

WARSAW NEWS

WARSAW, Aug. 25.—Miss Bernise Carveth spent her holidays with her cousin, Miss Valetta Carveth, Lakefield.

Ernest Carveth, Millbrook, was in the village on Sunday.

Mrs. Wm. Gow, Prince Rupert, is visiting her father, Mr. Franklin Jory.

Miss Lumsden, Peterboro, was in the village on Monday.

The campers are asking for green corn—and there is not much homegrown ready yet.

Mr. Patrick Fitzpatrick ploughed down his field of peas.

Eggs are bringing 26 cents.

There is some complaint of wheat growing in the stook. It certainly was hard to harvest.

All kinds of grain are being cur as ripened. Some fields are quite ripe; others of the same grain are still quite green.

There is some very poor barley, also poor oats; but there are other fields, often on the same farm, as good as can be wished.

Zion Church held a tea-meeting on Wednesday evening of last week. Despite the rain and wind, there was a good turn out. Over $100 was realized from tickets, and the cakes, pies, and other good things that were auctioned off later brought a good deal more.

Tea was served in the shed. Rev. F. G. Weir was chairman. Local talent were Misses Cressa Crowe and Eileen Hamblin, Clinton Servive and Henry Batten. Rev. Hinton, of Hastings, was there. In his address, he spoke of the hurry of the present day.

Dr. Goldsmith brought greetings from the cottagers at the Lake. Miss Stewart and Mr. Crawford came from the Lake and delighted the audience with their singing. Mrs. Crawford held the audience during her recitation.

After the entertainment, many returned to the sheds and Dr. Goldsmith acted as auctioneer. He saw to it that the goods were sold and brought good prices.

At the Women's Institute last Thursday, Miss Ella Dewart gave a "Talk to Girls." Unfortunately, the attendance was quite small. The talk was well worth a full room. She spoke of the life work before the girls, and of the great need that both mothers and daughters should realize that no one should be idle. A girl's place may be in her own home. If she has to earn her living, she will do far better, and be of far more use, if she chooses some work which she likes. If she really likes millinery, dressmaking, business, cooking, she should not try to take up a profession. Sometimes parents prefer a profession to a trade, but the dignity is in doing what one can do well. Let the whole soul go into whatever the work may be. Just making money, or holding a position, is not the whole of life. One must aim to leave the world better for having lived in it.

Miss Dewart spoke very strongly along these lines.

Concert.

Rarely is it given the people of Warsaw to enjoy such a treat as they did in their own Town Hall this week. The hall is so small, and th acoustics and equipment are so poor, that it is useless to attempt to get really good talent to come as a business proposition. On Tuesday evening Mrs. Julia Choate Graham and some friends, who are summering at the Lake, gave a concert in aid of the Anglican Church. Mrs. Graham has not forgotten her old home church, and it was through her kindness and thought of her old home that the entertainment was given.

The ladies of the church served ice cream and cake.

The downpour of rain kept some away. All who came did so because they wanted to hear. The hall was barely filled. Many came from the country and several guests were among the audience, while twenty, in one party, came from Lakefield. The following was the programme rendered:—Vocal solo, "The Floral Dance," Mr. Fred Harrison; violin solo, "Perpetual Motion," Miss Margaret Graham; vocal solo, "Love's Coronation," with violin obligato, Mrs. Amys; reading, "One of the Heroes," Mrs. Crawford; vocal solo, "Mote O'mine," Miss Inez Stewart; viglin solo, "Cavatina," Mrs. Graham; vocal solo, "The Ragged Vagabond," Mr. Fred Harrison; violin solo, Miss Margaret Graham; vocal solo, "Three Fishers Went Sailing," Mrs. Amys; reading, "A Dusky Diplomat," Mrs. Crawford; vocal solo, "For You Alone," Miss Stewart; violin solo, "Melody on 'G' String," Mrs. Graham.

In part two, each of the artists responded to an encore.

After expressions of appreciation by Rev. W. Atkinson, Mr. Casement and Mr. Langley, Mr. Harris responded with a vocal solo.

THE BITERS BITTEN.

A couple of city motorists, riding near a farm orchard, stopped the car, got out, climbed the wall and gathered half a peck of rosy apples. To complete the "joke" they slowed down as they went by the farmhouse and called out to the proprietor: "We helped ourselves to your apples, old man. Thought we'd tell you."

"Oh, that's all right," the farmer called back "I helped myself to your tools while you were in the orchard."

BRITAIN ISN'T GRABBING LAND AS MANY THINK

MacDonald, Feeling Pledges Have Been Evaded, Surrenders Jubaland to Italy.

VOLUNTARY ACT

Offered to Restore Gibraltar to Italy Six Times—Rejected Every Time.

By FREDERICK CUNLIFFE-OWEN, C. B. E.

England has long had the reputation abroad of being the greatest land-grabbing nation in existence, and there are many even among the lieges of King George who, if questioned as to which of the first-class powers was pre-eminent above all others for territorial greed, would be ready to admit, if not to foreigners, at any rate among themselves that it was Great Britain. They would console themselves, however, as did the late Sir George Reid, the witty Prime Minister of Australia, in a memorable speech which he delivered in London, with the reflection that if John Bull had been guilty of a good deal of piracy and robbery in the matter, he at least had always robbed on an imperial scale; that there was nothing mean or sneaking about it, and that when John Bull did lay hold of anything he trusted to Providence to let him keep it.

It may possibly be news to many of his fellow-countrymen, and also to their kinsfolk in the United States, that there is no empire on the face of the globe that has done so much in the way of voluntary relinquishment of over-sea possessions as Great Britain, and it seems timely to call attention to this fact in connection with her voluntary transfer to Italy of Jubaland, the very location and size of which are ignored by the vast majority of the 400,000,000 people or more who are subject to the sceptre of King George. Yet Jubaland is a valuable tract of territory, larger than the Kingdom of Scotland embracing some 50,000 square miles, forming the Northern part of the British Colony of Kenya, in East Africa.

When, in 1915, Italy finally decided to join the powers of the Entente in the Great War, she obtained a promise embodied in the so-called Pact of London that if Great Britain and France obtained additions to their colonial empires in Africa at the expense of Germany at the conclusion of the conflict she, Italy, should receive "equitable compensation," notably in relation to the revision of the frontiers of her African possessions where they adjoined French and British colonies. It was agreed that Italian Somaliland should be augmented by the addition to it of part of the adjacent Jubaland Province of that British East Africa colony of Kenya.

Southeast of the River Juba.

The territory in question lay to the southeast of the broad River Juba, which had until then constituted the Anglo-Italian border line, a stream on the Italian or northern bank of which the Royal Duke of the Abruzzi has been devoting very large sums of money and much of his energy and personal attention to the development of its wonderful cotton-growing possibilities, a venture in which he has all along had the warmest co-operation and sympathy of Premier Mussolini. Italy was, therefore, to receive from Great Britain possession of the river, of both its banks as well as the British port of Kismayu at its mouth, and which constitutes the only port for ocean-going shipping along the entire long stretch of Italian Somaliland, extending from the easternmost point of Africa on the Gulf of Aden down to the Kenya colony.

When, however, the war came to a conclusion, Lloyd George, as Premier, and then Lord Curzon, as Foreign Minister, showed a marked disinclination to fulfil Great Britain's pledges, endeavoring to make the execution of the agreement conditional on Italy's surrender to Greece of the so-called Dodecanese Islands in the Aegean Sea. Mussolini contended that the question of the Dodecanese Island, which Italy had taken from Turkey during the war between the two countries in 1911, were entirely distinct from the Jubaland agreement and that the two had nothing whatsoever to do with one another.

The attitude of Lloyd George and of Lord Curzon, conveying the impression that Great Britain was endeavoring to evade her obligations with regard to Jubaland, created intense bitterness in Italy and was responsible for much of the unfriendliness which Mussolini for a time displayed toward England and her policies, especially at the Lausanne Congress. But when the new Labor Cabinet came into office at Downing Street and Premier Ramsay MacDonald assumed the direction of the foreign relations of the empire, he, after careful consideration, took the line that the two controversies, namely that of the Dodecanese Islands and of Jubaland, were entirely distinct from one another; that the national honor of England was involved in the fulfilment of her pledges on the subject of her East African Province, no matter if Italy's refusal to surrender the Dodecanese Islands to Greece in accordance with a former agreement between Tittoni and Venizelos did give Italy an unduly advantageous position in the Levant, and he has now taken the necessary steps for immediately turning over Jubaland to Italy without any further quibbling.

England Popular at Rome.

The result of this is that Great Britain enjoys a greater degree of popularity at Rome that at any moment since the great war. It was, indeed, a sort of acknowledgment of the readiness shown by the present Labor Government at Downing Street to live up to England's original agreement with regard to Jubaland and to thus give the Italian colony of Somaliland the port and the means of development which it had until then lacked that caused King Victor Emmanuel, with his Queen and his son and daughter, to pay that recent State visit to London which was so very successful in every respect—far more so than other recent royal visits.

Jubaland is only one of a long list of territories which Great Britain has voluntarily relinquished, or, for the matter of that, given away to foreign powers. Thus the Philippines once belonged to England, after having surrendered in 1762 to the naval forces under the command of General William Draper and Admiral Samuel Cornish. The Spaniards were turned out, their fleet sunk, and a work of reorganization was inaugurated that speedily raised the archipelago to double its commercial and economic value.

Then England found that emigrants would not go there because of the distance and also on account of the treachery of the climate at certain seasons of the year. So, a few years later, without any pressure being brought to bear upon her, she deliberately and of her own accord restored the islands to Spain, the latter undertaking to repay the money spent on public works and other improvements during the British domination of the archipelago to the tune of $4,000,000. The amount was never paid and remains owing to Great Britain to this day.

Cuba also belonged for a time to England. Havana was taken by a British fleet and army under Lord Albermarle in the middle of the eighteenth century, who extended his rule throughout the island. But, in spite of the loss of life and of the treasure that had been expended in securing the Pearl of the Antilles and in establishing law and order and in the construction of public works and fortifications, it was restored to Spain for no other reason than that the administration in Downing Street did not care to retain its tenure any longer.

Java, and in fact, all of the Dutch East Indies were in the possession of England from 1811 until 1818, when they were voluntarily restored to Holland without any compensation whatsoever being given in return. Yet these Dutch East Indies are today perhaps the richest colony of any European power. They provide the source of most of the wealth and prosperity of the Netherlands, and a statue at Batavia of Sir Stamford Raffles, the former British Governor-General, and the code upon which the entire system of justice of the islands is based are all that remain today to recall the well-nigh forgotten fact that the Dutch East Indies once belonged to England and were deliberately given away by her.

Minorca has at two different periods formed part of England's colonial empire, on the last occasion from 1798 until 1803, when it was presented by England to Spain at the time of the Treaty of Amiens. The history of Guiana is even still more strange. Sir George Rodney seized it in 1771, and England then set to work to improve the country and to develop its mineral wealth. Several years later, without asking for any compensation in return, Great Britain voluntarily restored it to Holland. In 1796 the English seized it again, held it for several years and then gave it back to the Dutch at the Peace of Amiens. In 1803 Great Britain seized it once more at the cost of much life and treasure and retained it until the downfall of Napoleon in 1814-1815, when she presented a third of Guiana as a free gift to the French, turned over what has proved since to be the richest third thereof to the Netherlands, retaining the third for herself.

Heligoland, which commands the mouth of the Elbe and which the ex-Kaiser converted into one of the principal strongholds of the North Sea, a stronghold that was destined to play an important role in the great war, but whose defenses are now destroyed, was presented by England to Germany during the Premiership of the late Lord Salisbury, without the previous approval of Parliament, in return for the abandonment of certain shadowy Teuton pretensions to share the English protectorate over Zanzibar.

Gave Half of New Guinea.

Few persons recall that New Guinea, the largest island in the world, next to Australia, was formerly annexed by Queensland. The uncle and predecessor of the present Lord Derby, who was then at the head of the Colonial Office in London, declined to ratify the annexation and subsequently Great Britain, in the face of the protests of all Australia, relinquished one-half of New Guinea to Germany and it became known as Kaiser Wilhelm's Land. The great war enabled the Commonwealth of Australia to recover possession thereof, and it is once more under the British flag.

In 1899 England voluntarily abandoned all her rights to the principal islands of the Samoan Archipelago to Germany. But they were restored to the British Empire during the great war, largely through the instrumentality of the Commonwealth of New Zealand, to whose administration they are now subject; and John Bull has also restored to China the port and adjacent territory of Wei-Hai-Wei, after the expenditure of a great deal of money on its defenses and development. He likewise owned Spitzbergen for a time and then abandoned it, made a free gift of the Bay Islands to the Republic of Honduras in 1859, presented the Cape of Good Hope Colony to the Dutch in 1802, after having held it for a number of years, resuming possession thereof, however, in 1914, and made a free gift in 1864 of the Ionian Islands, including Corfu, to the Kingdom of Greece. They had been assigned to Great Britain by the Treaty of 1814. An immense amount of English money was spent in the way of maintenance, development in the construction of public works and harbors and of fortifications, which were all turned over to Greece without any compensation whatsoever.

Spain Refuses Gibraltar.

With regard to Gibraltar, England's mighty stronghold which commands the entrance to the Mediterranean, few are aware that on several occasions she has offered to restore it to Spain, and that each time the proposal was declined at Madrid. Indeed, during the hundred years that elapsed after Sir George Brooke's capture of Gibraltar the English Government offered to restore that stronghold to Spain.

On the first occasion Great Britain asked nothing in exchange for the fortress save the friendly neutrality of Spain, but King Philip's Premier, Cardinal Alberoni, was so intoxicated with his sense of power after having completed his alliance with Charles XII. of Sweden that he proudly rejected the proffered gift. In imagination he saw his friend the Stuart Pretender already enthroned at St. James's. When that was accomplished he would get back the Rock of Gibraltar or anything else that he pleased from England. Charles XII.'s death and the destruction of the Spanish Fleet by Lord Torrington off the coast of Sicily were followed by the Cardinal's own downfall.

One of the half a dozen offers by Great Britain to surrender Gibraltar was contained in an autograph letter from George I. to Philip V., which bears the date of June 1, 1721, and which is preserved in the royal archives at Madrid, while a copy of it is printed in the British "Journals of Parliament." Written in French, it runs as follows:

"I no longer hesitate to assure your Majesty of my readiness to satisfy you with regard to your demands touching the restitution of Gibraltar, promising to take the first favorable opportunity to regulate this article with the assent of my Parliament."

Spain could not understand why, with a sovereign and his Administration in London ready to surrender Gibraltar, there should be any need of considering the wishes of the national legislature at Westminster in the matter, and finally insisted upon immediate restitution, with the alternative of war. The latter was declared and in 1727 the Rock underwent an unsuccessful siege which lasted four months. Yet in spite of the bravery of the defense, Lord Townshend in the following year, writing to the British Envoy at Madrid, in a letter of June 14, 1728, declared Spain's demands for "the unconditional surrender of Gibraltar" to be "very reasonable, and exactly conformable to the opinion which you know I have always entertained concerning the place." He added that the popular feeling aroused by the defense stood in the way just then of any such move.

The fifth offer to surrender Gibraltar was made by no less a person than William Pitt the elder, Earl of Chatham, in 1757, when he directed the British Ambassador at Madrid to offer Gibraltar to Spain as the price of a Spanish alliance, to be contracted with the object of recovering possession of Minorca. The offer was again rejected by Spain. The sixth and last offer to surrender Gibraltar to Spain was made in 1783, during the negotiations that preceded the Treaty of Versailles, when Lord Shelburne offered Gibraltar to Spain in exchange for the now American island of Porto Rico. While Spain welcomed the prospect of regaining Gibraltar, she did not relish the prospect of relinquishing Porto Rico, and again the proposal was turned down at Madrid.

Today Spain bitterly regrets her rejection of these repeated offers of Great Britain to restore to her Gibraltar, while there is no Englishman who does not congratulate himself on the good fortune which frustrated these foolish offers from London and which led to the retention of the Rock by Great Britain to command her line of communication with all her vast possessions in the Orient.

Under the reign of Charles II. Tangiers, the possession of which has been the source of so much international controversy during the last half century bringing the great powers of Europe on

BACHELORS NOW COMPLICATE NEW YORK'S SERVANT PROBLEM

Into that everlasting topic of conversation—the servant problem—has been introduced another complication. And the careless and prosperous bachelor is held responsible. He is accused, in fact, by the distracted housewife of having reduced the available supply of servants. Not by marrying them, to be sure, but by hiring them to take care of the apartment he calls his home.

First look at it from the bachelor's point of view. He has, perhaps, a pleasant little flat of three rooms, with his "things" disposed here and there. He is in the habit of getting his meals in some satisfactory place, but he enjoys having his private rooms to return to after dinner, and there he entertains his friends. Usually he makes arrangements with a servant girl to keep the place in order for him. He pays her three or four dollars a week. She cleans the bathroom, makes the bed, dusts the furniture and sweeps. That satisfies him. When floors have to be polished or windows washed, Evelyn tells him so and says she can get him a man to do that for a price. He agrees, and there you are. His house is kept clean and orderly and he is vastly pleased with it, and himself, and Evelyn.

Now let one view Evelyn's mental processes.

Bachelors are gone all day. If she wants to sleep, or take a bath, or wash clothes, very likely it can be done without inconveniencing her employer. Further, she can do his work in less than an hour's time, and then do the same sort of thing for as many other bachelors as she can manage to corral, thus making a good deal of money and having a lot of time for her outside activities. Is Evelyn to blame for taking advantage of such an opportunity?

But then look at it through the eyes of a housekeeper—whether young or old, rich or poor. What is to be done with a maid who has been spoiled like that? And where will you find one now who hasn't adopted that method of working for a living? Listen in on three women. Time, the present; scene, living room in an apartment house.

"My dear, I am absolutely at my wits' end about getting a maid to keep this little place clean. They don't know the meaning of the word these days. Will not beat rugs, will not wipe off woodwork, will not oil the floor—simply make a few passes on the surface of things. Ten minutes later the place looks as dirty as before they touched it."

"Yes," agreed another dryly; "and the last one I had said she couldn't work with people around; suggested that I leave the apartment to her. So I did—went shopping, stayed three hours, came back and found that she considered her job finished and had left. She had not scalded the refrigerator, nor swept under the bookcase. I had to work two hours after she finished to put the place in order."

"Well," said the third. "I don't see what we can do about it as long as that kind of work is well paid for by the bachelors. Why should any maid work hard and long for the same money she can get by about a third of the effort we expect? You can't blame the girls, and I don't suppose we can blame the bachelors either," she concluded with a laugh. "They have a right to their standards and sketchy housekeeping just as much as we have, I suppose. But that is one of the chief reasons why we can't get satisfactory work done for any reasonable price. Difficulties of housekeeping increase in proportion to the number of bachelor apartments in the neighborhood."

FUNERAL

The death rate lately is quite a bit higher than a year ago. An average of 4200 Americans a day are passing on into the Hereafter.

As they exit from one side of the stage of life, newborn babies arrive to take their places. It's the same show, generation after generation. The actors and scenery change, but the plot never.

Whether life is a tragedy or a comedy, depends largely on our mental attitude. The choice of being happy or unhappy is up to us.

PRICE

The steel industry recently began to slow down. Prices sagged a bit as bait for production which had dropped to 86 per cent of capacity.

Prosperity depends on price. It comes when prices are right. It leaves and depression steps in when prices get too far out of line. If a way can be found to stabilize prices; the lid will be nailed on the coffin of Od Man Hard Times. Ups-and-downs of business are the natural results of ups-and-downs of prices. How to stabilize prices? One suggestion is to vary the gold value of the dollar, nipping excessive inflation of deflation in the bud.

TUBE DRESSES.

Tube dresses are undoubtedly the favorite for fall. It is most interesting to see how belts have disappeared from most of the smart frocks and that they are not missed at all.

Built expressly for trucks and buses, with a tough road gripping tread, fortified sidewalls, protecting ribs of rubber and an extra strong carcass.

MAN'S OLDEST METHOD KNOWN

Before Any Written Language Stones Were Used in Business

TIMES CHANGED.

By MAX BOSMAN.

THE great god Business is one of the oldies deities. Before there was a written language of any sort, hieroglyphic, cuneiform or what not, thousands of years before Christ, there were business transactions and business documents to mark them.

Prehistoric man used stones or the face of a rock on which he made an identifying scratch. Later human beings used bits of tree bark of which no trace has been preserved for posterity. Then clay came into use, and from the earliest days of Babylonia, Assyria and Egypt business records were small clay tablets on which the parties to a commerical or legal proceeding impressed each his personal seal.

In 4500 B.C. the impression of a man's seal on a brick was his legitimate signature. No other marks appear on the oldest business remains, for men had no characters of writing with which to express themselves. The tired business man of prehistoric eras kept the details of a transaction in his head; his seal imprint was his bond.

Early Use of Seals.

When writing in its earliest manifestation came into being the personal seal in its business use was already so old that the public of antiquity had forgotten its inception. No data on the origin of seals have come down to us. Seals were the regular thing when Gudea was a boy, and Gudea died 5,000 years ago at least.

The savants tell us that the most primitive seals were undoubtedly short joints of reed cut rudely to indicate a man's personality. These seals, like the documents of bark, have disintegrated in the soil of centuries and no specimen remains. The very oldest seals discovered so far are made of shell and are cylindrical in shape, many of them being not so large as a thimble.

They were fashioned from the core of a particular conch shell indigenous to the Persian Gulf—a reasonably hard substance that could be cut successfully perhaps with a piece of flint. Cutting tools were unknown at that period. Primitive examples have a crude design of a god and a branch, the arrangement and lines being childish. Archæologists have not agreed on the interpretation of many of the seals found, and a poor layman who sees remains of them in a museum collection cannot readily believe that each had the identifying value to a man's business that archæology claims it had.

Genuine specimens of the shell seal are rare, because when dug up they are usually corroded. The late J. Pierpont Morgan acquired, however, several valuable samples of the archaic seal in various stages of preservation and added them to his ancient Babylonian collection that was housed for many years in his library in East Thirty-sixth Street. His seals, in the opinion of the late Dr. William Hayes Ward, who catalogued them and wrote a book about them, form the most comprehensive and interesting collection in the country, and compare favorably with those in the British Museum.

Ancient Express Tags.

The Morgan seals are just now in the Babylonian Seminary at Yale University, to which they have been lent for study, together with a mass of clay legal and commercial tablets, and a notable array of "bullæ," or clay express tags of antiquity. These tablets were deciphered and translated shortly after Mr. Morgan's death, by arrangement with the Morgan trustees. Their publication added new important historical data for archæologists, the clay tags establishing proof of the existence in 3000 B.C. of a commodity-carrying system with a very modern labelling scheme.

In a work on "Cuneiform Bullae of the Third Millennium B.C." Professor Clarence E. Keiser of Yale, who deciphered the Morgan clay "cards," claims that these objects dug up in Asia Minor and added to Babylonian collections throughout the world, had "as varied and extensive a use as is to-day made of the common cardboard tag." They were lumps of clay pressed, while wet, upon the knot of a cord, to which they then adhered when the clay had dried, or they were perforated lumps of clay through which a rope or length of twine could be drawn.

Professor Keiser found bullae in the Morgan collection bearing the seal impression of persons of Agadad and addressed to individuals in Shirpilli, two ancient cities that are known to have been some distance apart. "These Lesides indicating a system of exchange and trade between the two cities, illustrate a very simple and, perhaps, the original idea of this class of clay tablets; they were labels giving the origin and destination of packages, and their use was similar to that of the modern delivery tag." When the parcel was delivered the recipient receipted the clay tag with the imprint of his personal seal, or he signed his name and added his seal imprint to verify his signature.

They were attached to shipments by the ancient Babylonians and Sumerian express and freight companies. Freight was carried by caravan and boat. Not long ago Professor George Barton of Bryn Mawr deciphered duplicate bills of lading for a shipment of grain by boat in 3000 B.C., which he found in the Haverford collection. Of the duplicate bills, "one the boatman kept hanging around his neck; the other was tied to the goods."

Prehistoric Mail.

Packages may have gone by parcel post in those days, for archæologists have found ample proof of a postal delivery in ancient cities. "In 2000 B.C. there were in operation not only urban but interurban mails," is the claim of Professors Barton and Reisner, who found records years ago stating that the cost of an interurban post was "shared by the different cities between which it operated." Proof, too, of a central Post office and a dead-letter department has been unearthed in several buried cities in the number of unopened letters found on one spot, notably above the buried City of Larsa, the Biblical Ellasar.

Impressions of primitive seals alone appear on some of the bullae that have so far come to light, and the question arises: Did the ancients have shipping departments in their businesses and ship parcels with only a seal impression to denote the destination and the sender before the world possessed a proper chirography for addressing?

Dr. Albert T. Clay, head of the Babylonian Seminary at Yale, deciphered the legal and business tablets in the Morgan library and found that more than two-thirds of them (they were from Erech, about 1000 B.C.) had to do with personal contracts—land titles, mortgages, rentals of houses, sales of slaves, promissory notes, etc. The earliest transactions in the world were, without doubt, land ones; the realtor and the money lender were the fathers of business. And seals were their trade marks from the beginning of time.

Besides the conch shell, a soft serpentine stone was used in early days for fashioning primitive cylindrical seals. Specimens have come to light in the valleys of the Nile, the Tigris and the Euphrates "among other relics of the beginnings of civilization," Dr. Ward wrote in his book on the Morgan collection. "The cylindrical seal as the witness of personal proprietorship," he added, "goes back to the earliest period of history known to us as we pass out of the geological era, which possessed recorded and transmitted.

Beginning of Letters.

Nothing but the crude arrangement of god and branch appeared on the earliest seals; later came doubtful hieroglyphics which no man has yet deciphered, and these were followed by characters that grow less and less obscure as the date of the seal approaches a time in which we know a written language had developed. Dr. Ward believed that "a history of the evolution of early chirography may yet be reconstructed from the cylindrical seals alone before they were supplanted by the scarab of Egypt in the sixth dynasty.

Neither the shell nor the serpentine seal demanded a tool for cutting. Nor did lapis luzuli, a material much valued as early as 3500 B.C. The Morgan collection contains a specimen of an ancient Babylonian seal of lapis lazuli with, perhaps, the earliest representation of the human figure clothed. The type multiplied and improved as the fashion "took." When the human figure on these seals is not nude it is clad in a short fringed skirt. The face shows in profile a nose like a bird's beak and a large round eye. The conception indicates a primitive notion of drawing, but Business seems to have thrived without Art.

About 3000 B.C. jasper and chalcedony had come in and seals were made of those stones. A sharper tool was undoubtedly necessary for engraving, and the supposition is that, a flake of corundum tipped the flint. With the advent of this sharper point more and more engraving was done on the seals. It was still free hand work and still crude, but a study of the seals from that date onward shows a gradual and unmistakable improvement.

From the time of Gudea and the later dynasty of Ur—a little before 2000 B.C., when some kind of a written language had already developed—the art of seals became more conventional and less original; they were being standardized, custom to engrave on each the name of its owner and that of his father and the god whom he worshipped. The seals of this period are indeed valuable to the archæologist, who reconstructs ancient history for us from just such meagre data as these. When, as sometimes happens, the seal has belonged to a local king and his titles and city are engraved on the clay, an important gap in history is filled.

By 1500 B.C. there are evidences of a revolving tool, and cornelian, agate, blue chalcedony, saphirine and jade were converted into seals. The Kassite period began about the time the revolving tool was introduced into Babylonia from Egypt, where it had obviously originated some little while before, and marks a radial change in the ornamentation of the seals. Now the surface was covered with prayers to the gods, and, says Dr. Ward, "there was usually but one figure of a god or a worshipper, or at most two figures, and several new symbols appeared, especially the encased Greek cross, which was the emblem of the sun, and perhaps the origin of swastika."

The "Tree of Life."

The Northern Empire of Assyria had its own fashion of cylindrical seals, and they were larger than Babylonia's, the length of one often being double its diameter. It is difficult to date these Assyrian seals—they were from 2000 to 900 B.C. probably—but they have a definite interest for us because some of the oldest specimens are engraved with the beginnings of the representation of the Tree of Life. "Originally it was a date palm tree," according to Dr. Ward, "but it soon took all the conventional and ornamental forms which the engraver could conceive. . . . The owner of the seal stands near it, and a winged figure stands on one or both sides of the tree, one hand raised plucking its fruits and the other holding the basket." The winged figures took various forms, human or animal, "like the Hebrew cherubim or seraphim." They were guardians as well as givers of the fruit of the tree, "which corresponds to the tree of life in the story of the Garden of Eden."

The cylinder seal was peculiarly adapted to stamping wet clay; it could be rolled over the end or edge of a tablet with a slight pressure. But when clay went out as a writing material, about 600 B.C., the seal's reign was over. Conquest had introduced parchment into Babylonia and Assyria from the west, and a different type of seal appeared, an object with one engraved face that could be pressed or stamped with some force upon the blob of wax that now was placed upon documents of papyrus.

For this the cone-shaped seal was evolved in Assyria and the scarab in Egypt, the scarab developing into the scarabold. Archæological evidence points to no greater antiquity than 1000 B.C. for scarabolds—no age at all in archæology! The scarabs were cut from chalcedony, lapis lazuli and emerald-green glass, and had perforations for a string or wire on which to hang Business men wore their seals around their necks in Egypt—even if they wore little else—ready to stamp the volume of business documents that (perhaps) piled up in a day.

Cone seals were cut from chalcedony-lapis lazuli and emerald-green glass, and were perforated near the small end of the cone. In one specimen in the Morgan collection is still suspended the silver wire on which the seal adhering to it hung in its active years. They were not always cone shaped; at least half of the Morgan cone seals are octagonal. The outstanding feature is, of course, the one surface or face, cut more or les, convex. Usually only the face is ens graved, although specimens have been found with both sides of the cone cut.

First Seal Rings.

The cone-shaped seal developed naturally and gradually into the setting for a ring. Seal rings are almost as old as the hills, for a man's personal seal graduated from a neck ornament into a finger ring about twenty-five hundred years ago. The oldest rings are heavy and clumsy, set high upon a circlet of copper or stone. They were worn upon a man's finger, but they were for use rather than for ornament. Women did not wear rings until handwriting and the styles came into general use for signing business and other documents, when a seal impression was an auxiliary of identification, not the sole instrument of signature. Not until then did rings grow dainty.

Business documents and business letters of clay have been dug up so often and in such quantities, all huddled together, that archæologists have arrived at this reasonable deduction:

"The modern ancients filed away their business and legal documents just as we do. They stored them in cases, perhaps metal ones, with a clay tag index alphabetically arranged. (The Sumerians and Babylonians had an alphabet as early as 3500 B.C. at least.) Private and business houses had filing shelves in their libraries, or filing cabinets; and the temple, which in each pre-biblical city constituted the centre of the religious, social, legal and commercial activities of that community, contained vast archives in which the varied business interests of the temple were recorded. Large business concerns, of which several remains have been found and deciphered, also contained archives and their own particular brand of filing methods. These are uncovered on temple property or near by. The temple was the mart and market of the city; hence it is to be assumed that a business house of antiquity would be situated as near to the temple as possible, if not actually in the temple itself.

Olden Recorders of Deeds.

Dr. Ward thought that for filing away sealed documents ancient Babylonia had a Recorder of Deeds and a City Hall as early as 2000 B.C. The building was situated on temple property, though whether in a wing of the temple itself or in a separate edifice is not clear. In 2000 B.C. duplicate copies of real estate transactions were required by law and a place had to be prepared for the filing of the duplicates.

There was an open deed in every purchase and sale of land, which could be shown whenever called for and indexed by a librarian or recorder; the sealed document had the names and seals of the contracting parties and all the witnesses on the outside—testimony that the deed had not been tampered with. A great number of these deeds are found in the Morgan collection.

Sealed and open copies of an ancient transaction have been dug out of the earth in different places, proving that the sealed document was kept by the purchaser of a parcel of land, while the open deed was put on file at the ancient registry office. This custom continued into Old Testament days, as witness Jeremiah xxxii, 6:15, in which we read: "This deed of the purchaser that is sealed up and this deed that is open."

FOREIGN TALENT IN THE MOVIES

Films Are Made Popular By Actresses From Abroad.

By HAROLD E. SWSHER.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 25 (United Press).—American made motion pictures are growing in popularity abroad largely because of the increasing use of foreign talent in films produced in this country.

It was but a few years ago that none but Americans appeared in American pictures. Then, American films, especially when they depicted foreign stories, didn't go so well outside the United States.

Later Cecil B. DeMille, pioneer in many big film developments, commenced using "international" casts. First he experimented with Sessue Hayakawa, who reached popular heights overnight. Then came Theodore Kosloff, the Russian; Anna Q. Nilsson, the beautiful blonde Swedish actress; Charles de Roche, of France, and, latest of all, Victor Varconi, a Hungarian.

What has been the result of this introduction of foreigners into American motion pictures? Let De Mille himself give the explanation.

"International casts," says De Mille, "seemed to me to be the one thing which could make American motion pictures truly international in their appeal, and this has since been proved. It does not matter whether a French story is done in America or Paris; if French people play in it, if the action of the story is accurate and natural, it will hit home with equal force. And the same logic applies to stories or situations familiar to other nationalities.

Foreigners Like It.

"With international casts, American producers have broken down national lines and increased their sales in foreign countries by 300 per cent. in 12 years. With foreign players in strong roles, we can take a story of modern times into Budapest or Rome and have it enjoyed because audiences everywhere will react to efforts tending to make the appeal of the story human and universal, rather than bound by geographical limitations.

"We will always have a majority of American actors in American pictures. But there is no denying the fact that introduction of foreign players has raised our screen interpretation to a higher standard of artistic accuracy and vastly increased the range of persons who find appeal and entertainment in our offerings."

The start made by De Mille years ago has since brought to the studios of Hollywood and New York a veritable avalanche of continental actors and actresses.

Pola Negri, of Polish descent, is one of the most popular, and appears to be gaining in favor, after a rather weak opening as an American studio player. Jetta Goudal came from France to flash upwards to fame overnight. Rose Dione, favorite of the Odeon, of Paris, has appeared in American made films, while others, more or less prominent, are coming this way all the time, lured by the magnitude of American pictures and the size of American film players' checks.

Others Flocking In.

The avalanche has also extended to branches outside of acting. The names of such foreign born directors as Ernst Lubitsch, of Germany; Eric Von Stroheim, an Austrian; Dimitri Buchowetski, the Russian, and Seastrom, the Swedish director, are all too well known to require comment.

A young English aviation engineer, Roy Pomeroy, leaped into fame overnight for his supreme technical achievement, the opening of the Red Sea in "The Ten Commandments." Paul Iribe, for years designer with Poiret and Paquin, expert in jewels and designer of Baron Rothschild's home in Paris, came to Hollywood to become DeMill's art director.

The "international" cast is in American pictures to give them tone and accuracy. Started by De Mille as an experiment, the idea has become a matter of course. Once a curiosity, a foreign actor in a motion picture is now not at all a novelty. In fact, the presence of foreigners in the studios has made them a literal Babel of tongues. For, besides the group at the top of the ladder, there are many climbers of foreign birth, encouraged by the success of others from their native lands.

MacDONALD WORKS HARD

Premier Is Hardest Working Head of Government in Europe.

LONDON.—Premier Ramsay MacDonald is the hardest working head of government in Europe, according to the claims of attaches at No. 10 Downing street.

He is always up by 6 o'clock, sometimes earlier, and does a full hour's work before breakfast. Then he goes directly to his desk again, and the day is filled with interviews, reports, appearance in Parliament, conference and what not—with just time wedged in for a hurried lunch.

It is usually midnight or later before the Premier gets away from Parliament. He returns to his desk again, and puts in another hour or so, getting to bed at 1 or 2 o'clock.

Members of the premier's staff declare that he never takes any exercise during the week. "He just hasn't the time," they insist.

Week-ends at Chequers, the country place, are the premier's only relaxations. But even then, he more often than not, carries his business with him, or arranges for important conferences which keep him quite as busy at Chequers as he would be in Downing street.

PEERS' ATTACK ON POLITICAL WOMEN

Female Ire Is Greatly Stirred By the Peers' Attack.

LONDON, Aug. 25 (Associated Press)—Lord Banbury, who as Sir Frederick Banbury, was among the most consistent diehards who ever sat in the House of Commons, has lost none of his conservatism since he shifted to the House of Lords.

His Lordship turned up a hornet's nest by declaring in opposition to Astor's bill to permit peeresses in own right to sit in House of Lords, mosphere of United States, British street.

that the contemplated action would lower the dignity of the upper chamber. The right which the bill would confer would affect only about a dozen peeresses, but it has always elicited strenuous opposition because of its supposed revolutionary tendency.

Did their lordships propose, Lord Banbury asked, that the body which for centuries had been a model of a parliamentary house should "lose dignity in order to secure efficiency by admitting women?"

But what has made women of England—in politics and out of politics—mad as March hares was Lord Banbury's accusation that women made an unfair exercise of the privilege of sex in their participation in politics.

"Where are we going to stop if we begin this way?" queried Lord Banbury. "Men and women are different and you cannot prevent a woman from exercising in Parliament the privilege of her sex which she had been accustomed to exercise. Women exercise their fascination unwittingly, and men could not treat them as equals in Parliament."

"All nonsense," said Dorothy Jewson, Labor Member of Parliament from Norwich. "Lord Banbury has opposed all progressive measures all his life."

"The noble Lord's speech is most ungallant and had it come from any one else it might have been taken seriously," said Lady Terrington, another woman M.P.

"There has been no loss of dignity since women came into the House of Lady Astor declined to make any comment on Lord Banbury's outburst. When he was in the House of Commons Lord Banbury antagonized virtually every reform measure which Lady Astor put forward and the parliamentary tilts between the venerable diehard and the vivacious American woman enlivened many sessions of the House of Commons. But they are the best of friends outside of politics, and Lady Astor asked to be excused from engaging in a controversy with an old friend.

HARVESTERS ARRIVE.

Ten Thousand Passed Through Winnipeg to Wheat Fields.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 25.—(Canadian Press).—More than 10,000 harvesters from eastern Canada passed through Winnipeg during week end en route to wheat fields of western provinces. Majority proceeded without delay to points in Alberta and Saskatchewan but about 1,400 will be allotted to Manitoba farmers. Among arrivals were many British harvesters brought out to assist with last year's crop and since settled in east.

There seems to be no limit to unique ways of earning a living nor to the things men will do to get money.

Leon Valens of Belgium, now playing American vaudeville, drinks for a living. He claims the world drinking championship. Downs 10 quarts of water or near-beer at one performance. His official record is 145 quarts in 2 hours 50 minutes.

How many would desert the greatest political gathering to see Leon "do his stuff"? We are a serious minded people.

BEER.

Drinkers in England have been ceremoniously honouring the memory of Ben Kenton, of London, who died in 1780.

Ben is one of the immortals to lovers of milder forms of firewater. He discovered the method of bottling beer so it could be shipped across the rolling ocean and into any kind of climate without the corks blowing out of the bottles.

He did not live in vain.

CIGAR.

One compensation for hot summertime is that less headache news is printed. Interesting things come to light. Professors Long and Uhlman, chemists at Lehigh University, announce they have perfected a cigar that will not break while carried in the pocket. The binder is made from tobacco leaf stems, pulverized and converted into paper.

To a smoker, this is the most important news of the day. Nothing is important, except relatively.

SICK.

How many days work a year do you lose by sickness? It's claimed by authorities that the time lost by American workers, through sickness, is equivalent to keeping a million men idle all the time.

A greater loss is the inefficiency of workers and executives who are neither sick nor well, but half-way between—"out of sorts."

"Health first" should be the goal. Health is the greatest asset. No personal sacrifice is too great to pay for it.

PRUSSIAN.

The same old story comes again—"Germany arming big forces fast, is French warning." Nollet, French War Minister, says Germany is training troops, making munitions and will soon have an army as formidable as she had in 1914.

Which is probably true. But the next big war, if any, will not be fought primarily with drilled troops and firearms. The chief weapon will be disease germs, followed by such pleasant things as "death rays," poison gas and crewless radio-planes.

The real menace is German laboratories, not munitions factories and troops.

UP.

An airplane for war purposes, flying 157 miles an hour with full military load, carrying two men with bombs and guns. Two hundred of these have been made for France. Orders have been placed for 200 others, more powerful and faster.

France is determined to rule the air. She fears a German come-back, and with good reason. It is easier to talk brotherly love when you are at a distance than when you live next to a neighbour with whom you have been fighting for nearly 1000 years.

DEAF?PHONES.

A talkless phone for deaf mutes is invented by William E. Shaw of Cambridge, Mass. It's worked by a typewriter at one end of the line making lamps light at the other end. There's an electric bulb for every letter of the alphabet.

When two people, who can neither speak nor hear, can communicate by "phone," it's time to repeat that nothing is impossible. Also that there's no obstacle that can't be overcome, no problem or predicament that can't be solved.

RAIN.

Nothing is as uncertain as the weather. Despite this, various insurance companies write policies against rain interfering with such things as ball games, street fairs and circuses.

They thought they had the rates figured out on a definite and permanent scientific basis by the law of averages. But the freak weather of the last few years causes unexpected losses to underwriters. Rates probably will be revised.

It's odd that individual gamblers who'll take a chance on everything, don't bet on the weather.

PRIDE.

A new hat will do more than anything else to keep a woman convict straight after she leaves prison, claims the prison department of Salvation Army.

Vanity is not the explanation. The new hat generates pride. Pride brings self-respect. Self-respect creates respect for laws, customs and standards of conduct. Woman's extreme love of finery makes her more self-respecting than man. That is nature's purpose, along with allurement of the male sex.

NIFTY.

Laziness, quite as much as necessity, is the mother of invention. An Ohio farm lad, dreading lifting heavy wagons to remove wheels and grease axles, invented the lifting-jack you use on your auto.

A recent instance near Paris, Mo.: Edgar Levings, to hurry his ploughing, adjusted his ploughs to the right depth, headed his tractor straight, started it off without a driver. Then he made his mules pull another gang plough, keeping pace with the tractor. Turned both at the end of each row.

MAGIC.

The Missouri farmer who made his plough-hauling tractor travel the length of his fields without a driver, while he drove mule-ploughs abreast, is ahead of his time.

The day will come when tractors will be adjusted to travel without drivers and turn about automatically at the end of the field. Automatic machinery is in its infancy. With wireless control the farmer will sit on his porch and watch the Iron Magicians do his work. Same in industry.

BOOTLEG.

The Rum Fleet off New York harbor is landing liquor in airplanes. It may not be many months until the flying machine will be the foremost problem of revenue agents. A Canadian plane is reported to take advance orders from N. H. farmers and drop its cargo, attached to parachutes, here and there as it flies low.

Criminals are quick to utilize new inventions. Airplanes will soon be widely used for smuggling and making raids and getaways. Some of the eastern cities already are adding flying squadrons to their regular patrol work.

LOVE.

The groom is 96 years old, the bride 74, the best man a young bachelor who has celebrated 104 birthdays. This, at a wedding in Beauvoir, Miss. All three are inmates of an old people's home.

The other day two aged men fought over the affections of an aged woman. Youth has no monopoly on love, though most old people do their courting in memory.

MOVIES.

Chicago has a movie theatre seat for every 18 of its population. Figuring three shows a day, with reels changed twice a week, about half the population must attend regularly. Probably typical of the situation nationally. What on earth did we ever do for amusement before the movies came? Ice cream "socials" and picnics would seem very dull to most people now.

Over half of Chicago movie theatres have disappeared in the last eight years. The tendency is toward super-theatres, featuring elaborate productions. The neighborhood movie, however, will be a permanent institution—until we get our movies by radio, production costs endowed by government and philanthropist.

MONKEY IN CHURCH.

Outcome of Question Asked By Pastor's Daughter.

BUTTE, Mont., Aug. 25.—(Canadian Press.)—With a monkey tied to a broomstick held by his 12 year old daughter, as she sat beside the pulpit, Rev. S. Colin O'Farrell, of Butte, last night preached to a big congregation at the First Baptist church, while the monkey chatted and chirped. During his sermon Rev. O'Farrell said that his reasons for bringing the monkey to the pulpit was because his daughter returned from school recently and asked him if she came from a monkey.

When asked what prompted the question, she informed him that her teacher so informed her while at school that day.

"The teachings that we are monkey-made instead of God-made must revert the coming generation to brutality beyond description. If man believes he came from a brute man believes he came from a brute

BOOZE DILUTED FOR U. S. TRADE

English and Germans Selling To Rum Runners Learn Tricks.

USE COLORINGS.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—If there is such an organization as the American Bootleggers' Protective Association it needs a representative in England, and at once.

At the behest of the House of Commons, J. Ramsay MacDonald and members of his Cabinet are seeking ways and means of putting a damper on operations in the British Isles which benefit American bootleggers. Not only are they seeking to prevent the shipment of liquor to the coasts of the United States, but they are seeking to stop financing operations here by those who seek capital for rum running ventures, as a majority of those who run the liquor from England to the American twelve-mile limit are financed by English capital. The Cabinet threatens to cramp operations unless its plans go astray.

Dilution of Liquors.

But it is not the Government alone that is seeking to injure the American bootleggers' business—it is the English and German agents of the American bootlegger. These gentlemen have learned much from their contact with their American confreres. Now they are said to know more about dilution of whisky than any American bootlegger. They have also learned a few tricks with caramel and other colorings.

"Bootleggers, or sellers of smuggled spirits, in the United States are being beaten at their own game," said a London dealer in wines and spirits, who, for obvious reasons, refused to have his name disclosed.

Fortunes in Trick.

"Your American bootleggers have been making huge fortunes by receiving smuggled spirits at the notorious Rum Row and then breaking the spirits down and selling the weakened and diluted product at a tremendous profit.

"Large quantities of whisky and other spirits are now being bought in England and dispatched to the free port of Hamburg. There the liquor is diluted and shipped to Rum Row in any craft available. As a result the bootleggers are being bootlegged, for the profit is actually realized in England and in Hamburg, the whisky being so weak when it arrives in the United States that further dilution on the bootleggers' part makes it unsaleable."

And the men who are bootlegging the bootleggers are laughing about it. It seems time for the Bootleggers' Protective Association to act.

TOURISTS SHOULD TRAVEL 2ND CLASS

Sightseers Will Find More Fun When Travelling Second Class.

CORK, Ireland, Aug. 25 (Associated Press).—The high cost of railway travel in the British Isles has aroused American tourists of limited means to an investigation of rates throughout Europe, and a general exchange of experiences has begun in hotel lobbies and the offices of tourist agencies as to how Americans can economize in their fares without suffering discomfort.

American parties returning from the continent, consisting largely of teachers, students and other persons of limited means, advised that travel is quite satisfactory in the second-class compartments in practically all the European countries this season. Even the third-class compartments may be used without discomfort in the daytime in all the much-frequented countries of Europe except Italy and Spain, where returned travellers found the second-class accommodations were the cheapest that persons accustomed to comfortable living could endure without actual distress.

Since the Great War there has been a noticeable change in the attitude of Europeans toward the various classes of travel. Economic upsets have also effected social changes, and in many European countries only war profiteers are riding first-class. A more interesting and better educated class of travellers is found in the second-class and even the third-class compartments.

OUT

Exports of leading farm products in the eight months that preceded March 1 were valued at 1308 million dollars. This was 6 per cent more than the corresponding eight months a year before, but the gain may represent prices changes instead of increased sales.

A larger handicap for the farmers is that the 1308 million dollars represented what EXPORTERS GOT. The price received at the farms was away below this figure. The farmer doesn't get the profit-piled-on-profits that are added as food moves to market.

SAVED

A serum that will reduce pneumonia deaths by a fourth or even a half is discovered by Dr. Floyd B. Felton. This is not medical jazz like monkey gland stories. Felton's method has been tried out at Harvard medical school and announcement of its success is sanctioned by conservative medical leaders.

Felton is a young man from Ohio, only 32.

Banting, discoverer of the insulin remedy for diabetes, also is a young man.

Watch the generation that now is reaching mental maturity. It and the generation now in the cradle probably will stamp out tuberculosis and cancer.

BEWARE.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

DANGERS OF MOTORING.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—"The way them motors dash about fair petrolises me with fright," is a quotation from Punch which is seasonable.

Will you please allow me to direct the attention of your readers to a recent motoring incident. Two Peterborough men were motoring north, from Lindsay to Fenelon Falls, on what many of your readers know to be a wide road. Upon hearing a horn sounding in the rear they immediately gave half of the road, but, nevertheless, the oncoming car dashed into them at the rate of over thirty miles an hour. This is merely a specimen of what all motorists are up against, but I invite your readers to imagine what conditions will be if we bring on the liquor traffic.

What man, for instance, will care to have his wife and family out in a motor car if he knows that, in addition to the reckless crazyites that we now have, there will be a lot of inebriates dashing around in motor cars not knowing how many people they may kill.

One does not require to have much business ability to see what a great injury this will be to the business of motor salesmen.

Men may vote and give all of their influence against the liquor traffic, but, nevertheless, if they win, the Moderationists will claim the right to subject these men and their families to this intolerable menace.

And yet the Moderationists talk about personal rights!

Peterborough. J. C. SMITH.

THE PREMIER'S VISIT.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Next Thursday will be a gala day for all Liberals and for all those who call themselves 'Liberal'-Conservatives. The latter cannot consistently call themselves Liberals and not be on the spot "when Johnny comes to town," nor will they consistently call themselves Conservatives and not be as the name Liberal-Conservative implies—ready for either party when it celebrates. Old-time Conservatives will be there out of curiosity, and not having any good reason for not accepting Mr. Gordon's kind invitation. But Liberal-Conservatives, like our worthy Mayor, will be on deck prepared for either party, or both, if such a contingency should arise. Let everybody go and hear why it is we have such good crops. As a Conservative, I wish our Liberal friends every success. "Come all ye faithful," whether wholly Liberal or only half-and-half, half Liberal and half Conservative, as the occasion may require, or both. Those who wanted the "good old double-barrelled name" have got it, and those who belong to the Liberal-and-Conservative" party will be right in it.

Let us all be there, anyhow, and give them a right good Canadian cheer.

Peterboro. CONSERVATIVE.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Your issue of Saturday contains an editorial headed "Welcome the Premier," in which the opinion is expressed that everyone, irrespective of their political views, should attend the Liberal picnic on Thursday and contribute to the ovation to Hon. Mr. King.

May I venture the suggestion that if Mr. King were being brought here under the auspices of some non-political body, such as, say, the Chamber of Commerce, to speak on matters of general interest to all the people, as their Premier, that assumption would be quite correct.

But, as I understand it, this is not the case. Mr. King is being brought here by the Liberal Association, as their leader, to speak on Liberal policy and principles, to defend the record of the Government during the past two years, and to advance theories and plans for the future, with which a large number of electors cannot agree.

Under these circumstances, I do not see how anyone could think that the members of the Conservative party should share in the welcome and cheer for a policy which they sincerely believe to be detrimental to the best interests of this country as a whole.

If, on the other hand, Mr. King does not intend to touch on political matters, but is merely coming as the Premier of Canada to greet the people of all parties, I am sure the Conservative party will turn out in large numbers to welcome him.

AUTO COLLISION.

Car Turned Turtle on Aylmer, When Hit By East Bound Auto on King.

What might easily have been a fatal accident occurred Saturday morning, when Mrs. R. Abbott, 176 McDonnel Street, while driving east on King Street, hit a south-bound auto on Aylmer Street, turning it turtle.

Despite the fact that the car landed on its top, the only injury sustained was a scratched arm by the driver of the south-bound car, which was badly damaged. The front of the frame of Mrs. Abbott's car was also damaged.

TO ACCEPT POSITION.

Owen D. Young Will Accept Post of Agent General of Reparations.

PARIS, Aug. 25. — (Canadian Press).—That Owen D. Young will accept the post of agent general of reparations have been confirmed in official French circles but his tenure of office can only be temporary because of his private business interests. He hopes that another prominent American may be found to succeed him. He has asked that Henry Robinson of Los Angeles, a member of the committee expert prominent in drafting the Dawes-Young reparation proposal return to aid in erecting and starting the machinery for beginning the work of the reparations.

There will be two floral parades at the Canadian National Exhibition on Flower Day, Saturday, August 30th.

SLEUTHS CALL MURDER

Claims Identity of Slayer, Yet Find No Motive.

Arrest Brother-in-Law.

Physician,, He Asks For Unnecessary Operation.

By Harold Matson.

SOMERVILLE, Mass., Aug. 22.—Police are saying of the murder David M. Noble, 35, real estate broker, that it was a prefect bungle.

When they rushed to the man's house on Central avenue they stumbled across his body in the doorway. He had been shot at close range through the head. He was fully clothed. His hat lay a few feet away. It was evident that his murderer had lain in wait inside the house, killing him as he entered the hallway.

At the bottom of the cellar stairs the police found Noble's brother-in-law, Dr. Raymond M. Thiery, lying in a pool of blood. His left ear was slashed with knife wounds. His face was scratched as if by fingers in a hand-to-hand struggle. There were numerous bruises about his body, bruises that might have come to him as he tumbled down the stairs, battling with another.

"Burglars," he mumbled.

But the police arrested the young doctor, charging him with the murder of Noble.

Right Arm Uninjured.

They accuse him despite the evidence of attack his body bears. Despite the slashed window screen where burglars might have entered. Despite Thiery's father's corroboration of having heard a shot and of running downstairs to be confronted by a stranger who held a smoking pistol. Despite the man's reputation as a respectable and promising young doctor. Despite his record as an unusual student in Harvard. Despite the numerous relatives and friends who stand aghast, unbelieving, as Thiery is booked as a murderer.

David W. Noble, found dead in complicated Somerville, Mass., mystery.

Had Thiery's right arm been slashed as was his left, had there been footprints on the lawn leading from the slashed screen window, had the bullet wound in Noble's head been that of a pistol and not a rifle, had there been no knife, property of Thiery, capable of cutting the wounds on his arm—and had there been no Mannlicher 'straight pull" rifle found secluded behind drawers in the pantry, then the police might have believed Thiery's story of burglars.

Surely, the bare evidence of the murder itself is the only direct clue the police have to the murder of Noble, for of motives there are only the strangest, illogical ones.

Emotional Differences.

It is true there was a financial transaction between the two men, and it is true that there were causes for emotional differences— things the police always look for in a murder. But the financial complication is one that could only benefit the accused in a far fetched manner.

It seems that Noble's wife, sister of Thiery, died early this year, that insurance policies, amounting to $17,000, were transferred over to the name of Noble's four-year-old daughter, and that Thiery was to be his niece's trustee until she became of age. The police look upon this arrangement as evidence of an amicable relationship between the two.

However, of late, the police have learned, Dr. Thiery took offense to Noble's attentions to another woman Thiery protested that Noble was not being faithful to the memory of Mrs Noble. But underneath this, in the theory of the investigators, Thiery feared for the disposition of the $17,000 insrance in case his brother-in-law should remarry.

Was Thiery's motive purely altruistic. Was he truly defending the memory of his dead sister? Or did he hope, by the legal title he held ove $17,000 worth of Noble's insurance, to collect it upon the man's death?

These questions are asked by the police who in the absence of evidence involving any other person, hold Dr. Thiery.

Yet, they doubt not at all that Thiery is their man.

They are not morrying about motives.

Such a perfect bungle, and premeditated in their opinion, is evidence enough.

Dr. Raymond D. Thiery, who is held for the murder of his brother-in-law.

NEEDED NECK SHAVES.

Teachers Crowded Banff Barber Shop For Treatment.

BANFF, Alta., August 25. — A temporary congestion in the barber parlours at the Banff Springs Hotel, followed the arrival of the Teachers' Federation party onSaturday. Other guests were compelled to wait patiently until the curly and straight shingles were attended to. Several of hte men of the party who contemplated a climb to the observatory on Sulphur Mountain, had to leave the hotel unshorn in the hope that they might get a place on their return. The party employed the day actively. Two carloads left early for Lake Louise. Other groups organized for climbing, riding and golfing.

Practically all of the 140 teachers, took a dip in the sulphur baths.

The interest in the cosmopolitan population of the hotel, which is full of tourists from all parts of the world, was much heightened by the presence of Prince and Princess Oblensky, the latter formerly Miss Alice Astor, who left this morning for Windermere by the Banff-Windermere highway, after a visit of a week at the Banff Springs Hotel. They will visit Lake Louise later.

The teachers' party left to-night for Edmonton, by special Canadian Pacific Railway train. A short stop will be made on Sunday at Saskatoon—the special arriving on Monday morning in Winnipeg.

Children's dancing contests and highland pipe band competitions will be a feature of Young Canada's Day at the Canadian National Exhibition.

An exhibit of ancient shoes, dating back to 450 B.C., will be one of the features of the Shoe Style Show at the Canadian National Exhibition. The collection is the only one of its kind in existence and is valued at $100,000.

Nova Scotia has taken the entire south wing of the Government building for a display at the Canadian National Exhibition.

AN INTERESTING TALK ON QUEBEC

Rotarian Dobbin Relates Story of Visit Through Old Province.

Rotarian Frank Dobbin gave an interesting talk on the old Province of Quebec, at the noon luncheon today. The speaker, having recently visited Quebec, stated in beginning that he had a few odds and ends in mind that would take away the members' thoughts from the responsibility of business for a few moments.

Speaking of some of the outstanding physical and historical features, he mentioned in particular the Feudal System, a relic of New France, which even to the present time has not been entirely abolished. Some of the larger grants have been handed down from generation to generation on which land dues are being paid and on which land dues are payable in perpetuity.

Dealing with the customs of the French Canadians, which would strike the stranger as peculiar, Rotarian Dobbin spoke of a queer contrivance serving a 78 year old habitant, a combination auto wagon, with mud guards and an extended rear end, serving as a dual purpose outfit, in the capacity of hay rack and general transportation vehicle.

The speaker was in a reminiscent mood, and in the course of his rambling remarks he spoke of the first warriors and explorers that served New France down to the movements of the Montreal reformers at the present time.

His talk was greatly enjoyed and proved a diversion from the usual conventional address on some national or scientific problem.

To-day's luncheon was the last to be held in the vacation period, and as announced by President McDermid, the real business period would open at the commencement of the fall term in September.

MRS. FERGUSON LEADING.

Estimated Her Total Majority Will Be About 100,000.

TAMPLE, Texas, Aug. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Additional returns today swelled plurality accorded to Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, anti-klan candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor in Saturday's run off primary in Texas. It was estimated at her headquarters that her majority over Judge Felix Robertson, Klan candidate would eventually total 100,000.

AMERICAN CLAIMS.

Two Hundred Americans Have Claims Against Germany Aggregating $12,000 000.

BERLIN, Aug. 25.—United Press—Two hundred Americans claims against Germany aggregating $12,000,000 have been adjusted during August in negotiations between United States agents of the mixed claims commission. This brings the total of claims settled to $100,000,000.

For 15 years Mrs. Monteith Erskine, wife of the British M.P., studied secrets of determining sex of children before they are born. FIVE CENT FARE PAYS.

Windsor Cars Show Good Surplus and Increased Traffic.

WINDSOR, Aug. 25.—Operations of Windsor's Hydro Electric street car system is now on a paying basis with a five-cent fare. The annual report of the system submitted to-night by W. R. Robertson, General Superintendent of the Ontario Hydro Electric Railways shows that the lines serving Windsor and adjoining municipalities last year carred 12,318-000 passengers, operated 1,772,766 car miles and netted a revenue of $688,-416.

For the year which ended October 31, 1923, operating expenses were 500,202, and interest and taxes $152,-437. Gross surplus over operating expenses and fixed charges amount to $34,463.

Of the 12,318-000 persons carried on the lines. 1,466,891 were transfers. The system operated 43,102 freight car miles. Since the system was taken over from the Detroit United Railways in April 1920, an increase of 136.5 per cent. has been shown in gross earnings the report states.

BAVARIANS HOLD BEER PRIZE.

They Drink 67 Gallons Per Capita Yearly—Holland Is Next.

MUNICH, Aug. 26.—Bavaria holds the world's record for beer drinking, at the rate of 67 gallons per person a year, according to a German statistician.

Holland is next with 54½ gallons per capita.

Ten years ago the average in England was 31½ gallons, but now it amounts to 39 gallons.

The French are the champion wine drinkers with 26.3 gallons per capita.

MARRIAGES SLUMP IN PETERBOROUGH

Women Fall Down on Job in Leap Year—No Alibi.

Matrimony in Peterborough is on the decline just now, though this is Leap Year. If you don't believe it, ask the City Clerk.

In the first seven months of last year there were 109 marriages solemnized against only 105 this year. That isn't so bad, but the cold weather of August so far must have had a chilling effect on love's sweet dream for only 6 couples have taken the plunge into the seas of matrimony this year against 21 last year. This brings the total from January 1 this year to to-day to 111 whereas last year's total in the same period was 130 marriages.

This city is not unique in the falling off of match-making for New York has declined from 19,389 licenses in 1923 to 18,775 in 1924. Over there they blame the Presidential election and the closing of the immigration bars. In Peterborough the women have no such alibi and must face the fact that in this, their year of grace they are falling down on the job.

TEACHERS LEARNING.

Ontario School Mams Taken Through Nickel Mine in Northern Ontario.

SUDBURY, Aug. 25. —(Canadian Press).—Ontario teachers reached here before seven o'clock this morning. They were met on the Station platform by a deputation from the Business Girls' Club under the guidance of President Miss Gayborough and escorted to breakfast.

After studying Geography of Sudbury, they proceeded by train via Copper Cliff to Creighton, where they were welcomed most cordially by officials of the International Nickel Company and shown the workings of the huge plant above the ground.

Perfect weather added greatly to the enjoyment of this lesson in Nickel Mining.

The Thiers Pearls, Which Were Ill Unto Death, and Were Nursed and Loved Back to Health. The Clasp of the Necklace Is a Magnificent Ruby.

SICK unto death, pining for the delicate, tender caresses of a beautiful woman, the most famous pearls in the world have miraculously been brought back to life and assumed their former position as the most valuable collection ever assembled.

The recovery of the love-sick pearls from what seemed like certain oblivion forms the climax of one of the most amazing romances ever conceived—a romance all the more remarkable because one of the principals was a mass of inanimate things, yet pining away, dying.

Fifteen years ago the Thiers necklace, composed of 145 perfectly matched, graduated rose pearls, was darkening, becoming ugly, old and withered in a glass case in the Paris Louvre. Pearl experts shook their heads. Nothing could save them, they said, but a "pearl mother." They wanted to be "loved."

But the Thiers pearls had been "sentenced for life" to the case in the Louvre. They were as much prisoners as though they were confined behind iron bars. The pearl experts made a careful examination of them and ruefully declared that their intrinsic value had shrunk to $25,000. Unless they were given the feminine companionship they craved they would surely die.

Some of the French officials laughed in scorn. It was impossible, they declared, that these inanimate things could be affected by an occult influence that would bring about their destruction. But there were others who did not laugh.

In time the Thiers necklace was missed frequently from its case in the Louvre. Plausible explanations were given by the officials. But the public was allowed to forget the famous pearls.

A few weeks ago the world was startled by an announcement from the French Government that the Thiers pearls, whose value when they were reported dying was generously placed at $25,000, had just been sold to the New York firm of Cartier for the enormous sum of $658,244, making them the most valuable collection of pearls the world has ever known! How their rejuvenation was brought about is told here for the first time.

The Thiers necklace was assembled by the wife of Adolphe Thiers, first President of the Third French Republic, who was known as the "Savior of the Territory." Already a very rich man when he was married in 1833, he presented his bride with three most unusual pink pearls.

Mme. Thiers loved these three pearls with a love that developed into a passion. With them as a foundation she started to build the necklace that was later to become so famous. The whole world was combed for suitable companions to the original three. Every gem that was added to the cluster had to be of the same delicate rose color, of the finest quality, and of a shape that would fit in with the gradation of the necklace. Long after the "Savior of the Territory" died, leaving his vast fortune to his widow, Mme. Thiers continued the search for rose pearls until three gorgeous strands were completed—146 gems in all.

While she lived Mme. Thiers spent hours every day with her treasures. When they were not about her beautiful neck she would fondle and caress them until they were a mass of glittering light and life. Queens and princesses coveted them, and several fabulously rich Eastern potentates sought to buy them. But Mme. Thiers refused all offers.

Mme. Thiers died in 1881. When her will was read it was found she had bequeathed the pearls, in trust, to the people of France. It was specified, however, that they must forever repose in a case with a glass cover in the Louvre. So they were placed in the Galerie d'Apollon, beside the famous Regent diamond, sole survivor of the crown jewels of France.

For a decade they smiled alluringly with 145 bright eyes upon the thousands of visitors who came to admire their great beauty. Then very gradually sadness seemed to descend upon them. Folks said the light was going out of them. Others declared it was only imagination, that they were as gorgeous as ever.

Mme. Adolphe Thiers, Who Collected the Famous Necklace.

Another decade passed, and another. Then there was no doubt that something was radically wrong with the pink pearls. They were slowly pining away. They had been accustomed to tender caresses, to loving affection. Instead of that, they were receiving only the vulgar stares of the curious multitudes. They were dying.

Something had to be done quick.

"They must have a 'pearl mother,'" someone advised, "who will give them affection and take them out in the air and the sunshine."

It was all very well to advise. But there was the will of Mme. Thiers. It provided that the pearls were not to be removed from their glass-covered case in the Louvre.

But it was a matter of life and death.

In 1911 the French Government passed a law—although the general public knew little about it at that time—permitting the pearls to be taken out at the pleasure of the officials of the Louvre.

Then they began to look about for a "pearl mother."

It is a well-known fact that some women cannot wear pearls. Romantic persons say these women do not love and the pearls know it and droop and fade away. Less romantic ones say that these antagonistic women exude iron and iodine, which affects the gems.

"All day she would sit on the sands in the sunshine, the pearls against her cheek, and a number of gendarmes guarding her."

On certain other women, who love the pearls, they thrive and prosper amazingly. Invariably these are beautiful women.

One of the most gorgeous women in Paris ten years ago, and to-day for that matter, was Mlle. Lillian Greuze, of the Opera Comique. She has valuable pearls of her own and adores them and they adore her. Her velvety skin and even temperament make her an ideal "pearl mother." Another was Cortola Valencia, Spanish dancer, who has lived in Paris for many years.

Lillian Greuze, Celebrated French Beauty, Who Was Selected to "Mother" the Sick Pearls.

Both of these beauties were considered as the "pearl mother" to the Thiers necklace, as was also Miss Lillian Russell, greatest of American beauties, and who made pearls smile and glitter as probably no other woman in this country could.

Mlle. Greuze was finally selected for the odd and responsible position.

It was then that the pearls frequently were missed from the Louvre.

Every day at three o'clock Mlle. Greuze would appear at the Galerie d'Apollon and the pearls would be placed about her beautiful neck. Accompanied by four gendarmes, she would ride down the Rue de Rivoli to the Place de la Concorde into the Champs Elysee. She would invariably stop at one of the famous cafes and then continue on to the Bois, returning to her apartment at the Hotel Meurice at six o'clock. Then, before dressing for dinner, Mlle. Greuze would spend an hour caressing and fondling the pearls, holding them against her velvety cheek, whispering silly nothings to them, loving them as a mother would her child. In the evening she would wear them to the opera, or to whatever function she was attending. Each night, no matter what the hour, the pearls would be returned to their case in the Louvre.

But they needed sunshine, too. So, on many occasions she would wear them to Deauville and to Biarritz and Nice. All day long she would sit on the sands in the sunshine, the pearls against her cheek or around her throat, a screen shielding her from the gaze of the curious, and a number of gendarmes guarding her.

Slowly but surely the pink pearls began to respond to the treatment. They became impregnated with the personality of the beautiful woman who was mothering them. They took on new life, new lights—or rather the old ones were restored.

Practically ever since, the gems have been in the care of a "pearl mother." Most of the time it has been Mlle. Greuze; but when it was impossible for her to have them other Parisian beauties took her place. In almost every instance the pearls prospered with these "foster" mothers, although with some of them they pouted and sulked.

The Cullinan (actual size), Largest Diamond in the World, Which Weighs 516.4 Carats. The Combined Weight of the Thiers Pearls Is 483.4 Carats.

The Thiers pearls were saved. A lesson had been taught, too. They could not be left alone. The French Government then began to form plans by which they might dispose of them. Conferences were held with heirs of the Thiers estate. Eventually a law was passed which permitted the sale of the pearls. It was decided that the money they brought should be divided into three parts, one for the Louvre, one for the Thiers heirs and one for charity.

What were they worth? No one could tell. Their total weight is 1,547 grains, or 483.4 carats, by which diamonds are weighed. The biggest diamond in the world, the Cullinan, weighs 516.4 carats; the Koh-i-noor, 160.5 carats, and the Hope diamond, 44.4 carats. Like these diamonds, the pearls could not be valued by carats.

So it was decided to sell them to the highest bidder. When word to this effect went out the great jewelers of the world were not enthusiastic. They knew the pearls had been sick. But on the 12th of last May they were gathered together in the Louvre for the auction. One glance at them showed how well Mlle. Greuze had nursed them back to health. They were as gloriously beautiful as ever, and brought the highest price ever paid for pearls.

The New York jewelers bought them as an investment. Whoever gets them eventually will probably pay $750,000 for them. There are about 300 prospective customers in this country. Not a queen or a princess in Europe could buy them. They are too poor.

Had the love-sick pearls not been nursed back to health by the beautiful Mlle. Greuze, they surely would have died.

PONIES PASTE PETES - TENNIS TITLE TO COBOURG - MAJOR LEAGUE MARGINS SHRINK

LARGEST CROWD OF SEASON SAW ROUT OF PETES

Kingston Win First of Central League Play-offs—Played Smart Ball.

WASTED CHANCES.

Defence Wobbled and Offensive Weak, Against Gallagher's Slants.

Kingston Ponies led by the scrappy Joe Daley with Knotty Lee acting as the board of strategy on the bench, secured a big edge in the Central League championship series by taking the first game from the Petes at Riverside Park on Saturday by the score of 5 to 1.

The largest crowd of the season, 2,400 people, including large delegations from all over the district, saw Peterboro go down to defeat in one of their poorest played games of the season. The stands were jammed and the overflow crowd stretched far into right and left fields making ground rules necessary. Incidentally the Pete were the losers by these same ground rules, when Rice of the visitors got two bases on an ordinary single into the crowd in left field while Frankie Collins' long hit to right on which he made third likewise went for only two bases under the rule. This is just an example of the way the breaks went during the game, which was one of those affairs in which the winners could do nothing wrong and the locals nothing right.

Petes Day Off.

After their long winning streak of nine games the Petes were due for a let-down and Saturday was decidedly their day off. Although Collins was the only one to err in the field the whole team seemed lifeless and lacked the dash and fight which had carried them through the second section honors. This was especially so on the attack where a combination of bad base-running and tough breaks cost several badly needed runs.

Gallagher was the pitching selection for Kingston and no mistake was made in the choice as the big left-hander held the Petes to six hits, three of which were made by Collins, who thus accounted for half his team's hits as well as their errors.

Kingston played nice ball and deserved the verdict on the day's play. Their fielding was clean cut their two errors having no part in the scoring of the Petes lone run, and they hit the ball hard and timely. Batstone had a busy day at third and accepted seven out of eight chances. Cherry was in the limelight with a nice catch from Harrison and Gallagher fielded his position faultlessly. The pitcher also led his team at bat, having a perfect average with three hits and a sacrifice.

Fans Didn't Help.

Al Heckman was not as effective as usual against Kingston but stuck to his guns and battled gamely after a heart-breaking first inning when Collins' misplays gave the Ponies two runs and a flying start. The third baseman of the Petes had a hard day and was not helped any by the razzing from the fans. His stop of Teeple's high bounder in the sixth was one of the best of the game but his throw to first was high and spoiled the play. He led his team on the attack with three hits and was the only member of the Petes to hit Gallagher with any success. Legon's fielding featured the locals play and his running catch of compeau's foul in the sixth was the finest effort of the day.

The series is not over yet and the locals are determined to make it all square on Tuesday at Kingston. They have played better ball all season away from home, particularly in the Limestone City and are not willing to concede the pennant to the Ponies without a desperate struggle.

Play by Innings.

Peterboro—Turner flied to Compeau. Holyman walked but was forced at second on Legon's bunt. Swanston popped to Batstone. No runs no hits, no errors.

Sixth Inning.

Kingston—Teeple was safe on Collins' bad throw after a great stop. Collins also threw high on Gallagher's bunt, giving the runner a life. Batstone sacrificed. Nickle fanned. Legon made a fine running catch of Compeau's foul fly. No runs or hits, two errors.

Seventh Inning.

Kingston — Somerville singled through short. Cherry bunted a fly to Swanston. Rice got two bases on a hit to the crowd in left. Purvis singled to centre scoring Somerville and Rice. Purvis was out trying to make second on the play, Teeple grounded to Collins. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Peterboro—Collins hit to right making third but was sent back to second on ground rule. Hall hit to Batstone and Collins was caught between second and third and run down. Turner lined to Gallagher and Hall was doubled off first. No runs, one hit no errors.

Eighth Inning.

Kingston—Gallagher singled to centre. Batstone flied to Legon. Nickle forced Gallagher at second. Compeau fouled to Collins. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterboro—Holyman grounded to Batstone. Legon died the same way. Swanston rolled to Compeau. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Ninth Inning.

Kingston —Somerville grounded to Johnston. Cherry flied to Legon, a nice catch. Rice grounded to Johnston. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Peterboro — Harrison flied to Cherry who made a fine catch on the run. Heckman singled to right. Johnston lined to Compeau and Collins fanned. No runs, one hit, no errors.

GALT'S THIRD TITLE

GALT, Aug. 25. — Apparently it makes little difference to the Galt Terriers what method is followed in determining the champions of the Senior Inter-County League, as Saturday they clinched their third successive title by defeating Guelph in the second game of the series between the two leading teams at the end of the regular season, and now are ready to start on their search for a third successive Ontario title. In 1922 and 1923 they won in the regular schedule but this year the league decided to have a play-off series, and they won two straight games.

NEW PADDOCK RECORD.

United States Clipped 2-5 of Second Off 250 Yard Mark.

NEW YORK, August 25—Charley Paddock of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, Saturday broke the world's record for the 250 yard dash when he ran the distance in 25 2-5 seconds at the Senior Metropolitan A.A.U. track and field championships. The team championship was won by the New York Athletic Club with 81 points. The Newark Athletic Club was second with 50 points.

Paddock, in cutting 2-5 of a second from the record made in 1888 by Charles Sherrill, then of Yale, and now a brigadier-general, flashed away from a mediocre field at the gun and gradually increased his lead to ten yards at the tape.

MORROW CUP TO COBOURG IN TENNIS FINALS

Lakeshore Club Carried Off Five of Six Matches From Peterboro.

REID WAS STAR.

Oshawa Second in Race By Winning Six Events From Port Hope.

Cobourg Tennis Club won the H. A. Morrow Cup by defeating Peterboro Tennis Club Saturday in five out of six events played. Mrs. J. A. Dewart won the only event for Peterboro. The Oshawa Tennis Club took six events from Port Hope and finished in second place one point behind Cobourg.

The results of the play at Peterboro were as follows:

In the Ladies' Singles:

Mrs. J. A. Dewart won from Miss M. Hayden. Score 6-3, 6-2.

In the Ladies' Doubles:

Miss C. Hayden and Miss E. Willmott defeated Dr. Phyiiss Young and Mrs. H. A. Cranfield. Score: 6-3, 7-5.

Miss C. Hayden and Mr. Reid won the mixed doubles from Dr. Phyliss Young and G. C. Scott. Score 6-0, 6-4.

Reid defeated Webber in Men's Singles. Score 6-3, 6-3.

Dr. Jamieson won from Dr. Hewett 6-1, 6-2, Cochrane anod Quillet won from Bowness and Jackson 3-6, 8-6, 6-3.

Cobourg's team all round was too strong for Peterboro and Reid who played in two events looked the best racket wielder to visit Peterboro in some years.

Mrs. Dewart's win over Miss M. Hayden was a surprise to Cobourg as the ladies' singles was always a sure event for Cobourg.

The final count ws:

Club	Won	Lost
Cobourg	24	12
Oshawa	23	13
Peterboro	20	16
Port Hope	5	31

The league was a success and the finish was close enough so that it was between Oshawa Cobourg and Peterboro on the last play-off.

There will probably be a meeting of the executive of the Central Ontario Lawn Tennis Association at Port Hope this week to wind up the season and officially present the Cup to the Cobourg Club.

The H. A. Morrow trophy is held by the winning Club for one year, but Mr. Morrow very kindly donated a miniature cup, an exact duplicate of the large cup which becomes the property of the winning club.

Local Tennis players are reminded that entries for the City Championship tournament are to be handed in by 6 p.m. Wednesday, August 27.

Entry blank can be obtained at The Peterboro Tennis Club. The Golf Club, Y.M.C.A. Weber's Drug Store or at 295 Margaret Ave.

SOUTH AFRICANS WON

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Aug. 25.—(Canadian Press Cable).—Twenty-five thousand spectators saw the representative fifteen of the British Rugby Union suffer defeat in the second test match here yesterday, when South Africa crushed the tourists by the score of 17 points to 0. The Old Countrymen's defeat was overwhelming and the Springboks played well for their victory.

COSTELLO TO ENGLAND

PHILADELPHIA, August 25.—Paul Costello, Penn. A. C. Sculler, will go to England this year in quest of the Philadelphia gold challenge cup now held by Jack Beresford of England, he announced Saturday. Beresford automatically won the cup by defeating Garrett Gilmore of Philadelphia, in the Olympic singles this year.

ENGLAND BANKS ON POLO STAR

MAJOR G. H. PHIBBS-HORNBY.

The English team which faces the American stars in the international polo test at the Meadowbrook Club, Long Island, next month, is said to be the most formidable o-ganization ever to invade these shores. And one of the outstanding stars of the British force is Major G. H. Phipps-Hornby, who plays No. 2. The major is pictured here mounted on his favorite horse.

G.W.V.A. BEATEN IN LOCAL PECK CUP SEMI-FINAL

The First Half Was Made Interesting as Richmond and Frich Scored.

SCORE 3 TO 1.

Play Was to Vets' Favour in Second Half—Richmond's Clever Goal.

For the two successive Saturdays, the Thistles have trimmed the G.W.V.A. in local soccer competitions. They came out of the Peck Cup final by the score of three goals to one in a very lackadaisical game. The Vets never struck their usual form at King Edward Park on Saturday, before a good attendance.

Game Described.

Both teams lined up at 4 o'clock. The Vets won the toss and decided to make the Thistle face the sun. From the kick-off Richmond made tracks for Griffin's charge but his parting shot missed by inches, although the goalie took care to see it roll past. Quick as a flash, Frick repeated the same performance at the other end, with a stinging shot, turned to Clark that Curtis punted clear. Mann returned to Clark who accompnaied by the centre forward worried the Thistle defense until Anderson, in a cool manner, walked away up the field with the ball at his foot. He parted across to the left wing player and with a s ' ging drive let Richmond have a try that skimmed the cross-bar. Griffin landed the ball to Dyer: the inside man worked close in upon the defense to find them very nippy at inner quarters.

Curtis Touched the ball Out.

At last he gained the advantage, and from one of his peculiar shots the ball was rolling through. The goal keeper threw himself at it and was successful in pushing it out into play, where Hanson finished poorly. At this period of game Bestard retired temporary to receive attention. On midfield play Mann was a thorn in the Thistle attack. Many a time he spoiled their intentions to make a quick raid. Laterly Ross held the centre half from making progress. Never hesitating to give his wing men a chance he sent Laidlaw down the wing, to gain a fruitless corner. Wasson cleared upfield, Dawson trapped quickly.

Two Goals in 5 Minutes.

He lifted into Vets' area, where Richmond caught the dropping sphere, as it was touching the ground. Crowe jumped into the fray aimlessly, whereby left the Thistle man to rattle in up again him, which deflected the ball past Griffin. Three minutes later Young at outside right, beat two Vets' layers on clever tactics, centered over the full-backs' heads. Again Richmond meeting the ball on the landing. He sent in a rocket drive that the Vets' goalie never saw, for the second goal.

Frick Registered.

At this reverse, the Vets showed some of the old-time pep which resulted in Clark getting the Thistle's full-backs on the hop. Tapping the ball backwards and forwards they went close in upon Curtis, who picked up a shot from Clark, but the ball caught Frick's knee to register. Play was becoming dilatory just before half-time, although Dawson received the hand for a low ground shot that Griffin had to go down on his knees to handle. Half-time: Thistle 2, Vets 1.

Half-Time.

On resuming, the Thistle were the first to make a show around the goal through the McPhail and Young combination. Bestard had his work cut out for him to watch them, and if it had not been for Mann at this point coming over to clear, no doubt, Griffine would have had trouble.

Vets All Over Them.

After this flash in the play, the game dropped back into a kick-and-rush style that proved deteriorating. This new method suited the opponents to a nicety, and pestered the Thistle half-backs and full backs unmercifully. Any time that they did get into the Jags' territory, Anderson mastered the situation without ruffling a hair of his head. You would see the cranium stop a mid-air drive, then the stalwart legs making shapes for the ball, but the Thistle right back was the dominating principle in nullifying all attacks, and was well backed with his club-mate, Rae, in the pinches.

Only Piece of Football.

After a severe attack by the Vets against Curtis, the latter gained relief when Gash put past in front of goal. The Thistle goalie placed the sphere to Richmond's foot. Mann tackled quickly, the Scot tapped it forward, run in between Crowe and Wasson with the ball at his foot. They kept at him as he went straight for goal, Griffine came out to frustrate the onslaught, but he was left standing viewing the third goal go up against his team. Thereafter, the game was uninteresting from a soccer viewpoint, and the Thistle putting the Vets out of the second successive Saturday competition by the score of three goals to one. Full-time: Thistle 3, Vets 1.

Goal-scorers: Richmond (3) and Frick.

The teams:

G.W.V.A.—Griffine, goal; Crowe and Wasson, full-backs; Underwood, Mann and Bestard, half-backs; Clark, Dyer, Frick, Gash and Hanson, forwards.

Thistle—Curtis, goal; Anderson and Rae, full-backs; Burgess, Dawson and Ross, half-backs; Young, McPhail, Richmond, Williams and Laidlaw, forwards.

WOMAN GOLFER WON.

Edith Cummings Outplayed Max Marston—Three Others Defeated.

FAIRFIELD, Conn., August 25.—The strange sight of women beating man, was flashed before an interesting gallery here Saturday when Miss Edith Cummings, of Chicago, national women's golf champion, won from Max Marston, of Philadelphia, men's national title holder, in one of four matches between men and women played over the links of the country club of Fairfield.

Miss Cummings, playing at the top of her game, caught Harston in the throes of bad golf, to win at three and two, claiming but three of her five bisques, the handicap allowed the women players.

Jess Sweetzer, New York, former amateur title holder, beat Miss Glenna Collett, of Providence, former women's champion two up, while Francis Oumet, the former national amateur and open champion from Boston, vanquished Miss Marion Hollins, of Westbrook, L.I., former title holder, three and two.

C.P.C. JUNIORS DEFEAT BIRDS

Young Packers Maintain Record of No Losses in Junior League.

SCORE WAS 3 TO 1.

The C.P.C. Juniors met the Grey Birds in a league fixture on King Edward Park on Saturday afternoon and a splendid game resulted in the Juniors retaining their undefeated record by 3 goals to 1.

The Grey Birds won the toss and Cross made a dash along the wing and centred right in goal. Gardener just headed wide of the mark from the goal kick. Strudley sent Mitchell away and the smart young player gave Fenner a handful. Williams, who played one of his best games, gave to Smith. He in turn sent to Gardener, who tested Bradley with a great drive. Bruce brought off a great save. The heat was intense, and it soon began to tell on the players. Strudley got under way and seeing Mitchell well placed, put the ball out to him, and he made no mistake and beat Fenner with a daisy cutter. The game was fast and even, each goal having some narrow escapes. Half-time arrived with the Juniors leading by 1 to 0.

Second Half.

After the usual refresher, the Grey Birds at once forced the game, and Jenkins ended a nice movement by sending over the bar. Hotson kept sending the ball well up the field, and the Grey Birds had hard lines in not equalising. Vinet just sent wide of the post. Hotson sent a huge drive up the field. Gardener trapped the ball, and in an instant sent it well out of the reach of the watchful Bruce, and made the game equal.

From the centre kick Carmichael gave to Foster, who made one of his tricky runs and made a great effort to put the Juniors ahead, Fenner fisting out. Strudley met the return, and sent just over the bar. The Juniors brought great pressure to bear on the Grey Birds' defence. It was at this period that Hotson and Somers showed what a capable pair of backs they are. Matchell and James kept sending in some terrific drives. Fenner gave a corner. Foster took the kick, and Tom Montgomery headed in a nice goal. The Grey Birds kept popping at Bradley. Considering the heat the game continued fast, and it looked as if there would be no further scoring. Strudley sent out to Mitchell, who raced away at top speed and sent to James, who beat Fenner with the best goal of the game. This infused new life in the Grey Birds, and Downer sent in a long drive which just crossed by inches. Halliday and Oxley were having their work cut out to keep the Grey Birds' centre from scoring. Time, however, arrived without any further scoring, and the Juniors left the field still undefeated, with the score of 3 to 1.

Wally James, the popular captain of the Juniors at the conclusion of the game, called for three cheers for the Grey Birds, which was heartily responded to.

Mr. Rickard made an excellent referee.

The Teams.

C.P.C.—Bruce Bradley; Halliday, Oxley; T. Montgomery, M. Strudley, Buchan; Mitchell, James, Carmichael, Robertson and Foster.

Grey Birds — Fenner; Somers, Hotson; Nicholls, Williams, A. Downer; Cross, Vinet, Gardener, Smith, and Jenkins.

LOCK WORKS PLAY WESTCLOX TUESDAY

Deciding Game in First Half of Mercantile League at Riverside.

The big battle of the Mercantile League will be staged tomorrow night at 5.30 p.m., when the Westclox and Lockworks meet for the championship of the first half. This game had to be postponed till an open date was secured at Riverside Park and when the Bankers defaulted to the Quaker Oats, Tuesday evening was left open. This was immediately taken hold of by the league officials to settle the championship of the first half.

Tomorrow night's game should be a dandy. Both teams are capable of playing good ball and each boasts a snappy aggregation or stars. These two teams have met twice in league fixtures, each winning a game. The Westclox took their victory by a one run margin while the Lockworks won by three runs. Both teams are well fixed for pitchers, the Lockworks boasting two left-handers and a right-hander while the Westclox have two right-handers.

The teams will in all probability line ups as follows:

Lockworks—Thorndyke, cf; McDougal, 2b; Hunt, 3b; Collins, c; Jobbit, ss; Black 1b Hunter, Nicholls, field; Connors, Donnelley and Neary, pitchers.

Westclox—Hensley, ss; Barrie, 2b; Lundy, 3b; Hardill, 1b; Prosser, c; Baptie, Stokes, O'Brien field, Wolfe and DeGraw, pitchers.

The game will get away at 5.30 sharp owing to it getting dark so early, and the fans who attend are assured of a great game. Their is no admission charge for this game but the hat is passed.

RED BELTS.

The wide red leather belt with the large buckle of patent leather is seen on the dark-blue rep dress or the one of the black and white shepherd's check.

TEN PLAYERS ADMIT DEFEAT FROM WOOLLENS

Pellow Failed to Turn Up—Woollens Won Two More Points.

To lose the services of four players in one week left the Quakers short-handed for the league game at the Oval against the Canadian Woollens on Saturday afternoon. With only ten players against eleven they had to admit defeat by 4 goals to one.

First Half.

The Quakers had difficulty in fielding a full eleven against the much improved Canadian Woollens, the versatile Frank Honor taking the place in between the sticks instead of Dellow who failed to turn up. Undaunted the Quakers made things interesting in Woollens' half and registered first through Green who left Hillman no chance to stop. Exchanges were even thereafter until Hodgson equalized on an accurate pass from SaSyers on the left. It was now a battle for the leading goal which ultimately fell to Mitchell to do the needful with a header. A fast travelling ball kept the players on the alert until half-time arrived.

Half-time—Woollens 2, Quakers 1.

Half-Time.

On resuming, the many new faces on the Quakers team felt the strain of a fast gruelling tussle which the trained-to-the-minute Woollens were playing. Upon an individual effort Mitchell added to the score from a ground pass by Hodgson. The half-backs of the Woollens never allowed the Quaker forwards any latitude in the dreaded area. As usual Blowers was prominent with his long drives for goal that had the Quaker's goalie guessing. There was no more player attracting the soccer fans' attention than Foster at right half, who was placing and feeding his wing men to advantage. Just before the finish Roberts scored his first goal in two season. Full-time—Woollens 4, Quakers 1.

Goal scorers—Mitchell 2, Hodgson and Roberts for Woollens, and Green for Quakers.

Woollens—Hillman, goal; Chambers and Cridland, full-backs; Foster, Monkman and Blowers, half-backs; Gaskill, Roberts, Mitchell Hodgson and Sayers, forwards.

Quakers—Hosnor, goal; J. Willshaw and R. Willshaw, full-backs; Scott, Metcalfe and Walker, half-backs; Mayette, Green, Wyllie and Craig, forwards.

Referee—Jack Clark.

HOME TEAMS IN SOCCER BEATEN

All But One of Visitors In Scottish League Successful Saturday.

RANGERS LEADING.

LONDON, Aug. 25. — (Canadian Press Cable).—The unexpected happened in the first division of the Scottish Football Association on Saturday when out of 10 games played only 1 home team emerged victorious. This distinction went to Mother well who crushed Greenock Morton by the comfortable score of 3 to 0. The remaining 9 games resulted in four wins for visiting teams, and five drawn contests. The defeat of Heart of Midclothian by Ayr United was a surprise, particularly since the game was played on the Edinburgh's grounds.

Leadership of the league was assumed by Rangers who after their victory of one to nothing over the Aberdonians, coupled with the failure of Falkirk to register a win against the newcomers, St. Johnstone, ran to the top of the table.

The game between Celtic and Dundee was hard-fought and ended in no side securing any advantage over the other. They split the points, which makes the Glasgow men's third consecutive draw.

In the Second Division Stenhousemuir sallied to the top of the standing by virtue of a win over the new comers from the Third Division Arthurlie. In the scheduled games, six home teams carried off the palm, Stenhousemuir, King's Park, Dundee United, Broxburn, Athletic, Armadale and Albion Rovers. There were three drawn games, Alloa and Bathgate Clydebank and Arbroath, East Stirling and Dumbarton. East Fife was the only visiting club to score a victory, sending Dumfermline down to the tune of 4 goals to 0.

ANOTHER TITLE TO MISS WILLS

Won U. S. Mixed Doubles With Vincent Richards—Australian Pair Lose.

TILDEN A LOSER.

BROOKLINE, Mass., August 25.—Veteran tennis invaders were beaten back and veteran champions were dethroned when the Kinsey brothers of San Francisco defeated Gerald Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood, of Australia for the national doubles championship Saturday and Miss Helen Wills and Vincent Richards won a stirring match from Mrs. Molla B .Mallory and W. T. Tilden 2nd national mixed doubles titlists, for two years. It was a triumph for America's younger school of players.

The Kinseys—Robert G. and Howard O.—defeated the Australian Davis Cup stars, 7-5, 5-7, 7-9, 6-3, 6-4 by winning six straght games in the fourth set after the Antipodeans had established a three game lead toward their third winning set. It was an unexpected victory that came as much through tennis strategy as through actual play.

The success of Miss Wills and Richards which brings to the California college girl every major tennis title invovling women in the world this year was surprising and even more sensational in strokes. The scores were 6-8, 7-5, 6-0. Angle shots flipped from backhand gets by Richards, hand by Miss Wills combined to make the result, which included defeat of Tilden's cannonball service by the youngesters again and again, and rallies between Miss Wills and Tilden in which the girl held her own through several exchanges. Final success came after Tilden and Mrs. Mallory had won the first set, and led 5-4, needing only two points to win the second set and match.

OSHAWA BASEBALL TEAM IS HARD HIT

Five Members of the Club Executive Hand in Resignations.

OSHAWA, Aug. 25.—Five members of the executive, including the President, C. M. Anderson, and the Vice-President and Manager, C. J. Schultz, of the Oshawa baseball club, tendered their resignations at a meeting of the executive committee held in the Y.M.C.A. The other officers to resign were: Chas. Davis, treasurer; E. Parson and W. L. Mitchell of the executive; F. Chester, secretary; R. Kerby, Wm. Coad and W. Fair; the remaining members are more than likely to offer their resignations. However, at this time they are out of the city and no definite report can be secured.

Organized baseball in Oshawa has not received the support necessary to carry on, the travelling expenses have been killing, and the Parks Board 20 per cent, at the gate has not assisted matters. Mr. Davis estimated that it required an attendance at the gate every time to meet expenses, and his attendance has not been in evidence.

The officers in resigning at this time are doing so that the incoming executive can avail themselves at once of the facilities for organizing the 1925 team, and deciding if they want to enter the team in the Central Ontario League or some other league where the jumps are shorter and with a consequental reduction in travelling expenses.

The resignations are being forwarded to E. Bradley, president of the Oshawa A.A.A., with a suggestion, based on the retiring executive's past experience, that a meeting of the O.A.A.A. be called in the immediate future to make arrangements for 1925 ball.

JUDGE FALK AND HORNSBY PROUD OF SLUGGING NEPHEWS

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 23.—Austin capital of the largset state in the union, has more than that single reason to feel distinguished.

Last week Judge John W. Hornsby and Judge Henry Falk got together in a discussion of this and that.

The former casually remarked that his nephew, Rogers, is again leading the National League in batting. Whereupon Judge Folk returned, "Oh, stop bragging, look what my nephew Bib is doing in the American League." At the time Bib was leading the American League batters.

"Yes sir! And Rogers was raised right here in Austin," Hornsby boasted.

"So was Bib," put in Falk. "In fact, this still is his home."

The news got around the town with the usual speed that hot gossip travels in towns the size of Austin Austin threw out its chest when it learned that its two distinguished sons were leading the two big leagues in batting at the same time. This was something unparalleled in the history of baseball.

Falk went into the American League lead in early June by dint of a sensational batting spurt, during which he averaged two hits a game for a week. Hornsby has led the National League hitters almost from the start of the season.

The rise of Falk and Hornsby to stardom in the majors has been sensational! Rogers first came to notice in Fort Worth in 1913 in a high school league after his family moved from Austin. His brother, "Pep," was a star pitcher for the Dallas team in the Texas League. He persuaded Joe Gardner, owner of the Dallas club, to give Rogers a trial.

The younger Hornsby was a wonder in the field, at short but poor at bat. Gardner advised him to go out to a smaller league and in due time Rogers joined Hugo. Okla., later shifting to Denison. Tex., where he was signed by the St. Louis Cardinals in 1915.

Falk first attracted attention when he was with Billy Disch's University of Texas Southwestern Conference champions in 1919. He pitched played first base and outifeld.

In 1920 Kid Gleason of the White Sox saw him in an exhibition game and prevailed upon Owner Comiskey to sign Falk. The transaction was made. Now Bib is ragarded as one of the best looking players in the American league.

Falk has a young brother in Texas now who looks even better than Bib did in his college days.

OF SCARFS, GEMS AND BEADED BAGS

And Other Sundry Little Things—Fashion Hints.

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Aug. 25 (United Press).—Just now Summer styles are well on their way. Everybody knows what is being worn as far as frocks and hats go. It is the new accessories which renew last month's costume and give it a last minute appearance. Too much stress can not be laid on the value of costume accessories. Many women feel that when they have purchased a frock, a hat, and matching shoes and hosiery that they have a completed outfit. But this is far from true nowadays. The costume has to have some highlight—some odd little accessory which catches the eye. This season there are many such accessories.

In the first place the scarf is of utmost importance. No well-dressed woman appears on the street in a Summer frock that is cut low at the neck and is sleeveless without some sort of a neckpiece to distinguish her costume from the dinner frock. Since street frocks and dinner frocks are of like cut and fabrics this year one must wear some sort of a scarf if one does not wish to appear too sleeveless and low-necked on the street.

The gayly colored scarf has been much overdone. Better dressed women are no longer wearing them as they prefer scarfs of the same fabric as the frock or plain colored scarfs which carry out the main color of the frock. A scarf and frock idea which carries out the Summer vogue is illustrated in a canary yellow georgette dress of one-piece lines with a matching scarf attached a' the back of the neck. The dress is made without a belt, but tiny tucks at the side waist-line tend to suggest a figure. There are no sleeves with this frock, and the neck is rounded in front and cut straight across the back where a straight piece of goods is attached to form a scarf. The ends of this scarf are finished with wide yellow silk fringe. A wide-brimmed leghorn hat has a binding of yellow velvet about the brim, and its crown is made entirely of yellow velvet. While this outfit seems a bit dressy for street-wear it is a type that may be found any warm day on Fifth Avenue.

Then the Handbag.

A Summer accessory which is popular is the white beaded handbag. These are invariably carried with the light Summer frock. White Canton crepe, beaded with irridescent beads, are very popular. These are just the ordinary shaped handbags with white rings at the top of the bags through which is run a white silk cord.

Even the gay colored silk handkerchief becomes an important accessor Care must be taken that the kerchief matches exactly the shade of the frock. Too much attentirn can not be placed on these little fine points of dress. To illustrate this point I shall describe three girls who appeared at Long Beach last Sunday. All three were dressed in the popular white flannel sports frocks. two of these girls passed unnoticed while one girl drew considerable attention. Instead of wearing the over-popular white felt hat with the white outfit, she had chosen a canary yellow felt—a soft lovely shade. Her white stocking had yellow clocks at the sides. Her white silk handbag was beaded in pale yellow beads. Tucked in her breast pocket was a silk handkerchief which exactly matched the yellow of her hat. Her accessories gave her mediocre frock an important air.

And the Jewels.

Jewellery is also considered an important accessory, and it need not be costly to be important. But—it must bear some purpose toward carrying out the scheme of the frock. Inexpensive jewelry is always ghastly unless its color suggests something that the frock lacks or unless it is decidedly new and interesting to the eye.

Even the necklace should be chosen with care. A person with an overplump throat should never choose a choker necklace. Long chains with pendants are more slendering to the wearer. Persons with slender throats, on the other hand, will find that the choker tends to enlarge the appearance of the neck. And at present we have the new chokers which have pendant attachments which hide the hallow in the centre of the neck. These are new and flattering to the slender person. Choker necklaces continue to use the large round or square beads, and When pendants are added they are made of smaller beads of the same shade in fringe effect or flat medallions. Some pearls of large size in both gunmetal and regular pearl shades are new and interesting. Both chokers and long chains are made of these.

A Little Color.

With the dressy frock crystals remain popular and pearl chains with green emerals colored glass placed at intervals are also good. Plain pearl chains are not as popular as they have been. One can purchase unstrung emerald colored beads at the art counters and string them with one's pearls at a small cost.

Bracelets continue to be popular. Just now the upper arm bracelet is more popular than the wrist bracelet, there are upper arm bands which have seven and eight rows of tiny pearls attached to a flat clasp of silver. Round enamel bracelats are also worn above the elbow. Slave bracelets have proven that they were but a passing fad as one sees few well-dressed persons wearing them.

'VARSITY COACH PERFORMS FEAT

Accompanied By Wife, He Swam Three Miles Yesterday.

An endurance test was performed yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Smith, who swam across the east end of Lake Simcoe, a distance of three miles.

Starting from Orchard Beach they landed near the Simcoe Ice Company Storage Plant. As the couple puled into shore, they were given a rousing reception by the large crowd that witnessed the performance.

Mr. Smith is a Varsity coach and is a strong swimmer.

COLBORNE LEADS IN LEAGUE RACE

Next Game Will Be at Roseneath—The League Standing.

BRIGHTON, August 25. — By defeating Brighton in a hard fought game on Wednesday, Colborne is now in front in the Northumberland league parade. It is true that they had one piece of luck in getting a game from Campbellford by default, but their other victories have been well earned. However it is by no means a certainty that Colborne can retain the leadership. Their next game is in Roseneath and judging by the way Roseneath has polished off their last three visiting teams, Colborne must hustle to win. Despite the fact that their place in the league play-off is assured, Roseneath looms up as a prominent factor in the second series race. With Leach and Dunnett both available, they have the best pitching staff in the league and their infield has proven better than Orland's, which was class ed as "all star" at the beginning of the season.

The reversal of form shown by Hastings is one of the biggest surprises of the season. The team has fighting spirit galore, and that alone has carried many teams a long way.

Brighton's young team must be counted in the running for a week or two at least. With only three of last year's regulars in the line up Brighton has won eight games out of 15 and only once has the team failed to give their opponents a good battle.

Campbellford is very likely to come through and beat the whole gang to the wire. This team always starts slowly but finishes at a pace that their other opponents generally find difficult to equal.

Orland is apparently out of the race but by winning all their remaining games they might work into a three cornered tie. The failure of this team is hard to explain. With the material at their disposal they should have won the Clarke cup with ease, but like many another favorite the team failed to deliver.

The correct standing now is:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Colborne	4	1	.800
Brighton	3	2	.600
Roseneath	2	2	.500
Hastings	2	2	.500
Campbellford	1	2	.333
Orland	1	4	.200

Games for Wednesday, Aug. 27th, are:

Colborne at Roseneath.
Orland at Brighton.
Campellford at Hastings.

The Turf

The fast pacing horse, "Major Hall," 216 1-4, owned by Stan Biewett, and driven by Ed. Jones, won the 2.20 and the 2.17 pace at Brockville last Thursday and Friday. This horse looks like a real good pacer.

MAY LOSE BATTERY.

Harold Dainty and Al Tyson, the battery of the Oshawa ball team of the Central Ontario League, may not be seen in a local uniform next year. Among the clubs that are after their services is the Typos of Hamilton, and it would not be surprising to see both of them playing in the Ambitious City next season.

GREAT WHITE WAY LIVES IN BELASCO FILM

Chorus Girls in Screen Version of "The Gold Diggers."

Broadway—its myriad of lights, the flash and gayety of its night life, its brash, swirling crowds—was transported three thousand miles recently, when the immense stage of the Warner Brothers studio became, for the nonce, a Broadway musical comedy show.

The occasion was the filming of Belasco's epochal stage success, "The Gold Diggers," which opens at the Capitol to-night.

Chorus Girls.

Real chorus girls with experience in the Follies and Winter Garden were employed to give the scene the utmost realism, and to secure the proper atmosphere. In addition, an immense stage, boxes, orchestra pit and seats for 700 people were laid out, and when Director Harry Beaumont called "camera!" a company of a hundred persons were on the stage.

Hope Hampton has the featured role in this picture, which deals as everybody knows, with a number of theatrical girls, their adventures with men in the financial world, and the ease with which they manage to extricate the elusive dollar with utter ease and dignity.

Jerry Lamar.

Hope plays the part of Jerry Lamar, the finest digger of all the gold digging tribe. Jerry, however, differs in that she never forgets the fine home surroundings of her youth, nor the factr that she has a good mother. By he influence, she keeps her "fellow-workers" toeing the mark, and keeping to the straight and narrow path, although an outsider—unacquainted with the ways of gold diggers—would think otherwise, and feel he was in a den of iniquity. Jerry's motto is "dig while the digging is good," and how she succeeds is shown to perfection in this Warner Brothers classic of the screen. But in addition to digging for herself, she proves the good samaritan to a pair of lovers, Violet and Wallie, who are threatened with disinhesitance and poverty if Wallie dares to marry a chorus girl. Jerry manipulates matters so that the young couple not only marry, but the uncle is obliged to confess that show girls are not the bad ones they are painted to be.

The entire supporting cast in this David Belasco production consists of Hope Hampton, Windham Standing, Louise Fazenda, Gertrude Short, Alec Francis, Jed Prouty, Arita Gillman, Peggy Brown, Margaret Seddon, Johnny Harron, Ann Cornwall, Edna Tichenor, Frances Ross, Marie Prade and Louise Beaudet.

AT THE ROYAL.

ADVANCE NOTES SAY BEN ALEXANDER FILM ONE OF BEST OF 1924.

Cast includes Lloyd Hamilton, Matt Moore, Patsy Ruth Miller, Mary Carr, Dan Mason, Victor Potel, Harry Todd, Cameo the Dog Wonder.

Those who have been fortunate enough to review "A Self-Made Failure," the J. K. McDonald production which First National is scheduled at the Royal Theatre to-day, have pronounced it one of the best pictures of 1924.

The producer of this film has the record of making two of the best pictures of the season, "Penrod and Sam" and "Boy of Mine" and he had followed up those successes by a third that is even more human and appealing than the two which installed him as a member of the cinema hall of fame.

Whatever may be said of McDonald it must be admitted that he knows picture audiences and their demands. Unlike most producers he plans his pictures scientifically and with an exactitude that shows a considerable knowledge of the science of human psychology.

The plot revolves largely about the adventures of Ben Alexander and Lloyd Hamilton and Direetor William Beaudine has designed to stoop to slapstick where he was sure that slapsticks and hokum were demanded. But these are not the only ingredients of "A Self-Made Failure." There is pathos a-plenty, and there is real physical veauty in the settings and many of the alluring scenes.

The entire picture reveals a wide insight into human nature and is a criss-cross between humor and genuine drama. The cast includes: Ben Alexander, Lloyd Hamilton, Matt Moore, Patsy Ruth Miller, Mary Carr, Sam De Grasse, "Chuck" Riesner, Victor Potel, Dan Mason, Harry Todd, Alta Allen, Priscilla Moran, Joe McCray and "Cameo," the dog.

"FAST STEPPERS" AT ROYAL.

Another of the race-track series, which have become so popular at the Royal, will be shown to-day, "The Shooting Star." All this series are complete in themselves, and feature Billy Sullivan. To-night's Fast Steppers has more comedy and action than any to date.

"THE NET" PROVES INTERESTING AND THRILLING.

Head Cast of Screen Artists.

"The Net," a William Fox offering of mystery and thrills, directed by J. Gordon Edwards, opened today at the Regent Theatre for a three days run. Mr. Edwards, whose previous Fox specials include "The Queen of Sheba" and "Nero," has made the most of the vast romantic and adventurous material at his disposal. Suspense increases with the unfolding of each situation.

Barbara Castleton, portraying the leading feminine role of young Mrs. Norman, is convincing at all times, dividing honors with Raymond Bloomer in the part of her wayward young husband and Albert Roscoe as the man, the unknown.

The exteriors in this picture are particularly beautiful and the interiors at all times are distinguished by the taste that characterizes the homes of people who have always had wealth and know how to use it to the best advantage. Such artistic interiors are so seldom seen in pictures that we make it a point to comment upon.

"The Net" gets it title from the circumsatnces that close in tighter and tighter around the people in this picture. The story has to do with young Mrs. Norman, unhapily married to man who appreciates her only for the money that she gives him to spend in a profligate way. She however wearying of his temper, his harshness, his irascibility, leaves to go to her cousin, an artist in the city. Norman follows and in the cousin's handsome studio a display of temper and violence takes place that results in direst tragedy, when in comes the man, a limp, sagging specimen of manhood who has lost his memory—how no one knows.

It is here that Director Edwards gives the story the twist that differentiates it from the general run. Inasmuch as the mystery which is revealed near the end, shrouds the story from here on, we won't spoil your enjoyment by telling you all about it. Suffice it to say that the romantic element strives with the adventurous for supremacy, the suspense not slackening.

NEWARK, August 25. —Arthur Spencer of Newark, formerly of Toronto, clinched the bicycle championship of the United States here Saturday when he won the two mile national championship race, the seventeenth of a series of eighteen races to decide the United States title. Spencer defeated Cecil Walker of Australia; Alfred Goullet, of this city and Fred Spencer of Plainfield.

DEATHS.

Auto deaths increase—81000 in the first six months this year. It's fine to have safety days. But safety first must become a HABIT, vigilance constant.

Danger is present every day. Caution should be, also.

Drive slowly. And remember particularly that August is the greatest month for railroad grade-crossing accidents.

CURRYCOMBS

Another ancient device seems doomed—the currycomb. A vacuum cleaner attachment is taking its place, and is said to do a better job, in addition to greater speed.

If Abraham Lincoln came back to life, he wouldn't recognize nine-tenths of the devices we use in our modern complex civilization, let alone know how to use them until instructed. The same would be true if we, now living, could return to earth in the year 2000. However, people continue doing the same basic tasks, generation after generation, only the tools change.

BUNK

"Shirtsleeves to shirtsleeves in three generations," is an old saying. It means, as you know, that in three generations of rich heirs the wealth of a family becomes dissipated—passes into other hands.

This old saying is bunkum in most cases. It is based on the supposition that all sons or grandsons of the rich are spendthrifts, which isn't true. Especially in our day, when crafty lawyers show rich clients how to freeze their money in trust funds so the principal cannot be touched even if the interest can be flung to the four winds.

DARROW MAKES A LAST STAND TO SAVE BOYS

Character Analysis Based on Hereditary Environment Was His Theme.

LED BY BOOKS.

Congressmen, Judges, Lawyers and States Attorneys Have Done Wrong.

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—(Canadian Press.)— Character analysis based on hereditary environment was the theme of Clarence Darrow to-day as he pleaded anew before Judge Caverly for the lives of Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, kidnappers and murderers of Robert Franks.

"Weird, mad act" of youths was mentioned only incidentally as the veteran of the bar went back of the crime itself to trace from childhood influences which surrounded his clients. The effects of these he acknowledged could not be told with a certainty but limits of human knowledge were blamed for that.

"He spoke of "Dickie Loeb" and said that phantasy of being able to produce a perfect crime grew naturally from the youth's habitual reading of detective stories, super imposed by a brain forced like hot house plant to absorb book after book.

His parents might have done better if they had not had any money, he declared.

"Nature is strong and pitiless. She works in her own mysterious way and we haven't much to do with it ourselves. Let us be honest with each other. We all know that youth is without thought and without care.

"Congressmen, judges, lawyers, yes even States' attorneys have in youth done something wrong. That they were not caught is their own

FIRST HARWOOD TRIAL OF KIND IN 25 YEARS

Village Grocer Charges Toronto Camper With Trespass Before Magistrate Floyd.

AWARDED 15 CENTS.

Town Hall Packed With Spectators, Interested In Innovation.

The little village of Harwood was the scene of considerable excitement on Saturday, when the first legal action in the past quarter of a century was tried in the Town Hall. It is twenty-five years since such an event took place in the village, and the hall was crowded with spectators from the surrounding countryside. The decision by the learned judge resulted in a judgment of fifteen cents being levied against the defendant, with costs divided between the plaintiff and the defendant.

The issue was an action for trespass brought by N. E. Merriam, grocer, of Harwood, against David Sinclair, of Toronto, who came to Harwood just a week ago and camped on property owned by Merriam, who bought a portion of the right-of-way of the old Grand Trunk Railway, running from Cobourg to Harwood, that section which runs through the village and borders the lake.

David Sinclair, with his wife, came from Toronto a week ago and put up a tent on the land beside the road leading to the dock. He did not ask permission of Mr. Merriam, who came forthwith and ordered Sinclair off. The latter refused to leave, and Merriam served a summons on him, the action being held in Harwood last Saturday, the first court case in the village since a quarter of a century back, when a man was fined two dollars for theft of a rooster.

The right-of-way purchased by Merriam had been a commons for the past thirty years, and a contention made at the trial by Mr. Wilmot, of Cobourg, who acted as the defendant's lawyer, was the fact that the railway had abandoned this right-of-way thirty years ago and given a quit claim deed for it. J. B. McColl of Cobourg acted for the plaintiff, to whom Police Magistrate Floyd, of Cobourg, awarded fifteen cents damages, with costs of the action divided between plaintiff and defendant.

The early trial of the action was caused by the fact that Sinclair's departure for Toronto was scheduled for yesterday, and the Magistrate came to Harwood in accordance with the new ruling that takes the judge to the case whenever possible.

One of the interesting features of the hearing was the evidence of Sinclair, who testified that he was a returned soldier, and had pitched his tent in the place chosen because several Americans were camping on the same right-of-way. His contention was that the others were allowed to remain in peace in their location because of the fact that they bought all their supplies at Merriam's store and also rented boats from his livery, while he, Sinclair, dealt with a rival merchant in both sections.

This case, and the judgment rendered, has a peculiar signigficance to residents of Harwood just now because Merriam is plaintiff in two similar actions that will come up for hearing in Cobourg courts in September, when trespass cases in connection with the same right-of-way will be heard against the Council of the Township of Hamilton and against a man named J. J. Gilman. Merriam fenced in about three hundred yards back of the lake, the road which forms a continuation of the Baltimore road, and runs over the hill to the water's edge by the hotel. The Township Council, knowing that this road had been open for fifty years, took the fence down three successive times, and were sued by Merriam. In the Gilman suit, the latter had a boathouse on the right-of-way for fourteen years, for which he paid no rent, and was served by Merriam with a writ commanding him to remove it. Both actions will be heard in September.

In consequence of Merriam's action, the Township Council has established a free camping ground in the memorial park in Harwood, where the ladies of the Catholic Church will hold a picnic on Labor Day.

JEKYLL-HYDE YOUTH SET HUNDRED FIRES

Ex-Bank Clerk Craved Excitement—Now Held For Lunacy Board's Disposal.

NEW YORK.—A self-styled "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde"—an unassuming youth of twenty-six—blandly confessed to the police that he had caused more than 100 incendiary fires on Manhattan Island in the last few months "just to see the fire engines in action."

"It was a lot of fun," he explained with a smile, "to stand in front of a burning house and know that the persons running from the place so madly didn't know that the one who had made all the excitement was right there looking at them."

The prisoner, George C. Gustow, former bank clerk and son of a patent attorney, was held for examination by a Lunacy Commission, to be appointed by a court. It will be his second experience with alienists, for he was incarcerated in Bloomingdale and Middletown Asylums from 1913 to 1919 after his arrest for a series of incendiary fires he started as a boy of fourteen years.

Gustow's arrest followed months of work by police and fire officials, who sought him as "New York's worst firebug." Baffled by the absence of any apparent motive for the remarkable series of incendiary fires, the authorities had no clue to the pyromaniac's identity until Gustow was seen at an Amsterdam avenue fire the other day and recognised as a "man with a limp" who had been seen to leave the flaming building just before the blaze was discovered.

Admits Writing Letters.

Taken to a police station he admitted authorship of two letters to Fire-Marshal Brophy in which he had written that "the man who is setting all these fires is a person of dual personality and a very shrewd person. He will never be caught."

It was to this "dual personality," which he attributed to an attack of spinal meningitis which he suffered in 1914, that Gustow credited his fearsome mania for the sight of blazing buildings and the subsequent excitement caused by the arrival of fire apparatus and fighters. The mania overpowered him at odd times, he said. Ordinarily he led the usual existence of a youth of his age. But when his "second" personality took possession of him, he declared, he became another person—a fiend who prowled the streets seeking houses to burn.

He displayed no hesitancy in his strange recital.

"I had always liked to see fire engines go by," he said, after having told of the illness to which he attributes his "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" personality. "But I never happened to be right there when a fire started. So I began to make fires start so I could see the firemen at work. I didn't do if very often then—I was fourteen—because I took a lot of time studying how not to be caught."

But he was caught, he explained simply, and his four-year-residence at asylums for the insane ensued.

Not Cured When Released.

"But I wasn't cured when they released me," he said. "I had just spent my time thinking out new ways of setting fires so they couldn't catch me. I don't think any professional firebug ever thought he knew better how to set a fire and not get caught at it than I did."

He explained that he also had planned "how not to hurt nobody." He told the authorities earnestly that he never caused a fire which resulted in death He explained that he craftily started his blazes in untenanted dwellings and lofts, or in such places in tenanted houses that all occupants would be certain to escape the consequences of his acts. Never had he carried with him combustibles as do other professional firebugs, he explained with an air of pride.

"I always had a newspaper with me," he continued. "You can start a mighty big blaze with a newspaper, if you know how."

Gustow was confined to the Tombs to await appointment of the Lunacy Commission.

NEW EMIGRATION PLAN.

Lady Proposes To Send Old Residents of Britain Back Home.

OTTAWA, Aug. 25.— (Canadian Press).—Kind of publicity Canada needs in Great Britain is to send men and women there who came originally from the Old Land and, have made good, and are happy and contented in Canada, to tell of their experience and how to go about emigrating is the opinion of Mrs. Charles H. Thorburn, of Ottawa, honorary commissioner on behalf of Canada to the British Empire Exhibition and Canadian Government delegate at International Labor Conference, Geneva, who returned home last night.

Mrs. Thornburn is making a report to the Minister of Labor in conference.

She was very much impressed with the charms of her colleague at the Geneva conference, and with her capability.

CAUGHT

The inheritance tax was put into effect to raise revenue and to curb the concentration to too much wealth in a few families. We were on the road where 100 or fewer families eventually would own 95 per cent of the United States.

Cunning lawyers showed rich clients how to evade the inheritance tax by giving part of their wealth to their children before father's death. Their dodging would be effectively and properly checked by the amendment to the tax law, as proposed by Senator Walsh of Massachusetts. He would tax gifts increasingly up to 36 per cent on those of more than five million dollars.

CURRYCOMBS

Another ancient device seems doomed—the currycomb. A vacuum cleaner attachment is taking its place, and is said to do a better job, in addition to greater speed.

If Abraham Lincoln came back to life, he wouldn't recognize nine-tenths of the devices we use in our modern complex civilization, let alone know how to use them until instructed. The same would be true if we, now living, could return to earth in the year 2000. However, people continue doing the same basic tasks, generation after generation, only the tools change.

BUNK

"Shirtsleeves to shirtsleeves in three generations," is an old saying. It means, as you know, that in three generations of rich heirs the wealth of a family becomes dissipated—passes into other hands.

This old saying is bunkum in most cases. It is based on the supposition that all sons or grandsons of the rich are spendthrifts, which isn't true. Especially in our day, when crafty lawyers show rich clients how to freeze their money in trust funds so the principal cannot be touched even if the interest can be flung to the four winds.

Character Analysis Based on Hereditary Environment Was His Theme.

LED BY BOOKS.

Congressmen, Judges, Lawyers and States Attorneys Have Done Wrong.

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—(Canadian Press.)— Character analysis based on hereditary environment was the theme of Clarence Darrow to-day as he pleaded anew before Judge Caverly for the lives of Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, kidnappers and murderers of Robert Franks.

"Weird, mad act" of youths was mentioned only incidentally as the veteran of the bar went back of the crime itself to trace from childhood influences which surrounded his clients. The effects of these he acknowledged could not be told with a certainty but limits of human knowledge were blamed for that.

"He spoke of "Dickie Loeb" and said that phantasy of being able to produce a perfect crime grew naturally from the youth's habitual reading of detective stories, super imposed by a brain forced like hot house plant to absorb book after book.

His parents might have done better if they had not had any money, he declared.

"Nature is strong and pitiless. She works in her own mysterious way and we haven't much to do with it ourselves. Let us be honest with each other. We all know that youth is without thought and without care.

"Congressmen, judges, lawyers, yes even States' attorneys have in youth done something wrong. That they were not caught is their own

FIRST HARWOOD TRIAL OF KIND IN 25 YEARS

Village Grocer Charges Toronto Camper With Trespass Before Magistrate Floyd.

AWARDED 15 CENTS.

Town Hall Packed With Spectators, Interested In Innovation.

The little village of Harwood was the scene of considerable excitement on Saturday, when the first legal action in the past quarter of a century was tried in the Town Hall. It is twenty-five years since such an event took place in the village, and the hall was crowded with spectators from the surrounding countryside. The decision by the learned judge resulted in a judgment of fifteen cents being levied against the defendant, with costs divided between the plaintiff and the defendant.

The issue was an action for trespass brought by N. E. Merriam, grocer, of Harwood; against David Sinclair, of Toronto, who came to Harwood just a week ago and camped on property owned by Merriam, who bought a portion of the right-of-way of the old Grand Trunk Railway, running from Cobourg to Harwood, that section which runs through the village and borders the lake.

David Sinclair, with his wife, came from Toronto a week ago and put up a tent on the land beside the road leading to the dock. He did not ask permission of Mr. Merriam, who came forthwith and ordered Sinclair off. The latter refused to leave, and Merriam served a summons on him, the action being held in Harwood last Saturday, the first court case in the village since a quarter of a century back, when a man was fined two dollars for theft of a rooster.

The right-of-way purchased by Merriam had been a commons for the past thirty years, and a contention made at the trial by Mr. Wilmot, of Cobourg, who acted as the defendant's lawyer, was the fact that the railway had abandoned this right-of-way thirty years ago and given a quit claim deed for it. J. B. McColl of Cobourg acted for the plaintiff, to whom Police Magistrate Floyd, of Cobourg, awarded fifteen cents damages, with costs of the action divided between plaintiff and defendant.

The early trial of the action was caused by the fact that Sinclair's departure for Toronto was scheduled for yesterday, and the Magistrate came to Harwood in accordance with the new ruling that takes the judge to the case whenever possible.

One of the interesting features of the hearing was the evidence of Sinclair, who testified that he was a returned soldier, and had pitched his tent in the place chosen because several Americans were camping on the same right-of-way. His contention was that the others were allowed to remain in peace in their location because of the fact that they bought all their supplies at Merriam's store and also rented boats from his livery, while he, Sinclair, dealt with a rival merchant in both sections.

This case, and the judgment rendered, has a peculiar signigicance to residents of Harwood just now because Merriam is plaintiff in two similar actions that will come up for hearing in Cobourg courts in September, when trespass cases in connection with the same right-of-way will be heard against the Council of the Township of Hamilton and against a man named J. J. Gilman. Merriam fenced in about three hundred yards back of the lake, the road which forms a continuation of the Baltimore road, and runs over the hill to the water's edge by the hotel. The Township Council, knowing that this road had been open for fifty years, took the fence down three successive times, and were sued by Merriam. In the Gilman suit, the latter had a boathouse on the right-of-way for fourteen years, for which he paid no rent, and was served by Merriam with a writ commanding him to remove it. Both actions will be heard in September.

In consequence of Merriam's action, the Township Council has established a free camping ground in the memorial park in Harwood, where the ladies of the Catholic Church will hold a picnic on Labor Day.

JEKYLL-HYDE YOUTH SET HUNDRED FIRES

Ex-Bank Clerk Craved Excitement—Now Held For Lunacy Board's Disposal.

NEW YORK.—A self-styled "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde"—an unassuming youth of twenty-six—blandly confessed to the police that he had caused more than 100 incendiary fires on Manhattan Island in the last few months "just to see the fire engines in action."

"It was a lot of fun," he explained with a smile, "to stand in front of a burning house and know that the persons running from the place so madly didn't know that the one who had made all the excitement was right there looking at them."

The prisoner, George C. Gustow, former bank clerk and son of a patent attorney, was held for examination by a Lunacy Commission, to be appointed by a court. It will be his second experience with alienists, for he was incarcerated in Bloomingdale and Middletown Asylums from 1915 to 1919 after his arrest for a series of incendiary fires he started as a boy of fourteen years.

Gustow's arrest followed months of work by police and fire officials, who sought him as "New York's worst firebug." Ba ed by the absence of any apparent motive for the remarkabl series of incendiary fires, the authorities had no clue to the pyromaniac's identity until Gustow was seen at an Amsterdam avenue fire the other day and recognised as a "man with a limp" who had been seen to leave the flaming building just before the blaze was discovered.

Admits Writing Letters.

Taken to a police station he admitted authorship of two letters to Fire-Marshal Brophy in which he had written that "the man who is setting all these fires is a person of dual personality and a very shrewd person. He will never be caught."

It was to this "dual personality," which he attributed to an attack of spinal meningitis which he suffered in 1914, that Gustow credited his fear some mania for the sight of blazing buildings and the subsequent excitement caused by the arrival of fire apparatus and fighters. The mania overpowered him at odd times, he said. Ordinarily he led the usual existence of a youth of his age. But when his "second" personality took possession of him, he declared, he became another person—a fiend who prowled the streets seeking houses to burn.

He displayed no hesitancy in his strange recital.

"I had always liked to see fire engines go by," he said, after having told of the illness to which he attributes his "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" personality. "But I never happened to be right there when a fire started. So I began to make fires start so I could see the firemen at work. I didn't do if very often then—I was fourteen—because I took a lot of time studying how not to be caught."

But he was caught, he explained simply, and his four-year-residence at asylums for the insane ensued.

Not Cured When Released.

"But I wasn't cured when they released me," he said. "I had just spent my time thinking out new ways of setting fires so they couldn't catch me. I don't think any professional firebug ever thought he knew better how to set a fire and not get caught at it than I did.'

He explained that he also had planned "how not to hurt nobody." He told the authorities earnestly that he never caused a fire which resulted in death He explained that he craftily started his blazes in untenanted dwellings and lofts, or in such places in tenanted houses that all occupants would be certain to escape the consequences of his acts. Never had he carried with him combustibles as do other professional firebugs, he explained with an air of pride.

"I always had a newspaper with me," he continued. "You can start a mighty big blaze with a newspaper, if you know how."

Gustow was confined to the Tombs to await appointment of the Lunacy Commission.

NEW EMIGRATION PLAN.

Lady Proposes To Send Old Residents of Britain Back Home.

OTTAWA, Aug. 25.— (Canadian Press).—Kind of publicity Canada needs in Great Britain is to send men and women there who came originally from the Old Land and, have made good, and are happy and contented in Canada, to tell of their experience and how to go about emigrating is the opinion of Mrs. Charles H. Thorburn, of Ottawa, honorary commissioner on behalf of Canada to the British Empire Exhibition and Canadian Government delegate at International Labor Conference, Geneva, who returned home last night.

Mrs. Thornburn is making a report to the Minister of Labor in conference.

She was very much impressed with the charms of her colleague at the Geneva conference, and with her capability.

CAUGHT

The inheritance tax was put into effect to raise revenue and to curb the concentration to too much wealth in a few families. We were on the road where 100 or fewer families eventually would own 95 per cent of the United States.

Cunning lawyers showed rich clients how to evade the inheritance tax by giving part of their wealth to their children before father's death. Their dodging would be effectively and properly checked by the amendment to the tax law, as proposed by Senator Walsh of Massachusetts. He would tax gifts increasingly up to 36 per cent on those of more than five million dollars.

MANITOBA SWELTERS IN HEAT WAVE NEEDED TO RIPEN CROPS

Thermometer Registered 89 Degrees in Shade Monday —Highest Since June.

CROPS IMPROVED

Manitoba Harvest to Exceed Estimates—Cutting General by End of August.

WININPEG, August 26 (Canadian Press). — Winnipeg yesttrday sweltered in an Aufust heat wave which chased the mercury to 89 degrees in the shade.

Yesterday's temperature was the highest since last June when 91 degrees in the shade was recorded.

While early August heat waves are not particularly unusual in Manitoba, this belated change was not anticipated in view of the cold weather which has prevailed during the greater part of the summer.

Indications point to continued favourable weather throughout the Province.

Weather is Ideal.

WINNIPEG, August 26. Canadian Press. — In the three prairie provinces, the condition of the crops has been noticeably improved during the past four days, according to the weekly crop report of the Canadian Pacific Railway, issued on Monday.

Ideal ripening weather now prevails throughout the west, and while harvesting is reported to be under way in several districts cutting is not expected to be general before the end of August.

Frost Damage was Light.

Some apprehension was caused respecting damage from frost, which was found to be unimportant in relation to the general situation, the report says. Pastures are much improved generally by the rains of the past fortnight, but winter feed will be scarce in some sections.

In Manitoba the crop outlook is bright and with favorable weather production should exceed the earlier estimates, according to the report. Rye harvesting will commence this week while barley cutting now is general.

Rains Revive Crops.

Rains have so revived the crops in central and northern parts of Saskatchewan that a fair yield will be realized in fields previously regarded as ruined by the drought.

With continued good weather later sown grains may yet produce a fair yield. In the southern part of the province the outlook is very promising.

There has been virtually no change in the crop situation in Alberta during the past week. Wheat cutting has started in a few districts, and given favorable weather, cutting will be general by the end of the month in the southern and the central sections, and a week later in the northern parts of the province.

Cutting Delayed.

Cutting operations have been delayed by rains on the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia Rail way, but conditions are now more favorable.

In British Columbia refreshing and much needed rain is reported form most parts of the province. Ripening in nearly every instance is two or three weeks earlier than shown for the average season.

Loss from Saw Fly.

Winnipeg, August 26. — Continued rainy weather has delayed cutting in all three prairie provinces, but this week will see the binders working nearly everywhere, with cutting general by the end of the month, according to the weekly report of the Canadian National Railways issued on Monday.

The recent rains have had a wonderful improvement in the crop situation in most districts of Saskatchewan, where many districts are now anticipating crops of 20 bushels per acre and more. Some red rust and some black rust is reported in Manitoba without however any reports of serious damage. Saw fly has caused losses in some districts and farmers there are cutting their grain on the green side rather than risk further loss from this cause. Oats and green feed have improved immensely.

Continued warm, dry weather is needed to bring on the harvest before early frosts can strike the grain fields, causing loss of grade and yield.

HENRY'S CHOICE?

Invitation of Prince Henry of England to be a house guest of the Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch, Scotland, has given rise to rumours of a forthcoming engagement to the beautiful Lady Mary Scott, their daughter.

DUBIOUS ABOUT OIL IN ALBERTA

Glasgow Geologist Says Prospect of Operations Are Not Hopeful.

TAR SAND ASSET

VANCOUVER, B. C., Aug. 26. — (Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—"The prospect for successful oil working in the Alberta field is not hopeful."

This was the statement to the Canadian Press of Dr. J. W. Gregory, professor of geology at the University of Glasgow, who has conducted research of oil fields and tar sands in many parts of the world, and is recognized as one of the world's authorities on the subject.

"Geological evidence is not in favor of the extension into the province of the beds which are being worked successfully to the south," Professor Gregory stated, in discussing the prospect of the extension northward of the Montana field. There are lacking in the Alberta strata the particular type of granite intrusions which are responsible for the appearance of oil in beds of shale, it appears.

"The tar sands themselves may be a signal that leakage has taken place from former wells, and that some of the valuable light fractions have evaporated, leaving the poorer bitumin," the geologist states, in discouraging too sanguine hopes of a producing Alberta field.

The tar sands and such wells as there happen to be, are a valuable asset, however, in Professor Gregory's opinion. When oil prices advance, it will be possible to refine the tars for what light liquid are available and to compete successfully with other sources, he pointed out.

MEASER IN LINDSAY COURT.

LINDSAY, August 26 — Richard Measer, the Lindsay man, who was sentenced at Cobourg last week in connection with the hold-up at Hoard's Station, comes up this week for sentence on the charge of theft.

The prisoner was employed by Bryson Bros., bakers, and it is alleged that he stole some $200 from the firm.

The young man's friends are endeavouring to make restitution for the amount stolen.

Two Lindsay Men Under Arrest, On Theft Charges

LINDSAY, August 26.— Two Lindsay men, Herb. Workman and John Mullen, were placed under arrest by the Lindsay police on the week-end, charged with a series of offences.

Mullen is charged with ill-treating his wife, and with the theft of 1,000 pounds of copper wire from the Orillia Power Co. with which he was employed.

Workman is charged with contempt of Court, with obtaining goods under false pretences, and with being a accomplice of Mullen in the theft of the wire.

Mullen was brought back to Orillia, where he will stand trial, while Workman will come up for trial this morning.

GAIETY REIGNS AT DEAUVILLE

American Visitors at French Resort "On a Bust"—New York Never Equalled It.

FASHION NOTES

DEAUVILLE, Aug. 26.—"Youth is having its fling at Deauville. For years my job has been to prowl around the bright lights of New York, but New York in its palmiest wide open days never touched Deauville where America seems to be going on a bust.

"But a rather pathetic note is the hard drinking of collegiates and coeds who in this seashore pleasure ground cannot but gain a distorted idea of life manners and morals. Deauville is certainly one of the high spots of the world."

Thus O. O. MacIntyre, famous author of "The White Lights," gave a resume of his own impressions on his first visit to the Normandy coast.

His Views Approved.

Submitted to several high placed Frenchmen, Mac's views called forth unqualified approval. Curiously enough the French people who patronize Deauville are in the smallest minority.

While the press agent surpassed himself this year in advertising the alleged losses of millions by the syndicated banco dealers from Greece and Armenia in order to lure the crowd to the "sky limit" table, only the usual habitues of gambling clubs responded.

The Prince of Wales was one of the few amateurs who tried their hands against the hard-boiled gamblers. He lost a few thousand francs the first night, but he returned almost immediately afterwards and quit with a profit.

The hardest blow to the American visitors, however, has been the persistent cold rain, which marred the Grande Semaine, preventing the show of marvelous gowns specially purchased at Paris.

But there have been splendid shows of fall and winter fashions offered within the Casino and at hotels. At both Deauville and Biarritz semi-private exhibitions established the following facts which will in the next few months set the fashions in America:

The straigth line from the waist upward remains.

The low waist line is still there.

Simplicity is the keynote.

Everything is loose-fitting and the corset is conspicuous by its absence.

Skirt Is Shortened.

But—the skirt is shortened and "shaped." Every woman will understand what "shaped" means. In shaping a piece of cloth it is cut so that when it is hung it takes a circular form. To shape one skirt requires dozens of such pieces of material skillfully sewed together, and the work is done exclusively by specialists.

Therefore the moderate priced gown is out of all question, and dress allowances must be doubled at least next winter.

Dressmakers have not succeeded in bringing back the corset—they could not persuade women to resume the old uncomfortable underskirts with flounces and tight lacing, but they could and did fix the fashion so that a new wardrobe at double the usual price is made necessary. The home made skirt is out.

PREVENTS FADING.

If you will rinse your stockings out in cold salt water before you put them in soapsuds they will not become faded or dull looking.

OPPOSITION TO DAWES PLAN BY NATIONALISTS

German Party Calls It a Short Sighted Policy—Lamentation Would Follow.

PARTY MAY DIVIDE

Required Two-Thirds Majority Expected When the Reichstag Votes.

BERLIN, Aug. 26. — (Canadian Press).—The German Nationalist party is opposed to the reparations agreement reached at the International Conference in London recently and will oppose all measures to put it into effect.

This announcement was made in the Reichstag Monday by Dr. Hergt, the leader of the party. In his speech Dr. Hergt expressed his party's distrust of the Government and severely criticized what he termed its change in attitude at the London conference on the question of the evacuation of the Ruhr. He also accused Ramsay MacDonald, the British Premier, of having changed his views on the subject, and appealed to him to reconsider his position.

Acceptance of the Dawes plan, said Dr. Hergt, would be a short-sighted policy and lamentation would follow acceptance.

"There is no alternative for us except to reject all the bills to make the Dawes plan effective," exclaimed Dr. Hergt.

Dr. Rudolf Hilferding, former Minister of Finance, who followed Dr. Hergt, insisted that the Dawes plan afforded the sole opportunity for carrying out peaceful work. He advocated a dissolution of the Reichstag and a referendum on the question of acceptance.

Notwithstanding Dr. Hergt's assertion that his party is opposed to the London agreement, it is not believed in political circles that the entire membership of the Nationalist party will follow his advice. The belief is expressed that it is more than probable that the party whips will be called off when the time for voting arrives, leaving each deputy to vote as he pleases. In this case the expectation is that a considerable number of the Nationalists, including Admiral Von Tirpitz, will vote for acceptance of the Dawes bills and that the required two-thirds majority will be secured.

BOARD AWARDED STANDARD WAGE

Result of Arbitration in Dispute With Northern Alberta Coal Operators.

PENN. MINE SCALE

OTTAWA, Aug. 26. — (Canadian Press).—The report of the board of conciliation investigating the dispute between the coal operators of Northern Alberta and the Edmonton and District Miners' Federation, recommends that all mines in the Operators' Association continue to pay standard wages for all company men.

The scale of wages, which is the same as that now paid in the Penn Mine, follows:

Miner on company work $5 for eight-hour day; brushers, track layers, drivers and chief cager, also $5 a day; pushers and assistant cagers $4.50 a day; coupler (under 18 years), $3.50 a day; assistant track layer, $3.50 a day; boys under 18 on surface, 35 cents an hour; outside labor, 50 cents an hour; blacksmith, 65 cents an hour.

The miners asked $5.60 per day. The operators in the dispute were prepared to pay $5 per day. Both parties wished to arrive at a standardized scale.

The Board recommended that contract rates in the different mines be continued as they were in the agreement that expired on June 30, 1924, with provision for no overcrowding of contract miners during busy season.

The miners are protected by extra pay for work in wet places.

The report was signed by James Smith, chairman; R. G. Drinnan and P. J. Rowe.

NEW TOUCH.

A smart new touch is to have a tube frock button directly under each arm and have a close row of buttons clear to the hemline.

SLAYERS' NERVE FORSAKES THEM WITH END NEAR

Suspense Over Their Fate is Wearing Down Both Leopold and Loeb.

BRAVADO IS GONE

Darrow Concludes Final Plea for Mercy—Decision May Come Soon.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26. — Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb are growing old under the shadow of the gallows. The slayers of little Robert Franks were unusually restless yesterday. They know it will not be long before Judge Caverly passes sentence upon them. It is a matter of life or death and the suspense is becoming unbearable.

All the smiles have left the faces of the youthful slayers. Three months in jail have added ten years to their appearance.

After Darrow has finished, Benjamin Bachrach is expected to make the final argument for the defense. How much time he will require is not known. Judge Caverly will not limit the arguments.

He wants to hear all that the defense and prosecution have to offer.

State's Attorney Crowe will make the closing argument for the State. That may come Tuesday, if Darrow and Bachrach finish by then. The State's attorney has indicated he will be able to lay his argument before the Court in three or four hours. If this programme is followed, Judge Caverly should have the case for decision by Wednesday.

It became known Monday the State's Attorney has been delving into the history of other crimes similar to this of Leopold and Loeb. One of the cases he is expected to review is that of Wylie N. Morgan, who killed a six-year-old girl in Philadelphia not long ago.

The question of Morgan's mental condition was brought forward but the courts rejected he insanity plea, held that Morgan could distinguish between right and wrong and he was sentenced to death.

Govenor Pinchot granted a repreive until the State Board of Pardons could pass on a petition for commutation of the death sentence The petition was rejected and Morgan died in the electric chair.

Just Two Children

Two children, wandering around in a world of nightmares the sport of blind forces—this was the picture conjured up to-day by Clarence Darrow, chief defense attorney, in his plea for the lives of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb.

They are just two imperfect machines, lacking the emotions to balance their superior intellect, committing various crimes, with the murder of Bobby Franks as the climax, because nature failed to build perfect ly, Darrow told Chief Justice John R. Caverly in his final argument to save the boys from the gallows.

"No one can conclude, after a study of this case, or the act itself except that diseased intellect is responsible for this terrible act," Darrow said.

Gifts Bring Sobs

A trunkful of European purchases, including many selected at the boyish whim of the slain Bobby Franks, has brought fresh grief into the household and Mrs. Franks, who has been slightly better after months of illness has suffered a relapse.

Mrs. Rosina Rubin, a sister of Mr. Franks, returned last week from a fifteen-month European trip. She visited at the Franks' home and in order to divert Mrs. Franks' mind, showed her the purchases she had made for her in Europe. here were rare pieces of tapestry from Flanders lingerie from Paris, miniature chests and bit of lace from Italy.

Bobby Wanted Trinkets

Mrs. Franks began to weep bitterly. Upon being questioned, she incoherently explained that when she had written her sister-in-law on various occasions Bobby had always been beside her and it was he who urged his mother to ask his aunt to bring back various articles.

"I guess I'll tell Aunt Rosina not to bring any lingerie as she suggested," Mrs. Frank had said to Bobby.

"Oh no, tell her to bring it. I want her to bring you lots of pretty things," Bobby had answered. In this manner each article that had been

PLATFORM COLLAPSED WITH PREMIER KING AT MONTREAL LIBERAL MEETING

Planks Crashed While Candidate Was Praising the Premier—No One Seriously Hurt—Mr. King Drenched By Jug of Water.

MONTREAL, Aug. 26—(Canadian Press).—Ten minutes after the St. Antoine division Liberal mass meeting had opened here last night, the speakers' platform collapsed throwing to the floor Right Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King, premier of Canada; Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, minister of marine and fisheries, and between forty and fifty others who were on the platform.

No one was seriously hurt.

Alderman W. J. Hushion, Liberal candidate for the seat, had just commenced to address the gathering and was lauding the prime minister, when a loud crack heralded the complete collapse of a section of the platform. Mr. Hushion was in front of the platform and there were grouped around him the prime minister, the minister of marine and a number of members of parliament. They disappeared from view as the floor collapsed and a canopy fringed with electric lights swayed and collapsed in turn.

The prime minister was drenched with water from the jug on the speaker's table. A cry of horror went up as he disappeared. But cheers resounded when it was seen that Mr. King had risen to his feet and was brushing the water from him. Mr. Cardin was assisted to his feet and preparations were at once under way for continuing the meeting.

MUSSOLINI CABLED THANKS OF ITALY FOR LOCATELLI'S RESCUE

Expressions of Gratitude Conveyed to Washington for U. S. Navy's Service.

REGRET SOFTENED

Meanwhile U. S. Planes Are Expected to Reach American Shores To-day.

WASHINGTON, August 26.—The warmest and deepest thanks for the rescue by the American navy of Lieutenant Locatelli, missing Italian aviator, off the coast of Greenland, was conveyed in a message received by the Italian embassy late Monday from Premier Mussolini.

Directing the charge de affaires to express these feelings to the Washington government, the premier said:

"Following the news of the rescue of Lieutenant Locatelli and his companions, thanks to the efforts of the American navy, I have expressed to the Italian ambassador in Rome the gratitude of the royal government for that notable proof of human solidarity and comradesship performed by the American forces."

The appreciation of Italy for the service performed was expressed by officials of the embassy in calls at the state war and navy departments while at the same time messages of congratulation and relief in the rescue were transmitted by both Italian and United States officials here to American officers on flight duty and to Lieutenant Locatelli himself.

Regret and Relief

Regret that the Italian flier had been compelled by engine trouble to land at sea and that he could not continue with the United States world fliers was general but Major General Patrick, chief of the army air service, expressed the common feeling when he said this regret had been overshadowed by the relief felt by all officials when advices were received telling of the rescue.

For this happy circumstance, he added, the navy deserved all credit.

Meanwhile officials awaited details of the flight of the United States aviators from Frederiksdal to Ivigtut, Greenland, the entire situation taking on a brighter outlook with the uncertainty caused by Lieut Locatelli's disappearance dispelled.

America At Last

According to a tentative schedule worked out by air officers, the United States fliers, commanded by Lieutenant Smith, are expected to leave Ivigtut today on the flight that will land them again on the North American continent. It is regarded as certain that the fliers will go direct to Indian Harbor, Labrador, from Ivigtut where they will take on fuel, and, in all probability then jump to Cartwright Harbor, where anchor buoys have been prepared for them.

Machine Destroyed

"Motor trouble forced us down," Locatelli explained. "We made desperate efforts to make the plane rise but it wouldn't do it. We have drift-

Lindsay Boy Spent $352 On Trip With Harvesters

LINDSAY, August 26.— Provincial Officer Storey arrived home yesterday evening with Adam McCabe the fifteen-year-old youth, who last Thursday stole the sum of $1,000 from his home, and decamped for the West.

McCabe, it appears, did not go alone, as he purchased tickets for two other youths, Price and Williams, who are elders.

One of his companions had previously been in the West as a cowpuncher, and he it was who induced McCabe to hit the trail.

The trio, it appears, had a right royal time en route to the West, as a goodly amountt of the stolen money had disappeared.

Officer Storey brought Price and Williams along with him, and they appeared last evening before Police Magistrate Bradford.

They were remanded until Thursday.

The youths had spent about $352.00 in clothes, tickets, etc.

DIED OF BURNS.

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press). — R. G. Younglove, seeking to perfect a new pressure still for oil refining, was so badly burned about the body on Sunday when the still blew up that he died in hospital at noon yesterday. C. Stone, an employee of a local refinery, who was working on the experiment with him, was also badly burned, but will recover.

BOUNDARY ROAD WAS DISCUSSED IN CONFERENCE

Reeve Rye's Offer of $500 for Work on Lansdowne Street Accepted.

MORE ROAD WORK

Friendly Meeting Between Township Representatives and Board of Works.

Reeve Walter Rye of North Monaghan appeared before the Board of Works last night to consult on boundary roads, their re-building and maintenance, particular attention being called to Lansdowne street.

He was supported by Deputy Reeve R. T. Lillico of Monaghan, and Messrs. Gerald Wood and W. Fallis of the same township, and Clerk Bruce Johnston. Reeve Martin P. Coughlin, Warden of the County of Peterborough, was the sole representative from Dour.

In the amicable discussion of the vexing boundary road question Reeve Rye's sparkling repartee added zest to the frequent passages at arms between the board and the township representatives. It was finally decided that the Township of North Monaghan should pay $400 towards the re-building of Lansdowne street west of Lock, and that the township should rebuild Lansdowne street east of Lock, charging half the expense to the city. Very bad spots on the Monaghan road will be repaired, but the township has no funds to carry out on extensive programme this year.

On the city's part, assurance was given that Park street south will be resurfaced over the excavation made for the trunk sewer, and that in future the township will be consulted before the grades of boundary roads are settled upon by the city.

Reeve Coughlin showed every desire to co-operate with the city and will do all in his power, with the assistance of City Engineer Parsons to put the road to the golf links in passable shape for the visit Thursday of Premier Mackenzie King.

Didn't Benefit Township.

Alderman Morrison: chairman of the Board of Works, asked what the visitors' ideas are on the boundary roads.

Reeve Rye: "This is the first time I knew you recognized there were any country roads."

Alderman Morrison: "We have had some repairs done on boundary roads, and we would like to have your opinion on Lansdowne street, and round to Charlotte street. There are a few holes."

Alderman Maher: "Some of them are all holes."

Reeve Rye: "Where have you repaired them?"

Alderman Stocker: "We put 1000 loads on Lansdowne street, and 400 at the Mount, at $2.50 a load."

Reeve Rye: "You haven't put that amount of stuff on Lansdowne street for our benefit. The sewer was put in there for the benefit of the citizens of Peterborough. It was a fairly good road before you put the sewers in."

Ald. McIntyre: "It would have been necessary to have done that work in any case, and the township should pay half."

Reeve Rye: "It's a case we can fight them. We couldn't take it on at that price. We could do it much cheaper."

Alderman McIntyre: "It doesn't matter what the price was. The township can do the remainder as cheaply as they like. We have done half. Don't you think it fair for you to do the other half of Lansdowne street?"

Reeve Rye: "No; you changed the grade without consulting with us and you are asking us to build up to the grades you established."

Alderman Phelan: "How about you fixing up Lansdowne east and let us look after the west?"

Reeve Rye: "We had that sectional work before, and it was a failure. The city was doing nothing. The agreement was made that the boundary roads be taken on a fifty-fifty basis, the township to do the work. That is the only satisfactory basis."

City Engineer Parsons, invited by

WARN DOMINION ABOUT A NAVY

Britain Is Only Able To Guard Most Vital Routes.

TORONTO, Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press).—There was trace of appeal and more than a hint of warning to Canadians in Vice-Admiral Sir Frederic Laurence Field's brief response to the toast to "The Navy" at the R.C.Y.C. dinner last night.

Couched in the most polite and tactful of language, his appeal to Canadians was to realize the dependence of the Empire upon sea power and to appreciate in that connection responsibilities of the Empire association. He concluded: "If it is naval help you wish to give, remember it takes three years to build a cruiser, and it takes nine years to train her crew."

His warning touched Canada's own safety in time of war. Although the Washington Conference had reduced the strength of the British Navy it had not reduced the miles of communication between the Empire units, he said.

"It will not be possible," he said, "to send aid wherever danger threatens; it will only be possible to guard the most vital routes."

BRITISH GOVT. TO STAND FIRM

Objects To Increase Elevations of Guns on Battle Ships.

WASHINGTON, August 26.—Increasing apprehension is felt in naval and other official circles here at obvious purpose of British government to stand firm in its objections to increasing the elevations of certain guns of first line battleships. All information available points unmistakably to an intention on the part of Great Britain to insist upon this objection in next limitation of armament conference which President Coolidge has indicated will probably be called after the success of the Dawes plan is assured. Information received from Government representatives aboard indicates that the British will endeavor to obtain in such a conference greater ratio of light cruiser tonnage than was originally intended under the 5-5-3 ratio. This demand will be based upon contention that the British Empire, with its farflung colonial possessions and its dependency upon sea for raw materials has need of greater strength of light cruisers, so-called guardians of commerce, than United States whose territories are more compact.

PRINCE'S VISITS WILL BE PRIVATE

He Will Be in Toronto For Two or Three Days

OTTAWA, August 26 (Canadian Press). — As there is some doubt as to the official title to be borne by His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, while on his visit to the United States and Canada, it is officially stated that on his visit he will not take the title of Lord Renfrew, but will be known in the United States as His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales.

This does not mean, however, that the Prince will accept any official engagements. He will confine himself while in Canada to enjoyment and to as much rest and freedom as possible.

It is stated in well-informed circles here that His Royal Highness will, in all likelihood, visit Toronto for two or three days during October for the purpose of seeing former friends. He will not accept, however, while in Toronto, any engagements.

He will also pay a visit to Their Excellencies the Governor-General, Lord Byng of Vimy, and Lady Byng of Vimy, at Rideau, and is expected to stay here for two or three days.

It is also likely that he will visit Montreal privately for two or three days, and he will then sail from Quebec on the conclusion of his private visits to Montreal, Toronto, and Ottawa.

HASTINGS MAN WITH A RECORD AS A PIONEER

Log Cabin That Stood in 1850 Replaced By Bill Board With Peterboro Exhibition Advertisement.

FIRST WHITE CHILD.

John Coughlin Was Born in Hastings, But Was of Irish Descent.

(By A Staff Reporter)

HASTINGS, Aug. 25.—There is a vacant lot on Front street opposite Wellman's Garage and enclosed by high bill boards which at present are plastered with artistic posters advertising Peterboro's Exhibition. In the year of 1850 there stood on this lot a small log cabin, the birthplace of John Coughlan, the first white child born in the district and who is still living, after 74 years of active life during which he has been closely identified wth the progress of the community.

Of Irish Descent.

Mr. Coughlan's father the late Timothy Coughlan, came from Ireland and settled in what is now the village of Hastings in the early eighties. For some years he was employed on Government work, up to 1837 when the Mackenzie Rebellion in Ontario and a similar outbreak in the Province of Quebec, put a stop to everything in the shape of public works the political conditions of the new country claiming all the attention of the authorities.

Pioneer in Business.

The late Timothy Coughlan is entitled to credit as the real pioneer in this district, both in point of residence and business activities. He opened the first store and was the original hotel-keeper. The store contained such supplies as were required by the settlers and the hotel was properly speaking a boarding-house. Those were the palmy days of the lumbering industry and men engaged in that vocation were constantly passing through between the camps and their homes. These found a resting place at Mr. Coughlan's primitive but comfortable house of accomodation.

There were not more than two or three cabins in the place in 1850, one of them the home of the Coughlans in which John was born. The father died in 1894, aged 88 years, leaving a family of eight children of whom only three survive, John and his sisters Mrs. James Convey and Mrs. Michael Ward, the latter of Asphodel township.

John Coughlan has lived on the farm which he now occupies since 1875. It lies just outside the village limits and is equipped with a modern brick house and outbuildings all of which have been erected by the present owner. He gave up active life some time ago and his farm is now let out on shares. This year it has produced excellent crops of all kinds.

In Public Life.

Mr. Coughlan as a public servant has rendered his community faithful and efficient service. He was a member of the Council for 10 or 12 years and was twice elected reeve. He was president of the Hasting Cheese Factory for 32 years and by virtue of this position was a member of the Peterboro Cheese Board, which he served two years as president. He always took an active interest in educational problems and for 38 years continuously was secretary-treasurer of the Separate School Board. He acted as assessor of the village for over 20 years his compensation at the outset being $15 a year.

Mr. Coughlan's surviving children are T. A. Coughlan, druggist and jeweller and a member of the Hastings Council, Mrs. Charles Black of Campbellford and Miss Gertrude who resides on the farm with her father.

For years Rev. D. A. Thomson, pastor of the Presbyterian Church here, lived near the home of Mr. Coughlan, before the present manse was born. The children of the two families were raised and played together.

When the people of Hastings tendered Mr. Thomson a reception on the fortieth anniversary of his pastorate, none of the speakers, whether members or non-members of his congregation, paid a more graceful or sincere tribute to the minister's worth than did Mr. Coughlan who had known him at close range for years.

TURN AGAINST KLAN

Public Sentiment in Washington Is Against Ku Klux Klan.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press).—Widespread feeling is entertained here that the tide of public sentiment has turned decisively against the Ku Klux Klan. The victory of Mrs. M. Ferguson, anti-klan candidate in Texas primaries along with denunciation of Klan by John W. Davis, Democratic presidential candidate, Senator Robert LaFollette, Progressive candidate for president and by Charles Dawes Republican vice-presidential candidate are looked on as clearly indicating that anti-Klan movement is in ascedance. There is a strong feeling here that President Coolidge cannot remain silent on the Klan issues.

J. H. THOMAS PARTY IN SOUTH AFRICA

Empire Parliamentary Delegation Received at Cape Town.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Aug. 25.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's).—The empire parliamentary delegation, headed by J. H. Thomas, colonial secretary,, arrived here to-day and were very cordially welcomed to the Union of South Africa.

Secretary Thomas, replying to the official greetings, said the war spirit in the world must be killed and a spirit of reconciliation take its place, not alone among the nations but among all clasess of people.

"Equality may be impossible," Mr. Thomas said in the course of his speech, "but equality of opportunity is not impossible."

When the MacDonald government laid down the seals of office, the colonial secretary remarked, the members of Great Britain's first labor ministry felt that they would be able to say that although the cabinet offices had been held by working men they had been none the less dignified on this account.

The colonial secretary's speech was received with hearty cheers.

The touring parliamentarians were welcomed to South Africa by Gen. J. B. Hertzog, premier; Col. F. H. P. Creswell, minister of defence and labor, and Dr. D. F. Malan minister of the interior, public health and education. The ministers of the South African went aboard the ship to greet the distinguished visitors.

Colonial Secretary Thomas referred to the fact that the invitation to the empire parliamentarians had been extended in the first place by Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, the former premier of South Africa, and said the renewal of the invitation by the present premier, Gen. Hertzog, was a clear indication that whatever political differences might divide the South African people all the parties were united on the subject of the British empire and all it stood for.

The empire parliamentary delegation which is on a visit to South Africa, with the colonial secretary, J. H. Thomas, as leader of the party, is comprised of representatives of all the parliaments of the empire except Newfoundland. The tour was arranged by the empire parliamentary association, London. This is the first time M.P.'s representing the empire have met in any of the dominions. The British and Canadian delegations sailed from England on August 8, and they will be joined at Durban on September 1 by representatives of the other dominions. The party will visit Natal, Zululand, the Orange Free State, Basutoland, and Cape Province, and also Rhodesia and Southwest Africa.

The Canadian representatives are: Sir George Foster, Senator Robert Watson, Senator W. B. Willoughby, Senator Gustave Boyer, Col. Murray MacLaren, M.P. J. F. Fefard, M.P., W. G. McQuarrie, M. P., and R. E. Chevrier, M.P.

New York Market Takes 50 Per Cent of 10 Million Dollar Loan.

TORONTO, Aug. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Hon. W. H. Price, Provincial Treasurer, announced today that he had received advice from New York that fifty per cent of ten million dollars of the provinces twenty million dollar four and a half per cent loan, issued Friday, had been bought on the New York market.

Col. Price said this shows the standing of the Province on New York financial market.

ed I figure, at least a hundred miles.'

Because he did not wish to impose any further trouble upon the American vessels, Locatelli ordered his great machine destroyed.

The country where Lieut. Locatelli was forced down is a frozen area with ashen skies, deep thick fog and innumerable ice floes which grind before the ice-sheathed peaks and glaciers.

For hundreds of miles the shores are barren of civilization.

When the cloud and fog blanket lifts the polar star can be seen almost directly overhead. There is a lurid afterglow which never leaves the skies.

Locatelli carried rockets in his plane which he used in attracting the rescuers.

Letter to His Mother

BERGAMO, Italy, August 26.—Almost simultaneously with the news that Locatelli was safe, came a letter from the interpid aviator to his mother, describing his adventures thus far and expressing confidence in his ultimate success.

"It is my desire," said Locatelli, in the letter, "to reach the American shores and to arrive safely with my machine in perfect condition. The flight thus far has gone well, and will continue. I feel as if I were taking a spin on a yacht and these new routes do not make me the least anxious.

"We have ships, which protect us, and if we descend to the ocean we have enough food and drink for fifteen or twenty days. A hydroplane goes as well on the sea as a torpedo boat. If by chance for several days there is no news of us, there is no need whatever to be anxious; we can make motor repairs aboard, or if there is fog we can descend and await its lifting.

"It might even happen that between periods of bad weather we would have to take shelter in some fjord or river along the coast while awaiting better atmospheric conditions. I hope that nothing of this kind happens. We have been advised by telegraph of the weather and atmospheric conditions over that part of the seas which we must traverse, therefore we are prepared for any eventually."

WHY GLUE FAILS.

Change of Temperature and Weather Affects Glued Articles.

Every housekeeper has had the experience to her deep regret, of her furniture loosening up at the joints, due to changes of temperature, and atmospheric conditions. In many cases valuable furniture has lost its usefulness and been discarded for this reason.

This condition however is not always due to the above causes, it would appear. There are numerous qualities of glue, or adhesives, as they are technically called, and the cause of failure of glued points may, in many cases, be due to the use of an unsuitable grade. The glue may have been the most expensive procurable, but not adaptable for the purpose for which it was used.

This situation has influenced the Forest Products Laboratories of the Department of the Interior to conduct a series of investigations into the merits of various advesives for different purposes. Some twenty-six commercial adhesives of the hide and casein classes have been investigated, the work including both mechanical and physical determinations. Ageing tests to secure information on the permanency on the adhesives were also undertaken.

If the Forest Products Laboratories are able to secure results that will relieve the worries of the home makers of Canada regarding the coming apart of their furniture at the glued joints they will have earned a full measure of appreciation, and at the same time will be in a position to supply invaluable information to furniture manufacturers.

purchased had been discussed with Bobby, who was his mother's constant companion and who, according to Mr. Franks, was intensely interested in even his mother's clothes

The Franks, who had planned to go to the Drake hotel for residence for a time in the hope that Mrs. Franks might improve in surroundings that did not have so many painful associations, will not leave until after the trial.

Mrs. Franks Wants to Remain

"Mrs. Franks does not want to leave the house and take advantge of the slightest excuse for remaining," said Mr. Franks. "We had prepared to move to a hotel some days ago, and now she has asked that we do not go 'until the trial is over.'

"I have tried innumerable times to get her away, but she dislikes traveling. However, she is sorry that she did not go to Europe last year. I suggested that we all go abroad, taking Bobby, too. She did not want to go.

"But if we had gone——"

Mr. Franks' voice trailed off. It was not necessary to finish the sentence.

WHAT 1900 DID FOR N. ONTARIO

In 1900 Northern Ontario Was Only a Part of the Map—Look At It Now.

Glancing back to the commencement of the present century and surveying Northern Ontario as it was then, industrially, agriculturally and in density of population, one can hardly appreciate the advancement that has taken place. Only those who constantly have their hand on what might be termed the provincial pulse can realise the great growth of Northern Ontario's many outstanding natural resources, says the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior.

In 1900 Northern Ontario was but a portion of the map. The province's boundary reached only to the Albany River, which latter, so far as the average citizen of the province was concerned, was in the wilderness. In 1912 the boundary was extended to Fort Nelson on the Hudson Bay and many thousands of square miles of territory were added to the province. North Bay in 1900 lay on the margin of settlement, while to-day settlers are raising crops along the Canadian National Railways, 250 miles further north, and the T. and N. O. Railway has pushed its line 58 miles beyond to open up the country .

In Northern Ontario are some of our largest pulp and paper mills, using water powers which had for ages remained unharnessed awaiting the coming of the engineer for their development. What was in 1900 considered an almost impenetrable forest is now supplying the pulpwood which keeps the large mills of that portion of Ontario busy, as well as providing enormous quantities of freight traffi cto the railways that have followed industry.

It was not until 1904 that the Cobalt silver camp was discovered, following the construction of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway from North Bay to Lake Timiskaming. This discovery brought in prospectors and mining men with a rush, and soon a number of towns and villages were established.

Since its discovery in Northern Ontario 343,895,780 ounces of silver have been produced, valued at $212,668,434. Prospecting in the district did not stop with the discovery of silver, however. Soon the wider field towards Cochrane, on the Transcontinental Railway, was being intensively prospected, leadin to the discovery of the Porcupine and Kirkland Lakes gold-bearing areas. From 1909 to last December gold to the value of $128,383,395 has been taken out, or a total for these two metals of $341,051,829 from what was unknown territory at the commencement of the century.

This widespread development in Northern Ontario is but an indication of that to come. But a small portion has yet been surveyed, while much less has been closely prospected. The enormous amount of water-power already developed and awaiting its application will eventually induce industries requiring cheap power to enter the district, and these industries will attract labour, which in turn will provide markets for a large farming interest.

Northern Ontario, with its great and varied natural resources is making such rapid advances as will in a comparatively short time demand the attention of older Ontario and of Canada as a whole.

NOT SO BAD.

Canada is buying less and selling more. That is good business, and also, perhaps, a pleasant surprise to many who thought trade had gone to the dogs.

In four months Canada imported $271,288,586 worth of goods, that is $42,864,854 less than for one year ago. In the same four months Canada sold $327,309,594 worth of goods and scored an increase of $20,954,204.

The trade balance is safe at that rate. If the old maxim is true, "a penny saved, a penny earned," then Canada is earning on both sides of the ledger.

J. A. Banfield, a prominent Winnipeg business man, and President of the Retail Merchants' Association, says there is no cause for complaint over trade this year. And, taking the Dominion as a whole, he is right. For four months this year the grand total was $602,666,714. With the best season yet to come, we ought to pass the two-billion mark this fiscal year.

Eventually we'll all cheer up; why not now?

SAVE THIS FOR A BLUE DAY.

Even when life is most unpleasant, you have more pleasure than unhappiness. You don't believe it? Then you have a bone to pick with Professor J. C. Flugel, senior lecturer in philosophy and psychology in University College, London.

Flugel got the notion that pleasure always outbalances displeasure. To prove it, he had nine men live "an unpleasant life" for a month. They jotted down, in their note books, every feeling they experienced.

Averaging the scores, Flugel found that, out of every 100 feelings or emotions experienced by his investigators, 68 were pleasant and only 32 unpleasant.

The gloomiest man of the crowd was amazed to learn, when he finally checked up, that he had been happy 46 per cent. of the time, unhappy 36 per cent. and "on the fence" the rest of his month.

Examining the note book records, Professor Flugel found that there are 22 main causes of pleasure and 24 causes for displeasure. Many are not as important as we imagine at the time.

Food produces a pleasurable feeling amounting to less than 6 per cent. of a person's total emotions, "tender emotion" less than 1 per cent., "companionship and society" only a quarter of 1 per cent. of the total.

Fatigue, it was learned, is responsible for less than 4 per cent. of all emotions, sorrow 1 per cent., embarrassment a half of 1 per cent.

One trouble with compiling these statistics of emotions is that a thing may cause pleasure on one occasion and displeasure on another. For example: The fragrant odors of a well-cooked dinner are highly pleasing to a hungry man. But the reaction is apt to be the opposite if the same man has just gorged himself on the same food.

Nothing is quite as enticing as the thing we can't have.

In fact, according to another authority, Professor J. W. Bridges, it is only when instinct is thwarted that emotion develops.

But the "figgers" seem to show that there's more pleasure than pain in the world, even when life is not running smoothly. A good thing to remember when we're blue. And, too, we couldn't experience pleasant emotions to serve as contrast.

Joy and pain—physical, mental or emotional—are matters of contrast.

WHAT PRODUCES?

In the final analysis it will be found that the greatest producer in the world is Brains.

The claim that all the clothing, the food, the houses and all the railroads and coal and iron are made by workers is inaccurate.

Hand labor does not create everything. If it did Russia would be richer than the United States. We also need brains in the administration of capital and in the govering of labor.

The men who actually made the materials that go into the Ford cars could never have been properly organized, and the business could not have been properly carried on so as to realize its enormous profit without the brain of Henry Ford.—New York American.

BALKAN STORM CLOUDS.

When the allied Governments at the London conference have disposed of the major problem in European reconstruction, which is Germany, it seems likely that their attention will be required in an uneasy corner of the Continent. Ferment along the Balkan frontiers, in the light of the latest developments, can no longer be regarded as the work of the Bulgarian Government with a view to frightening the Allies into allowing an increase in the strength of the Bulgarian Army. The perils confronting the Tzankoff Government would appear to be real. Peter Tchauleff, one of the leaders of the Macedonian Organization, has just announced at Vienna a program reaching far beyond Macedonia. In order to bring about a federation of Balkan States, the Organization is out to overthrow "all existing Balkan Governments."

The role played by Moscow in the unrest sweeping through Bulgaria and Yugoslavia and seriously affecting Rumania is important, but Moscow is not the prime mover. At bottom it is once more the savage partisanship that is chronic in Balkan history. One correspondent at Sofia, describing the funeral of a former Minister, Peto Petkoff, who was assassinated last June, speaks of five women who followed the bier. They were the widows of five murdered Bulgarian statesmen—Stambuloff in 1895, an earlier Petkoff seventeen years ago, Genadieff, Stambuliski and the latest victim. That Bulgaria has no monopoly in ferocious partisanship is attested by the royal assassinations in Serbia and the fiendish vindictiveness of recent Greek history. Where politicians are ready to go to such extremes it is obvious that a splendid opportunity exists for Soviet propaganda. It does not help matters that Balkan partisans and Russian Communists have their separate and ultimately hostile aims. In Yugoslavia the Raditch party wants a Croat republic. In Bulgaria the agrarian followers of the dead Stambuliski want revenge. Moscow wants a general overturn with a view to Europe as a whole. The alliance is formidable, just the same.

In its broadest aspect the situation presents one more phase of a conflict between the idea of a pacified Europe, for which the Allies are laboring, and a Europe in upheaval, to which the Bolshevist energies are directed.—New York Times.

AMERICA AND THE PRINCE OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales is to dine with President Coolidge. He is to set the fashion (so press despatches tell us) in men's clothes from Maine to the Golden Gate; he is to be mobbed on landing by reporters and photographers; he is to be invited to visit every town from New York to Sinclair Lewis' Main Street; his cut will be in every American paper from the New York Times to the Police Gazette; millions of flappers will carry his picture around with them; thousands of heiresses and wives of millionaires will sigh to get near or to know him.

Time was when your robust Yankee said he hated Kings. The only Kings he liked were the kind he wanted in sufficient quantities in his national game of poker. And with his spread-eagle oratory, in his super-democratic press, he invited the puppets and subjects of Kings everywhere to come to the "land of the free." America, free, democratic, untrammelled by thrones, would haven us all from monarchy.

Today, what a difference! In England King George and the Prince of Wales go quietly among their people. Unostentatious, democratic, constitutional, they are admired and loved—accepted as a matter of course. In America, land of super-democracy, the Prince of Wales is all but mobbed by super-democrats. The triumphs of the Giants; the fate of Kid McCoy; the latest Hollywood scandal; the movements of Jack Dempsey; the speeches of Davis and Coolidge; the pranks of the Ku Klux Klan; the possibilities of La Folette—all these are thrown into limbo. A Prince of the Royal Blood is to set his foot on Yankeeland!

The moral is perfectly obvious. It is that their professions and their boasts to the contrary notwithstanding, the American people are Royalists to their finger tips. Monarchy, pageantry, tradition, ritual, all the things that symbolize history, are as dear to them as to the most constitutional and traditional of Britons.

And this is true not alone of the masess. A quarter of a century ago an American daring to question the Constiution and the wisdom of its framers would be held up to dishonor for treason. Today it is being challenged, acutely challenged, by the weightiest, most patriotic, and most scholarly of Americans.—Ottawa Journal.

AVERAGE GOODNESS.

Among the sayings of Lincoln that endeared him to his fellow human beings was his declaration that the Lord must love the common people, since he made so many of them. It is a worthy ambition that leads one to aspire to be a common person. We throw about the word "common" in a reproachful sense when it may mean an honorable distinction. For instance, we beseech others to use their common sense knowing that such sense is a precious thing and—in some localities—a rarity.

Dr. Eliot once wrote a beautiful study of two "common" lives, calling it first "The Forgotten Millions" and then by the inferior title of "John and Martha Gilley." They were a long-wedded, faithful pair he met in his sojourns summer after summer on the Maine coast. He told of their pioneer hardships, their family cares, their distributive goodness to the neighbors, their vision of their duty and their moral earnestness, but there was no hint of preaching in the tale. Rather he was concerned to point out their economic self-reliance and their character, rock-ribbed like the sea-torn coast, where the father tended his lighthouse for a pittance from the Government.

At the close of the article he gave thanks for their steadfast, undecorative but civilizing example, expressing his belief that it is for unnumbered good and quiet lives like theirs that God made and upholds this earth.

Ambition prompts the quest of a career; one man with a scrivening pen at a desk aspires to lead a cavalry charge, and as you look at his quizzical, withered face you would not dream it. A girl with music and poetry competing for the possession of the larger areas of her mind wants most of all, to be Jeanne d'Arc in this century and ride abroad like a Tennysonian hero redressing wrongs; but she does not confess it, except perhaps in shy occasional whispers to herself. Most of us can have in prospect no dramatic and supreme occasions calling us to flare suddenly like a rocket in the night before awed spectators. But along the common way, for the lives that move in the daily current beside our own, there are a thousand useful, simple things to do that seem as important as some of the things that are called great.—Philadelphia Ledger.

OBITUARY

MRS. CHAS. SUMMERBY.

WARKWORTH, Aug. 26.— At Western Hospital, Montreal, on August 20th occurred the death of Mrs. Chas. Summerby of St. Lambert after two months' illness. The news shocked the whole community.

Mrs. Summerby who was the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Baker of this village was in her thirty-ninth year and up until the last five years was a resident of Warkworth and a popular young lady capable and willing to be of service to others. The deceased was also a prominent church worker, played the Anglican Church organ for a number of years. Mrs. Summerby's happy, cheerful and loving disposition won for her a host of friends.

The body of the deceased was brought to her father's residence early Friday morning and the funeral service was held at 3.00 p.m. The service was in charge of Rev. Geo. Hammond assisted by Rev. Belford M.P.P. and Rev. D. A. Thompson of Hastings, who spoke in highest termsr of the departed one.

Besides her husband and parents Mrs. Summerby leaves to mourn her loss four brothers and six sisters: M. J. Baker and W. A. Baker, Hastings; T. S. Baker, Campbellford; W. A. Baker, Warkworth; Mrs. H. B. Wilson, Hastings; Mrs. Russel MacGillivray, Burlington; Mrs. Jack E. Musgrave, Belleville; Mrs. Geo. Barker, Picton and Misses Blanche and Helen Baker at home.

The bearers were four brothers and two brothers-in-law.

The numerous floral tributes were:

Pillow—Mother and Father.

Wreaths— Brothers and sisters, employees of C.N.R., Montreal, I.O.D.E., Anglican Guild, Warkworth.

Sprays—Mrs. Wm. Reid and Mr. Ed. Summerby, Miss Bessie and Mr. Stuart Watt of Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Wiggins, Campbellford, Mrs. Reg. Roberts, Grafton, Mr. and Mrs. R. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Maycock, Mr. and Mrs. H. Zufelt and Mr. and Mrs. John Grant, and loved ones, Warkworth.

The interment took place at Warkworth cemetery.

WRIT FOR TAX ARREARS.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Aug. 25.—(Canadian Press Cable via Reuters).— In connection with the recent appointment of a select committee of the Australian parliament to investigate charges made by labor members that land taxes were not being collected from wealthy owners of large areas the commonwealth government has issued a writ against Sir Sydney Kidman, known as the Australian cattle king, claiming £156,000 arrears of land taxees.

OIL.

In 13 years the supply of oil stored underground by nature will be exhausted, a prominent geologist warns. This has been a stock prediction for half a century, and it usually precedes discovery of another big new oil field.

Of course, it's just a matter of time until the oil will be gone. For lubrication man will use such things as lard. For explosive power in engines he'll turn to alcohol—now widely used instead of "gas" by Cuban motorists.

Gallon of alcohol, exploded bit by bit will in effect hurl an auto some 15 miles. Does even more in the stomach.

FUTILE.

The Lakuta tribe, living along the upper Nile in Africa, want rain. So they appeal to their chief, the magician put into public office chiefly on account of his supposed rain-making powers. He orders rain. If it doesn't come, his savage followers shoot arrows at the sky in reproof.

This story, brought by explorers, amuses Canadians who figuratively shoot arrows at the natural laws of economics, when the laws fail to function pleasingly. Our public will never be satisfied until the law of supply and demand is repealed.

LLOYD GEORGE LAYS PLANS TO RETURN AS ENGLAND'S PREMIER, BRONNER SAYS

By MILTON BRONNER.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—David Lloyd George—extinct political volcano.

David Lloyd George—giving rumbling signs of life.

David Lloyd George—political volcano once more in full eruption.

Unless all signs fail, these are destined to be three new chapters in the career of the most picturesque and romantic statesman England has produced since Disraeli became the idol of the Tory party.

Lloyd George and his pet airedale in the Surrey hills.

Only a few days ago there were few to do "L. G." reverence. He was considered dead and done for. A new coalition government was considered impossible. The formation of a new Centre party was considered improbable. To blow the breath of life into L. G.'s old party, the Liberals, was considered pure fantasy.

But now wealthy Tories in their swell London clubs are getting ready to "damn that fellow Lloyd George" as they did in the famous days of 1909-11.

Look at events: the Die-Hard Tories forced their party to withdraw its support of the coalition government led by Lloyd George. That government fell. A Tory government succeeded it.

After long manœuvres the breach in the famous old Liberal party was healed. Lloyd George with the Liberals who had joined him in the coalition government went back into the camp of the old independent Liberals who refused the coalition.

This newly united party, with Asquith and L. G. speaking from the same platforms, landed at the bottom of the heap in the last Parliamentary elections. The strength was—Tories, a very strong first; Labor-Socialist, a strong second; Liberals, a weak third.

Labor formed the government. Liberals and Tories by combining can at any time throw the government out. But they don't want to at the present time. The Tories know that Big Business does not want an election affy time soon. The Liberals want more time to fill their war chest and repair their battered lines.

Inside the party a battle is being fought for the leadership when Asquith, old and tired, steps down. One clique wants Sir John Simon, a famous lawyer and former cabinet member.

He marvels at a skyscraper.

The other faction wants L. G. They will probably win, because Lloyd George is incomparably the greater leader and campaigner. And to cinch it for himself and to give the Liberals a programme which will enable them both to attack the Tories and undercut the Labor-Socialists, Loyd George has gone back to his 1909 tactics.

The crafty Welshman, looking over the field now, sees that in world trade what Britain needs is greater development of her electrical power. This means coal. And coal means peace in the coal mines.

But in the near future everybody once more sees a great struggle between the mine companies and the coal miners.

The only thing these clashing forces agree upon is that their troubles are increased by reason of the fact that the mine companies have to pay huge royalties to the rich men under whose lands the coal is found. Several of these men draw as high as half a million dollars per annum in royalties.

Here is where L. G. attacks. His programme is not for continued private ownership as the Tories advocate, nor for nationalization of the mines such as the Labor party advocates.

Lloyd George says the nation should buy the mineral resources of the nation from those now drawing the royalties. This can be done for £70,000,000.

The money would not be taken from the treasury. The government would issue bonds for the sum.

The government would also levy a 10 per cent. tax on the sums it paid for the royalty rights, this money and other sums to be used for building homes fit for the miners to live in, instead of the present awful slums. Coal minin would be supervised by a royal commission.

The result, according to L.G. would be; First....Payment of excessive royalties to wealthy landowners would be done away with.

L. G. on the stump.

Second.—A reasonable profit to the mining companies and a decent wage to the miners would be assured.

Third.—The government would be enabled to enforce decent living conditions or the men who mine the coal.

Fourth.—The public would get the coal at a better price.

And the best o it is he can maintain that this improvement for everybody will not cost the taxpayers a penny.

LOSE WEIGHT

Breakfast—One cup strawberries, 1 shredded wheat biscuit with ½ cup skimmed milk, 1 or 2 cups hot water.

Luncheon—One stuffed egg, 1 gluten roll, 1 cup of skimmed milk

Dinner—One cup clear vegetable soup, 2 broiled lamb chops, 2 tablespoons new peas, 1 tomato sliced on 2 ounces lettuce, 4 tablespoons chilled fresh fruit combination, 2, thin slices gluten bread, 1 cup weak clear tea.

Bedtime—One-half cup (4 ounces) hot skimmed milk.

Total calories for the day, 1139. Protein, 265; fat, 317; carbohydrate, 357. Iron, .0299 gram.

This arrangement of food for the day supplies you with well balanced meals that provide variety and nourishment. You may prefer your half cup of skimmed milk with your dinner or breakfast, but a small glass of hot milk or cold, if you like, may help you to sleep.

The eggs are stuffed with well seasoned beet greens and arranged on a bed of the greens in a baking dish to reheat. Combine the hard boiled yolks with minced cooked greens, season with salt, pepper and lemon juice and stuff the white cut in halves lengthwise.

One tablespoon stewed rhubarb, 1 tablespoon shredded pineapple, 1 tablespoon stoned fresh cherries and 1 tablespoon diced strawberries and chilled and served for the dinner dessert.

Total calories, 81. Protein, 3; fat, 9; carbohydrate, 87. Iron, .0023 gram.

GAIN WEIGHT

Breakfast—One cup strawberries with 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 shredded wheat biscuit with ½ cup cream, ½ cup creamed dried beef on 1 slice buttered toast, 2 graham muffins, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon orange marmalade, 1 or 2 cups hot water.

Luncheon—One cup cream of corn soup with 1 tablespoon whipped cream, 1 stuffed egg with 2 tablespoons hot mock-hollandaise sauce, 1 banana and peanut salad with 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 4 tablespoons baked date pudding with 2 tablespoons whipped cream, 1 cup whole milk, 2 Parker House rolls, 1 tablespoon butter.

Dinner—One cup clear vegetable soup with 2 tablespoons cheese croutons, 2 broiled lamb chops, 3 new potatoes in white sauce, 4 tablespoons buttered peas, 1 tomato sliced on 2 ounces lettuce with 2 tablespoons French dressing, 4 tablespoons mixed fruits over 4 tablespoons vanilla ice cream, the whole sprinkled with 2 tablespoons chopped nuts, 1 cup weak tea with sugar and cream as preferred, 1 slice whole wheat bread, 1 tablespoon butter.

Bedtime—One cup whole milk, 2 graham crackers.

Total calories for the day, 4316. Protein, 501; fat, 1722; carbohydrate, 2093. Iron, .0312 gram.

Instead of rhubarb in the mixed fruit dip for the ice cream, use sliced banana. Sweeten the fruit to taste.

The same whipped cream is used for the soup and the pudding, but the first is taken out before the rest is sweetened for the dessert.

LOSE WEIGHT.

Breakfast—Four tablespoons shredded pineapple, 1 slice crisp broiled bacon, 1 graham muffin split and toasted, 1 or 2 cups hot water.

Luncheon—Hot diet egg-nog, 1 slice gluten bread.

Dinner—Four ounces lean roast beef, 1 large baked onion, 1 cup combination vegetable salad, 1 cup raspberries, 1 gluten roll.

Bedtime—One cup hot skimmed milk.

Total calories, 1103. Protein, 256; fat, 292; carbohydrate, 535. Iron, .0229 gram.

While fresh fruit is in season the reducing diet need never lack dessert. Of course, you must eat your fruit without sugar and cream, but that's no hardship.

Hot Diet Egg-Nog.

One egg, 1 cup skimmed milk, few grains salt, cinnamon or nutmeg.

Beat egg with salt until light. Heat milk to the scalding point. Beat into egg. Sprinkle cinnamon or nutmeg over the top and serve at once.

Total calories, 162. Protein, 57; fat, 57; carbohydrate, 48. Iron, 0144 gram.

If you prefer your egg-nog cold, a cup of hot tea or hot water should be included in the luncheon menu. No matter how hot the day something hot should be included in the noon meal.

GAIN WEIGHT.

Breakfast—Four tablespoons shredded pineapple, 2 slices broiled bacon, 1 fried egg, 4 tablespoons creamed potatoes, 2 graham muffins split and toasted, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon marmalade.

Mid-morning lunch—One cup uncooked cereal with 1 sliced banana, 1 tablespoon sugar, ½ cup cream.

Luncheon—Four tablespoons molded asparagus cream, 2 hot rolls, 4 tablespoons boiled rice, 2 tablespoons strawberry sauce, 1 tablespoon butter, weak tea or hot water, 3 radishes, 2 olives.

Afternoon tea—One cup gaining egg nog, 2 bran bread and butter sandwiches.

Dinner—Four ounces roast beef, 2 potatoes baked with meat, 2 tablespoons brown gravy, 1 baked onion, 1 cup combination vegetable salad with 4 tablespoons French dressing, 1 cup raspberries with sugar and ¼ cup cream, 1 large piece sunshine cake, 2 slices whole wheat bread, 1 tablespoon butter.

Bedtime—One cup hot whole milk.

Total calories, 4109. Protein, 479; fat, 1693; carbohydrate, 1847. Iron 40.21 gram.

Gaining Egg-Nog.

One egg, 1 tablespoon sugar, ¼ cup cream, ½ cup milk, few grains salt, cinnamon or nutmeg.

Beat egg with sugar and salt. Add milk and cream and beat well. Sprinkle with cinnamon or nutmeg and serve very cold.

Total calories, 537. Protein, 61; fat, 329; carbohydrate, 147. Iron .0022 gram.

DUCK SEASON TO OPEN ON SEPT. 1

The Following Are the Dates Set For the Hunting of Game Birds.

A summary of the Migratory Birds Act is given below. This is the law which is based upon the Treaty with the United States. Any enquiries concerning this law may be addressed to the Commissioner of the Canadian National Parks, Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

Open Seasons.

Ontario—Both dates inclusive.

Sept. 1 to Dec. 15—Ducks, geese, brant or rails.

Sept. 1 to Dec. 15—Wilson or jack-snipe, black-bellied and golden plovers and the greater and lesser yellow-legs.

Sept. 15 to Nov. 30—Woodcock.

Closed Seasons.

There is a closed season in Ontario on swans, wood duck, eider duck (the latter may be taken during the open season for ducks on the Hudson Bay coast) cranes, curlew, willet, godwits, upland plover, avocets, dowitchers, knots, oyster-catchers, phalaropes, stilts, surf-birds, turnstones, and all the shore-birds not provided with an open season in above schedule.

There is a closed season throughout the year on the following non-game birds: Auks, auklets, bitterns, fulmars, gannets, grebes, guillemots, gulls, herons, jaegers, loons, murres, petrels, puffins, shearwaters, and terns; and there is a closed season throughout the year on the following insectivorous birds; Bobolinks, catbirds, chickadees, cuckoos, flickers, fly-catchers, grosbeaks, humming-birds, kinglets, martins, meadowlarks, nighthawks, or bull bats, nuthatches, orioles, robins, shrikes, swallows, swifts, tanagers, titmice, thrushes, vireos, warblers, waxwings, whippoorwhills, woodpeckers and wrens, and all other perching birds which feed entirely or chiefly on insects.

No person shall kill, capture, injure, take or molest migratory game birds during the closed season. Sale of these birds is forbidden.

The killing, captusing, taking, injuring or molesting of migratory insectivorous and migratory non-game birds is prohibited.

Penalty.

Every person who violates any provision ofthis Act or any regulation shall, for each offence, be liable upon summary conviction to a fine of not more than three hundred dollars and not less than ten dollars, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to both fine and imprisonment.

When baking a custard warm the milk before adding the egg and no water will settle in the bottom of the dish.

COBOURG AND THE DISTRICT

Tax Rate in Colborne Drops Three Mills—Tag Day Results.

COBOURG, Aug. 25.—The tax rate for the village of Colbourne has been set at 44 mills, which is three mills less than it was last year. The school levy is down two mills and the village rate has dropped a mill. This is welcome news for the ratepayers. The reduction in the levy to schools is $712 and the curtailment in general expenditure about $1,100. The total village assessment is $365,000, which at a 44-mill rate will yield $16,000. This amount is expected to meet the current expenditure.

Will Go To Camp Here.

The Northumberland Regiment, under Col. F. S. Boggs, will go into camp here on August 30. The regimental band, from Campbellford, will be here also.

Dislocated His Ankle.

While climbing a fence at Baltimore, Mr. Thomas Bendall had the misfortune to fall and dislocate his ankle. The accident will confine him to the house for some time.

The Ontario Teachers' Trip.

Miss May McCaughey, of the Cobourg Public School staff, left on Wednesday for Toronto to join the Ontario teachers on a trip to Northern Ontario. They expect to visit the mining camps and various places of interest and besides get a lot of first-hand information regarding the wealth and possibilities of that great country, the natural resources of which are not fully realized by the people of older Ontario. Miss McCaughey represents the Public School teachers of Inspectorate No. 2, Northumberland and Durham.

Visited Cobourg.

Mr. John Waddell, of Kansas City, was a visitor to Cobourg during the week. He left here 42 years ago. He is a son of the late Sheriff Waddell of Cobourg. Mr. Waddell had been attending the annual convention in Toronto of the British Association for the advancement of science. Mr. Waddell represented Spain, of which country he is an honorary member of the Scientists' Association.

Death of Roy Douglas Niles.

Roy Douglas Niles, fourth son of the late Thomas Niles, and of Mrs Niles, Cobourg, died in Montreal a few days ago from typhoid fever. The remains were brought here and and the funeral took place yesterday to St. Peter's Church. Mr. Niles was connected with the C.N.R. in Montreal. He married Miss Lillian Rowson, of Port Hope, who, with one daughter, survives him. He is survived also by his mother, four brothers (William, Harry and Cecil, of Cobourg, and Harold, of Belleville), and one sister, Mrs. D. E. Fisher, Belleville.

.245 on Tag Day.

A tag day was held by the Cobourg Primary Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire on Thursday, the proceeds being for the Soldiers' Memorial Fund. About fifteen young ladies carried on the work, and about $245 was realized.

Cobourg Racing Pigeon Club.

The Cobourg Racing Pigeon Club held their second race of the young birds from Woodstock to Cobourg, a distance of 142 miles, with the following results:—Hatton, 1st; Swan, 2nd and 3rd; G. Manton, 4th and 5th; Lang, 6th.

Additional Schoolroom Needed.

The Cobourg Collegiate Institute Board held a joint meeting with the Town Council on Wednesday for the purpose of discussing the question of additional accommodation for the pupils of the C. C. I. upon the opening of the autumn term. It was decided to try and rent the basement of the Baptist Church, and a committee was appointed to attend to the matter, and also to consider and carry out any necessary charges and improvements. The erection of an addition to the C. C. I. came up for considerable discussion.

Local and Personal.

Col. A. E. Bywater, Trenton, is retiring, it is said, from the command of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and Major Dorins Green, of Stirling, will be promoted, it is stated, to the position.

Mr. Clarence Collins, Campbellford, was a recent visitor here.

Miss U. Garrison, Thurlow Township, has been visiting with her sister here.

Mr. R. Parker returned on Monday from Rochester, Fairport, and other points, where he spent two weeks' holidays.

Miss Eileen Foley, Peterborough, is visiting with relatives in town.

Mr. Bob Neilson, Banff, was a week-end guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Neilson, and attended the Baker-Pringle marriage. He was one of the three members of the Mounted Police sent East to return in charge of the harvesters' excursion.

Mr. and Mrs. Abbott, Rochester, were guests at the Baker-Pringle marriage, and visited Mrs. Abbott's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Neilson.

Death of James W. Farquharson.

Mr. James W. Farquharson, who was born in Toronto, but went to Oshawa to reside, where he married Miss Edith M. Taylor, moving some time later to Rochester, where he built up a lucrative photograph business, is dead in the Queen City. He is survived by his wife and by a niece, Miss Edith Taylor, who resided with them.

Cruised Up the Trent.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Palmer and Mr. and Mrs. Gillis, Ingram have returned to Wellington after a cruise up the Trent and through the Kawartha system in the cruiser "Pat Ann." Starting from Belleville, they proceeded up the Trent waterway to Hastings, Peterborough and Stoney Lake. They went thence to Buckhorn, and report a very pleasant outing.

The Tourist Camp.

The tourist camp has been well patronized this week by a large number of camping parties. One from Florida travelling in a large car, have their temporary abode fitted up with comfortable berths and many of the comforts of home life.

Rev. J. E. Glover, a former Centreton minister, now of Canbray, with Mrs. Glover and family are spending their holidays at a cottage on the Trent River.

Mrs. Jones and Miss Laura L. Jones are enjoying a trip up the Lakes, going as far as Duluth.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Watson were in Port Hope attending the funeral of Mrs. Watson's mother, the late Mrs. James Fleming.

Misses Alma and Grace Bastian, Seneca Parkway, Rochester, are visiting their sister, Mrs. E. W. Bichle.

Miss Helen Ogilvie, of Edinburgh, Scotland, is visiting her brother, Mr. Gordon Ogilvie, Port Hope Road, and will later go to British Columbia to visit another brother.

Mrs. W. J. Westington, of Quay's Crossing, has returned from a trip to the Pacific Coast.

Miss W. J. Hinds, Brighton, was guest of Mrs. Hogg, Baltimore, over the week-end.

MEMORIAL UNVEILED.

Hastings Church Scene of Impressive Service on Sunday.

HASTINGS, Aug. 26.—A beautiful and impressive service was held in the Methodist church on Sunday morning, the occasion being that of the unveiling of the memorial tablet which has been erected on the wall of the front of the church, in honor of the five boys from the church and circuit who gave their lives in the Great War.

After the opening hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages Past," was sung, the Rev. D. A. Thompson gave the opening prayer.

The title of the lesson was "The mutual love between Christ and His believers, as expressed in the fifteenth chapter of Saint John, was read by Rev. Hammond, of Warkworth. The address was given by Rev. Hammond. "Fear and its conqueror love," taken from the fourth chapter of the first epistle of John, the eighth verse. We fear not love is the message of the silent tongues of those whose names appear on the tablet were the opening remarks of the speaker, who also said that he was present to give a message of love to those before him, not to tell of the hardships of the boys who were overseas, nor to boast of brave deeds done, nor medals won.

The speaker being a chapiain overseas could tell many of the things that happened on the fields of Flanders but thought many were better not related. Never a complaint or murmur did he hear from the boys and all died willingly that those at home might have freedom.

An evidence was related from the Haileybury fire on "greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends," when a group of children near the fire zone were by the roadside and were all picked up but one, and one of the firemen going back for remaining one was caught in the flames and after the fire had passed over the remains of the child and fireman were found among the charred ruins.

The second message of the speaker was one of praise for the people who stayed at home, who bore so bravely the loss of the dear ones. War has left many aching hearts, voices silent and smiling, faces are seen no more, and then besought the people to live more closely to meet the dear ones on yonder shore.

A decent burial was given the boys and many efforts were made by the burying squad, and love and co-operation reigned in all branches.

Rev. M. L. Hinton had charge of the proceedings and spoke feelingly for those who mourned the loss of the loved ones.

A vocal solo, "Face to Face," was rendered by Miss V. Strange, of Barrie.

The pipe organ issued forth melodious music, and was played by Mr. Herbert Treneer, the blind musician. Mr. Treneer also rendered a vocal number, "Crossing the Bar," and during the service played an instrumental number.

The tablet, which was draped with two Union Jacks, was at the appointed time unveiled by Mr. James Stevenson, Sr., the oldest member of the church, he being in his ninety-second year, and was the father of one whose name is inscribed on the tablet. The flags fell softly to the sides of the tablet, and the Reverend Hammond dedicated the memorial with the following words: "In the name and glory of God in the memory of Roy Richardson, Russel Scriver, Ernest G. Stevenson, M.C., Edmund Longuir and Hugh N. McArthur, we hand over this memorial to your charge and keeping. The pastor of the church, Reverend M. L. Hinton, accepted the dedication with the words: "We accept the sacred trust and shall guard it in honor of the faithful and devoted lives to whose memory it is set up, and we now request Mr. James Stevenson, Sr., to unveil it."

The Last Post was sounded by Private Cyril Blackbourne, and the last hymn, "Faith of our fathers living still" was sung, and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Thompson.

The church was crowded to the doors, and chairs were placed in the aisles for the accommodation of those present, and many found it necessary to stand at the back of the church.

The evening service in the Methodist Church was withdrawn on Sunday evening, and on Sunday morning the Presbyterian Church withdrew their service so that all might attend the unveiling ceremonies.

When using drippings for pastry they must be thoroughly clarified first.

NEWS FROM MADOC.

Sudden Death of Mrs. D. E. K. Stewart a Shock to the Community.

MADOC, August 26. — The whole community was shocked yesterday morning by the announcement of the sudden death of Mrs. Stewart, wife D. E. K. Stewart, well known lawyer.

Mrs. Stewart was aparently in very good health, and had attended services on Sunday evening. She was quite well and in good spirits when she retired. Yesterday morning Miss Emily Stewart, who had come home from New York on Thursday last for a visit, found her mother lying beside the bed. Help was summoned immediately but life was already extinct. It is thought that heart failure was the cause of death, and that Mrs. Stewart was preparing to rise when she succumbed.

Mrs. Stewart was much beloved by all who knew her. She has been a loyal member of St. John's Anglican church for many years. Besides her husband she leaves three daughters, Mrs. Edward Cross of Toronto, Mrs. Stephenson Smith of Renfrew, and Miss Emily of New York; one son, Mr Kinnear Stewart, of Douglas, Arizona; and two sisters, Mrs. Osborne, of Albany, N.Y., and Miss Lister of Belleville.

Masonic Meeting.

Madoc Chapter of Masonic Masons held a meeting in Bancroft when about 30 of the members of Bancroft Lodge received the supreme degree of the Holy Royal Arch.

About 20 of the Madoc members were present on this occasion and all report a delightful trip. The Bancroft members received their visitors in royal manner and gave them the freedom of the town, as well as showing them the beautiful sights of the surrounding country. One of the most remarkable sights of that district is the Eagles' Nest, a mountain with some of the sides of almost perpendicular rock. Here the scenery is as wild and picturesque as nature lovers could wish to see.

Many visitors were present at the Masonic gathering, brethren from New York, Peterborough, Belleville, Stirling, and esewhere.

A number of the guests motored cut ,and an the way some of party had their sporting blood aroused when their car ran amuck of a band of deer. No doubt these ment kept track of the spot so that they may return to the exact place when the hunting season opens.

Good Fishing.

Many Americans have enjoyed the fishing at the beautiful lake this season ,and many a good fish story will be told when they return home.

On Saturday last one of their number landed two small-mouthed black bass ,each weighing over 5 pounds.

Mr. Gordon Foot and Mr. Neill Sinclair sauntered home from the lake yesterday morning displaying a fine specimen of maskinonge weighing over 20 pounds.

Mr. Edgar J. Lattimer and family of Peterborough are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George West and of Mrs. Ed. West.

Mrs. George Barnum and son Jack, of Woodstock, are visiting Mrs. J. Ockerman for a few days.

Mrs. Copeland and little Miss Dorothy, of Galt, are at the Rectory with Rev. and Mrs. Strother.

Mr. Fred Doughty, whose life was despaired of for many days after his accident and operation, has so far recovered as to be allowed to return to his home from Kingston Hospital. His many friends will be glad to hear of his restored health.

The condition of Mr. Marcellus shows a marked improvement the last two days.

LAKEVIEWS WIN.

Defeat Belleville in Cobourg By Score of 15 To 5.

The Lakeviews won the right to take a crack at the Motor Town boys yesterday when they defeated the Belleville crew in Cobourg by the score of 15 to 5. The Lakeviews were never headed, and the closest the Belleville boys made the score was 10 to 5. The Lakeviews had everything their own way throughout.

PACKING COMPANY GOING BANKRUPT

Wilson and Company Has An Outstanding Debt of $47,177,000.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press).—Wilson and Company, Incorporated, one of the "big four" packers, will contest the receivership order entered in Trenton, N.J., on petition of a minor stockholder. Thomas E. Wilson, head of the company, and Frank O. Wetmore, Chicago bank president and chairman of the bankers' committee which for months has been attempting to work out a plan for reorganization of the company's finances, sent telegrams to that effect from New York as soon as they learned of the proceedings.

The complaint came from Maurice I. Klein, of Newark, who alleged that the big packing concern is indebted to various banking institutions for nearly $30,000,000, and has a funded debt outstanding of $47,177,000. Klein was identified as a holder of twenty-five shares of Wilson and Company stock with a par value of $2,500. He contended that in at least two recent instances where interest fell due on the company's stocks and bonds the defendant had no cash on hand to pay.

OBITUARY.

FRANK A. MOORE

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Aug. 26.—Frank A. Moore, aged 83, native of Peterborough, Ont., and for some time resident of Merrillsville, N. Y., near here, died late Saturday afternoon following an extended illness at his home in Merrillsville. The late Mr. Moore is survived by his wife, one son, George T. Moore of Merrillsville, N.Y., and by one sister, Cora Dorilla Moore of Adams, N.Y., Funeral services were held from his late home in Merrillsville on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with the Rev. G. W. Folson of the Clockville Methodist Church officiating after which the body was taken to Peterborough, Ont., for interment.

TROUBLE.

There are no new problems—just the same old problems masquerading in new forms.

Fascinated by the belief in our generation's importance, we imagine that our problem of traffic congestion is something new, the creation of our marvellous machanical progress.

But ancent Rome had traffic problems eqqually acute, says Dr. T. Ashby, one of the clef diggers excavating Roman ruins. Chariot speed maniacs kept officials busy.

Probably the future will be worried by traffic congestion in the air, planes swarming by millions.

REMOVES STING

Kerosene oil applied to a burn will remove the sting very promptly.

The bride and groom arrived at the swell hotel on their honeymoon. The room they occupied was beautifully furnished with a pair of twin beds. Upon seeing them the bride immediatley began to cry, and the groom said: "Why dear, what is the matter?" "Why," said the bride, looking at the twin beds, "I thought we were going to have a room all by ourselves."

RUM RUNNING AN OLD PRACTICE

Smuggling of Brandy From France To England Was Pronounced 150 Years Ago.

FOILED COAST GUARDS.

There is nothing new in rum running. For a century and a half the coast of England was beset by smugglers who plied a profitable trade in wine and brandy obtained in France, but a few miles distant.

"The smuggler," a British historian wrote, "was the beau ideal of a British sailor, active, daring and prodigal of his gains."

His profession, while frowned upon by a Government that did not propose to be cheated out of its revenue, did not put the smuggler beyond the pale. Smuggling, in fact, was more or less of a family affair, and in some vilages the whole community engaged in the merry game of dodging the Coast Guard, dividing the profits on an equitable basis. At one period it was estimated that 20,000 smugglers were employed in carrying contraband into England.

Methods of smuggling differed in several respects from those practiced along the American coast today, but there are several points of similarity. Speed boats and airplanes did not exist. There was no Rum Row. For the source of supply was just across the British Channel, and with a fair breeze the lugger or cutter could make the trip in a day or less. Landing and distribution, as practiced in the old days, remind one that the basis of the fine art of smuggling has not changed. Ancient tactics are still good.

The cutter would plan to reach land about dusk, as the greatest risk was run in unloading the "stops." Often, when the skipper was uncertain about the Coast Guard, he dropped his kegs and tubs overboard, to be called for later. The modern runners do this, too. First, the skipper lashed the tubs into a raft shaped like a pyramid. The tops of the tubs were painted white, the raft green. Two grapnel anchors were fastened to the bottom layer of tubs. The pyramid drifted in with the tide, the white tubs on top lost in the white ripples of the ocean, the body of the raft being invisible. The contrivance floated to where the water was only a few feet deep and there the anchor caught the sand and held the raft securely. The lookout on shore kept watch for the raft and brought it to the beach in due time.

Again, the smugglers would fasten the kegs on one rope at intervals and between each barrel would put a heavy stone that weighted the line and kept the kegs beneath the surface of the water. Sometimes at one end of the line a small buoy would be floated as a signal for those who awaited the cargo on shore.

If the smuggler preferred to sink his cargo, keg by keg, the French obligingly prepared the kegs with that prospect in mind. Each keg was weighted with a heavy piece of iron and encircled with heavy rope. At one end of the rope was a piece of cork which in time gave the necessary clue to the whereabouts of the keg. Later confederates of the skipper went out in the night with "creepers," heavy iron chains, and swept the water for the sunken kegs. After their recovery they were passed on to other men to be distributed throughout the country.

When the tub carriers met the sailing boats and took the contraband on their shoulders they were frequently protected by "batsmen." These men carried bats to protect the carriers and logically seem the forefathers of the gunmen, who often accompany the American bootlegger. The run inland was made with horses and cart, protected by men with bats and even more deadly weapons. "Flashers" distributed the liquor in smaller amounts, and when sold out came back to the "resetter" for another supply.

People Looked the Other Way.

The men who circulated the spirits were known as laud-smugglers. As they crossed the country with kegs strapped so the saddles of the horses they rode or led, it was considered bad form to look at them. No one wanted to be able to recognize a runner. The obliging countryfolk always turned their backs to the free-traders and children were bid to "Watch the wall, my darling, while the gentlemen go by."

In many cases it took more than a day for the kegs to reach their destination. But there was no shortage of caches. Houses were rebuilt with concealments for the sole purpose of secreting kegs from the eyes of the revenue men. When the lord of the manor went to his outbuildings after a moonless night he probably discovered that his place had been occupied, and in lieu of rent he was the richer by a tub of brandy. When a farmer found that his horses had been borrowed without his consent, he said nothing but waited patiently for their return with the usual gift.

Public houses were logical places for the concealment, and an old chronicle says that "the churchyards were frequently crowded at night by other spirits than those of the dead, and not even the church was exempted from such visitations."

It is related that the Vicar of Hove, who frequently preached in a neighboring town, decided unexpectedly to preach from his own pulpit. Much surprised was the good man to find when he arrived unannounced that his church was full of tubs and the pulpit of tea.

At another time the same Vicar invited an ecclesiastical guest to mount the church tower, when a beautiful view of the country could be had. The beautiful view the righteous guest saw was twenty-three kegs of spirits in the gutter [illegible] roof.

Parliament Acts to Curb Smugglers.

For [illegible] years little progress was made against the smugglers. Outnumbered by smugglers and land runners, their friends and relatives, the odds were against the revenue agents. Parliament eventually realized that smuggling did not begin at home and that the effort to stop it must begin at the source. Since France was beyond their jurisdiction the British decided to begin work on the Isle of Man. This small island, situated in the Irish Sea, was a strategic centre of smuggling, and its people had given up fishing and agriculture for liquor running. They offered their country as a storehouse for foreign goods and supplied the smugglers with cellars and vaults.

An old charter which handicapped the English had been granted to Sir John Stanley in 1405 by Henry IV. The island had been under the sovereign control of Sir John Stanley and his descendants from that day until at this time it was governed by Charlotte, daughter of the second Duke of Atholl, and her husband John, who became Duke and Duchess of Atholl and Lord and Lady of Man. When England decided to recover control of the isle she offered to repurchase it from the Duke, who, however, did not want to sell. But when he received a hint that he would be compelled to give up his sovereign rights he gracefully agreed to the purchase.

So, on July 11, 1765, the flag with the Manx coat of arms was hauled down and the standard of Great Britain hoisted in its place, and George III. was proclaimed King of Man. England immediately stationed a Major in command of a schooner with fourteen guns and forty men at the island, to levy duties with the right of seizure and search. The Manxmen were ruined! But not the smugglers. There were still the Channel islands of Guernsey and Jersey to be used as bases, and France obligingly made Roscoff, a small fishing village in Brittany, a free port.

England eventually decided to move on Guernsey. Among the privileges of the Channel islands was exemption from the excise laws and customs regulations of Great Britain. Smuggling vessels could load and prepare for the homeward journey with as much freedom as if they were on the coast of France, with the advantage of being so many hours nearer their destination. In 1805 the Royal Court of Guernsey protested in vain that any effort to prohibit smuggling off Guernsey would ruin a business by which thousands of loyal and industrious Gurnseyites lived. Look at Maux, they said. When smuggling was stopped there France opened Roscoff and money that should have flowed into the pockets of Britons went instead into the hands of Frenchmen.

But Parliament was adamant. The laws to prevent smuggling, which had hitherto given the right of search and seizure within a limited sea area, extended one hundred leagues from the United Kingdom, and the Channel Islands were automatically brought under their operation. The "hovering limits" were widened and a precedent established for the recent treaty, which extends the three-mile limit to twelve miles off the American coast for the purpose of controlling liquor running.

Nevertheless smuggling went on until the vigilance of the British authorities made the game no longer profitable. While the game lasted it brought large returns, but, as the historian quoted above said, "the smuggler was prodigal of his gains."

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Avoid Indigestion, Sour Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Gas on Stomach, Etc.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretions or they can eat as they please in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia, at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antiacid than Bisurated Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestent. But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without need of pepsin or artificial digestents.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

NEVER WASH EGGS

Detrimental to Eggs if Stored For Any Length of Time.

You make a mistake if you wash your eggs—unless for immediate consumption. The custom of many producers to clean eggs with a moist cloth before marketing is a common one, but disastrous to the eggs if held in storage for any considerable period. The United States Department of Agriculture is the authority for the statement that 5,016,000 dozen are needlessly spoiled each year in cold storage, simply because some one has let a clean egg get wet or has washed dirty eggs before sending them to market.

Careful investigations of large quantities of stored eggs show that "from seventeen to twenty-two per cent of the washed eggs become worthless in storage, whereas only four to eight per cent of the dirty eggs stored unwashed spoil." Here is the explanation: Water removes from the shell a gelatinous covering, which helps to keep air and bacteria out of the egg. If this covering is removed by washing or rain gets to the eggs in the nest, bacteria and molds reach the contents of the eggs and spoiling results.

Obviously, therefore, the best eggs are obtained when taken fresh and clean from the nests. This means gathering the eggs daily, and two or three times each day if the hens are in the open and have dirty feet. When gathered, keep in a cool, dry room, free from stagnant air and bad odours.

WRAP IN PAPER.

If you will wrap peaches, pears or such fresh fruits in tissue paper as soon as you get them; as the fruit merchant does, they will remain fresh and perfect longer than if you pack them together in a bag or basket.

Does Thunder Sour Milk?

Milk Will Sour During a Thunder Storm, It Has Been Proved.

The belief that thunderstorms sour milk is so widespread that it would seem there must be some foundation for it. It is questionable, however, whether there is really any connection between the thunderstorm and the souring of milk. That souring frequently occurs during a thunderstorm, htwever, cannot be doubted. After much experimenting with electric sparks, etc., scientists have come to the conclusion that bacteria grow most rapidly in the warm, sultry conditions which usually precede a thunderstorm, and it will frequently happen that the thunderstorm and the souring occur togethe not because the thunder has hastened the souring, but rather because the climatic conditions which have brought the sotrm have at the same time been such as to cause unusually rapid bacterial growth.

KING

Do you want to be a King? A job's open for you. Explorers return with news that a ruler is wanted by the kingdom of Cabinda at the mouth of the Congo River in Africa. They have a genial custom over there of killing the king the first night after initiating him into office. So, no king for many years.

Nothing is quite as effective as death. Nature is shrewed in limiting the years we spend on earth. Death is her way of restoring balance. It checks the clever brain prying too intimately into nature's secrets. Above all it makes room for another train load of excursionists—the next generation.

COVER YOUR CEREALS.

Cereals should be bought in small quantities and kept tightly covered in glass jars.

FABLES ON HEALTH

Many aboriginal tribes, including the American Indians, trained their young men to endure great pain and to remain unflinchingly stoical under torture.

The young redskin who would cry out under any torture was placed in an unfavorable light before the tribesmen.

But the Mann children, of Anytown, like most children, were petted and kissed and made a terrific fuss over if they so much as scratched themselves. As a result there was much weeping and fussing over mere nothings.

This modern attitude, which is carried to the opposite extreme from that of the aborigine, is likely to turn some children in neuraesthenic paths.

Children and grownups alike might well be given a few lessons in turning our attention away from minor troubles and hurts and cares. If started in childhood, this state of mind can be gradually strengthened and in later years there will worrying or fearing or fussing.

PROPER EATING IS BEST ROAD TO HEALTH SAYS DR. R. ROSE TABLET OF GOODWILL, FRIENDSHIP

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—If we were to become idol worshippers we would take as the symbol of our devotion a slender graceful woman, according to Dr. Robert H. Rose, of New York.

"Long ago, when little food was to be had in China and most of the population was half starved," he explains, "they visualized as their subconscious ideal a round-faced man with a huge stomach, distended from rich food and good living.

"To-day we have more food than we want or need, most of us, and we have a tendency to take on flesh, so our ideal is a slender figure, possible with many of us only by abstemious selection at the lunch counter.

"I believe the next generation will be much more slender, more beautiful and infinitely more healthy than this one, because of this ideal."

Dr. Rose has just published a book, "Eat Your Way to Health," in which he makes it appear that we are the masters of our own faces and the captains of our jowls.

Fat Dangerous.

In gradually changing the physical architecture from the straight to the curved, Dr. Rose sees not only a less beautiful structure but an increased danger from high blood pressure, lung trouble and many tendencies that slip from 10 to 20 years from life.

His theory is simple. You are either just right, or too thin or too fat. If you are just right, you adopt a maintenance diet as soon as you feel yourself taking on weight. If you are too heavy, as the majority of us are, you follow a reducing diet until you have reduced to your proper weight, then continue on a maintenance diet which will keep you just there.

The diet to get thin allows you from 1000 to 1200 ca ories a day. The maintenance diet, upon which you neither lose nor gain, is around 1800 a day. To bui d up you are allowed to go to 3000 calories a day or beyond.

Consider Vitamines.

In order intelligently to build up your menus doctor believes you must take vitamines into consideration so that your diet is not too limited. The trouble with most diets that reduce very quickly is that they are limited to two or three foods, and some part of the body may be entirely unnourished as a result.

If trying to reduce quickly, and live on one food, undoubtedly milk is your best choice, he says, since it is the most nearly perfect food. But a more gradual reduction is more desirable.

Include in each day's fare the three vitamines. Vitamine A is found in fats, cream, butter, oil, fish and green leaves such as spinach, lettuce, etc. Vitamine B is present in whole grain products, cereals, carrots, potatoes and many other vegetables. Vitamine C is found in green vegetables and fresh fruits, particularly lemon juice, orange juice, onion, tomato and cabbage juices.

ANOTHER LARGE LOAN.

NEW YORK, August 26. — Negotiation of another loan to the French government may follow the expiration of the $100,000,000 credit granted last March by J. P. Morgan & Company, to the Bank of France, for the purpose of stabilizing the franc, bankers indicated to-day.

Terms of the Morgan advance, permitting the revolving use of all or any part of the $100,000,000, provided for repayment within six months, which would bring the maturity in September. Probable flotation of the $200,000,000 international loan to Germany, early in October, it is believed, would preclude the sale of a French loan at that time. Wall street heard to-day that the Morgan firm might extend the original credit until later in the year whe nthe advance might be placed on a permanent basis throgh the sale of a bond issue.

PAJAMA OUTFITS

Very attractive pajama outfits have trousers of silk with gingham checks and coats of plain silk bound and pocketed with the plaid.

COBOURG AND THE DISTRICT

Pastors Holidaying in the District—Personal Mention.

COBOURG, Aug. 26.—The services at the Methodist Church here Sunday were taken by Rev. Mr. Seymour, who ably supplied Rev. R. F. Stillman's work.

At St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Rev. Wm. Beattie, D.D., C.M.G., preached to a large congregation, the occasion being the 24th anniversary of his ordination and induction as pastor of that church. Col. Beattie is now pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at London, Ontario. With his family, he is spending the summer in Cobourg.

Rev. S. C. Moore, Colborne, is enjoying his holidays at "The Beach," near that village. Rev. W. H. Spargo and Rev. Mr. Tonkin, of Bowmanville, are among those who are supplying the work.

Rev. J. F. Ireland, Mrs. Ireland and son Harold, of St. Ola, have been holidaying with friends at Frankford.

Mr. Finkle, of Trenton, preached at Edville on Sunday in the absence of Rev. Mr. Foley, who was away for holidays.

Rev. L. H. Coles, Colborne, preached in Brighton Baptist Church on Sunday.

Retiring From Ministry.

Rev. D. C. MacArthur, an Ontario minister, formerly located at the Presbyterian charges of Lonsdale, Melrose and Shantonville, but more recently of Birch Hills, Sask., is retiring from the active work. Appreciation of his service at the latter place was shown by presentation of gifts from the congregation, Young People's Society and Ladies' Aid. It is understood that Mr. McArthur will take up residence at Ottawa.

Local and Personal.

Rev. Father Corkery has returned from a pleasant vacation spent at Boston.

Mr Fred Hinsman, of Windsor, was in town over the week-end.

Mrs. H. E. Parsons, who had spent several weeks visiting friends in Fenella, Roseneath, Cobourg, and other points, left at the week-end to return to her home in Erie, Pa., accompanied by Miss Atkinson, of Dartford, a neice.

Mr. W. H. Maher, Montreal, spent a part of his holidays here with his parents, ex-Mayor and Mrs. W. J. Maher.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J Corbett and daughter are enjoying a motor trip to Hamilton, London, Detroit and other points.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Young spent the past week at Hastings.

Mr. E. L. Fisk, of New York City, a former resident here, is spending his vacation in town.

visiting friends in Colborne at the present time. Mr. W. W. Southen, and family, Fort William, formerly of Lakeport, are also removing to Hamilton.

OLD MEMBERS RE-UNION.

Peterborough Masonic Lodge To Call Back Members of Years Ago in Friendly Association.

On October 3rd, next, Peterborough Lodge, the second oldest of the Masonic Lodges of the city, has arranged for a fraternal reunion of members of former years and who are living outside the city. There are many such who, while not in intimate touch with their Mother Lodge, are still mindful of its existence and welfare.

A call has been issued to all of whose whereabouts knowledge is had, but there are many who have moved from place to place and so lost sight of within the knowledge of the local lodge.

The list following is that of members of former years and with whom it is desirable that touch be re-established. No doubt many have relatives or friends in the city who might know of the whereabouts of these members of years ago. It is asked that any information be communicated to the secretary of the committee, F. H. Dobbin, preferably by postcard or by 'phone. Early advice will be of assistance.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Assiduous Policemen Would Have Reeve Cut Blossom Off Potatoes

A case of mistaken identity by the local police force was reported last night by Reeve Rye, when he told the Board of Works of the vigilance of the police constables.

"They notified me to cut the weeds on a certain lot," Reeve Rye said. "I thought there was something queer about it and I went to have a look at the lot. It was covered with potatoes."

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING

FAIRYLAND.

"Absolute honesty, integrity and safety are only found in Mexico City," says Samuel M. Vauclain, president of Baldwin Locomotive Works. "Mexico City is one of the most moral, lawabiding and safe cities I have visited in the last five years. You can walk through the streets and you will find young men and even old men and boys carrying bags of silver or gold unattended. They carry their treasure without any guard, without armored vans."

This stumps us. The only possible explanation that occurs to us is that the Mexicans may be too lazy to steal the treasure. But you can imagine what would happen under similar circumstances in any American city.

WHEN.

The "vampire murderer" is charged with committing 17 murders in Hanover, Germany.

If she had been in the army and killed 17 French or Englishmen six or so years ago, they'd be pinning iron crosses on him now instead of trying to hand him over to the hangman.

PRECEDENT.

Conservation of natural resources was tried and failed in 1807, says Professor Graham, of Wisconsin State School of Mines. He refers to a law passed that year reserving for the public all mineral rights of Wisconsin, Illinois and Iowa. These rights were to be held forever by Uncle Sam and to be exploited only by short-time leases at high royalties. This leasing system was abolished in 1846, and private initiative and enterprise took charge.

What if such a policy did fail in 1807? That doesn't mean it'd be sure to fail to-day. In 1821 a submarine was tried out, designed to rescue Napoleon—and failed the very day of his death. Precedent of the past is not always infallible, by any means.

Two flowers, together in a vase, wilt sooner than when kept separately. Flowers like privacy. They express displeasure. They have moods—emotions. Some loathe music—wither and droop near an orchestra. So claims a botanist writing in London Daily Mail. blossoms.

Anyone who has studied plant life is apt to believe that it even has intelligence. If it's ever found that field of wheat will ethically be on a par with slaughtering beasts. Referred to Society for Prevention of Cruelty Plant-life.

FOOLISH.

A quaint old factory is visited by tourists at Chequers Court, England, near the country home of the British premier. In this factory men manufacture furniture with the most ancient of equipment, including lathes made of tree branches and wire, the wheels turned by roes attached to supple saplings swayed by human hands.

Admittedly, this primitive work is quaint and romantic. But it's equally foolish. The bold, gallant armored knight of long ago would have thrown away his lance and used a pistol if he could have gotten it.

VANISHING.

America's oil resources will give out in a generation and its coal supply within 2000 years, claims Sir Richard Redmayne, the British mining expert. He adds that the British Empire's coal will be exhausted in a few centuries. Seems a long way off. But natural resources are steadily being consumed and not replaced. What then? Making a living will become increasingly difficult as time goes by.

PROGRESS.

Admiration of the past is one way of expressing disapproval of progress.

Since most people fancifully love the romantic long ago, it appears that progress is not as popular as it might be.

The reason is that what we call progress is mainly mechanical—enslavement by machinery. The real goal should be increased happiness and knowledge rather than gains in pounds, speed and tin cans.

ONE BRACELET

One bracelt of goodly width and very much jeweled or carved is preferred now to the many narrow ones that have been so much the rage.

Exhibition Races Won on Firestone GUM-DIPPED CORDS

By their clean sweep of every important race at the Canadian National Exhibition, Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords demonstrated their superior strength, stamina and reliability. These wonderful tires won most of the principal speedway events of 1923 and are continuing an unbroken record of victories in 1924.

Gum-dipping gives Firestone equipment a decided advantage. Gum-dipping impregnates and insulates every cord with pure rubber, eliminating friction and giving extra strength and resilience to withstand constant flexing and pounding on the track or road.

Gum-dipping is the process that made it possible for Firestone to introduce and perfect full-size balloon tires. Without it, Firestone full-size Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords could not provide their high degree of comfort, safety and car conservation without sacrificing mileage or economy.

The majority of veteran race drivers prefer Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords and Steam-Welded Tubes. You can trust their sound practical judgment. The tires and tubes that has such stamina on the speedway is sure to give many thousands of extra miles on the road. See the Firestone dealer.

These cars at the Canadian National Exhibition are Firestone equipped:

FRENCH WOMEN NOT IN POLITICS

Undispensable in War, Have Right to Share in Advantages of Peace, Says Herriot.

FAVORS SUFFRAGE

By CONSTANCE DREXEL.
PARIS.

COMING from England, where the entrance of women in politics is not only an accepted but a welcome fact, the situation in France presents a striking contrast.

The influence of Frenchwomen in Frenchmen's lives is undeniable, yet one hears on every side, "Women have nothing to do with politics." On the other hand, nine out of ten people will say to you: "Not a wife but tells her husband how to vote." How can one reconcile these two statements?

In the last election, when Poincare was defeated, a potent reason given for the change was his announcement that taxes would be increased. The pocketbook was to be affected; women felt that keenly and the Government fell. Therefore it is quite true that the influence of women may be felt in French politics and equally true that, according to French conception of the relation of the two sexes, women have nothing to do with politics.

With the exception of a small organized group of suffragists, this view holds true among Frenchwomen as well as Frenchmen. Women see no connection between politics and their daily lives. The thought that the vote might be a power to better social, moral and family conditions is one that has not yet penetrated the Frenchwoman's consciousness. If woman suffrage is to come to France, as is possible, in some measure at least, within the next few months, it will come about not through popular demand or any very effective effort on the part of suffragists, but through the foresight of a small group of men.

The latter hold to the view that the lack of popular demand means nothing; it was the same prior to the year 1848, when "universal suffrage" was established in France. Masses of men did not clamor for the vote. The reform of "universal suffrage" was consummated through the untiring efforts of a few leaders, notably Lamartine, who said: "If the people wait in peace until justice is done them, that is all the more reason why statesmen should think and speak. It is for the leaders of the country to reflect and to have foresight. All justice, in order not to be violent and revolutionary, must come from the top!" This quotation is to be found again and again among the arguments of leaders who favor the extension of "universal" suffrage to women.

Looking to Herriot.

Who are these leaders and what are the chances of votes for women in France? When I arrived in Paris before going to London, I was told by Mme. de Witt-Schlumberber and Mme. Brunschvigg, President and Vice-President, respectively, of L'Union Francaise pour le Suffrage des Femmes: "Wait a while; Herriot is only just forming his Cabinet; we may get to him and he may make a declaration."

Herriot, it seems, had always been counted on their side. As Mayor of Lyons he had presided at a suffrage meeting. But, once in power, grave international problems engulfed him, and votes for women paled in comparison. Moreover, in a book published some months prior to his elevation to the Premiership, entitled "Creer"—"Create"—one finds a chapter devoted to "the role of woman," in which he reveals his point of view on women in politics.

"It may well be a source of astonishment that democratic France has not yet envisaged such an important question," Herriot writes. "To be frank, we voluntarily admit that it is necessary to draw a difference between the Frenchwoman and the Slavic or Anglo-Saxon woman. The Frenchwoman has been a victim of the regard which has been shown her. It is true that, in general, she does not in the least demand political rights. If one may speak generalities on such a subject, it seems that as a rule she prefers an enlightened protection to independence. There might be some imprudence in throwing her in the midst of the violences of our political fights. Because of sincere respect for their theories, we advise feminists not to precipitate the evolution and not to minimize the necessity of a progressive adaptation of women in public life or of public life for woman.

"But, in spite of the arguments of professionals in the sport of politics, we believe that the country would have much to gain for the protection of infancy, for the struggle against social diseases, if woman would at least accept an interest in municipal affairs—a community, that is, a home. There, we believe, woman may commence her public education in playing a useful role."

Where the Premier Stands.

From the above it will be seen that Herriot stands rather for suffrage by stages rather than on the same terms as men. But further in the same chapter he says:

"It seems to us that the moment has arrived to introduce women, not in a political arena where the methods of before-the-war persist, but in the policies vital to the France of to-morrow." And again: "Without the women we could not have carried on the war; they have a right to their share in the advantages of peace."

From all accounts, Herriot has not made up his mind; it is dobutful if he has given much thought to the question whether his Government should stand for municipal suffrage only, or for full suffrage for women. Moreover, he may not be Premier long enough to introduce and fight for the measure.

In brief, the votes-for-women question as it rests in Parliament may be summed up as follows: On May 20, 1919, by a vote of 329 to 95, the Chamber of Deputies passed a bill granting suffrage rights to women on the same terms as men. The Senate failed to take any action until Nov. 16, 1922, when it refused by a vote of 156 against 134 to pass to discussion of the proposition. This action makes it necessary to introduce another bill in both houses. The best opportunity will be when a new electoral law is presented, probably early in the Autumn season of Parliament.

If the bill for woman suffrage is made a Government rather than a Parliamentary measure (as it was before) it will have better chances of success. Curiously enough, the radical parties in France are now lukewarm on the subject of women in politics, though having heretofore been rather keen. This is because they are anti-clerical. They fear the influence of the Catholic Church and assert that French women, especially in the country districts, would listen to the cure, and vote according to his instructions. But as this apprehension pertains only to national politics, it would not interfere with the realization of municipal suffrage for women in France.

This fear of the influence of the Church, which in some quarters is interpreted as meaning that women would veer to the Right and support the Bloc National, even making the republic less democratic, is one of the stumbling blocks against the entrance of women in French politics. It was expressed by Clemenceau during the Peace Conference when suffragists tried to win his support for a provision recommending woman suffrage for member nations of the League of Nations. President Wilson, Lord Robert Cecil and a few others rather favored the idea, believing that such a provision would strengthen the League. But Clemenceau squelched it, though he endorsed the "woman's clause" that finally was inserted in the covenant—Article III. of Paragraph 7, which states that all positions in the League should be opened to women.

The same apprehension is mentioned, though combated in a discussion of women in politics by Senator Louis Martin, leader of the suffrage cause in the French Senate. In an eighty-page pamphlet (No. 713 Senate publication, 1923 session) he begins with quotations from Aristotle and runs the gamut of historical, political and social arguments supporting the entrance of women in politics. He argues against a theory often heard here to this effect: "Is it at a moment when the depopulation of the country is a scourge amounting to an epidemic, that the moment when we are deploring its tragic results, that we should give woman a new avenue of development?"

Senator Martin quotes statistics published July, 1922, as follows: "Number of births per 1,000 inhabitants: France, 20.7; Germany, 25.4. Number of deaths per 1,000 inhabitants: France, 17.7; Germany, 14.8. Excess of births per 1,000 inhabitants: France, 3.0; Germany, 11.3. Increase of population: France, 117,000; Germany, 695,000." He further states that statistics for the Reich, year 1922, show an excess of 513,000 births over deaths, while France had only an excess of 70,000. Figures published in French newspapers during the last few weeks are even more disquieting, some sections of France having registered a greater number of deaths than births.

Voice in the Wilderness.

Senator Martin uses these statistics as an argument for rather than against the entrance of women in French politics, citing the experience of other countries where votes for women have resulted in beneficial social welfare legislation, but his voice is alone in the wilderness. Michelin, the automobile tire manufacturer, who has been active in the movement to increase healthy natality in France by the donation of prizes for pamphlets, when asked for his opinion on woman suffrage, replied: "I have never given the matter any thought."

In the Senate discussions resulting in the unfavorable vote in November, 1922, one finds a curious mixture of adoration for womanhood, with a little fun poked at her inconsistencies and inferiorities. For example:

M. Hugues de Roux, Senator from Seine-et-Oise: "It suffices to walk down the Rue de la Paix or the Avenue de l'Opera to arrive at the conclusion that French civilization amounts to a magnificent and admirable effort of gratitude, recognition and love of man for woman. She is the hope of man. She is his pet child."

"You are making an expensive doll of her," protested M. Gaudin de Villaine, Senator from La Manche.

As an example of what might be expected if women were allowed to mix in politics, M. Labrousse, Senator from la Correze, told the following story: The policies of a certain Cabinet Minister were incomprehensible to a certain Deputy. What did he do to discover the reason? He broke into the private portfolio of the Cabinet Minister. He found there the photograph of a woman!

"This vote reveals the mentality of crabbed and unsociable old bachelors!" declared M. d'Estournelles de Constant, Senator from la Sarthe, at the end of the session.

Women's Organizations Weak.

Women's organizations such as exist in the United States with their millions of members in allied groups scattered all over the country do not exist in France. Probably the strongest is the National Council of French Women, affiliated with the International Council of Women, which will hold a world congress next spring in Washington. But this organization can count its members in a few tens of thousands and is not a political force. The strongest suffrage organization is L'Union Francaise pour le Suffrage des Femmes, affiliated with the International Woman Suffrage Alliance, whose next congress will be held in Paris in the Summer of 1926. In the last elections this Spring L'Union Francaise followed American women's methods as far as limited funds and members would permit. They sent a questionnaire to candidates for the Chamber of Deputies asking if they would support woman suffrage and a leaflet to voters which read in part:

"Citizens: Remember that civilized States have already granted women the right to vote and that in the last few weeks the women of Spain and Turkey have obtained recognition of their political rights. It is a shame that France, which was the first country to proclaim the rights of man should be the last to proclaim the rights of women. Citizens: In order to solve the grave problems of the present moment, it is necessary that the co-operation of women be added to the efforts of men."

However, neither the average man in politics nor the French public has accepted this point of view and the belief remains unchanged: "Women have nothing to do with politics."

Women in politics convey nothing to French public opinion but masculine women and the disruption of family life. And who can blame this attitude? The antics of the suffragettes in England before the war were well advertised and are still fresh in the public mind; the growing number of divorce cases and resulting disorganization of the family unit as the basis of society in the United States are matters of daily discussion here. On the other hand, the unquestioned benefits following the entrance of women in politics in other countries are known to but a few.

EVOLUTION OF PACHYDERM.

According to a well established biological law, each individual member of a species during its embryonic development mirrors the gradual process of change which has accompanied the perfection of the species during the long eons of its evolution. This principle is utilized to correlate the probable line of development as revealed by fossilized bones and petrified remains, with the changes in skeletal, muscular and nervous development and their gradual increase of complexity, in the maturing of one of the higher animals from the egg stage. In this way, the development of the mammals from the simple state of the one-celled form to the complicated and highly organized structures which the adults possess, can be recognized.

This explains why the purchase of an embryonic elephant by University College, Reading, is a matter of more than ordinary significance to zoologists, in view of the fact that the examination of a perfect specimen offers an opportunity to clear up points in the evolution of the pachiderms and their relation to their cousins and half-brothers. A preliminary description of this fetus, which is only the twelfth known to science, and is one of the best preserved, was given to zoologists at the British Association, August 13, by Dr. Nellie B. Eales, of University College.

The external anatomy, microscopic structure of the skin, and certain peculiar formations of the teeth, have been worked out, Dr. Eales said.

The material will be used for the dissection of the muscles, nerves and skeleton of the head. The anatomists conferred as to details which the investigators should bear in mind in carrying out the measurements, tests, and microscopic examination of the tissues, with a view to confirming theories for the interrelation of the different species of elephants.

Schemes for the development and maintenance of Canadian forest in order to provide a continuous supply of saw logs, pulpwood, and the minor forest products, were laid before the agricultural section of the British Association on August 13, by E. H. Finlayson, acting director of the Dominion Forestry Branch.

CANADIAN TREES THRIVE.

Introduction of species of trees native to Canada into Europe has added considerable to the value of the forest products of the countries into which they have been adopted, according to Dr. A. W. Borthwick, of the Forestry Commission of England, who addressed botanists at the British Association recently. "The value of Canadian species such as the Douglas fir and the Sitka spruce lies not only in the excellence of their timber, but also in their rate of growth and in their proved adaptability to British and continental silvicultural conditions," Dr. Borthwick said.

MAY USE COBALT STEEL.

Variations in the magnetic properties of steels can be caused by varying the amount of cobalt which is added, according to E. A. Watson, Canadian metallurgist, who delivered a paper in the engineering section of the British Association recently. The use of the relatively uncommon cobalt introduces the question of increased expense, however, so that at present, it is only in certain cases that the new technic is profitable. Methods of hardening and tempering necessary to make the most of cobalt steels were outlined by Mr. Watson.

Rolling stones may be poor botanists, but metal spheres dropping through water are the equivalent of miniature dynamos. This is brought out by experiments recently performed by Prof. E. F. Burton, of the University of Toronto, reported in the physics section of the British Association on August 13. Dr. Burton has found that metallic spheres which are allowed to fall through columns of various liquids gather an electrical charge, and he has measured the amount of electrical energy which is generated in this way. Following the well-known law of the repulsion of opposite things, the charges on the balls, all of the same kind, reacted on one another, and the result was to scatter a series of spheres which were dropped together. This work has an important bearing on the relatively new science of colloid chemistry.

JOLTED.

A writer or poet might produce better work after getting a wallop on the jaw, claims a scinetist. "Energy aroused by anger may flow into intellectual responses—result in excessive physical or mental activity."

A hard jolt of any kind is a great stimulant. Men go to seed on the job when the path is too easy or too long. It rouses a man from lethargy, usually he gets a better job—is fired instead of down.

SMOKING.

Tobacco factories now have an output worth over 1000 million dollars a year — at wholesale prices. About fourfifths of this is used by Americans, rest exported.

You've noticed lately not much news about prohibition-of-tobacco campaign. Backfire of liquor prohibition has halted agitation against Lady Nicotine—temporarily. Just a lull—reformers must have jobs.

SEASON OF EXREMES.

This is indeed a season of extremes. Either a gown is beltless or it has a very wide crush girdle and practically no other form of trimming.

CANADA WARNED OF IMMIGRANTS

Lower Culture of Southern and Eastern Europeans Would be a Danger.

U. S. RESTRICTIONS

VANCOUVER, B. C., August 26.—One great test of Canadian statesmanship will be provision of some measures to protect the Anglo-French nationalities from being swamped by more primitive culture, declared Professor J. W. Gregory of Glasgow, discussing imigration, at a luncheon tendered to the members of the British Association for the advancement of Science, here on Monday.

Those who regarded the census returns as the best test of national welfare, he declared, would expect Canada to profit greatly by the new immigration regulations of the United States which were drafted to secure future immigrants should be mainly from northern and western Europe. Practical exclusion from the United States of Eastern and Southern Europeans, was due to the belief that their numbers there have been detrimental.

The effects therefore would be all the more serious if poured into a community of 8,000,000, such as Canada. The number of British people was too few for the occupation of all empty spaces in the Empire, and for its fullest settlement some national inter-mixture was essential.

A satisfactory system of immigration could secure assimilation of immigrants without lowering standards of life and national ideals. The first essential was that the mixed races must be nearly akin. The second was that the immigrant must be willing to conform to the ways of the nation in which they wished to live. The Chinese, despite their national virtues, which should make them local colonists were regarded as 'the yellow peril,' because they were politically indigestible. Their entrance was peaceful invasion, not colonization, he stated.

The third rule was that when alien races mixed in large communities the race with the lower culture outlived the higher. The imigration policy should see that the inferior elements in a nation were not eliminated by the lower type.

48-POUND 'LUNGE.

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press).—The biggest catch of the year in the Quinte district was recorded Monday by James Doyle, who, after a two hours' fight, landed a 'lunge weighing 48 pounds. He brought it up town to "show it to the boys," who have made catches in Bay of Quinte waters of 'lunge weighing 35 and 38 pounds. Mr. Doyle's catch was over 50 inches long.

NEWS CAMPBELLFORD.

Number From Town Attended Unveiling at Hastings Church.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 26—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hore, Grand Road, and Mr. and Mrs. John A. Mitchell, Havelock Road, went to Hastings on Sunday to attend the unveiling service in the Methodist Church to those killed in the Great War.

They visited Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Warner and Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Collins.

Others who attended this service were: Mr. and Mrs. John Ivey, Mrs. John Fairman and her two sons, Earl and Everett.

Mrs. Fairman's brother was one of the names on the tablet. Her father, Mr. James Stevenson, the oldest member on the church board, had the honor of unveiling the tablet.

Miss Dorothy Milne, Rear Street, has accepted the position as saleslady in the ready-to-wear department of McIntosh's store on Front Street.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Calder, of Toronto, motored down to Campbellford on Sunday and visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wilson, Bridge Street. Miss Phyllis, their little daughter, who has been visiting here for several weeks, returned to Toronto with them. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Calder, of Grafton, accompanied them to Campbellford, and visited Mrs. Calder's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Pearce.

Miss Ella Hall and sister, Ruth, Queen Street, left on Monday for a two weeks' visit in Toronto with their aunt, Mrs. Geo. Miller, and Mrs. Cassan. Miss Ella will also visit Detroit with Mr. and Mrs. L. Richardson, of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer, Misses Minnie, Velma and Edna Lewis, of Shannonville, motored to Campbellford on Saturday and spent the week-end with Mrs. Chas. Glenn and other friends.

Rev. Mr. Eyre and little daughter, Margaret, of Jerseyville, Ontario, who are visiting friends in Norwood, motored to town on Saturday and spent the day with their uncle and aunt, Mrs. A. J. Beavis.

Miss Ellen Beavis, of Norwood, accompanied them, and will spend some time with her brother, Mr. A. J. and Mrs. Beavis.

CALL TO PASTOR.

Rev. D. A. McKenzie Will Succeed Rev. J. J. Black at Burnbrae.

BURNBRAE, August 26. — The congregations of Burnbrae and Rylstone Presbyterian Churches met here last night and extended a unanimous call to Rev. D. A. McKenzie at present pastor of the Presbyterian charges at Garnetbridge and Brechin, near Orillia, as successor to Rev. J. J. Black, who recently left for the latter town.

Rev. S. G. McCormack, of Madoc, who has acted as interim-moderator since Mr. Black left, presided at the meeting last night, and Alex. Hume, clerk of the Session, acted as secretary.

After the call had been decided upon, Mr. McCormack communicated by telephone with Mr. McKenzie, who was stopping at a friend's house in Stirling. Mr. McKenzie asked for a few days to consider the matter, but it is expected that he will accept. The salary is $1,800 a year, with a fine manse and one month's holidays.

The call will be presented at the meeting of the Kingston Presbytery on 9th September at Belleville.

Andrew Mine and John Rannie of Burnbrae and Sandford Meiklejohn of the Rylstone congregation will appear before the Presbytery to support the action taken last night.

Mr. McCormack will attend the next meeting of the Lindsay Presbytery to urge that body to agree to the transfer of Mr. McKenzie.

It has been suggested that Mr. McKenzie preach his first sermon as pastor on the anniversary of the congregation.

This matter was left with the Session and Board of Managers.

FISH COST $95.

Hamilton Man Lost His False Teeth When He Hooked a Whopper.

HAMILTON, Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press).—Here is a fish story, where the fish got the best of it and the angler lost his false teeth worth $95. It happened thus;—a party of ten employees of a well known King street east establishment went afishing for bass off Port Rowan in Lake Erie. They had had great luck, and were for calling it a day when one member got a "whopper" on his line The angler was almost jerked out of the boat. In leaning over the gun wale to better "play" and tire the brute, he sneezed, and out popped a double set of false teeth. In the excitement to recover his teeth, the fisherman lost his balance, and away he went in tow of some piscatorial specimen which appeared of the energy of a tugboat.

Norman and Raynor Leal visited their mother at Millbrook over the week end.

Mrs. William Narrie left on Saturday morning for an extended visit to Niagara Falls and other points. Her granddaughter, Nellie Davidson, accompanied her.

Mr. Clifford Scott of Havelock was a visitor to town Saturday.

Miss Annie Young is visiting relatives in this district.

There was no evening service at St. Paul's on Sunday last.

INCREASE IN TRADE.

Everything Favors Increase in Canadian Export Trade.

QUEBEC, Aug. 26. — (Canadian Press).—Hon. T. A. Low, Canadian Minister of Trade and Commerce, stated on his arrival here on the steamer Empress of Scotland, that his trip to England and continental tour has been a most profitable one, and from his observation while aboard he learned that an increase in Canadian export trade might be expected very soon.

Mr. Low stated also that tremendous market was possible in export of meats but what Canada must study highly specialized demand, especially of British market to greater degree than in past.

39 WERE ARRESTED.

Government Agents Break Up Plot To Overthrow Soviets.

(By W. H. Chamblain, United Press Staff Correspondent).

MOSCOW, Aug. 26.—Government agents in Vladivostok have arrested 39 leaders of a plot to overthrow the Soviets and re-establish the monarchy according to information here to-day.

The leaders included the Grand Duke Nicholas brother of the late Ex Czar and the Grand Duke Cyril, the Czar's cousin. The conspirators were connected with Monarchists in Berlin and Paris and hoped to discredit the Soviets by banditry and organized raids.

BOUNDARY ROAD

Chairman Morrison, said the old system of 50-50 is the only satisfactory one."

Reeve Rye: "Why should we sit pat and allow the city to come in and build a sidewalk and destroy property on the far side of the street? You never consulted us."

Chairman Morrison and Alderman McIntyre agreed that the township should be consulted before raising the grades of the roadways.

Reeve Rye: "You raise the grade, and want us to pay for the excess material that has gone into it."

Mayor Turner: "Lansdowne street east of Lock is in very bad condition. Will the township do the work and charge us half?"

Reeve Rye: "We planned to do that but we don't believe we are called on to pay for the work on Lansdowne street west o Lock."

Should Be Agreement.

Alderman Fife: "I claim the city was wrong in not coming to an agreement before there was a pick sunk in the work."

Alderman Phelan: "Reach an amicable agreement on the work that has been done and then make an ironclad arrangement to consult together before further work is undertaken."

Deputy-Reeve Lillico: "I don't see that the street is much better from the township's standpoint. We had put some crushed stone on it two years ago."

Mayor Turner: "That was all out of date. These roads have to be built up every year. Suppose we ask the township to give us $500, that is 25 per cent. of the $2,000 to which Alderman Stocker has reduced his figures."

Reeve Rye offered $375 and raised on Alderman Stocker's suggestion to $400. As for repairing the east side, Reeve Rye said it is impossible until the waterworks has completed its work there.

Alderman Stocker moved that the Township of Monaghan be asked to repair Lansdowne Street from Lock Street east, the city to pay half the cost.

Alderman Morrison: "What about from Charlotte Street south on Monaghan Road?"

Reeve Rye: "That's where you live?"

Alderman Morrison: "Yes."

Reeve Rye: "Nothing doing. It's all bad there. In 1917 we spent a lot of money there and we have very little money. Our total levy is $3,300. We haven't the money to do it.

"You have been building the road at the Mount on a 35-foot basis and I don't know how we will get away with our subsidy when we are not allowed to go over a 24-foot width shoulder to shoulder."

Douro Boundaries.

Reeve Coughlin of Douro: "I don't know exactly what's the matter ror why I have been invited here."

Mayor Turner: "I think it is more of a conference. The road from the golf links down is in bad shape. We have visitors coming who will be taken over that road and we should have some of the jolts taken out of it."

City Engineer Parsons: "The only thing that can be done is to pick it up, re-grade it and roll it. The road is so hard that gravel will not bind in."

The time being limited to two days, the project was abandoned and the permanent grading of the road was considered. This Reeve Coughlin thought should be done in the spring. "This road has been held back for three or four years because we expected to have it taken over as a county road and later as a suburban road. Mr. Biggs assured us it would be taken over as a county road, but now it is pretty certain it never will be. Now it's up to the township and city to build a road if they want it."

Mayor Turner thanked the Warden for his attendance, and the Warden said he would have the really bad holes filled in before Thursday.

Fire Protection.

Alderman Stocker suggested that the Township of North Monaghan might contribute to the enlargement of Peterboro's fire department and gain protection for the district south of Prince of Wales' School.

There have been fifty-one fires there in four years to which the department was called, he said.

Reeve Rye said the cost would have to be assessed over the township and it would not be fair to call on farmer in Springville to pay for fire protection he did not get.

Mayor Turner: "What became of an account I sent to you for a trip the fire department made?"

Reeve Rye: "The waste paper basket got it. The brigade was called by a ratepayer and I did not authorize it. When I called up the Mayor and Fire Chief an another occasion they refused to send the brigade."

Mayor Turner: "After payment of this bill had been refused."

Sewage

Asked about an arrangement regarding sewage connections,

Reeve Rye said: "We can't deal with you on sewage matteres because you are discharging sewage into the river contrary to the public health act and contrary to an order from and provincial health officer. If we treat with you we are allying ourselves with you and the township of North Monaghan would be a co-defendant to any action brought against the city. Until the city has completed the sewage disposad plant we cannot treat with you.

Answering Alderman McIntyre Reeve Rye said he thought the people in the township would be willing to pay their way for connections already made. "If the people thought they could come to the city and have sewer connections put in with the consent of the city they would be willing to pay their way."

Mayor Turner: "Then I think the invitation should be extended."

Reeve Rye: "When will you start to build the sewage disposal plant?"

Mayor Turner: "It will take Mr. Parsons two weeks steady going to complete the plans so that he can ask for tenders. He is busy now on outside work and will start on his plans just as soon as he can."

Reeve Rye: "I have to pass that on to my committee. They said I was neglecting the matter. I don't know whether this will satisfy them or not."

On the wtihdrawal of the representative of North Monaghan the ordinary business of the Board was proceeded with.

City Engineer Parsons was asked to report on the cost of sodding 383 and 387 Rogers street.

Street Signs

The city engineer reported on costs of street signs. Six hundred and ninety are required for the entire city at a total cost of $345. He recommended that provision be made next year for these.

Alderman McIntyre enquired whether paring would not reveal a balance sufficient to do the work immediately.

The majority of the board did not approve any action until next year but the placarding of Peterborough's streets will be the first matter considered by next year's Board of Works.

Bridge Deteriorating.

City Engineer Parsons reported that Smith Street Bridge is being damaged by seepage, and the only way to prevent further damage is to build a waterproof pavement to cost $2,860 in concrete. The cost in bitulithic would be $3,243.40.

Mayor Turner: "That amount was cut out of the estimates this year, and I think we had better carry it over and pay it out of current revenue next year."

Contractor Protests.

John Carroll protested the price of $25 a day charged for the city roller for paving work.

The roller is worth $6,000, it was said.

Alderman Fife said that since the contractor was not notified of the increase from last year's rate of $13.50 he should not be charged.

Alderman McIntyre said Mr. Carroll was present when the price was mentioned and it was up to him to ask about the price.

Alderman Fife moved to charge the same rate as last year. Seconded by Alderman Maher.

Alderman Stocker moved in amendment that $20 be charged, Alderman McIntyre supporting him.

City Engineer Parsons said that letting out the roller is a wrong principle. The roller is needed every working day in the summer by the city force.

Chairman Morrison cast the deciding vote in favor of last year's rate, which Aldermen Maher, Fife, and Phelan supported.

Mayor Turner and Aldermen Stocker and McIntyre favored the $20 rate.

Alderman Stocker mentioned that he will re-open the matter in Council on Tuesday next.

Remove Building.

The City Engineer was authorized to remove part of the old Rapid Tool Co. building to city property elsewhere for the storing of city tools.

Several applications for sidewalks were referred to next year's spring work, when His Worship suggested that sufficient small pieces might be put together to make work for a gang this fall when business is slack.

Notice will be given, and if the weather is favorable the work will probably be proceeded with in October, when labor is slack. The Board was also assured that the sewage disposal plant will provide some employment during the fall and winter.

NEWS OF MARMORA.

Twenty-five Harvesters Left For the West.

MARMORA, Aug. 25.—The lure of the West during the harvest season proves to be as strong locally as ever. Some twenty-five young men entrained at Bonarlaw on the excursion leaving on Friday morning.

Mrs. Robert Naylor left on Friday for an extended visit to her sister at Leduc, Alberta.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Grant are away on a holiday, visiting the former's parents at Orillia.

Mr. Edward Lareau took a spin to Toronto on his motorcycle on Friday morning. He will stay there a week.

Mr. H. W. Sabine of Weston is paying the town one of her periodical visits.

The condition of Mrs. A. Stewart, the victim of the recent balcony accident, still remains critical.

MOTOR GOES FOR ROMP.

Give a Car Its Head and It Will Tackle Anything.

Start a motor car and give it its "head" and there is nothing it will not tackle. An unknown motorist gives a complete demonstration of this on Tuesday evening. All went merry as a marriage bell until a few miles from Stirling the driver decided to let the car have its own sweet way. It at once set out to find a camping ground. It cleared the ditch, wrecked a telephone pole, several panels of wire fencing and pulled up in a field of grain. The driver was too dazed to find a way out so he decided to go to sleep and wait for morning. Early on Wednesday, a farmer driving by saw the motorist lying in the car and putting two and two together concluded the best thing to do was to call the coroner. Before the latter arrived on the scene however the motorist had got his bearings and slipped away to parts unknown. The real cause of the trouble is said to have been too much heather dew.

TREAT 'EM ROUGH

By JACK JUNGMEYER.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 26.—Treat 'em rough, but gently.

That was Kid McCoy's paradoxical and amazingly effective way with women. Kid McCoy, outstanding figure of prize ring. Eight times wedded and divorced, hero of innumerable romances. One of the remarkable battlers and courtiers of his generation.

An amative genius, the Kid. A latch man with inordinate pride in the title. Come to grief and jail cell low in his 51st year, for love of Mrs. Teresa Mors, wealthy art dealer of Los Angeles, whom he expected to make his ninth bride. Something went wrong with the Kid's formula in this case. Mrs. Mors, recently divorced after clandestine courtship by McCoy, was found on Aug. 13 bullet slain in an apartment, said by police to have been occupied with the pugilist.

Played Role of Defender.

Four weeks prior McCoy had played a spectacular part in the Mors domestic tangle, as defender of the wife. A few hours after her death, charged to McCoy, he ran amuck in the streets with a revolver, wounding three persons. He maintained she committed suicide in his presence and that her act had "put out the lights for him." Thus the Kid added another tragic chapter to his fickle matrimonial career. If the world remembers anyone else longer than the fighter, it is the lover. Hannibal and Romeo, Attilla and Lothario. These go down the ages together.

And so McCoy's gallantries may long survive his ring prowess. He was redoubtable in both spheres, the man with resin on his feet and treacle talk upon his lips.

He had a mesmeric lure for women; stirred the primitive in them. Made every woman who came under his spell believe that to the world he was hard and fearsome, but to her tender, considerate, protective. And he could spar as deftly with words as with the fists many ring champions respected.

What poets have said delicately of grand passion, the Kid, by no means uncouth, repeated in clumsier, but singularly, potent way. Rich and poor, blond and brunet, brilliant and otherwise young and not so young—women held out their finger for his wedding ring or listened to his impetuous wooing.

Beginning with Charlotte Pichler, in 1894, McCoy married in succession Julia Woodruff, a Broadway star; Indianola Arnold; Mrs. Lillian Estelle Ellis, widow of "Bud" Ellis, a New York character; Edna Valentine, daughter of wealthy Washington Valentine, and last, Dagmar Dahlgren. Julia Woodruff he remarried twice.

Hollywood women, picture stars, among whom he moved professionally of late, marked him with revealing glances. A big, aggressive, large-eyed, smiling man, with a curly cowl around a bald spot, young for 51, a very auroch of a man.

He Loved Them All.

Of each new mate he said, "She's the only woman I really loved." And believed it, apparently. He said it impassionedly of Mrs. Mors. He said the same to this writer about Julia Woodruff.

He could win them. Overwhelm them with odd combination of chivalry and brusqueness. But he couldn't hold them. Or he didn't care to. Admittedly he was afflicted with wanderlust acquired during boyhood, as hobo, when Norman Selby ran away from home in Moscow, Ind., to become Kid McCoy, fighter. For his wedding failures he blamed himself, without much regret. No time to repine with a world so full of lovely and responsive women. An elective lover he. The man few women could resist, but none could keep.

His eighth bride, Dagmar Dahlgren, says of the Kid: "Norman is the most lovable man in the world. Something about him no woman can resist. I love him still. But he loved all women just the same, none in particular. A Gypsy, by turns fierce and gentle in his wooing—sweeping women off their feet."

In cynical mood he remarked, "There's nothing cheaper in the world than women." And during such moods he would boast, not too nicely, of his triumphs in clubrooms. In more poetic vein he boasted of his matrimonial adventures in crude, impressive free verse. Thus he anointed his vanity.

Always Came Back Smiling.

Ecstacy, trouble, tragedy—their name was woman for Kid McCoy. From his fistic and romantic defeats he always came up smiling, ready for more, utilizing failure to plan triumph—from all but his ninth "real love."

There is one more woman in the Kid's hectic life—the first and last—his aged mother. To her he always has been gentle. To her window he came on the night of the Mors tragedy, like a prodigal, calling in the dark, "Mother, are you there? I came to see how you were. What time is it?" There are, he maintains, only a limited number of fights in any man. He knew when he was through in the ring. About the number of loves in a man he is not so sure. For Kid McCoy the latter may be determined by the outcome of the trial the district attorney of Los Angeles says he will have to stand.

RURAL TEACHER SETS A RECORD YEARS SERVICE

Miss Mary Moffatt, of Baltimore, Spent Fifty Years in Work.

NO BIRCH RODS.

Miss Moffatt Took Course in Peterboro Business College For Pupils' Benefit.

(By A STAFF REPORTER)

BALTIMORE, Aug. 26.—There may be rural school teachers in Ontario who have spent fifty years in active service, but they are few; and fewer still can say that they have taught for practically all those years in one section, in the community in which they themselves were raised and educated.

Such is the record of Miss Mary Maud Moffatt, who resides on a farm about a mile and a half from here, and who has retired, temporarily at least, from the profession on account of ill health.

She is suffering from neuritis, but the chances are that she will recover, and, in that event, will return to the school room. If she does, it may be taken for granted that the scene of her renewed labor will be the same school in which she has spent so many useful years.

Lives on Homestead.

Miss Moffatt lives with her sister on a fine farm which they jointly own and which has been in the family for three generations. Their grandparents came from Comrie, Scotland, and settled on the land 104 years ago. Later, the place was owned by the father of the two sisters, who, since his death, have carried it on by employing hired help, and the farm is still maintained at the high standard which has been attained in the community.

Becomes a Teacher.

In 1874, Miss Moffatt graduated from the Cobourg High School with a third-class certificate. In those days no professional training was required of those who took up teaching, as the county model schools were not established until some years later. Her first school was in Haldimand township, where she taught for four and a half months, substituting for the regular teacher. Some time was spent in No. 9, Haldimand, one mile from her home, but for 33 years she taught in what was really her home section (No. 8), the one in which the Moffatt farm is situated. It was in this school that Miss Moffatt received her early education. Some of her former school-fellows were among her first pupils, some of them older than herself. Teachers and ministers, like prophets, may lack honor in their own country, but to this rule Miss Moffatt appears to have been an exception. She had, from the first, no trouble in enforcing discipline among the grown-up pupils with whom she had formerly played.

Pupils as Trustees.

There were in No. 8, boys who, in the natural order of things, left school, and who were, eventually, elected members of the trustees board, with authority to re-engage or to ask for the resignation of their former teacher. She was always re-engaged unanimously. If obliged to give up her duties, on account of illness or for any other reason, she was invariably given leave of absence and a substitute secured.

In those days a third-class certificate was limited to three years, but Miss Moffatt's school was making so excellent a showing that the inspector granted her an extension for a year and a half. In 1879, she attended the Normal School at Ottawa and obtained a second-class professional certificate—good for life. During her absence in Ottawa her position in No. 8 had been kept open for her.

Course in Bookkeeping.

Some of the older pupils in Miss Moffatt's school were ambitious to learn bookkeeping, but at that period of Ontario's educational history, teachers of the second grade were not required to take up that subject. To fit herself for teaching the art of keeping accounts, Miss Moffatt secured another leave of absence and took a course in the Peterboro Business College, the principal of which at that time was B. Sawyer. When she resumed teaching she trained a number of boys and girls, who afterwards, thanks to her efforts, secured lucrative positions in business offices in Cobourg and elsewhere. As for herself, since her term in Peterboro she has been promoted to the leading school of the community, and her services in that capacity have been in constant demand.

Pleasant Memories.

Looking back over her half century of professional life, Miss Moffatt has only pleasant memories. Among her warmest friends to-day are men and women who learned the alphabet in her school and who remained under her tuition until they took up the serious duties of life. Miss Moffatt is modesty itself with regard to her record but she told The Examiner that if she had met with any measure of success she attributed it to the fact that she always liked the work and was fond of children and interested in their welfare.

No Birch Rods.

There was no birch rod or blue beech discipline in Miss Moffatt's school. The modern strap, approved by and the use of which was authorized by the Department of Education, found no place in the equipment of No. 8. Once, during a temporary absence of Miss Moffatt, while her place was taken by her neice, Miss Mamie Moffatt, who is now on the teaching staff of the Cobourg School, the substitute did introduce a strap, which Miss Moffatt found on her return. She never used it, and only once can she recall having submitted a pupil to corporal punishment.

That was in the case of a young boy who, on his first appearance at school, developed a case of mule-like stubbornness. "I won't do it," was his invariable answer to the commands of his teacher. Finally, convinced that all her favorite disciplinary methods had failed, Miss Moffatt picked up the only available instrument of correction—a stout ruler—and for a while there was something doing. The punishment proved effective, and from that time forward Miss Moffatt had no trouble with the little fellow.

Miss Moffatt says she notices little difference in the pupils taught last year and those who attended her classes half a century ago. There were bright boys and girls in the long ago just as there are to-day.

Murderer's Advent Into Blue Ridge Has Torn Town Into Opposing Factions and Caused Hooded Demonstration.

CHURCH PFOPLE DIVIDED.

WINCHESTER, Va., Aug. 26.—Harry K. Thaw, slayer of Stanford White, once legally adjudged insane and mentally perverted, has determined to win a place in respectable society, from which for years he had been excluded as a menace.

No more difficult spot in America for his battle with public opinion could have been found than Winchester, Va., the little city he has chosen as his future home.

This staid town, which nestles in the Blue Ridge at the head of the Shenandoah Valley, the home of conservatism and stronghold of the first families of the Old Dominion, was shocked by the news that Thaw, released as cured from a Pennsylvania hospital for the insane, had purchased Kenilworth—for 150 years one of the famous valley's show places.

Town All Upset.

His advent already has torn the town into opposing factions, bids fair to wreck the leading church, has occasioned a demonstration of the hooded knights, and precipitated a social war.

Thaw is in earnest about wanting to become a leading citizen. He has attended and seeks to join the Presbyterian Church, subscribed to all the leading charities and enrolled in the Charley Rouss Volunteer Fire Department, a leading social organization.

Old line conservatives view his success with horror. The church deacons have been criticized for reserving a special pew for him. The clergyman, the Rev. R. T. MacFaden, has been berated for dining three times with Thaw and then inviting him to membership.

MacFaden has left town for his vacation, and the burden of deciding the case has fallen on his substitute, the Rev. W. H. Woods.

"It isn't always wise to keep up your flock by bringing in a disturbing element," Woods said. "Still, sinners must be reached by the church."

When the millionaire put in a crisp new $20 yellowback in the collection plate on his first day, other members, not to be outdone, made large donations, many of them topping his offering.

The trouble started when J. B. Russell, Union Bank president, church pillar and social leader, called on the Thaws. His visit opened the way for MacFaden and others, and gave his enemies a chance to say he had allowed wealth to overcome family reserve.

Mayor-elect Dr. J. F. Ward has tried to bridge the gap among his townsmen. He served notice Thaw must be given a square deal, but at the same time too great familiarity must be discouraged. He believes that "the prayers of the righteous availeth much," but doesn't favor mixing them up with prayers of the unproved and untried.

That Kenilworth may not become the scene of city folks' high life orgies, the Ku Klux Klan paraded to let the community know it intended to check up.

The Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, hearing that Thaw was going to stock his farm with pigs, rabbits, chickens and other domestic beasties, took alarm. Mrs. Robert Ward, S.P.C.A. president, recalled that Thaw was accused of biting rabbits, and set the Society's fifty members on watch.

Miss Augusta Conrad made a visit to Kenilworth and saw a cat running about without a tail. Her excitement abated when it proved to be one of a bob-tailed variety. She has promised to have Thaw arrested if animals on his place come to grief.

Becomes a Fireman.

This city of 7000 souls, which has never had even the excitement of seeing a street car, nearly collapsed when directors of the Rouss Fire Company admitted the famous stranger. Every Virginia town prides itself on its fire companies. Now the Sarah Zane and Friendship companies are accusing the Rouss of taking in the rich Pittsburger for the sake of his money. J. H. Dunn, engineer, says if the new member can't make the grade and become a good smoke-eater, out he'll go—money or no.

But while Winchester's tea parties are a-flurry with gossip, and the business men stand about debating the problem, Thaw himself is having no picnic.

He keeps a secretary at the George Washington Hotel to act as a buffer between him and the country folk who look upon him as a bonanza. They come from miles around to offer everything from hound dogs to antiques for sale.

Three country maids have offered to forsake the milk stool to become his bride. All day the curious besiege him for just a glimpse, a word, or a signature in a name album.

The way he meets his problem is illustrated by an incident at the People's drug store. Two girls were sipping sodas when one said:

"I'd love to see this man Thaw."

The other answered: "I wouldn't; I'd be scared to death. He might kill me."

That stepped up, touching the frightened one on the arm, said:

"I'm Harry Thaw. I killed a man in a just cause and I have no regret. But I'll never harm anyone else—especially a little girl."

Everywhere he goes, the town gaze follows. He walks erect, with quick, nervous steps, his unusual height, grey hair, deep-lined face and athletic figure marking him apart.

Mother Often With Him.

Behind him is the ever-faithful A. J. Connally, four years his personal attendant and bodyguard. Usually his secretary accompanies him on one side, while his mother walks on the other.

It is she who will win the town. Though 82 years old, she still looks after her boy. Big, broad, white-haired, majestical woman, slightly bent by years and tribulation, she is still the grande dame of a great family.

Harry to her is still the spoiled child she's done so much to rear. He still flies into tantrums and she still subdues and mollifies him.

At the hotel he demands instant service. If it is delayed he curses like a trooper, stamps his feet or pounds his hands on table or desk. He's never still, but speaks nervously, his eyes roving and seldom resting long on any object.

Mrs. Thaw saves trouble by her generosity. In one day at the George Washington Hotel she distributed $100 in $5 bills to servants who had suffered from her boy's tongue-lashings and temper.

Thaw makes no apology for killing White. He is proud of having taken the law into his own hands. In this he has the sympathy of the valley, where unwritten law is strong.

Nor does he take the Ku Klux seriously. He says he has come to live where he can have rest and quiet and get back to nature. If he tires of that, he says, he can reach West Virginia from his house by driving four and one-half miles. Maryland in an hour, and the district of Columbia or Pennsylvania in three hours.

The insanity plea of the Frank slayers has increased interest in Thaw. People wonder whether they will eventually be released if sent to an asylum.

For the first time in his life the millionaire proposes to work. He's going to don overalls and do farm cork for exercise and retire to his well-stocked library for recreation among his books on European history, which is his hobby.

He's not yet in his home, which is being remodeled, but motors in from Cresson, Pa., with his mother each week. Usually he is accompanied by two physicians.

Town Is Vert Quiet.

The place he has chosen seems ideal. The town is quiet to a degree, its 17 different religious denominations seeing to it that its blue laws are so strictly enforced nothing but a smile can be had on Sunday, except religious services.

It is peopled by well-off farmers whose apple lands bring big returns.

Kenilworth, the Thaw place, is a great limestone, vine-clad pile, with true colonial lines of the old slave days type. For 100 years it has been the home of the Stephensons and was built fifty years before they came. It is four and one-half miles from town, a stone's throw from the scene of Sheridan's famous victory, the Thermopolae of the Civil War, and is famous for the finest spring in the county. The building was spared during the battle because it was used as a hospital. The grounds comprise 55 acres.

Gives complete relief from perspiration annoyance

IT is no longer necessary to endure the annoyance of excessive perspiration. Every woman can have complete freedom from the embarrassment and discomfort which it causes.

Extreme perspiration of one part of the body, such as the underarms, is due to local irregularities of the sweat glands. The underarm perspiration glands are very sensitive and easily stimulated to unusual activity by excitement, heat or nervousness. Clothing and the hollow of the underarm make normal evaporation impossible, so that in order to maintain scrupulous personal daintiness, corrective measures are necessary. Soap and water alone are not sufficient.

Odorono, an antiseptic toilet water, was formulated by a physician for the special purpose of correcting this condition harmlessly, without affecting the natural healthful perspiration of the rest of the body. It is a clear, rosy-coloured liquid, and comes to you in a smart little uniquely shaped bottle. It is delightfully easy to use, and quite harmless. You simply pat it on to the underarm, with a piece of soft cloth, or absorbent cotton, or with the tips of the fingers. One application does away with all perspiration odor and moisture for at least three days. Two to three applications a week will keep your underarms always dry and immaculate. For sale at all toilet counters—three sizes, 50c, 85c and $1.25.

TREAT 'EM ROUGH

By JACK JUNGMEYER.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 26.—Treat 'em rough, but gently.

That was Kid McCoy's paradoxical and amazingly effective way with women. Kid McCoy, outstanding figure of prize ring. Eight times wedded and divorced, hero of innumerable romances. One of the remarkable battlers and courtiers of his generation.

An amative genius, the Kid. A latch man with inordinate pride in the title. Come to grief and jail cell low in his 51st year, for love of Mrs. Teresa Mors, wealthy art dealer of Los Angeles, whom he expected to make his ninth bride. Something went wrong with the Kid's formula in this case. Mrs. Mors, recently divorced after clandestine courtship by McCoy, was found on Aug. 13 bullet slain in an apartment, said by police to have been occupied with the pugilist.

Played Role of Defender.

Four weeks prior McCoy had played a spectacular part in the Mors domestic tangle, as defender of the wife. A few hours after her death, charged to McCoy, he ran amuck in the streets with a revolver, wounding three persons. He maintained she committed suicide in his presence and that her act had "put out the lights for him." Thus the Kid added another tragic chapter to his fickle matrimonial career. If the world remembers anyone else longer than the fighter, it is the lover. Hannibal and Romeo, Attilla and Lothario. These go down the ages together.

And so McCoy's gallantries may long survive his ring prowess. He was redoubtable in both spheres, the man with resin on his feet and treacle talk upon his lips.

He had a mesmeric lure for women; stirred the primitive in them. Made every woman who came under his spell believe that to the world he was hard and fearsome, but to her tender, considerate, protective. And he could spar as deftly with words as with the fists many ring champions respected.

What poets have said delicately of grand passion, the Kid, by no means uncouth, repeated in clumsier, but singularly, potent way. Rich and poor, blond and brunet, brilliant and otherwise young and not so young—women held out their finger for his wedding ring or listened to his impetuous wooing.

Beginning with Charlotte Piehler, in 1894, McCoy married in succession Julia Woodruff, a Broadway star; Indianola Arnold; Mrs. Lillian Estelle Ellis, widow of "Bud" Ellis, a New York character; Edna Valentine, daughter of wealthy Washington Valentine, and last, Dagmar Dahlgren. Julia Woodruff he remarried twice.

Hollywood women, picture stars, among whom he moved professionally of late, marked him with revealing glances. A big, aggressive, large-eyed, smiling man, with a curly cowl around a bald spot, young for 51, a very auroch of a man.

He Loved Them All.

Of each new mate he said, "She's the only woman I really loved." And believed it, apparently. He said it impassionedly of Mrs. Mors. He said the same to this writer about Julia Woodruff.

He could win them. Overwhelm them with odd combination of chivalry and brusqueness. But he couldn't hold them. Or he didn't care to. Admittedly he was afflicted with wanderlust acquired during boyhood, as hobo, when Norman Selby ran away from home in Moscow, Ind., to become Kid McCoy, fighter. For his wedding failures he blamed himself, without much regret. No time to repine with a world so full of lovely and responsive women. An elective lover he. The man few women could resist, but none could keep.

His eighth bride, Dagmar Dahlgren, says of the Kid: "Norman is the most lovable man in the world. Something about him no woman can resist. I love him still. But he loved all women just the same, none in particular. A Gypsy, by turns fierce and gentle in his wooing—sweeping women off their feet."

In cynical mood he remarked, "There's nothing cheaper in the world than women." And during such moods he would boast, not too nicely, of his triumphs in clubrooms. In more poetic vein he boasted of his matrimonial adventures in crude, impressive free verse. Thus he anointed his vanity.

Always Came Back Smiling.

Ecstacy, trouble, tragedy—their name was woman for Kid McCoy. From his fistic and romantic defeats he always came up smiling, ready for more, utilizing failure to plan triumph—from all but his ninth "real love."

There is one more woman in the Kid's hectic life—the first and last—his aged mother. To her he always has been gentle. To her window he came on the night of the Mors tragedy, like a prodigal, calling in the dark, "Mother, are you there? I came to see how you were. What time is it?" There are, he maintains, only a limited number of fights in any man. He knew when he was through in the ring. About the number of loves in a man he is not so sure. For Kid McCoy the latter may be determined by the outcome of the trial the district attorney of Los Angeles says he will have to stand.

WINCHESTER, Va., Aug. 26.—Harry K. Thaw, slayer of Stanford White, once legally adjudged insane and mentally perverted, has determined to win a place in respectable society, from which for years he had been excluded as a menace.

No more difficult spot in America for his battle with public opinion could have been found than Winchester, Va., the little city he has chosen as his future home.

This staid town, which nestles in the Blue Ridge at the head of the Shenandoah Valley, the home of conservatism and stronghold of the first families of the Old Dominion, was shocked by the news that Thaw, released as cured from a Pennsylvania hospital for the insane, had purchased Kenilworth—for 150 years one of the famous valley's show places.

Town All Upset.

His advent already has torn the town into opposing factions, bids fair to wreck the leading church, has occasioned a demonstration of the hooded knights, and precipitated a social war.

Thaw is in earnest about wanting to become a leading citizen. He has attended and seeks to join the Presbyterian Church, subscribed to all the leading charities and enrolled in the Charley Rouss Volunteer Fire Department, a leading social organization.

Old line conservatives view his success with horror. The church deacons have been criticized for reserving a special pew for him. The clergyman, the Rev. R. T. MacFaden, has been berated for dining three times with Thaw and then inviting him to membership.

MacFaden has left town for his vacation, and the burden of deciding the case has fallen on his substitute, the Rev. W. H. Woods.

"It isn't always wise to trot up your flock by bringing in a disturbing element," Woods said. "Still, sinners must be reached by the church."

When the millionaire put in a crisp new $20 yellowback in the collection plate on his first day, other members, not to be outdone, made large donations, many of them topping his offering.

The trouble started when J. B. Russell, Union Bank president, church pillar and social leader, called on the Thaws. His visit opened the way for MacFaden and others, and gave his enemies a chance to say he had allowed wealth to overcome family reserve.

Mayor-elect Dr. J. F. Ward has tried to bridge the gap among his townsmen. He served notice Thaw must be given a square deal, but at the same time too great familiarity must be discouraged. He believes that "the prayers of the righteous availeth much," but doesn't favor mixing them up with prayers of the unproved and untried.

That Kenilworth may not become the scene of city folks' high life orgies, the Ku Klux Klan paraded to let the community know it intended to check up.

The Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, hearing that Thaw was going to stock his farm with pigs, rabbits, chickens and other domestic beasties, took alarm. Mrs. Robert Ward, S.P.C.A. president, recalled that Thaw was accused of biting rabbits, and set the Society's fifty members on watch.

Miss Augusta Conrad made a visit to Kenilworth and saw a cat running about without a tail. Her excitement abated when it proved to be one of a bob-tailed variety. She has promised to have Thaw arrested if animals on his place come to grief.

Becomes a Fireman.

This city of 7000 souls, which has never had even the excitement of seeing a street car, nearly collapsed when directors of the Rouss Fire Company admitted the famous stranger. Every Virginia town prides itself on its fire companies. Now the Sarah Zane and Friendship companies are accusing the Rouss of taking in the rich Pittsburger for the sake of his money. J. H. Dunn, engineer, says if the new member can't make the grade and become a good smoke-eater, out he'll go—money or no.

But while Winchester's tea parties are a-flurry with gossip, and the business men stand about debating the problem, Thaw himself is having no picnic.

He keeps a secretary at the George Washington Hotel to act as a buffer between him and the country folk who look upon him as a bonanza. They come from miles around to offer everything from hound dogs to antiques for sale.

Three country maids have offered to forsake the milk stool to become his bride. All day the curious besiege him for just a glimpse, a word, or a signature in a name album.

The way he meets his problem is illustrated by an incident at the People's drug store. Two girls were sipping sodas when one said:

"I'd love to see this man Thaw."

The other answered: "I wouldn't; I'd be scared to death. He might kill me."

That stepped up, touching the frightened one on the arm, said:

"I'm Harry Thaw. I killed a man in a just cause and I have no regret. But I'll never harm anyone else—especially a little girl."

Everywhere he goes, the town gaze follows. He walks erect, with quick, nervous steps, his unusual height, grey hair, deep-lined face and athletic figure marking him apart.

Mother Often With Him.

Behind him is the ever-faithful A. J. Connally, four years his personal attendant and bodyguard. Usually his secretary accompanies him on one side, while his mother walks on the other.

It is she who will win the town. Though 82 years old, she still looks after her boy. Big, broad, white-haired, majestical woman, slightly bent by years and tribulation, she is still the grande dame of a great family.

Harry to her is still the spoiled child she's done so much to rear. He still flies into tantrums and she still subdues and mollifies him.

At the hotel he demands instant service. If it is delayed he curses like a trooper, stamps his feet or pounds his hands on table or desk. He's never still, but speaks nervously, his eyes roving and seldom resting long on any object.

Mrs. Thaw saves trouble by her generosity. In one day at the George Washington Hotel she distributed $100 in $5 bills to servants who had suffered from her boy's tongue-lashings and temper.

Thaw makes no apology for killing White. He is proud of having taken the law into his own hands. In this he has the sympathy of the valley, where unwritten law is strong.

Nor does he take the Ku Klux seriously. He says he has come to live where he can have rest and quiet and get back to nature. If he tires of that, he says, he can reach West Virginia from his house by driving four and one-half miles, Maryland in an hour, and the district of Columbia or Pennsylvania in three hours.

The insanity plea of the Frank slayers has increased interest in Thaw. People wonder whether they will eventually be released if sent to an asylum.

For the first time in his life the millionaire proposes to work. He's going to don overalls and do farm work for exercise and retire to his well-stocked library for recreation among his books on European history, which is his hobby.

He's not yet in his home, which is being remodeled, but motors in from Cresson, Pa., with his mother each week. Usually he is accompanied by two physicians.

Town Is Vert Quiet.

The place he has chosen seems ideal. The town is quiet to a degree, its 17 different religious denominations seeing to it that its blue laws are so strictly enforced nothing but a smile can be had on Sunday, except religious services.

It is peopled by well-off farmers whose apple lands bring big returns.

Kenilworth, the Thaw place, is a great limestone, vine-clad pile, with true colonial lines of the old slave days type. For 100 years it has been the home of the Stephensons and was built fifty years before they came. It is four and one-half miles from town, a stone's throw from the scene of Sheridan's famous victory, the Thermopolae of the Civil War, and is famous for the finest spring in the county. The building was spared during the battle because it was used as a hospital. The grounds comprise 55 acres.

NEWS OF NORWOOD.

NORWOOD, Aug. 26.—The funeral of the late Mr. Percy Golloher, who met his death by drowning in the river at Coldwater, was held from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Golloher, 8th Line, Dummer. Interment was made in the Norwood Cemetery.

Rev. B. Ayres, of Jersyville, Ont., preached in the Methodist Church on Sunday morning last. Rev. C. B. Brethen, of Demorestville, assisted in the service.

Mrs. E. Blackwell, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Baskin, returned to her home in Brockville on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Humphries and children, Gordon and Betty, left on Saturday for their home in Louisville, Kentucky, after a pleasant visit with the latter's sister, Mrs. F. K. Kempt.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Cuffe, Miss E. Cuffe and Miss Lois Cuffe, motored to Toronto on Sunday.

Mrs. C. H. Cress, of Toronto, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. W. C. Harrison.

Mr. Essa Salome left on Saturday on a trip to his old home in Assyria. Mr. Salome expects to be away about six months.

Mrs. W. Hudgins, of Peterboro', was the guest of Norwood friends during last week.

Miss Leah Bertrand is visiting friends in Campbellford.

Miss Jean Thompson, of Havelock, is the guest of Miss Olive Webster.

Mrs. Jno. Lennox, of Peterboro', spent Thursday in the village.

Mrs. Woods, of Toronto, was a recent guest of Mrs. Alice Mullin.

Master Jack Haskill, of Toronto, is spending a holiday in Norwood, the guest of Master Raymond Lumsden.

Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Weir, Mr. and Mrs. J. Stan. Weir and Miss Pauline Weir were Sunday guests of friends in Peterboro' and Keene.

Miss Ruby Gardner is spending a holiday at Belmont Lake.

Miss Stella Burgess is holidaying at Stoney Lake.

Mrs. Alice Mullin, Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Jno. Rogers visited friends in Cavan on Thursday.

Miss Wareham, of Belleville, was the guest of Miss Ruby Gardner on Saturday.

Mrs. A. D. Weir, of Madoc, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. N. F. Sutto.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Curtis, of Timmins, spent the week-end with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Nicol.

Mrs. Gordon Foote and Miss Pauline Foote, of Madoc, were guests of Norwood friends the first of the week.

PRESENT WASTE IN INDUSTRY NEARLY 50 P.C.

We Cannot Expect Our Cost of Living to Come Down, Says Hoover.

TO STANDARDIZE

Standardization is the death of individuality, some say, who think it means an attempt to reduce people to the status of peas in pods, alike in customs, costumes and conversation. These alarmists see us all living in a standardized world, in identical houses, wearing interchangeable clothes with hats that relieve the now ubiquitous check-boy of his task of telling them apart. Suicide would be a welcome way out of such a world, but that is not the kind of world the advocates of simplified practice seek. They want to eliminate not individuality but extravagance; to make life easier, not harder; to reduce necessities to the things really necessary, and to give the individual more time and money to develop his individuality.

When Secretary Hoover was President of the American Engineering Council he organized a Survey of Waste in Industry. Eighteen of the leading industrial engineers of the United States participated in the work. They found in six major industries an average waste of nearly 50 per cent., and that one-third of that waste was due to lack of standardization. Our manufactured products in 1921, when the Bureau of the Census last surveyed them, were worth $43,000,000,000. (They have been as high as $60,000,000,000.) Half of that amount is $21,500,000,000 wasted, and one-third of the waste due to non-standardization is $7,000,000,000, more than enough to pay all our Federal, State and municipal taxes and leave every individual his full income to be as individualistic with as he likes.

"Present waste in industry represents a huge deduction from the goods and services we might all enjoy," said Secretary Hoover. "Until we eliminate waste in industry we cannot expect our cost in living to come down nor our dollars to have their previous purchasing power." That is why he organized the Division of Simplified Practice in the Department of Commerce, to co-operate with industries in their efforts to eliminate waste. Simplified practice, which has been adopted as more expressive than standardization, means reduction in variety, in sizes, dimensions and immaterial differences in commonplace products. It is easily demonstrated that simplified practice decreases inventories and investments, lower costs, increases turnover, expedites service and multiplies profits.

No Authority to Enforce.

The Department of Commerce did not and does not dictate. It participates in a program, initiated by business men, which grew out of war-time conservation. Since it was started the Division of Simplified Practice has presented the general subject of simplification as a business policy to more than 150 industrial groups which have requested information or aid. Many of these industries have appointed simplification committees which have made, or are now making, surveys, and already the department, in co-operation with industry, has effected definite simplification in several manufacturing lines.

The Division of Simplified Practice of the Department of Commerce began operations in November, 1921, and it found an unlimited and fertile field before it. For example, a review of hardware catalogues showed 6,118 styles, patterns and sizes of the single-bit axe. There was individuality run mad; every species o tree, bush and shrub in the world might have been chopped down with a separate kind of axe. Another inexplicable mystery was the varieties of fencing wire, 552 styles put up in 2,072 different packages. Seven hundred and fourteen different kinds of styles and sizes of sink traps used in household plumbing were discovered, and more than 8,000 varieties of piston rings for automobile engines.

Even the American flag was found to be manufactured in 289 different sizes, embracing nine different proportions of length to width. The difficulty was not to find something which was obviously overspecialized, but to know where to begin. This problem was solved by the manufacturers themselves, who began to come to the department for assistance in relieving themselves of the burden of commodities which misguided competition compelled them to stock.

Among the first were the woven-wire fence manufacturers. They admitted the idiosyncrasies of cattle and the peculiarities of poultry, but did not think that they required 552 kinds of fence to keep them contented. The manufacturers decided to "risk the wrath of the animal world" and with the aid of the Department of Commerce reduced the varieties of fence to 69 and the sizes and styles of packages to 139.

Eliminating 55 Varieties of Brick.

The National Paving Brick Manufacturers couldn't see why it was necessary to have sixty-six varieties of brick. A survey was made by them, and at the subsequent conference, attended by brickmakers, highway officials, engineers and representatives of all classes interested in good roads, fifty-five of the sixty-six varieties were eliminated. So successful was this reduction that a second conference cut the kinds of brick down still further to seven, and at a third conference it was shown that 80 per cent. of the annual production was in six of the seven types and sizes, and the number was further reduced to five. Asphalt was taken up later, with some of the same engineers present at the conference initiated by the asphalt manufacturers, and a 90 per cent. elimination of unnecessary grades effected.

Chicken fences and paving bricks may appeal only casually to the average consumer, but we all use milk bottles, from the cradle to the grave. Data collected through a survey conducted by milk-bottle makers showed twelve varieties of quart bottles, thirteen of pint bottles, fourteen of half-pints, ten quarter-pints and twenty-nine diameters of caps. A conference at the Commerce Department put these styles to nine, each having the same diameter of capseat, and milk tastes just as good as it ever did.

Beds also interest us all; the burner of the midnight oil and the frequenter of the great white ways have to retire some time, as well as those who believe in and put into practice the proverb that early to bed and early to rise makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise. From the number of kinds of beds reported in answer to a questionnaire circulated among makers of these allies of Morpheus, one might conclude that people have their couches custom made, like their shirts. There were straight foot, bow foot, wooden, brass, iron beds of lengths for pigmies and giants, and widths for the human skeleton and the overstuffed sleeper. No couldn't find a stock bed to fit him like the paper on the wall.

Bed manufacturers, bedding manufacturers, makers of springs and representatives of wholesale and retail furniture associations met at the Department of Commerce in May, 1922, to discuss this question, and the result of their meeting was a reduction from seventy-eight to four in the number of different lengths and widths of bedsteads that the furniture man is obliged to keep in stock. Obviously with the reduced number of bedstead sizes, springs and mattress sizes are reduced, and great saving is effected in making, wholesaling and retailing the equipment which gives us a few hours of nightly forgetfulness of our daily trials and tribulations.

The movement is to be carried further into the linen closet, and surveys now under way contemplate a proportionate decrease in sizes of bed blankets, sheets and pillow cases, simplifying the work of the housewife.

Another reduction of domestic interest effected by the joint efforts of industry and Commerce Department officials is that of range boilers from 130 sizes to thirteen. The reduction of hollow building tiles from thirty-six sizes of varying weights to nineteen of standard weight and of metal lath from eighty varieties to twelve will appeal to the house builder. Savings to industry and to the public by the simplification of lumber sizes and the elimination of unnecessary varieties have been estimated at $250,000,000 a year.

The first ten industries to supply simplification through the co-operation of the Division of Simplified Practice report an average elimination of 86½ per cent. of varieties for which there was little demand. Surveys are now under way in twenty-five lines, which include steel barrels, garden hose, clay products, ice cream cans, milk cans, gas water heaters, automobile tank and radiator caps, paint brushes, shovels, locks, bolts and nuts, eaves troughs, paper sacks, &c.

Automobil etrailer manufacturers are studying how reductions may be made in the number of types and sizes of axles, springs and wheels used in trailers. At the initial meeting it was brought out that if standards could be adopted the manufacturers could easily afford to make a reduction of two cents a pound on any one model upon which ten trailer manufacturers might agree. It was also shown that while wheel and axle manufacturers make hundreds of models, twenty-five models or less would cover the entire line of trailers, and that savings through larger orders of standard types for stock purposes would be better than 10 per cent.

Spark plugs and piston rings are other objects of concern to mottrists which are in the preliminary stage of simplification. Letters from several spark plug manufacturers received by the Department of Commerce go so far as to say that spark plugs can be simplified to one size thread, one size of threaded shank, of length of plug body and one size of hexagon, without destroying the individuality of the different makes of spark plugs.

MEN FACE DEATH.

Eighty Men Stranded on Government Dredge—Terrific Gale.

ATLANTIC CITY, August 26 (Canadian Press). — Eighty men face death aboard the stranded Government dredge Solozar, in mountainous seas half a mile off shore, as a result of being swept from their inlet mooring early to-day by the wind and rain storm which struck the city with unusual intensity, crippling traffic, uprooting trees and fences, overthrowing beach patrol tents, tearing down telephone wires, flooding the streets and heaping discomforts upon pedestrians.

All the efforts on the part of the coastguards to reach the side of the stranded dredge failed this morning because of the impassable breakers that were swept shoreward by the 66-mile gale, driving a sheet of rain before it.

Nit a word could be gotten to or from the marooned men.

DOPE.

At the international conference to curb the use of opium and other narcotics, delegates will propose reduction in the acreage devoted to growth of poppis and other plants that supply the drug addict.

Dope is an international problem.

So is liquor. As time goes on, you'll find the dry squad concentrating more on world prohibition, less on individual nations. As long as the stuff is made in one country, others will find a way to get it if they have the price.

Tramp Ships Go Anywhere That Trade Beckons

Like the Ark, Their Cargoes are Varied and Their Route Uncertain—Some Specimens From Lower Bay—Much-Mixed Crews.—C

Probably the cruise of the good ship Ark, Captain Noah commanding, is the first voyage that we have any record of. Even though he didn't expect to find a return cargo when he landed. Noah apparently thought if he put ashore what he had, that was all that could be expected of him. That he had any definite idea just where he was going to land this cargo was a point of great doubt. Altogether, Noah's worries must have been rather great, and any modern tramp ship captain should have a fellow-feeling for him, especially when he considers the nature of his cargo and the uncertainty of supplies holding out.

But to come down to the lineal descendant of the Ark, the modern tramp ship, just what is she? Just the sound of those two words gives us a hint of the careers of such vessels. As those of us who go tramping over the holidays know the paths and lanes of the surrounding country, so do these ships know the wet sea-lanes of the world.

Dingy, battered and lacking paint, they lie out in the lower bay, possibly waiting a chance to unload at some dock, or maybe waiting orders to go elsewhere for a cargo. The lordly liners, trim with scrubbed paint and graceful and pleasing to the eye, steam past this motley crowd as if disdainful of them. But the liners share comparatively little of the freight of the world, and it is this same trade that furnishes the necessities of life. The liner has a fixed route and keeps to it month after month with almost the safety and regularity of the railroad train.

Even a warship leaving port for a three-year cruise often sees less of the world than does a tramp. Look them over as we come past them. Here is the Olaf Nordsen of Stockholm, Sweden. She is about eight thousand tons, and a heavy, broad thing, with a short funnel and two stumpy masts rigged with derricks. She looks a seaworthy ship and probably is. The Scandinavians are a hardy race of seafarers and know good ships. We will hail the man hanging over the stern and ask him when they left home.

"A year ago," he answers in broken English, "we go to Vigo, in Spain, den to Italy, den to Tunis. After dot we went to England den come here." He doesn't say what they carried, but probably as many varieties of cargo as there were animals in the Ark. She wouldn't have much speed maybe ten miles an hour, and it would take time to travel all the distances she has been. And unloading cargo is a slow business in Spanish and North African ports.

An Elderly Crew.

Now we approach one flying the "Red Duster," as sailors familiarly call the British merchant flag. It is a red flag with the British Union Jack in the upper left-hand corner. The ship is the North Surrey of Liverpool. Probably one of her owners had lived in that beautiful part of England and wished to send its name around the world. She seems to be rather old and has the look of not being well taken care of. Even the members of the crew hanging over the rail seem somewhat elderly. But they are friendly and inclined to be talkative. They had left Liverpool a little over a month ago, had stopped at Cherbourg in France for some more cargo and had then come here. The next port would be Colon, in the Canal Zone, where she would coal. After that across the broad and not always peaceful Pacific to Honolulu for more coal, then Nagasaki and Singapore. Just suppose you were in a station and the announcer called out: "Cherbourg, New York, Colon, Honolulu, Nagasaki and Singapore, all aboard!" Could any one resist it?

Up near the head of the fleet we see a ship with a flag we do not recognize at first. It is green, with a diamond-shaped white space in the middle, and in that a green globe with a yellow girdle. It is Brazil, the big republic of South America. The ship is somewhat smaller than most of the others, but she is an able one, nevertheless. As we steer clear of the Brazilian we see coming down the river, evidently outward bound, another of the dingy brotherhood. Deeply laden, she is pushing big waves off to each side of her bow. She has a tall funnel, and from the color on it we see she is a Greek. Her name, in Greek letters, sprawls across the stern. Her appearance is sloppy; the seas of the North Atlantic are about the only washing her deck will get. In about a month she will be steaming past grim Gibraltar, into the blue Mediterranean, toward her own Aegean Sea. Then, perhaps, she will get a charter to the Near East, or maybe have to take a trip up the Adriatic.

The crews of these ships are about as diversified as the ships themselves. The flag flying at a ship's stern does not mean that the crew is of the nation the flag represents. Quite often none of them is. Most nations have laws that the officers of their merchant ships be citizens of the country to which the ship belongs, but the crews, or hands, as they are quite often termed, come from anywhere. They describe themselves in picturesque terms. "Squareheads" are those from Norway, Denmark and Sweden, "Dagoes" from Spain, Portugal, Italy, and sometimes Greece, "Spiggoties" are from any of the Latin-American countries. They also have many other names, some of which are hardly printable. But in the crew of the average tramp will be found all those mentioned and usually some Frenchmen, Britishers, Germans and many others. Americans or "Yanks" are seldom found. Life in a tramp steamer does not appeal to the average American boy.

All these ships are tramps, but we mustn't think of them in the way we do of land tramps. The land tramp avoids work and goes where he thinks it isn't, but the owners of the tramp ship are ever on the watch for work for her and try to arrange it so that when she arrives at a port with a cargo she will have another one to take elsewhere. Coal and crew's wage cut into the profits, and it is expensive to have a ship steaming empty about the ocean, or at anchor in some distant port with no prospect of employment.

Owners must keep a watch on many things. A spell of bad weather may put back the crops or ruin them, a revolution in some southern country may close the ports, an epidemic of sickness may cause a stringent quarantine. Back in some dingy office in Liverpool a man is busy watching the world markets and conditions, and when the North Surrey finally gets to Singapore her captain will no doubt be handed cabled instructions to take on a cargo of silk or tea for San Francisco after he has discharged his present load, or he may get only a part cargo at Singapore and will have to go around to Bombay in India for the rest.

Like everything else, these ships must some day quit the world, and their ends are as diversified as their cargoes and their crews. Collision, fire, springing a leak and sinking are some of the ways. The iceberg and the half-sunken derelict account for others that disappear. The gunfire of war has sent many to their doom. Others are stranded on lonely shores, abandoned and forgotten. In numerous cases they are towed up some river or bay when it is found no longer profitable to run them, and the day comes when a tug takes them to the shipbreaker's yard, where they are broken to pieces for scrap-metal!

LEAGUE PACT IS TO BE ACCEPTED

This Will Be For Mutual Guarantee as a Base For Disarmament.

(By Henry Wood, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

GENEVA, Aug. 26.—France and Czecho-Slovakia to-day notified the League of Nations of their willingness to accept the League's pact for mutual guarantees as a base for disarmament. Both nations insisted there was a necessity for general pact guarantees as well as group guarantees, such as the little intente and the Franco-Polish and Czecho-Slovakian alliances.

Prime Minister MacDonald of England, replying to the League's request that the nations preliminary to a reduction in armaments not exceed the current military, naval and aerial budgets said that while England though constantly to reduced armament he could bind herself not to exceed her present budget. England recognizes that much of the world's military expenditure are purely competitive and can be limited only by mutual agreements. She is willing to consider such agreements with the double purpose of increasing national security by declining armaments and international security by declining armaments and international armaments.

Premier Herriot, of France, notified the League's secretaries that he would arrive on September 2nd for the Assembly meeting.

Mr. E. H. Finlayson, acting director, Dominion Forestry Branch, traced the historical development of silvicultural practice in the Dominion forests and on the Crown lands in the various provinces. He explained the reasons for its absence in those provinces that make no provision for the silvicultural treatment of their forests. He described the silvicultural methods employed at the present time in the Canadian forests and in the reforestation of waste lands, together with the economic results of such operations so far as they have gone, and outlined advisable courses of development for the maintenance of a continuous production of saw logs, pulpwood and the minor forest products.

DOMINION STORES Limited

CANADAS LARGEST RETAIL GROCERS

Celebrate Our Fifth Birthday With Us By Real Saving on Your Groceries

THIS is Fifth Anniversary Week in DOMINION STORES. In five short years we have built up the largest Grocery Organization in the Dominion.

To do this it is only natural for us to feel proud of the fact that to win the friendship and steady patronage of so many thrifty housewives, our policy must be sound, our efforts to serve, satisfying.

Our policy of buying only the best which our tremendous buying power enables us to buy at lower costs. Our policy of passing this saving on to the buying public. Our policy of demanding quick turnovers, assuring fresh goods in our stores at all times. Of guaranteeing complete satisfaction by our money-back guarantee. All are sound, sensible and appreciated, and these policies, carried out to the letter by everyone in the Organization, on the one hand, and a friendly and continued response to them on the part of the thousands of our patrons, on the other, has enabled us to grow to such proportions today, and of equal growth we hope, in the next five years.

To celebrate we are offering exceptional grocery values at all stores.

The Comedy Kid

—By Albert Payson Terhune

ILLUSTRATED BY J. NORMAN LYND

A Young Fighter With a Tendency to Fist and Footwork Faster Than His Headwork Wins a Wonderful Reputation in Spite of Himself—He Also Wins a Surprising Victory in Love.

CORRY ROAD was on the other side of the railroad tracks. The least undesirable section of Corry Road was farthest from the tracks. Number 1-A Corry Road was so near the right of way that its occupants could tell, in their sleep, whether the 12:37 was burning hard coal or soft. In Number 1-A Corry Road was born Roderick VicAlpine Dhu Kent.

His father was Essex English and his mother was Chicago Yankee. But his mother had received as a wedding gift, from the family for whom she worked, an ornate and flaringly illustrated copy of "The Lady of the Lake."

Much of it she did not understand. But she thrilled to the soul at one of its full-page illustrations—the drawing of a darkly magnificent man in kilts with a brandished sword and a scowling brow. The pictured man, she learned from caption and context, was Roderick VicAlpine Dhu; oftener referred to, during the rhymed narrative's course, as Roderick Dhu.

Wherefore, when a lustily squalling son arrived in the Kent household, some months later, his mother had him christened Roderick VicAlpine Dhu Kent. She had her way in the naming of her first and only child. This because her husband was barred, temporarily, from objecting. While following too zealously the example of the stag at eve, he had mistaken a policeman's uniform for a brakeman's; and had waxed overplayful with its wearer. By reason of which he did not return from the House of Correction until a fortnight after the christening.

Never, from the hour of his baptism, was the heir of the house of Kent called by his full name. He grew up as "Roddy."

"I've Left Home"

ON Corry Road, children did most of their own upbringing. Those who had no knack for doing so died. Roddy lived.

Both his parents died before he was ten. St. Thaddeus's Orphanage took him in.

Then eight years with adoptive parents gave Roddy a smatter of education and of manners. He managed to get through grammar school at sixteen, thanks to extra coaching, and he was not dropped from high school until after the end of the first term.

First and last, books were a mystery to him. In one thing alone did he excel. As an all-round athlete he had not his equal within two years of his own age.

Old Justin, the former pugilist, who had charge of the high-school gym, eyed him, from the start, as a horseman might regard some future Derby winner. He insisted on teaching the stocky and pug-nosed lad to box and to wrestle; and he all but wept with joy at Kent's progress.

Two years later, Justin received a visit, after hours, from Roddy.

"I've left home," reported the youth. "I mean it's left me. The old gentleman died last month. They've figured out his estate. He'd lost a lot. There's just enough left to keep the old lady going. If I stayed on, there'd be only a meal and a half a day for each of us and about half enough money for everything else she's got to have. So I've lit out. I figured she'd feel better that way—you know—thinking I was making a getaway from a sinking ship—than if she thought I was going hungry out in the tall grass so she can get three squares. I wrote a rotten note and I skipped. Gimme a job, won't you; or try to get me one, somewheres?"

It was a long speech for the taciturn Roddy Kent. And old Justin let pass a longer interval of silence before he answered.

"At any line of work that fits in with your home raising," said he, "you'd be worth about nine cents a week."

"Start With the Gong"

HE paused. Roddy's level little eyes did not flinch. The heavy young face was impassive.

"Just the same," pursued Justin, "you done a decent thing when you dived off the raft that wasn't big enough to hold you and the old dame. And you done a decenter thing when you left her sore at you instead of sad for you. I'm giving you credit for that."

The boy frowned, making as though to interrupt. But old Justin went on:

"There's only one man's size job you could make good at. I'm talking about the ring."

"I know you are," assented Roddy. "I knew you were going to. Can you get me a start?"

"I can," promised Justin. "So could any one else whose opinion the fight crowd will take. I'll do a bit more. I'll train you myself and I'll manage you on a twenty-five per cent. split—you being only a kid and a dub, yet—and I'll board you at my shack and train you there."

Three months later the first semi-final event of the Cestus Athletic Club's Saturday-night program was scheduled as a ten-round bout between Coal-Mine Crump and Kid Kent. Both were welter-weights; one a veteran pork-and-beaner, the other a novice.

Crump was a former mine hand who had some slight following not only among sporting men of his old trade but among a fair contingent of local fight fans. He barely escaped being a formidable fighter.

Justin had been criticized for starting his protege's career against so experienced a third-rater. But the old man had studied the situation and had made his choice.

"Here's the idea, Roddy," he had said. "If you're the comer I think you are, you're able, right now, to last out against Crump or maybe even get a shade on him.

"Hit the first punch and keep on hitting. Tear in; and keep on tearing in. Be ready for the gong. When you hear it, get up with a jump and make for him. Slug as soon as you can get in reach. No matter if he ain't half up off his chair yet—slug! Fight's on as soon as the gong sounds. Remember that."

Naturally, it did not occur to Justin to mention that a preliminary gong sometimes is sounded before a bout, the gong which calls the bath-robed fighters to mid-ring to get their instructions from the referee, after which they retire to their corners, there to strip and await the gong which begins the bout.

Roddy's First Fight

IT seemed as needless for the man of many years ring experience to explain this to his disciple as for a school-teacher to tell his pupils they need not translate the printer's name and the date on a Greek examination paper. To Justin, as to all of his kind, the term "gong" meant only the bell which opened and closed a round.

The second preliminary at the Cestus Athletic Club on Roddy's debut night was ending as Roddy Kent sat beside Justin in an empty ringside box swathed in his bathrobe, and watched the feather-weight slapping match drag itself to a close. Then, at Justin's command, he climbed up into one of the ring's newly vacated corners. Not a hand-clap greeted him Novices and unknowns and dark horses were no novelty to that crowd. Instead of growing nervous at the wait, he fell to rehearsing Justin's myriad wise instructions and warnings. This done, his gaze roved again over the sprinkling of onlookers below and above the ring and came to a brief and puzzled rest upon two women who sat in the second row behind the boxes. To be accurate, it was merely the younger of the two.

She was a girl of about his own age; well-set up, neat, capable-looking; comely with youth's freshness, but with no claim to classic beauty. She was sitting beside a woman perhaps ten years her senior; a woman of evident and almost aggressive respectability.

Kent recognized the girl at once though the recognition sent no thrill through him. She was Mary Bonnell who had gone to high school with him. The two had never been over-well acquainted with each other. Indeed, they might never have met had not Roddy chanced to thrash a track-side lad whom he caught snowballing her on the way to school. But soon thereafter Kent had left high school and the acquaintance had lapsed.

Nor did he waste a second thought on her now except to wonder vaguely why nice girls should go to prize-fights. Their eyes met. Mary bowed slightly, without smiling. Roddy ducked his head in response.

Then he forgot her existence. For there arose a scattered ripple of handclapping. Coal-Mine Crump was advancing toward the ring amid his seconds and handlers.

A Pugilistic Sensation

CRUMP was perhaps thirty-two years old. Always he had been a fighter since a handy way with his fists had lifted him out of the mines and into the ring. But somehow he did not altogether qualify.

There were vague tales afloat about Crump—rumors that he had a real gift for unperceived fouling and for selling fights and for "laying down" at precisely the moment when certain heavy backers of his opponent had prophesied he would. Nothing was proved. But he seemed to be semi-perpetually in funds—a condition not common to a pork-and-beaner of his limited chances.

Up through the ropes, now, Coal-Mine Crump made his lazy way. He glanced around the house. He caught sight of Mary Bonnell and the woman with her. He grinned at them. Mary waved her hand gaily in reply. The older woman smiled maternally. Crump turned from them, bobbed his head in recognition of the mild applause, sneered chillingly at the interested Roddy, then sat down on the stool his officious handlers put in place in his corner.

The two sets of gloves were inspected and drawn on. Ensued a moment's pause while the referee strode majestically to mid-ring. He signaled the timekeeper to strike the hand-gong which should call the fighters to him for instructions.

Before the clangorous note had chance to echo to the farthest reaches of the building, Roddy Kent was out of his seat and darting across the canvas with the formidable speed of an express train. Past the wondering referee he flashed, just as Crump was rising gracefully from his stool.

An instant later, Kent's piston-like left fist was crashing into the wholly unprepared jaw of the newly arisen Crump.

Roddy was obeying old Justin's orders to the letter. At the clang of the gong he had gone violently into action. Similarly, he had hit the first blow. But he could not follow the advice to "keep on tearing in." There was nothing left to tear into.

Crump, hands at sides, was taking his first forward step toward the beckoning referee as Kent's first landed. The blow was backed by Roddy's flying momentum and it had all Roddy's hundred-and-forty-odd pounds and whalebone muscle behind it.

A Fool For Luck

COAL-MINE CRUMP shot backward as from a mule-kick. Clean through the ropes he tumbled and fell, spread-eagle, athwart the press-table. The entire audience was on its feet, yelling, gesticulating, milling. Seconds and handlers piled into the ring. The dumfounded Roddy stared about him, wondering at the insanity caused by his initial punch as a professional fighter. He had a fleeting glimpse of Mary Bonnell, standing with clenched hands and widely incredulous eyes, and of the older woman fairly jumping up and down in wrath. Then referee and seconds and Justin had hemmed him in, and his ears were deafened by a babel of undistinguishable language.

Out of the ruck of it, presently, he gleaned that he was assailed right furiously for what he had done. And he babbled to the scandalized Justin:

"You told me to! You said to sail in at the sound of the gong and to land the first punch. I——"

The clamor broke out afresh on his excuse. The announcer advanced to the ropes and waved both arms to the racketing spectators.

"Ladies and gentlemen!" he bawled, "Kid Kent's manager told him to start hitting as soon as he heard the gong. He didn't say which gong. The Kid never even saw a fight before. So when the prelim gong sounded he got busy. That's how it happened."

Anger-reddened faces twisted into laughter. From all over the house came a ragged guffaw of appreciation.

Next morning, on the front page—not on the sporting page, mind you—appeared a story whose gist the Associated Press had already sent to the ends of the continent.

"Son!" Justin exulted, "it's the making of you. That yarn will be in the mouth of every fight fan in the state. It'll do more to make you known and make folks come to see you fight than if you'd scored six knockouts on better men than Coal-Mine Crump. I won't have to go begging and wheedling to make the Cestus hardboilers give you your next chance. Don't go looking like you was spanked! It's the biggest lump of luck that a beginner ever run into. A fool for luck, like the feller said. I'll go down and have a chat with 'em as soon as they're awake enough to have read their papers."

He did. He came home at noon glorified.

Crump's Sister-in-Law

"TALK about luck!" he crowed. "They near kissed me. Whatcha think? You're to be signed up to meet Alabaster Mayo, four weeks from last night! Get that! Alabaster Mayo. The coon that's in line to meet the welter champ of the Middle West. And you've got a fight on with him! Luck! Of course the match-maker chap thinks it's a set-up for the coon. He counts on this noos-paper dope to bring out a crowd to see you. You pack the wallop. Why, everybody I met has read about last night! But I seem to be the only one who saw all you put into that smash you landed on him. Hand Alabaster a few of those and you'll cut through to that yellow streak I've always said he has."

When Roddy Kent came home from his afternoon's road work that day, he avoided the livelier streets. He dreaded to meet any friend. In spite of this or because of it, he rounded a corner to find himself face to face with Mary Bonnell.

The girl made as though to pass him without speaking. But, urged by a queer impulse that was too sudden to resist, Kent stopped timidly in front of her.

"I'm sorry you were there to see me make a fool of myself," he blurted. "It wasn't my fault. I didn't know about—"

"Yes," she interposed frigidly, "I heard what the announcer said. I read the paper this morning."

"If you'll come again to see me fight," he stammered, driven on by that same odd impulse he could not define nor curb, "I'll be doing better by that time, and I won't make such a monkey of myself. I'm—I'm signing up to fight Alabaster Mayo four weeks from last night," he finished, in sorry pride.

The tidings did not sem to impress her.

"Yes," she answered. "I heard you were. But it isn't likely I'll be there. I don't care for fights. They are brutal and—and——"

"You heard about it?" he repeated, too much confused by this statement to take in the rest of her words. "Why, it wasn't settled till late this morning."

"A friend of Harry's dropped in a few minutes ago," she explained coldly, "to ask about his poor shoulder. He told——"

"Who's Harry?"

"My brother-in-law. My sister's husband. Didn't you know?"

"No. I don't know, even yet. Is he in the fight game?"

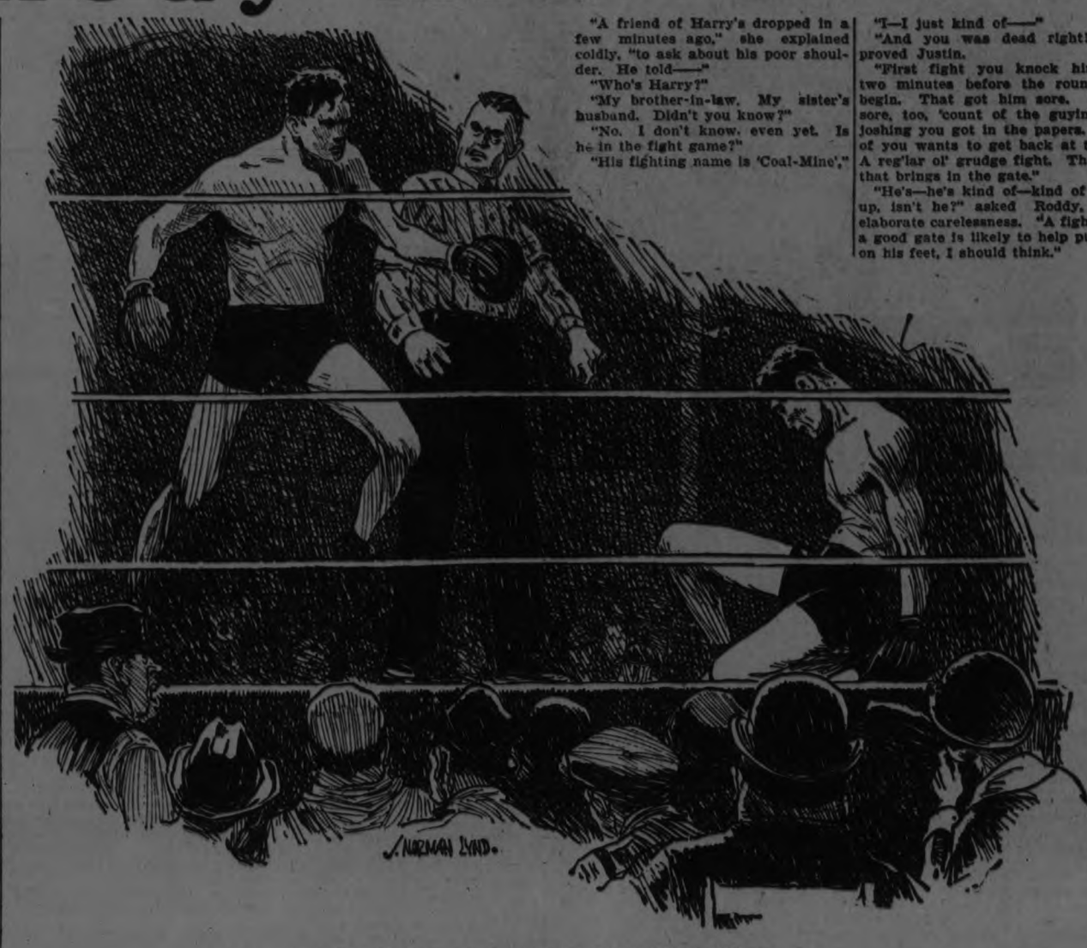
"His fighting name is 'Coal-Mine'," said Mary. "'Coal-Mine' Crump. He is my brother-in-law. That's why Sis and I were there last evening. We hardly ever go to the Cestus unless Harry is fighting. He——"

"I—I just kind of——"

"And you was dead right!" approved Justin.

"First fight you knock him out two minutes before the round's to begin. That got him sore. You're sore, too, 'count of the guying and joshing you got in the papers. Both of you wants to get back at t'other. A reg'lar ol' grudge fight. The kind that brings in the gate."

"He's—he's kind of—kind of hard-up, isn't he?" asked Roddy, with elaborate carelessness. "A fight with a good gate is likely to help put him on his feet, I should think."



Kent flashed past the protestingly scandalized referee.

Another Match

SHE paused, struck by the blank look on his ruddy face.

"Gee!" he faltered. "And you saw me land that crack on his jaw! No wonder you froze me! Say, I'm awfully sorry, Mary! Honest, I am!"

She sought to maintain her frigid bearing. But there was something so unhappy, so childishly contrite in the man's aspect that her heart softened. She frowned in self-disapproval and forced herself to speak with added rebuke.

"It means more than a joke to Harry and to us all," she said. "It means more than a wrenched shoulder to him, too. The shoulder will be all well in a little. And the joke advertises him a little. But—he needed that fight badly. It was the first one he's been able to get in ever so long. And he had all the expenses of Sis's illness to pay. He counted on the money he'd get from last night. I suppose the newspapers think it's a lovely joke. But it means hard times to all of us till he can get another match."

That night, after an hour of earnest effort at thought, Roddy Kent amazed his manager by suggesting:

"Say! Why not get a return match for Crump and me? You said I'd be in demand for a while, now. Why not see his manager about——?"

"Glory be!" snorted Justin goggle-eyed with astonishment. "The ivory mine gets to work, sometimes, just like it was reg'lar folks' brains! And I never thought of it! It's a pip! That's what it is. How'd you ever happen to hit on that, Sonny?"

"He sure needs it!" assented Justin. "Lately, there's been funny cracks made about him and how he got some of the cash he always used to be flashing. Promoters have been leary of putting him on. Now go to bed. You're due to start training to-morrow for Alabaster Mayo."

Meeting Mary

IF it was something akin to chance that made Roddy encounter Mary Bonnell three times the next week on her way to or from the grocery, then the kinship belonged in the poor-relation category. For he arranged his afternoon road work to end always in precisely the same place and at the same time. His luck did the rest.

Not being gifted with any thing approaching self-analysis, he did not stop to consider why he was going out of his way to meet and walk with a girl who had been out of his life and out of his mind so long a time. All he knew was that he had come upon her, by accident, that first afternoon, and at an hour when he was troubled and ashamed and bitterly lonely and a newspaper laughing stock, and that something had happened to his heart as he had stood there looking confusedly down into her grave eyes.

Mary did not encourage these frequent meetings. Indeed, between their occurrences she used to tell herself she must find some way to avoid the homely and stupid youth. But, somehow, to her own self-disgust, she could not think of any deft or kindly method of stopping the queer acquaintance. Then, to her amazement, she found she did not want to stop it. So it went on.

She even departed so far from the calm honesty which was her keynote as to have her sister persuade Crump to take the two women to the Mayo-Kent fight, and then to make her sister and brother-in-law think she herself went thither with them right reluctantly.

Roderick VicAlpine Dhu was careful to make no blunders in the matter of procedure at this second fight of his. With Justin he had witnessed several intervening bouts during the past month. And he was letter-perfect.

His opponent this second time was a redoubtably scowling and thick-set negro of burnt-coffee hue and mighty muscles. The two came together at the gong before a thronged auditorium. Kent had peered furtively about him as he awaited the entrance of Mayo into the ring; and by a miracle he had been able to recognize Mary and her sister, sitting with Coal-Mine Crump, toward the rear of the two-dollar seats. The seats, by the way, had been complimentary from the management, or so Crump had thought, when they came to him anonymously by mail.

Following Justin's precepts, and subconsciously aware that Mary was watching him, Kent began the fight with a whirlwind attack.

He had stood there confusedly looking down into her grave eyes.

The Knockout

ALABASTER MAYO had looked for swift victory from this youngster, who had been described to him as a clowning novice. At the formidable and unceasing and scientific assault of the despised beginner, gradually, a superstitious fear possessed him.

Surely this was no novice, this ever-attacking fighting machine, whom his own best efforts could not block or weaken. This was a ringer—some European or Eastern champion out for an easy victory. The negro was nonplused, then scared.

Terror and bad training and much high living combined to soften Alabaster to the furious battery of the younger man.

Twice in the third round Kent floored the negro while the house screamed itself hoarse. Unknowingly, Kent was taking chances, now and then, from which a more seasoned fighter would have shrunk.

In the fourth round, for example, Alabaster let drop his arms after receiving a light blow on the side of the head. He reeled back as if dazed or weakened past defense. Now this trick is so old that none but an amateur is taken in by it. Instead of covering up or dancing back, Roddy bored in. And he landed a stomach punch a fraction of a second earlier than Mayo's artfully prepared haymaker could be delivered.

Down crashed Alabaster, the breath hammered out of him by the terrific smash in the stomach. He writhed in anguish. And then there cropped forth the well-hidden yellow streak, which Justin had suspected.

Motioning Roddy back, the referee began to count Mayo out. As he did so, he surveyed the fallen man; and he was led to believe that terror rather than inability to rise kept the negro glued to the floor. Wherefore, after counting up to five the referee addressed Mayo in a quick undertone, then went on counting. Thus:

"One-two-three-four-five?" he intoned, adding, fiercely: "Aren't you going to fight any more?"

"Yassah!" replied the stricken Alabaster, as the count proceeded. "Yassaa!—but not to-night.'

It was a shining-eyed Mary Bonnell who greeted Roddy at the corner of her home street next afternoon. She had even been guilty of waiting there for him. Sheepishly he received her congratulations. And, as they fell into step, as usual, neither noticed that they were strolling away from the Crump bungalow instead of toward it. They were actually taking a walk together; their first.

A Stupid Man's Brain

AS, finally, they turned back, a little of the light died in Mary's dark eyes.

"Harry is ever so happy," she confided to Kent. "He says last night will mean a jammed house when you and he fight. That's all he seems to think about. And the newspapers have gotten hold of that funny thing Mayo said when he wouldn't get up. And Harry says that'll add to your reputation, too, by making people laugh again. But—but suppose you knock Hary out!"

"That's what I'm going to try to do," Roddy assured her; then he gulped as he realized belatedly that he had said the wrong thing again.

"But don't you see," she explained, worriedly, "don't you see how horrible that'll be for Sis—looking on and seeing her husband beaten? And—and for me, too!"

"For you, too?" he asked dully.

"Y-yes," she hesitated.

"You'd rather see him lick me than to see me lick him?" he persisted, ridiculously like a grieved child.

Perhaps it was his tone or his face, perhaps it was her inherent honesty that made her silent.

"Mary," he begged, "would you rather see him lick me than see me lick him? Would you, honest?"

"Don't ask such silly questions!" she reproved, taking refuge in vexation. "Besides, it isn't a question of what I'd rather or wouldn't rather. It means more than that. Mr. Justin made Harry agree that the winner is to get seventy-five per cent. Harry wouldn't have agreed to such terms with all his reputation and everything, and you a novice, if we hadn't needed money so badly. And if he loses, the twenty-five per cent. will only help a third as much as if he'd won. Sis found out yesterday that he's been borrowing all the money he could get hold of. He says he's been betting it all on himself. If he loses, it'll take more than his share of the purse to pay his debts, and we'll be worse off than we are."

Her voice shook. At note of grief and anxiety ripped its way to Roddy Kent's soul. The pang of it started his wontedly dormant brain to working. When a stupid man's brain begins to work, there is as much peril as when a plow-horse runs away or when a staid milch cow turns vicious.

"I—I wouldn't get too much het up over it," Kent said slowly, after a long pause. "Maybe it'll—maybe it'll be all right."

Coal-Mine Crump was waxing old for the prize ring, and he was going back steadily. No one knew it better than did he. And from the punch he had received from the novice as well as from the reports he had gleaned of the lad's training, he realized the newcomer was almost certainly too good for him.

Attempting a Foul

IT was true, as Mary had said that he had been straining his feeble credit by wholesale borrowing. But Crump had lied in telling his wife he was betting the borrowed cash on himself.

He was betting every dollar of it, through commissioners, for Roddy Kent to win in the second round. On the strength of this plan, Crump had been able to borrow freely from friends who ordinarily would not have lent him a cent. He and they were placing their bets at the best obtainable odds. Already enough money had been placed to bring the odds undersirably low, and more than to cover the difference between twenty-five and seventy-five per cent. of the modest purse.

He was not new to schemes like this, and had a genuine talent for them.

The pang-born thought that had entered Roddy's brain blossomed there. It bore its fruit in the second round of his bout with Crump, at the Cestus Athletic Club, four weeks later.

This time Mary and her sister were in a ringside box. But Roddy paid scant heed to them. He paid less heed to the hearty welcome of the crowd.

From the outset of the first round he fought with little of his former aggressiveness. With true fighter-instinct he realized that this oldster was no match for him and that he could probably end the battle whenever he might choose to.

After the first round Justin took him severely to task, as Kent had foreseen, for his lack of aggression. In seeming obedience to his manager's orders he started the second round in his wonted hurricane style, boring savagely in.

He drove Crump before him in a short-arm rally that set the spectators wild. He slammed him to the ropes. He held him flattened there with a volley of lightning-quick blows.

The referee, of course, interfered as fast as he could get to the spot of carnage. He sought to thrust Roddy back. But Kent, apparently, had lost his head with rage and ignored the shove and the bellowed admonition.

Crump dipped gracefully to one knee, preparatory to keeling over in well rehearsed unconsciousness. As he did so, Kent flashed past the protestingly scandalized referee and struck him lightly but resoundingly on the chest.

Ruined by Winning

FROM all over the noisily daft house went up a gasp that was more a groan. The young fool had thrown away the fight when it was his. In his battle mania he had so far forgotten every rule of the ring as to resist the referee and then to strike a man who was down. Truly, Kent's slow thinking had been done to some purpose!

As soon as he had landed the foul blow he seemed to come to himself. For he stepped back, under the sharp urgence of the referee's shove. He stood there, quiescent, moveless, while the house hissed and roared. His work was done. It had all come out precisely as he had planned it. He had not dared trust his powers—or lack of powers—as an actor, by staging a fake knockout with himself as its victim. Thus, he had lost the fight by the most palpable sort of foul. And, somehow, he had done it very convincingly. Yes, when a stupid man's brain begins to work, there is much peril.

Coal-Mine Crump did not sink limply to the floor as he had planned and then turn convulsively over on his face. He knelt as he was. He could not bring himself to speak or to stir. He was sick with horror. Before him lay ruin and pennilessness. He had wagered every cent he had in the world and much more borrowed cash that he would be knocked out in this round. And, lo! he had won the fight on a foul! He was ruined!

Most cheerfully he could have murdered the young idiot who had made his beautiful plan miscarry. He could have murdered him and then cut him into dice.

Then, on the instant, his crafty brain began to work. That noisily light tap on the chest—assuredly that was not the blow of a rage-maddened athlete. Something was queer! The thought cleared his head.

Fame and Fortune

THE referee had caught Crump's right glove and was lifting it aloft in token of victory. Coal-Mine leaped to his feet. "Hold on!" he yelled, his voice carrying shrilly to every corner of the place. "Hold on, Mr. Referee. He didn't land on me while I was down! That was my own glove swatting his as he led for me. I wasn't fouled. Besides, while he was rushing me across the ring I fouled him twice. It was such close quarters you couldn't see it. He was between me and you. I lost my head and hit him twice 'way below the belt. I'm man enough to confess it. I won't take a victory I don't earn! He didn't foul me! He only tried to. I fouled him!"

Glumly, through the resumed uproar, the referee stared from the falsely confessed fouler to the flabbergasted Kent. Then, with sharp abruptness, he turned to the audience.

"Ladies and gentlemen!" he thundered, taking refuge in Rocap's immortal formula, "I was asked to referee a contest. This is no contest. I don't know just what it is," he added, on his own account. "But whatever it is, it's off. So are all bets, I thank you."

He stalked out of the ring, leaving the fighters to follow as they might.

"The Comedy Kid" was The Chronicle's nickname for Roddy Kent next morning in calling attention to the burlesque phases which had accompanied each of his three fights. The name stuck. So did his following, which ever thereafter thronged whatever club-house he chanced to fight in, avid, even after scores of disappointments, to witness another front page comedy scene. Kent was a made man.

"I don't know what ails Harry!" lamented Mary Bonnell, next afternoon, as she and Roddy began their walk. "He seemed to like you so much! And, ever since last night he says such perfectly awful things about you! Why, he told me if I ever spoke to you again he wouldn't let me stay another day in his house."

"The blazes he did!" grunted the sympathetic Roddy blankly. "What did you say to that?"

"I'm—I'm here, aren't I?" she made answer so low he scarce could believe he heard.

"That means you can't keep on living in his house?"

"I suppose so. He—"

"Say!" shouted Kent, smitten by the first sound and brilliant idea of all his brief life. "Say! Let's go house-hunting, then? Hey? How about it? Hurroo! Come on!"

BROADCAST FANS ON INCREASE IN ENGLAND

GREAT Britain has about 550,000 licensed "listeners in," compared was only 30,000 a year ago, and broadcasting is still increasing, reports to the United States government state. This year manufacturers expect a large increase in their business. About 225,000 individuals who first took out temporary licenses were later given constructors' licenses, which apparently are permits to build sets. This type of license seems popular, as between 32,000 and 75,000 a month were issued toward the close of 1923. All told, 165,000 British broadcasting licenses were issued to owners of British manufactured sets, 75 per cent. of whom are said to own crystal sets. Since the broadcasting stations are mostly located in populous districts, a large majority of set owners are satisfied with simple crystal sets.

Loves Me Not

THE professor of mathematics and his fiancee were out roaming in the fields when she plucked a daisy and, looking roguishly at him, began to pull off the petals, saying: "He loves me, he loves me not—"

"You are giving yourself a lot of unnecessary trouble," said the professor, "You should count up the petals, and if the total is an even number the answer will be in the negative; if an uneven number, in the affirmative."—Tit-Bits.

TWENTY COOL SUMMER DRINKS

Tea Punch.

One cup strong fresh tea, 3 lemons, 2 oranges, 1 cup fresh strawberry or raspberry juice, 2 cups sugar, 2 cups water, cracked ice.

Squeeze juice from lemons and strain. Cut oranges in slices. Boil sugar and water ten minutes. Mix lemon, strawberry juice and tea while tea is hot. Add syrup and pour mixture over cracked ice. Add orange slices and serve.

Cherry Ade.

Two cups cherry juice, 2 cups sugar syrup, 1 cup orange juice, cracked ice, 1 cup tea.

To make the syrup, boil one and one-half cups sugar with one-half cup water till syrup threads. Stone cherries and just heat to start the juice.

Press through a cheesecloth. Mix the syrup, orange and cherry juices and let stand on ice till thoroughly chilled.

Add cracked ice and pour over hot tea. Serve with large perfect cherries in glasses.

Fruit Punch.

One pineapple, 1 quart water, 1 quart raspberries or strawberries, 6 oranges, 3 cups lemon syrup, cracked ice.

Grate pineapple. Put water and pineapple in a smooth sauce pan and boil three minutes. Strain. Add juice pressed from quart of fruit, orange juice and lemon syrup. Pour over cracked ice and serve.

Loganberry Cup.

One quart loganberry juice, 1 pint ginger ale, 1 pint tea, 2 lemons, 1 cup sugar.

Squeeze juice from lemons and strain. Stir sugar into hot tea. When sugar is dissolved add remaining ingredients and pour over cracked ice.

There are two things to remember in serving iced drinks. Always strain lemon or orange juice before adding to other juices and always serve a drink ice cold and with chips of ice in the glasses.

Grape Juice.

Pick grapes from stem. Wash thoroughly. Put in preserving kettle with a very little water and heat, stirring to prevent sticking. When the skins are broken and the juice flows freely put into jelly bag and let drip. Measure juice and allow one-fourth cup of granulated sugar for each cup of juice. Return juice to preserving kettle and bring juice to the boiling point. When boiling sift in the required amount of sugar. Any scum that rises on the juice before the sugar is added should be carefully skimmed off. After the sugar is added there should be no scum. Do not let the juice boil after adding sugar. Pout into hot cans or bottles and seal quickly. The bottles MUST be full to overflowing and the juice at the boiling point when sealed. This juice should be diluted and served with ice when used as a drink.

Grape Juice II.

Fill glass jars half full of grapes, pour over cold water to fill the jars to within one inch of the top. Half seal and put in boiler. Fill boiler with cold water, covering jars by at least an inch. Bring to the boiling point. Reduce heat and simmer 30 minutes. Remove from heat and let stand in boiler until water is cold. Remove and finish sealing jars. Sweeten and chill to taste when wanted, but do not dilute with water.

Any variety of grapes can be used, but Concord grapes make a rich, delicious juice.

Raspberry Shrub.

Eight quarts red raspberries, cider vinegar, sugar.

Wash and pick over berries. Put in earthenware jars or half fill one big jar. Pour over vinegar to cover berries. Cover jars with clean cloths and let stand over night.

In the morning strain through two thicknesses of cheesecloth or jelly bag. Measure juice. For every cup of juice add a cup of sugar.

Put in preserving kettle and bring to boiling point. Boil 10 minutes. Fill sterilized bottles full and seal at once. Store in dry, cool, dark place.

Raspberry Nectar.

Four quarts raspberries, 2 quarts vinegar, sugar.

Put berries in a crock and pour vinegar over. Cover with a clean cloth and put in a cool place. Let stand ten days or two weeks. Strain and measure.

To every pint of juice add three-quarters of a pound of granulated sugar. Bring to the boiling point and simmer gently 20 minutes. Skim as scum rises.

Let cool and pour into sterilized bottles. Seal and store in a dark, dry, cool place. Dilute with ice water when used.

Wat3(melon Cocktail.

Make balls of watermelon with a French vegetable cutter. Allow six or eight balls to a serving. If the melon is not sweet cover balls with sugar, about one-half to a spoon of sugar for each ball is a good rule. Squeeze the juice from oranges, allowing two tablespoons of juice for each cocktail. Put the mixture into a glass jar, cover and let stand on ice until needed. Serve in cocktail glasses with a sprig of mint in each glass.

Mint Julep.

Two cups water, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup boiling water, 10 stalks mint, + cup strawberry juice, + cup raspberry juice, 4 lemons.

Boil sugar and water 15 minutes. Wash mint and strip from stems. Cut mint fine with the kitchen scissors. Put in a bowl and pour over boiling water. Cover tightly and let stand 15 minutes. Strain into syrup. Squeese juice from lemons and strain lemon juice into first mixture. Add strawberry and raspberry juices and chill. Serve in glasses with crushed ice and sprigs of mint. All orange juice may be used in place of the combination of fruits. A maraschino cherry in each glass adds much.

Chilled Cocoa.

Four tablespoons cocoa, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 quarts milk, 2 teaspoons vanilla.

Mix cocoa, sugar and salt to a smooth syrup with boiling water. Heat milk and add cocoa mixture. Bring to the boiling point, stirring to prevent sticking but do not let boil. Beat four or five minutes with a dover beater. Cool rapidly in the saucepan in a large pan of cold water. Add vanilla and pour onto chipped ice.

A spoonful of whipped cream can top the glass. A "pinch" of dry cocoa is sifted over the top.

This drink may be more elaborate than is usually served at a party from "two to four," but it is so satisfactory for children that it might appeal for some small guests' luncheon.

Cream Chocolate.

One-half cake chocolate, 1 1-2 cups sugar, 2 cups water, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 quarts milk, 1-2 pint whipping cream, 2 tablespoons vanilla.

Grate chocolate. Mix salt, sugar and chocolate. Add boiling water to make a smooth paste and slowly stir into the two cups of boiling water. Boil without stirring until thick. Cool slightly and add vanilla.

Half fill glasses with cracked ice, add 3 tablespoons chocolate syrup and fill glasses with milk. Top with a small spoonful of whipped cream slightly sweetened and flavored with vanilla.

Children always love to drink through a "straw" and these are an economical device calculated to save napkins.

Lemon Syrup.

Three dozen lemons, 3 pounds sugar, 1 quart water.

Wash lemons and grate rind. Squeeze juice from lemons. Put grated rind, juice, sugar and water in a smooth sauce pan and bring slowly to the boiling point. Let boil five minutes and pour into sterilized bottles or jars and seal while boiling hot. Be sure the bottle or can is full to running over when sealed. Cool and put one bottle on ice and store the rest in a cool, dark place. When wanted dilute with cool water and chill.

Currant and Cherry Syrup.

Four quarts red currants, 1 quart sour cherries.

Wash fruit carefully. Do not stalk currants. Put in preserving kettle with just enough water to cover bottom of kettle. Heat slowly, crushing with a wooden potato-masher to extract the juice. Simmer until fruit is soft and juice flows freely. Strain through a jelly bag.

Stone cherries. Heat slowly as with currants. Do not let the fruit boil while extracting the juice. Strain through jelly bag.

Fill sterilized bottles to within an inch of the top. Cover corks of bottles with circles of cloth and put in bottle loosely. Put the half-sealed bottles in rack in boiler and add enough cold water to three-fourths cover bottles. Bring slowly to the boiling point. Reduce heat and keep just at the boiling point for half-an-hour.

Remove boiler from fire and let cool slowly. When water is cold, take out bottles and seal. To seal force cork into bottle. Open cloth around cork and cover cork and cloth well with sealing wax. Store in a dark, cool place.

When used, sweeten with sugar syrup and dilute with ice water. The syrup has a remarkably fresh taste when opened.

Chocolate Egg Malted Milk.

1 teaspoon malted milk, 2 tablespoons chocolate syrup, 1 egg, 1 1-2 cups milk.

Mix all ingredients in a pitcher and beat with a dover egg beater for five or ten minutes. The milk, eggs and syrup should be thoroughly chilled before mixing.

Cherry Cocktails.

Twelve or 15 sweet cherries, 1 teaspoon chopped and blanched almonds, 1 tablespoon strawberry juice, 1 teaspoon powdered sugar.

Pit and chill cherries. Sprinkle with chopped nuts. Mix strawberry juice and sugar and let stand till sugar is dissolved. Pour over cherries. Serve in sherbet glasses. The recipe makes one cocktail.

Fruit Soup.

1 tablespoon arrowroot, 2 1-2 cups raspberry juice, ¼ cup sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt.

Dissolve arrowroot in a little cold water. Add fruit juice. Boil until thick. Add sugar and salt and stir thoroughly. Chill and serve in sherbet glasses. This fruit soup must be very cold when served.

Macedoine of Fruit.

Lemon jelly, strawberries, blackberries, raspberries, cherries.

Use any good prepared jelly. Add two tablespoons of sugar if the fruit is tart. Put a layer of fruit, carefully selected, in a mold. Pout over a little of the jelly, not enough to float the fruit. When almost "set," add another layer of fruit and jelly. Let set. Continue until all is used. Put on ice to become very cold and firm. Unmold and slice to serve.

A delicious drink for a hot day is cherry punch.

Cherry Punch.

Three lemons, 2 oranges, 1-2 cup shredded pineapple, 2 cups stoned cherries, 1 cup sugar, 1 quart ginger ale, 2 cups iced tea, 1 banana, 1-2 cup choice cherries (stoned).

In a large bowl put juice of lemons, the oranges sliced, the pineapple, the cherries and the sugar. Press with a wooden potato-masher and let stand for an hour or longer to extract the juice. Press the fruit to a pulp and strain. Add the strained juice to the ginger ale and tea. Add the banana, sliced, and the cherries cut in quarters. Put a tablespoonful of crushed ice in each glass to serve.

Harlequin Punch.

Three lemons, 2 oranges, 1-2 cup shredded pineapple, 1 cup strawberries, 2 cups stoned cherries, 1 1-2 cups sugar, 1 quart ginger ale, 2 cups iced tea, 1 banana, ⅓ cup fine cherries stoned, ⅓ cup strawberries.

Put the juice of the lemons, the oranges cut in slices, the strawberries and cherries in a large bowl. Add sugar and crush with a wooden potato-masher. Let stand an hour or longer to draw out the juice. Press the fruit to a pulp and strain. Add the fruit juice to the tea and ginger ale. Add banana sliced, and cherries and strawberries cut in quarters. Serve in glasses with crushed ice and a sprig of mint.

U. S. STUDENT BAND "JAZZES UP" BRITISH PLAYERS

When 12 young students of North Carolina University organized a jazz band and started on a tour of Europe they also started a lot of labor trouble in Britain, as the photo shows. Sandwich men appeared to picket their performances and heated protest was made against the granting of a permit by the ministry of labor.

Horse Brings Freedom Of Great Open Places To Brock Street Lawn

At 9 o'clock this morning a milk vendor's horse made himself at home on Brock street, to the delight of a crowd of neighborhood children. Walking up on the sidewalk with the milk waggon dragging behind, the horse perched with his forefeet on a raised lawn, the better to reach the trees from which he stripped the juicy underleaves.

The great fire in Berkeley, Calif., last year is regarded as somewhat of a miracle in that no lives were lost, although the property damage totalled $5,000,000 and some 600 residences were destroyed.

The total number of journeys made by French commercial airplanes in 1923 was 9826, and increase of 2165 over 1922. The distance flown was 365,000 miles greater than in 1922.

PUPILS WAITING TO HEAR RESULT

Collegiate Examinations Still Held Up—Other Places Effected

Peterboro Collegiate Institute pupils are not the only ones who are anxiously waiting for the examination results. Yesterday The Examiner sent a telegram to the Department of Education, enquiring when the results would be available, but apparently the overworked officials in the Department were too busy to reply, for, so far, no answer has been received. The following from an Oshawa paper reveals a similar situation there:

"The matriculation examination results have not arrived in Oshawa as yet. Principal Adams telephoned the Department of Education concerning them and the reply was that the long awaited results would be received here in a day or so. Last year the local departmental writers did not know with what success their efforts had met until a few days before resuming their studies and the indications are that the students will be kept in suspense for an equally lengthy period of time this year," Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, Principal of the Peterboro Collegiate Institute, who is summering at Staynero, Ont., sent a wire to The Examiner to-day to say that he would release the results just as soon as he received them.

COMING OF PRINCE CAUSES EXCITEMENT

His Coming is Causing An Exodus From All Fashionable Summer Resorts.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.— (Canadian Press). — The coming of the Prince of Wales is causing an exodus from all fashionable summer resorts. Newport Southampton and Narragansett pier are being deserted in Society's rush to bask in presence of royalty.

Never have there been so many late house parties as are now scheduled for the vicinity of Syosset and Piping Rock Country Club near where the Prince will stay during the International Polo Match.

It is anticipated that every home in the vicinity of Syosset will be entertaining guests to its full capacity when Great Britain's "Prince Charming" arrives.

The newspapers to-day carry long lists of prominent society leaders who are returning from watering places and establishing themselves in their Long Island homes.

MacDONALD SPEAKS.

Tells League of Nations That Britain Is Seeking To Reduce Armament Expenditures.

GENEVA, Aug. 26.— (Canadian Press).—Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain declared to the League of Nations that although Great Britain was constantly seeking to reduce her armament expenditures, she could not pledge that present or that future British Governments would not exceed current outlays.

His statement was made in answer to the League's request that all countries attempt in future nto to exceed their armament expenses for this year.

Mr. MacDonald emphasized that a considerable part of the expense was due to the competition between powers, which could be eliminated only by mutual agreements. He declared that Great Britain always was ready to negotiate such agreements.

TWO MORE SLAIN IN CHICKEN WAR

Man Shot From Taxi is Third in Family to Fall Before Gang.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Two men were shot to death in what the police termed a resumption of the "Chicken Pullers' war," which raged fiercely on both sides of the Hudson seven years ago, when the authorities brought temporary peace by sending several gang leaders to the electric chair after a series of particularly violent murders.

These victims marked the third murder of the resumed warfare in two days. They were William Young, twenty-three years old, and his friend, Edward Connelly, who were shot by a band of men operating from a taxicab in lower Eighth avenue.

James Young, William's twenty-seven-year-old brother, was shot to death at about the same place and hour and in a similar manner on the previous day.

The brothers were to have appeared in a Jersey City court next month to testify against the murderers of their older brother, John, killed when a gunman, who rushed from a taxicab into his Weehawken, N. J., saloon last March, shot him and fled. The brothers were said to have been the only witnesses to the murder.

Connelly and the Youngs refused to make deathbed statements revealing the identity of their assailants.

Thomas and Philip Reilly, brothers, of Hoboken, and Richard Phillips, of Weehawken, leaders in the "Chicken Pullers' Association," are charged with John Young's murder.

The "Chicken Pullers," an organization maintained by its leaders independently of organized labor, consists of men who unload the countless cars of poultry arriving daily in the Weehawken freight yards. In addition to a cash payment for each crate, the association members receive every dead fowl found in shipment as compensation, although the law provides that such fowl should be destroyed, police say the "pullers" sell them for food.

John Young's murder was said to have been the result of his efforts to remain in the association after he had been warned he was not wanted. William and James Young and Connelly were said also to have engaged in the business against the association's warnings.

The previous warfare of the band, marked by several murders and an era of river-front terrorism, ended in 1914 with the conviction and execution of several leaders of the "pullers" for the murder of Barnett Baff, head of the independent chicken dealers, who had sent fourteen "chicken pullers" to prison for conspiracy to ruin his business.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE.

Two Men in Belleville Hospital as Result of Explosion.

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press).—Frank Fitzgerald and Fred. Croft are in the Belleville General Hospital, suffering from serious burns sustained in an explosion at the former's clothes pressing establishment on Front Street. The men had a very narrow escape with their lives. Both were upstairs over the shop pressing when an explosion occurred. Soon the building was in flames. Both men jumped into the Moira River to extinguish the flames in their clothes.

They are in hospital and will live.

LEGAL BATTLE TO SAVE BOYS

Benjamin Bachrach, An Old Friend of Loeb Family, Completed Defense Argument.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press). — The legal battle to save Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb from the gallows ended to-day, and the State once more took up the offensive, before Justice John R. Caverly in its endeavor to secure a death sentence for the murderers of Bobby Franks. Robert Crowe, State Attorney, indicated that the final argument of the State would require about six hours.

Benjamin Bachrach, long-time friend of the Loeb family, completed the defence argument with another attack upon the mode of examinations by which the State's alienists concluded that the two brilliant college youths were of normal mentality.

Mr. Crowe launched a vigorous attack upon the mercy plea of the counsel for the accused, and again demanded the death penalty for these "two poor sons of multi-millionaires." He spoke ironically of his "tour through a nursery with the defense alienists," his education 'in bedtime stories, and the bad signs which surround youths.

He stated that neither State's attorney nor the court had the right to be lenient above the letter and the spirit of the law.

"The law says," he shouted, "that in cases of extreme violence, the penalty shall be death. We may forgive our personal injuries, but neither you as a judge nor I as the State attorney, has a shred of right to forgive injuries to laws which we are sworn to defend."

WEDDING BELLS.

KNOWLES—NICHOLLS.

On Saturday evening, Miss Jean Nicholls, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nicholls, 909 Water street, and Henry Knowles, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Knowles, Townsend Street, were quietly married by Rev. Norman McLeod, in the Park street church parsonage.

Following the ceremony, the young couple left for Toronto, where they will reside.

FOOTE—GARDNER.

The George Street Methodist Church was the scene of a quiet but very pretty wedding at 10 o'clock this morning, when Mabel Edith, daughter of Mrs. Mabel and the late Dr. A. E. Gardner, was united in marriage to Dr. N. D. Foote, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Foote, 809 George Street. The Rev. W. Harold Young officiated.

The bride, charmingly attired in a navy blue poiret twill suit with grey trimmed felt hat and grey fox stole, the gift of the groom, and carrying a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses, lily of the valley and gypsy philium, walked up the aisle upon the arm of her mother, who wore a taupe satin-faced canton crepe gown with black velvet hat and corsage bouquet of American beauty roses.

Miss Mary Gardner, the bride's sister, as maid-of-honor, wore a powder blue canton crepe dress trimmed with grey and hat to match, and carried a bouquet of Columbia roses and gypsy phillum.

The mother of the groom wore a French blue silk canton dress with black pan velvet hat, and carried a bouquet of American beauty roses.

The church was beautifully decorated with ferns, palms, asters and other flowers, the work of Mr. Campbell Jordan, of Jordan Bros.

During the signing of the register a vocal solo, "Until," was excellently rendered by Mr. J. G. Carlisle, accompanied by Mr. J. H. Renwick, the organist for the occasion.

The groom was supported by Mr. C. R. Armstrong, while Messrs. C. A. Leggett and J. G. Carlisle acted as ushers.

After the ceremony the guests returned to the home of the bride for a reception and wedding breakfast, after which the happy couple left for a short motor trip. On their return they will reside at 514 King Street.

OBITUARY.

MISS GERTRUDE THOMSON.

The death occurred at 6.30 p.m. on Monday, August 25th, at the family residence, 116 Dublin street, Peterborough, of Miss Gertrude Thomson, eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Thomson.

The deceased is survived by two sisters, Lottie J. and Helen.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday, the 27th inst., at 2:30 p.m.

LOCAL EXHIBITION.

"Y" Directors Arrange For Special Events on Children's Day.

With the arrival of the last week of summer holidays and the opening of the Canadian "Wembley" in Toronto the thoughts of boys and girls naturally turn to fall events, and among the most important, the big Peterborough Annual Exhibition.

Every citizen of Peterborough, young or old, should take a real pride in the steady development of our own Exhibition.

The directors, realising the importance of the athletic events on Children's Day, have again arranged for a series of events similar to those which have been held in former years.

One or two novel features will be included in the list this year, and all of the city's younger population should watch the papers for further announcements regarding the events.

A fine prize list will be offered.

WOMEN MAY YET BECOME SQUAWS

Such Are the Thoughts Suggested By Dr. Fay Cooper Cole.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—The modern woman, progressing toward freedom and dominance, may yet become a first class squaw.

But a squaw among the Iroquois Indians was a more powerful personage than most of the emancipated women of to-day. The picture of the Indian woman bearing her husband's burdens and tilling the corn fields while he smoked in the shade may be put away on the shelf along with yesteryear's kerosene lamps. Squaw is a word of dignified rank.

Such are the thoughts suggested by Dr. Fay Cooper Cole, associate professor of anthropology at the University of Chicago, after studies of matriarchal or maternal government among the Menangkabaus of Sumatra and the Iroquois of North America. The squaw very often was the power behind the wigwam, according to Dr. Cole.

Pawns of Wives

"Under a martriarchal system the husbands have no property rights, no rights in their children and often are political pawns of the wives," he says. "The system usually accompanies a very high type of advancement in culture. The Menangkabaus are by no means a primitive people The Iroquois in America were among the least primitive Indians.

The whole political system was built upon the family, and woman was the controlling element in the family. Usually it was the older or head woman.

Several families made up the clan. For clan leadership a man was selected, but the head woman figured prominently in the selection. In most cases either the brother or eldest son of the head woman of the most aristocratic family was chosen. Women had suffrage rights equal with those of the men. About the same tactics were used in selecting tribal chiefs.

Could Recall Chief

Not only did the head woman of the tribe have a check on the chief's activities by controlling his election, but she also exercised the power of veto and recall. In addition to the elected leaders, there were certain "Pine Three Chiefs," who became such by virtue of their wisdom. Several such high honors went to women. Iroquois tribal law exacted a higher price for the injuring of a woman than of a man.

To reach a position in modern society equal to that of the Iroquois squaws, the emancipated modern woman would have to:

Control the national committees of the major political parties.

Go beyond the proposed "equal rights" amendment and impose civil rights exclusive to themselves and superior to men's.

Retain their maiden name after marriage and transmit it to their children.

Obtain the descent of property through daughters in preference to sons.

Arrange marriages without consulting husband or children.

Go to the office daily and earn a living for the domesticated male.

LARGE HATS.

The very large hat is now seen in all colors as well as in black, and milliners believe its vogue will carry on through the winter. Tailored hats are slightly larger than the cloche and are frequently given a wider appearance by the use of a large bow or feather arrangement.

VELVET RIBBON.

Long ends of velvet white ribbon fall from a corsage of small white flowers that are the only trimming on a black chiffon gown.

Society

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hammacott and family, of Ottawa, are spending a few days in the city as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dyer.

Mr. J. Dyer, of Ottawa, is spending a few days with his parents at 429 Chambers Street.

Mrs. McLean, of Ottawa, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. D. C. Grant, Charlotte Street W. Her grandson, Master Harold Grant, who has been in Ottawa for the summer, returned home with her.

The Misses Maud Cawdon, Emily Hare, Helen Johnston and Florence Rutter and Messrs. Harry Ellis and Norville Luck, of Toronto, were the week end guests of Mrs. A. P. Mowry at Camp "Patshack," Crawford's Grove.

Mrs. Kimberley and family have returned home after six weeks camping at Belmont Lake.

Mrs. S. L. Thomas and little daughter, Barbara and son Albert, of Detroit, have returned home after spending the last three weeks with Mrs. Thomas' mother, Mrs. James Booth, 516 Chamberlain street.

JACKSON PARK CAMP.

Health Association Closed the Camp on Saturday.

The Peterborough Health Association closed the Jackson Park Camp on Saturday.

The average for the summer was 55 children a day.

Miss Long, Mrs. Brady, and Mrs. Wright were untiring in their efforts to make it a success for the kiddies.

Those who were not tranked in the last notice of donations include: Miss Elsie Cameron, $1.00; Mrs. Hazel Anderson, $2.00; Mr. J. W. Fraser, $1.00; Dr. and Mrs. G. S. Cameron, $5.00; Mr. G. N. Gordon, $10.00 for ice-cream; Mrs. J. A. Aylmer, ice-cream; Mrs. Belle Gardner, ice-cream; Mrs. W. H. Morris, ice-cream; Mr. G. W. Hall, ice-cream cones; Miss Merrill, candy treats; Knights of Columbus, ice-cream; Mrs. W. J. Oke, watermelon; Mr. H. R. Roberts, candy treats.

The "Held a Bit Club," composed of the following children, Hilda Sullivan, Chrissie Forest, Helen Archambault, Betty Lytle, Margaret Lytle, Helen Donahue, Harold Chadwick, Jack Sullivan, are due most hearty thanks for the $7.00 they realised from a little bazaar they held themselves to give treats to the kiddies, and which purchased for them a bunch of bananas, two gallons of ice-cream, and sixty candy sticks, giving them four days of special treats. They have promised next year to again have a bazaar, and we wish them greater success. Their example would be a lesson to others to do what they can to help bring pleasure and happiness to the Park kiddies.

The swimming pool and swings have proved a great pleasure all the summer.

MATTHEWS TO BE TRIED BY JURY

Pleaded Not Guilty To Several Charges Laid Against Him.

TORONTO, August 26. — Charles A. Matthews, Jr., former deputy provincial treasurer, this afternoon pleaded not guilty, and elected to be tried by a jury.

Several charges were laid against him. In addition to the charge that he violated the Secret Commissions Act of Ontario, which was laid against him following his return from Santa Clara, California, where he was arrested, Matthews pleaded not guilty to the charge of conspiracy, two of conspiracy to defraud, and another alleging that he committed an indictable offence.

Charges are the outcome of evidence submitted before the enquiry conducted last winter by the public accounts commission of the Ontario Legislature into the financial administration of the farmer-labor government during the years 1919 to 1923.

Matthews was defended by J. Seymour Corley.

Garnet M. Hart, who testified before the Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature that Matthews had received a "split" on $11,500 profits on bond transactions, was the first witness.

He stated in reply to a question by the Crown counsel that L. C. Mason stepson-in-law of Matthews, had shared in the profits, but that Matthews did not get anything.

He declared that he had made $1500 on the bond transactions, and that he had paid $1200 for an automobile and spent the remainder on incidentals.

CABINET TO MEET THIS AFTERNOON

Premier Returned From Montreal and Called Meeting.

OTTAWA, Aug. 26. — (Canadian Press). — Premier King returned from Montreal at noon to-day and the cabinet has been called to meet this afternoon. To-day's meeting, which follows closely upon those held at the end of last week will possibly result in a number of important decision. The government is confronted with a long list of vacancies judicial and others, which is slowly lengthening as time goes on. In addition to this, there are a number of important matters some of which have been in abeyance because of the absence of the Minister of Department particularly interested.

ONE WAS KILLED.

23 Injured As Result of a Heavy Rain Storm.

NEW YORK, August 26 (Canadian Press). — One person was killed and 23 others were injured as a result of the rainstorm which swept the city last night, and early to-day, attaining torrential force at times.

Most of the accidents were due to the skidding of automobiles and trucks on the pavements made slippery by the rain.

The fatality was that of a twelve-year-old boy, who was struck on Third Avenue by a truck.

MOSQUITOES DRIVE FARMERS INSIDE

Chicago High School Football Team Driven From Camp.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press).—Efforts to combat mosquitos swarming throughout the Western Great Lakes region were under way to-day, as the winged pests invaded offices and homes, drove golfers from courses, forced the closing of suburban camps and resorts and brought discomfort to numerous outdoor functions.

The insects forced the High School football team to abandon its summer training camp at Fond Du Lac, Wis., the players being compelled to don their heaviest togs for protection. Farmers in the vicinity of Brainerd, Minn., were reported driven indoors by the swarms, those remaining in the fields wearing heavy gloves and screening about their faces.

Only a few anophelene or malaria carrying mosquitos are among the millions in the vicinity of Chicago, according to Dr. W. C. Allee, Associate Professor of Zoology at the University of Chicago. The oulex or common mosquito, he said, carries malaria germs which affect birds.

TUG WAS SUNK.

Bad Storm Swept Virginia and North Carolina.

NORFOLK, Va., August 26 (Canadian Press). — The tug Mildred McNally, of Philadelphia, was sunk in Pamlico Sound last night when it was caught in a hurricane which swept Virginia and North Carolina.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor, of the The Examiner,

Dear Sir,— Last night two letters appeared in the Examiner regarding the picnic to be given by the Liberals to the Prime Minister of Canada, and the Honourable George P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals.

The criticism half directed toward Mayor Turner, I question as being quite fair.

When a Prime Minister came to Peterborough in the days when I was in the Council and I was Chairman of the Reception Committee for several years—I always made it a point to urge, or see that these gentlemen were officially welcomed to the City of Peterborough, notwithstanding their politictal persuasions.

This is a courtesy, I think, that the public expects; and is one which I think, gives the City a good name.

I have a distinct recollection of meeting Sir Robert Borden one time, and I think, Sir George Foster; and I remember having the Honourable Walter Rollo, Minister of Labor of the late U.F.O. Government, taken around the town in my car, just to show him and other that whenever prominent men came to this city, some recognition of them took place It is needless to say that thousands of men and women will appreciate the courtesy and kindness of the Mayor and City Council in welcoming to the City the Prime Minister of Canada and hs party, although, of course, they may not agree with him in his political views.

Yours faithfully,
G. N. GORDON.

August 26th, 1924.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—With the recent great convention of the world's advertising experts in London fresh in our memory, it is interesting to recall that newspaper publicty in England came into being through a man losing his horse in 1649. He is supposed to have been the very first man to insert an advertisement in a paper. It appeared in the "Moderate," and ran:

"Reader, thou are intreated to "inquire after a blackish and kind "of piebald nag. Very poor, his face, "feet and flank white, a little white "tip on his tail, and wall eyes. He "was stolen from grass from John "Rotterham, of Barnet, in Hertford-"shire. Whoever will inquire, find "him out, or bring or send tidings "of him shall have what content "they will for their pains."

It would be interesting to know what rate John was quoted for this "agony."

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Boys Enjoy Outing on Rice Lake—Visitors To The District.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 26.—The boys of the Senior and Junior Trail Rangers' classes of the Methodist Sunday School are enjoying a ten days' camping outing at Barnard's Landing, Rice Lake, under the leadership of Messrs. C. Garside and F. N. Alcorn.

Carrying out the devotional obligation in connection with their organization, an impressive service was held at the camp on Sunday afternoon when Rev. Mr. Ramage, of Monessen, Penn., who, with his wife and son, are also enjoying camp at the Landing, gave the boys a practical talk on "Prayer," "the golden key that opens the wicket of mercy, the slender nerve which moves the muscles of Omnipotance, the cure for all cares, the grand panacea for all pain, doubts, destroyer, ruin's remedy, and the antidote to all anxieties."

The attendance at the service was increased by many of the young people of the neighborhood who came in response to an invitation extended from the pulpit of Centreville Presbyterian Church, by telephone, and in other ways as occasion made possible; the other campers at the Lake also were present, and a number motored over from Millbrook for the afternoon.

The service was held just across from the private cemetery where the remains of Joseph Scriven are buried, making the opening hymn particularly appropriate, the order of the programme being:—Hymn, "What a Friend we have in Jesus"; prayer, led by F. N. Alcorn; Scripture lesson; hymn, "All Hail the Power"; address, "Prayer," by Rev. Mr. Ramage; hymn, "Sweet Hour of Prayer"; benediction.

The boys at the camp include:—Aubrey and Eldrich Todd, Nelles and Lawrence Rowland, George Clarke, Ernest Burnham, George Elson, Ewart Carson, Bruce Freelove, William Wood, Joe Wood, Keith Barnard, Kenneth and William Skitch, Reg. Willis, Russell Fallis, and C. H. Rowland.

George Needler, of the Bank of Toronto staff, Stratford, spent a few days last week with Mr. A. A. and Miss E. Needler.

Russell Copeland, of Bowmanville, whose parents at one time resided in Millbrook, called upon Miss S. Dean, and other friends, while motoring through the village recently. Mrs. Copeland and Margaret now live in Wingham. Mr. Copeland's death occurred some little time after their removal from this place.

Miss L. Burton is visiting her cousin, Mrs. J. Porter, at Lakefield, and will go on to Toronto before returning home.

Among those from this neighborhood who left for the West on the harvesters' excursion, were:—Messrs H. J. Armstrong, R. Guthrie, Jas. Hutchison, D. Hall, W. Davey, W. Kinsman, J. Armstrong and W. Porter.

Mrs. R. W. Stillwell, of Monteagle, Tenn., is visiting her mother, Mrs. W. H. Byam, arriving from the South on Saturday. Mrs. Byam and Mrs. Stillwell will go to Cartwright this week for a few days' stay with Mrs. J. Graham, the only other daughter of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Howe, and little daughter, Peggy, of Toronto, are guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Nattrass.

Mrs. J. J. Russell, who has been visiting friends at Bowmanville and Newtonville, for the past two weeks, has returned home.

Mr. S. Jones, of Newtonville, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hatherly over the week-end.

Mrs. W. S. Given and son, Reg., called on friends in town on Sunday, returning to the city by motor that evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Richardson and Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Richardson, with their respective families, motored from Toronto and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Donaldson on Sunday.

Mrs. Hilliard Donaldson and daughter, Mildred, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. James Donaldson, returned home on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Donaldson and Mr. Hilliard Donaldson motoring from the city and taking them home with them on their return trip.

Mrs. Stonehouse and daughter, Miss Gladys, of Toronto, have been recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Byam.

Miss May Byam is spending a week's holidays at Toronto, and will take in the Exhibition.

Miss Lila Pethick is the guest of friends in Port Hope, going in on Saturday.

Mrs. H. C. Blair and baby daughter were guests last week of her mother, Mrs. F. McIvor.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, of Grand Rapids, Mich., and her brother, Mr. Bert Guy, and his son, of Chicago, recently called on friends in Millbrook while motoring through to visit in North Cavan for a few days.

Much sympathy will be felt for Mrs. C. Robinson who had the misfortune to fall from the verandah at the rear of their store last week, breaking her arm and being otherwise severely bruised and shaken up. She is progressing favorable toward recovery.

Mr. G. Fowler, who had a somewhat serious fall from a stepladder in his store recently, necessitating three or four stitches in his face, recovered from the accident and is at business as usual this week.

Lawrence Ingram, while working at Mr. W. Larmer's last week, had the tip taken off his index finger of the left hand through getting it caught in the knives of the mower. It is healing nicely.

PRINCE'S PONY GETS U.S. TRY-OUT

BOOZE SURVEY IN THE UNITED STATES

By NA SERVICE.

IT'S getting easier and easier to buy a drink. That is, in the big cities at least.

Liquor prices are becoming cheaper. And the quality, say those who still obtain their "little nips," is improving, too. Even "moonshine" tastes better than it did a year or so ago.

These facts are shown by an impartial survey just completed by NEA Service writers for The Examiner in New York, Chicago, Detroit, San Francisco, New Orleans Washington, Syracuse, N. Y., Minneapolis, Des Moines and other cities.

Here are a few of the things these investigators learned:

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Genuine old Scotch whisky is flowing freely.

It can be obtained for as low as $6 a bottle, or even for $5.40 to $5.25 a bottle if bought in case lots. These bottles, however, are "fifths," not quarts.

Synthetic gin is more plentiful now than at any time since the Volstead Act became effective. It may be bought for $2.50 to $3.50 a quart.

And all sales are made more or less openly.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Gin is becoming Chicago's most popular drink.

Some report it as $2 a quart. Others quote it at $4. And the very best of the old-time synthetic stuff can be procured at $5.

But whisky prices are still high. Scotch is selling from $8 to $12 a quart.

Bourbon, handled mostly in barrel lots, is selling for around $40 a gallon.

Beer, though, is hard to find. Mayor Dever's cleanup campaign largely is held responsible.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 26.—Bourbon is the only scarce thing in the way of liquor here.

A quart of it commands from $8 to $10. But rye and Scotch can be had almost for the asking.

Scotch is selling for $3 to $5 a quart, or $35 to $45 a case.

Excellent champagne, Roederer and Pommery sell for as low as $45 to $55 a case. Genuine absinthe, imported from Switzerland, is being dispensed at $4 to $5 a quart.

Deliveries are made in sedans and limousines, usually driven by stylishly-dressed women, right at your door.

And the poor man hasn't been forgotten either. Over the bars "back of town" he can get his "made-last-night" booze for 15 cents a shot.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Bootlegging has become a strictly respectable occupation in the nation's capital.

No longer is the purveyor of the illicit rum shunned by his fellows. To-day he is admitted to the best of homes.

Prices vary considerably. But in some quarters it is easy to find Scotch at $6.25 a quart.

DETROIT, Aug. 26.—A drink of whisky is as cheap as a haircut here now.

And, owing to the bobbed-hair epidemic, it's much easier to procure.

Canadian beer and ale are pouring over the border. Beer brings $5.50 a case and the ale $6.50, in saloons and apartment drinking places all over the city.

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 26.—If you are not too particular, you can find plenty of stuff to drink in Iowa.

For as long as the "tall corn grows" there is going to be corn whisky, and there are plenty of those who wish to sell it. There is no set price on "corn." You pay what the vendor thinks the risk he takes is worth.

Alcohol highballs, however, seem to be more in demand than any other drink, and a fair grade of alcohol can be purchased at $8 per quart. Good bonded whisky, however, is scarce and is badly cut when it reaches the buyers.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—"Any kind, any time, 'most any place."

That's the slogan of the thirsty ones in San Francisco.

Cafes and restaurants are doing a thriving business in liquors of all sorts. The foreign colonies are selling more wine than ever.

Scotch is obtainable through many channels at $6 a quart. If you go out beyond the three-mile limit, you can get it as cheap as $36 a case.

As in other businesses, a dissatisfied customer always has the privilege of returning what he has bought, if it doesn't measure up to his standards.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 26.—Three years ago the best Scotch, rye and bourbon cost $25 a quart here. Now it sells for $8.

And the buyer usually can be certain it's the real stuff. The syndicates are bringing it across from Canada.

Bootlegging formerly was a precarious business. To-day it is systematized. If your dispenser belongs to the syndicate, he generally "gets by." If he doesn't, it's a different story.

The syndicate men are backed by some of the biggest fortunes in that part of the country. And they tend to business just like any broker does. They even have their own chemists to pass upon their wares.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Aug. 26.—Prohibition? They don't seem to have heard of it around these parts.

Many breweries are running right along, alternating between beer and near beer.

Dozens of big rum runners, bringing liquor across from Canada, have established their headquarters here.

State troopers are busy trying to apprehend the smugglers.

Canadian, Scotch, rye and Bourbon whisky sell for around $10 a quart. The best of Canadian ale is passed over the bars for $1 a bottle.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26.—There's still booze in Cleveland.

That is, if you have the price and the necessary introductions.

Considerable Canadian liquor is being smuggled across Lake Erie. It is put on the market at all the way from $10 to $14 a "fifth."

Bourbon and rye—most of it "cut"—is being dished out at $14 to $16 a quart. A single "shot" will cost 75 cents in most places.

Home-made wine sells for around $1 to $1.50 a quart.

Beer is almost unobtainable.

NEW NECKLINES.

The necklines of the new fall dresses seem to hug the neck very closely, the round line with the round collar being particularly liked by younger women.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL.

ROYAL FILM A REAL KNOCK-OUT.

In "A Self-Made Failure," the First National picture which opened at the Royal Theatre yesterday, J. K. McDonald again scores a clean knockout.

Those who saw his "Penrod and Sam" and "Boy of Mine" may be prepared to see even a better picture in "A Self-Made Failure."

The production has everything essential to a picture success — story, direction, cast, acting, sets and photography.

But most of all, and best of all, it has human appeal without which no picture can impress an audience.

Being a farce-comedy it naturally has hokum and more than a bit of slapstick. These have been considered outside this producer's realm, but a study of "A Self-Made Failure" convinces that McDonald has added more territory to his already vast domain of artistic ability.

The director of this remarkable comedy is William Beaudine, who directed both "Penrod and Sam" and "Boy of Mine." Ben Alexander, who had the featured roles of both those productions, is one of the principals featured in this film.

The story begins with an episode in the life of two tramps (Ben Alexander and Lloyd Hamilton), and it follows these two intensely human characters through a maze of human adventure which brings in an all-star cast including: Matt Moore, Patsy Ruth Miller, Mary Carr, Sam De Grasse, "Chuck" Riesner, Victor Potel, Dan Mason, Harry Todd, Alta Allen, Priscilla Moran, Joe McCray and "Cameo," the bull terrier of "Fenrod and Sam" fame.

"The Fast Steppers" series keeps the interest at high pitch, and is the best one presented to date. Charlie Murray in "So This Is Hamlet," is a clever travesty. The whole programme is decidedly worthwhile.

JACK HOXIE IN THRILLING WESTERN ON THURSDAY, FRIDAY, SATURDAY AT ROYAL

The action in "The Man From Wyoming," starring Jack Hoxie, at the Royal Theatre next Thursday, is sufficiently big to call the governor of the state and his pet regiment of militia. For that matter, feuds frequently develop in the wild cattle country which require the aid of troops or large posses of men to settle. It's a film version of William McLeod Raine's novel, "Wyoming."

SOUVENIR PRIZES FOR CHILDREN.

Owing to the fact that this is the last week of the children's holidays, the Royal management have arranged to present each child attending the matinees Thursday, Friday and Saturday with a glass pen or pencil, perfume or card tricks. An assortment of worthwhile novelty prizes has arrived. The feature attraction is Jack Hoxie in "The Man From Wyoming," a thrilling Western comedy drama.

AT THE CAPITOL.

HOPE HAMPTON PLAYS IN "THE GOLD DIGGERS"

Able Screen Version Closely Follows Belasco Stage Play

The stage and its chorus girls, fluffy dresses and costumes, vivid make-up, hustle and bustle of dressing rooms and the gay night life of the gorgeously gowned players are picturesquely portrayed in "The Gold Diggers," which opened yesterday at the Capital Theatre as the feature attraction of a well-balanced bill.

Throughout the entire picture, the eye is constantly delighted by the stupendous sets—big stage scenes, large, beautifully furnished apartments, wild parties with all their splendor, and the beautiful, soft atmosphere of Spanish dances.

The picture closely follows the Belasco stage play of the same name from which it was adapted, and the plottings of the gold diggers are set forth in their most amusing, humorous aspects.

Hope Hampton, who plays the part of Jerry Lamar, the leader of a group of chorus girls, the Windham Standing as Stephen Lee, a rich business man who seeks diversion from his daily routine, are wonderfully fitted for their parts.

The story tells how this group of chorus girls, clubbing in an apartment, proceed to extract as much money, and other valuables, as they can, from the men of their acquaintance. They go to parties, smoke, dance, and enjoy life.

Thus things go along until one of the young men falls in love with Violet Dane. This alone would have been enough to upset the tranquility of things, but to add to the complication, the youth faces disinheritance by his uncle, who detests show girls.

The balance of the photoplay shows how Jerry Lamar sets the trap for the rich uncle, Stephen Lee, how she inveigles him into visiting her apartment and how he subsequently falls in love with a chorus girl.

The supporting cast is well portrayed by Louise Fazenda, Gertrude Short, Alex Francis, Jed Prouty, Arita Gillman, Pegy Brown, Margaret Seddon, Johnny Harron, Ann Cornwall, Edna Tichenor, Frances Ross, Marie Prade and Louise Beaudet. The picture was adapted by Grant Carpenter and directed by Harry Beaumont.

"Paris Lights" a very funny educational comedy and a Pathe News complete another excellent program at the Capitol.

REMOVE RINGS

You should always remove your rings before washing your hands as soap is very apt to get in the small crevices and to hold the dust that creeps in later.

AT THE REGENT.

CAN A WIFE REFORM HER HUSBAND?—IS THEME PRESENTED IN "THE NET."

Perplexing Problem of Married Life in Fox Social Photoplay, Involving a Mysterious Murder in Artist's Studio.

There is a secret fear in every young wife's heart, particularly if she married her husband in order to reform him. To marry a man who will not reform during the days when you are not legally bound to him is going against the teaching of all the ages.

There is another side to this perplexing marital question though, which is forcibly brought out in the William Fox screen drama, "The Net," now showing at the Regent Theatre. Suppose your suitor straightens up during the days of the courtship and proves to be a model man while he is in your company.

Hundreds of women, who are still girls in years and temperament, carry a shadow over their hearts and a look of fear in their eyes. In this Fox photoplay, the Normans lead an impossible existence for four years until the wife takes her young son and leaves the man who left her alone and spent most of his time drinking and gambling.

While seeking to force his wife to sign over some of her property to him, he becomes involved in a fight with her cousin and kills him. Into the studio where the murder is committed there drifts an unknown man who has lost his memory. Quickly transferring some letters to the other man's pockets, the husband escapes. The wife acknowledges the other man as her real husband to the police rather than have the shadow of crime hang over her little son.

This dramatic scene starts a series of thrilling events which form a story to hold your interest until the very last scene. It was adapted from the stage play of the same name by Maravene Thompson and was directed by J. Gordon Edwards. The principal characters are played by Barbara Castleton, Raymond Bloomer and Albert Roscoe.

Speed and jollity are the twin forces which make the new F.B.O. "Telephone Girl" series one of the most popular short reel subjects in filmdom to-day. These pictures, which are shown in two reels each, are a bright feature of the programme at the Regent Theatre, where they have been booked by the manager of the Regent. The stories are from the pen of H. C. Witwer, noted author of slang fiction, and are right now appearing in the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

LAKEFIELD MEN AS HARVESTERS

Party Left on Excursion to Work in Grain Fields.

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 26.—A number of young men left on Friday for the western provinces on the harvesters' excursion. Among those who went were:—Messrs. R. N. C. Summers, Thomas Hampton, William Hamblin, and the Messrs. Stephenson. The good wishes of the community go with them for success in their enterprize. Each year Lakefield sends its quota to the West. Some remain to find homes in the great land of opportunity, and some return to good old Ontario, which, after all, remains the Banner Province.

Garden Flowering.

There are few homes in the village which do not show at least a few blooming flowers. Dahlias of every hue are at their best and are very ornamental; gladioli and asters are coming on with their gorgeous colorings to brighten many gardens; sweet peas and snapdragons, with their rich coloring, graceful cosmos and cheerful geraniums, are all in bloom, and help to make the gardens a riot of color.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church met on Tuesday of last week at the home of Mrs. Robert Bullock on Katherine Street. A pleasant time was spent by all present.

Miss Irene Jones sang a solo, "Fear not, ye, Oh Israel," in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning. Miss Jones possesses a clear soprano voice and delighted her hearers with her rendition of the difficult piece of music. She is a member of the choir in St. Anne's Church, Toronto, which is one of ninety voices.

Funeral of A. J. Jory.

The funeral of Mr. Arthur John Jory, held on Sunday afternoon, was attended by a large number of friends and relatives, many coming a long distance to the funeral, as the deceased was widely known and highly respected.

BRAINS.

Dr. Goldenweiser speaking: "If you take the brains of 1000 ordinary undistinguished individuals and then 1000 scientists, artists and men of eminence, you will find no distinguishable difference between the two series in size and weight."

But you would find a difference in the shape of the brain, the same as a high forehaead and eyes far apart are sure signs of intelligence.

However, the intellect is not in the brain—which is, to thought, just what the telephone is to the conversation that passes through it. Lincoln's brain has gone to dust, but his thoughts live on.

DUSTY WINDOWS

If you will wipe off the inside of your windows every day or two, you will find that they do not require washing so often, as more dust collects on the inside than on the out.

BETHANY POUND BREADMEN AND TIE UP SERIES

Riley Fanned 13 of Bob Mackey's Team and His Mates Get 17 Hits.

SCORE WAS 8 TO 6

Mackey's Errors Were Costly —Bethany Booted Few.

Bethany and Mackey's are now on even terms by virtue of the latter's defeat at Bethany last night in the second game of the first round in the intermediate series.

Riley's good pitching, well supported by his teammates, coupled with a few loose plays and lost chances by the breadmakers earned the victory. Mixing his fast ones with the odd slow hook Riley was never in trouble, completing the game with 13 strike outs to his credit. It was an off day for Hardill, who only collected a sacrifice in three trips to the bat.

Manager "Bob" Mackey started at first and played until relieved by Hardill, who arrived in the middle of the second frame, who with Lundy at third, broke into game at this stage. In this the losers were handicapped. Mackey's never struck their usual stride and fighting a glaring sun and a rough infield suffered a bad break in the fourth that accounted for two runs, Thorndyke losing a fly when blinded by the sun and Clark fumbling a bunt that bounced backwards. In this frame the Westerners countered four times.

Collins the first man to bat, led off with a two-bagger and countered on Taylor's single.

It looked as though the breadmakers were off to a nice start, but Mackey's wild heave to the plate in the second half allowed Staples and Price to score and threw the team off their stride. Clark held them scoreless in the second but was touched for five hits in the third and four in the fourth, netting the Stanles crew six tallies. Clark pitched steady ball behind shabby fielding. In the third with three on bases, he pulled himself out of the hole, by fanning Hanna.

In the fifth Connors replaced Clark and with the change the breadmakers tightened up and although Bethany collected six hits in the next three frames they were held scoreless.

Mackey's scored once in the second, twice in the fourth and twice in the sixth as a result of smart baserunning of Connors and Thorndyke, coupled with Johnson's high throw to first.

"Busy" Thorndyke's work was the feature of the game. He stole three bases, secured a two bagger in the seventh and handled two hard drives to left field.

Connors saved a serious situation in the seventh, picking off Johnson's hot grounder and retiring the side. Prosser also worked well, making a neat catch on Hanna's pop fly in the sixth with two men on bases.

Riley Was Good.

Riley not only turned in a stellar exhibition on the mound, but secured the longest hit of the game, on a beautiful drive to centre field that struck the south fence. It was within a few feet of a homer.

A fair crowd witnessed the fixture and the excitement ran high. After the first frame the homesters were never behind although tied in the fourth. It was a good game and kept the crowd a howling mass.

Good sportsmanship prevailed throughout and never once was an umpire's decision disputed or the managers at variance. Unlike the previous meeting the game commenced on time and proceeded without a hitch in its entirety, other than a short delay in commencing the seventh when Riley turned his ankle.

MAPLE LEAFS EVEN SERIES

Three Double Plays by Winners Slowed Up the Curlers' Attack.

HITTING WAS LIGHT

Maple Leafs nested Curlers in the second game of the Juvenile City League finals, handing them the short end of a 2 to 1 score at the Exhibition Grounds last evening.

The game was fast and was featured by four double plays which spoiled several likely looking rallies.

The fielding and base running were both ragged, and all but one hit was wasted. In the fourth the Leafs got three singles, but Corbett was doubled off first on Bradley's fly to Ash and Franks was caught going from first to third on LeBarr's single to centre.

The Leafs opened the scoring in the fifth. Scully was safe when Barry threw past McLeish. Gillespie got a life when Barry booted his grounder. Scully going to third. Baker dropped the third strike on Holland and the bases were filled. Grant struck out, but Delahaye lifted a long fly to Hall and Scully beat the centre fielder's throw to the plate.

Curlers evened it up in the sixth, J. Baird was safe on Franks' error, and Hall sacrificed him to second. Barry struck out, but Franks messed up successive grounders by Wood and Ash, sending the run across. McDonald lifted to Grant to end the inning.

The Leafs scored the last run of the game in their half. With two down LeBarr singled, stole second and third, and scored when Woods threw to left field.

Curlers got two on with only one out, but Franks took Baird's high fly and Hall struck out.

Both pitchers had the edge on the batters, but Bradley was more effective with men in the sacks and was accorded better support in the pinches.

GEORGE LOTT IS TENNIS PHENOM

Chicago Youth Defeated R. Norris Williams in Singles Title Play.

VETERANS FALL

FOREST HILLS, L.I., August 26 (Canadian Press). — A new star flashed across the tennis firmament on Monday when seventeen-year-old George Lott, of Chicago, national junior champion, and Canadian senior champion, eliminated R. Norris Williams, of Philadelphia, twice former title-holder, in a sensational upset that marked the opening day of the play in the national men's singles championship.

The Westerner took four sets to win, 6-1, 6-1, 3-6, 6-4. He gained his triumph spectacularly and with the most impressive sort of tennis.

To-day Lott's opponent will probably be Willard Crocker of Montreal, who had a lead of two sets to one when his match with George Whitelock of New York was interrupted yesterday afternoon by rain.

Yesterday's game saw David Morrice of Montreal eliminated by John Howard of Baltimore, 2-6, 6-1, 6-2, and 6-0.

Besides the Lott-Williams encounter, several other astonishing upsets occurred, including the defeat of the veteran Australian, Norman E. Brookes, by Hugh Kelleher, of New York, and the victory of Watson Washburn of New York, over Robt. Kinsey of San Francisco.

Other favourites, such as William J. Johnston, Vincent Richards and Harvey Snodgrass, advanced with decisive victories, while among the powerful foreign contingent, the outstanding victors were Pat O'Hara Wood of Australia, and eJan Borotra of France, Wimbledon champion, who downed Carl Fischer, of Philadelphia, No. 7 ranking American, in a slashing battle that was hard fought although the Frenchman won in straight sets.

JOHNSON HELD BROWNS HITLESS

Senators' Star Marked Up His 107th Shut-Out of Career.

DETROIT DEFEATED

WASHINGTON, August 26 (Canadian Press). — Holding St. Louis hitless, Johnson yesterday pitched Washington to a 2 to 0 victory in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader, which was halted by rain after seven innings.

The second game was called off on account of wet grounds.

It was Johnson's sixth scoreless game of the season and the 107th shut-out victory of his career. The score:

St. Louis ..... 0000000—0 0 1
Washington ..... 0010001—2 9 0
Davis and Severeid; Johnson and Ruel.

Ruth's Fortieth.

NEW YORK, August 26 (Canadian Press). — The New York Yankees held their scant lead in the American League by easily defeating Cleveland here yesterday by a score of 8 to 3. New York hit Uhle and Wayneburg for 13 hits, including 24 bases. Dugan led in the New York hitting with a triple, a double, and two singles, while Ruth hit his fortieth home run of the season, a double and a single. The score:

Cleveland ..... 000021000—3 8 2
New York ..... 00212210x—8 13 1
Uhle, Wayneburg and Myatt; Hoyt and Schang.

Castoff's Revenge.

BOSTON, August 26 (Canadian Press). — Boston battled 11 innings against Detroit here yesterday to win 4 to 3. A double by Flagstead, a single by Wambsganss and Manush's error in left field with none out in the 11th enabled Boston to score the winning run. Fielding features by Wambsganss, Geygan, Clark and Flagstead helped Ehmke triumph over his former team mates. The score:

Detroit ..... 01011000000—3 9 1
Boston ..... 30000000001—4 13 2
W. Collins, Holloway and Bassler; Ehmke and Picinich.

DROWNED AT SHERBROOKE.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press).—A drowning accident occurred at North Hatley on Sunday, when William Earle Clark, aged 4 years, was drowned when he fell into Lake Massawippi. The young boy was the son of Dr. William Earle Clark, of Washington, D.C.

"GAS" BURNS FATAL.

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press).—Walter Scott Pickard, 12 years old, died Monday following severe burns received when gasoline which he and an elder brother were taking from a tank at their home exploded.

LOTS OF CLASS TO LOTT

Chicago Youth Again Wins National Junior Tennis Title and Gives Evidence of Rare Skill.

GEORGE LOTT.

One of the most promising young tennis players in the land is George Lott of Chicago, who has just won the national junior tennis championship for the second straight time. Lott is the coming Bill Tilden of America, according to competent experts, and many regard him as the equal even now of some of the top ranking seniors of the game.

GIANTS DIVIDE DOUBLE-HEADER

Cubs Win First Off Barnes, But New York Batted Behind Nehf.

PITTSBURGH GAINS

CHICAGO, August 26 (Canadian Press). — The Cubs and Giants broke even in a double-header here yesterday, Chicago winning the first, 3 to 2, and the champions the second, 11 to 7. Barnes held the Cubs safe until the eighth inning of the first game when a single by Weis drove in two runs and tied the score. In the ninth Grigsby scored the winning run on an infield hit to Kelly, the latter's throw to Barnes and an error by Groh, who threw wild to first on O'Farrell's bunt.

The Giant victory was a slugging match in which ten runs were scored off Wheeler in less than five innings. The score:

First Game.

New York ..... 00020000....2 5 2
Chicago ..... 000000021—3 6 0
Barnes and Snyder; Wheeler, Kaufmann and O'Farrell.

Second Game.

Braves Win in Tenth.

CINCINNATI, August 26 (Canadian Press). — Boston made a strong finish yesterday, tied the score off Rixey in the ninth, and won from Cincinnati, 6 to 5, by bunching three hits off Mays in the tenth inning. The score:

Boston ..... 0000002031—6 11 0
Cincinnati ..... 1002100100—5 14 2
McNamara, Cooney and O'Neill; Rixey, Mays and Hargrave.

Hornsby's 21st Homer.

ST. LOUIS, August 26 (Canadian Press). — Jess Haines made a good start in the box, but weakened and the Cardinals lost to Brooklyn yesterday 5 to 3 in the third game of the series. Rogers Hornsby hit his twenty-first homer of the season in the first frame. The score:

Brooklyn ..... 000230000—5 9 1
St. Louis ..... 110000100—3 7 2
Doak and Taylor; Haines, Sherdel and Gonzales.

TWISTED HORSE'S TONGUE.

BROCKVILLE, August 26. — For having twisted the tongue of a balky horse so severely that the ligaments were torn, Donat Mayor, of Manchester, N.H., a horseman employed at the Brockville fair, was yesterday fined in the police court on complaint of the Humane Society.

MACKEY'S FINAL.

Deciding Game With Bethany Thursday at Riverside Park.

The third game between Mackeys and Bethany was ordered played at Riverside Park Thursday evening by the O.B.A.A. This game should attract a great crowd as both teams are playing snappy ball. Mackeys won the first game 5-4 at the Exhibition Grounds and Bethany won last night on their home lot 8-6. The evenness of the teams can be gleaned by the fact that the margin by which each team scored a victory was very small. Both teams will be out there Thursday night battling for a win as this game will decide the winner of the series. Bethany claim they were outlucked here last Friday night and should have had a win, while Mackey's say the breaks were against them last night.

Bethany boasts a real pitcher in Riley, who turned thirteen of the Mackey crew back last night via the strike out route. Mackey has two good pitchers in Connors and Clarke Bethany are a heavy-hitting aggregation while Mackeys have the edge on them in the field. The fans can be assured of a great game by these two teams and should turn out in good numbers to see the battle. The game is scheduled for 5.30 sharp at Riverside Park and Bethany are sending up a bunch of rooters to help cheer their team along.

C.N.R. EARNINGS DECREASE.

MONTREAL, Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press).—The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways for the week ending August 21, 1924, were $4,135,849, being a decrease of $788,060.31 over the corresponding week of 1923.

The gross earnings of the C.N.R. from January 1 to August 21, 1924, have been $147,063,562, being a decrease of $4,251,020.37 as compared with the corresponding period of 1923.

FINAL ON FRIDAY.

Deciding Game in Juvenile Group—C.G.E. to Oshawa Thursday.

The deciding game of the Juvenile City League will be played at the Exhibition Grounds on Friday, August 29 at 5.30 p.m. The games between these teams have been battles from the drop of the hat and Friday's game will be no exception. The boys are playing good ball and should have the support of the fans in their quest for the O.B.A.A. championship.

Canadian Generals were today ordered to proceed to Oshawa on Thursday and tackle the General Motors team of that city in the second round of the Intermediate series. The return encounter will be staged at Exhibition Park on Saturday.

FONTAINES TIED SCOTT'S CORNERS

Score In Exhibition Game Was 2-2 at the Corners.

Fontaine's aggregation of ball tossers toured to Scott's Corners and played a tie game, 2 all, with the latter team. The game was a fairly good exhibition of ball and a nice crowd turned out to see the teams perform. Len Johnson did the twirling for Fontaine's while B. Craw shot them in for Scott's Corners. Both pitchers twirled nice ball and were awarded good support.

Owing to the shortness of the contest and the good twirling the fielding features were few. Sims in right field for Fontaine's and Auxley in centre for Scott's Corners had nice catches of hard hit balls.

Fontaine's scored one in the first when Fredenburg singled. He was sacrificed to second by Fontaine and to third by Johnston, while Adams drove him in with a nice single.

Scott's Corners also got one in the first. A. Craw walked to start. J. Weber sacrificed him to second. Auxley fanned but H. Webber singled to right and Craw came all the way home from second. P. Foster fanned to end the inning.

Fontaine's scored their last run in the second. Cooke first up flied out to H. Webber, who made a nice catch. Scates singled to right and went to second on passed ball. He stole third and came all the way home when Foster threw high over the third baseman's head in an attempt to nip him. O'Hern flied out to Auxley and Rutherford grounded to B. Craw to end the inning.

Scott's Corner got their other counter in the fourth. H. Webber walked. P. Foster walked. B. Craw hit through pitching box for a cheap hit. With the bases full C. Seymour singled scoring H. Webber. H. Foster and W. Seymour fanned. A. Craw hit to Johnston who nipped Foster at the plate for the third out.

The teams lined up as follows:

Scott's Corners—A. Craw, ss; J. Webber, 3b; Auxley, cf; H. Webber, rf; P. Foster, c; B. Craw, p; C. Seymour, 1b; H. Foster, cf; W. Seymour, lf.

Fontaine's Service—Frendenburg, ss; Fontaine, cf; Johnson, p; Adams, 2b; Sims, rf; Cook, 1b; Scates 3b; O'Hern, c; Rutherford, lf.

Umpires—Hunt at the plate; Gifford on the bases.

SOCCER NOTES.

Owing to the number of players leaving the city on Saturday and the Vets playing the Ontario Cup Tie, there will be no game on Saturday, August 30th.

Permission was granted the P. and D. F. A. to alter the date of the Peck Cup final. They ask that the Council be notified as to the date when the final shall be played. The final date is Saturday, October 4th, according to the schedule, when the Thistles meet the Canadian Woollens.

The P. and D. F. A. meeting shall be held in Chamber of Commerce rooms on Tuesday evening at 8 p.m. prompt. Representatives and directors please attend.

On Thursday evening, at the Exhibition Grounds, the probable Ontario Cup team and probable Plenty Cup team will play a trial game. Kick-off at 6.15 prompt. Referee, A. Mitchell.

The Plenty Cup probable team: Curtis, goal; Rae and Chambers, full-back; Foster, Jackson and Blowers, half-backs; Young, Wyllie, Mitchell, Craig and Scott, forwards. Reserves—Ward, Gaskill, Williams and Mayette.

The Quaker Oats have signed on Bain, a goal-keeper who played with Yoker, St. Anthony, in Scotland. These two teams are considered the best in Old Country junior circles.

The G.W.V.A. will travel to Ottawa on Friday evening to participate in the Ontario Cup Tie at Ottawa. Arrangements are not fully completed.

There will be no soccer game on Labour Day in the city. Previous years, unless last season, the Peck Cup Final was always played. Canadian Woollens won this trophy in 1923.

The Logan Brothers who have been playing for the Quaker Oats will, as rumour has it, be transfering to the G. W. V. A. The transfer rule calls for non-transfers after the (31st) Thirty First Day of August, 1924.

According to reports, Clark now playing with the Vets, at outside right, will transfer his services to his place of employment—Canadian Woollens—in the near future. He's the goods, boys!

During the season, so far, Richmond has scored twenty-three goals; Mitchell comes next with 14 goals. Anderson has the honour as a full back with a penalty while George Blowers comes next with the unfortunate account of missing two penalty kicks.

LINDSAY POST NOTES ON SATURDAY'S GAME

"Teddy" Gallagher had a perfect day. He twirled fine ball and had four hits out of four chances.

Collins had an off day and Manager Solomon did not forget to tell him that he could not expect to attend a dance the night before and play ball the next day.

Fans and players "rode" Jake hard when Swanston was sent home on a hit and error at first. However, Jake had his reason. He figured that Swanston should make the base on the hit and the home plate on the error. It didn't work that way, that's all.

Hallinan handled the game well from behind the plate and Benson and Dell were satisfactory on the bases.

Can the Petes turn the tables at Kingston tomorrow. It is doubtful, but then the Petes have won twice in Kingston, scoring eight runs in one innings in one game.

"Knotty" Lee was on hand for the Ponies and directed them from the bench.

Daly was benched twice for "crabbing."

Manager Solomon engaged in his third "battle" of the season when he biffed one of the Ponies on the smeller.

A fake fight was staged in front of the bleachers and there was a wild scramble back again to regain reserved seats.

Legon was given a couple of fine "hands" for splendid catches.

Compeau at short for Kingston, is a neat player, but inclined to have a "swelled head" for a youngster.

Where will the third game be played? There may not be one, but if so, the place has not been decided on as yet

DO YOU KNOW BASEBALL?

BY BILLY EVANS

QUESTIONS

1. Batter has two strikes and one ball Pitchers delivers the ball to batsman who had held bat out in a bunting position as the pitcher wound up. The pitch was a bad one and the batter pulled back, but not quickly enough to avoid being hit by the pitched ball. The ball would not have been a strike if he had not been hit by it, as it was wide of the plate. The umpire gave the batsman his base. A protest was filed on the ground that the batsman had attempted to strike at the ball. The umpire contends the batter made no attempt to strike at it. What about this play—H. H. C.

2. A fence about two feet high marks end of playing territory and start of bleacher seats in left field. A hit into the bleachers is regarded as a home run. Batsman hits ball to left field and fielder jumps fence and catches ball while standing on first row of bleacher seats. Would batsman be out or entitled to a home run.—J. L.

ANSWERS

1. The play you state is simply one involving the judgment of the umpire and consequently there is no grounds for a protest. If the umpire did not think the batter tried to bunt at the ball, then the batsman who was hit by the pitched ball was certainly entitled to first base. The way you state the play, it is my opinion that the umpire rendered the correct ruling. The mere fact that the batsman held the bat in a bunting position is not enough, he must actually attempt the bunt.

2. Batsman was entitled to a home run. Fielder cannot jump fence and make catch in restricted territory. Ball is out of play when it passes over fence.

NARROW TIES.

Narrow ties of gros grain ribbon are used instead of cuff links with the newest lingerie cuffs, and the effect is much more feminine and fetching.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

What is the matter with the pitchers.

Major league managers are agreed that the pitching end or the game is at a low ebb.

The poorest pitching for 10 years is the consensus of the big league leaders.

There must be a reason, perhaps many of them, for this condition.

Pitchers will tell you that with the introduction of the lively ball is the big reason for the present lack of effectiveness.

With the coming of the new lively ball is the big reason for the present lack of effectiveness.

With the coming of the lively ball, pitchers insist a new style game was developed, the slugfest.

Instead of playing for a run, the style of game that calls for strategy, major league methods shifted to the getting of runs in clusters, through the medium of slugging.

A majority of the pitchers blame the lively ball for the decided superiority of the batter that now prevails.

Major league managers, however are not so sure that the lively ball is the outstanding cause for the lack of effectiveness by the pitchers of the big show.

Recently the Cleveland Indians played a series in Boston. In every game both clubs had from two to six pitchers in action. In one of the games Cleveland made a dozen runs, yet lost.

Making the jump west with the Cleveland club, I bumped into Manager Tris Speaker at the Boston station. He was pacing up and down the platform, a man much worried. Spying me nearby, he walked over and his first words were:

"Did you ever see such pitching in all your life?" I agreed with him that it was pretty tough.

"Never in all my career in the American League has it been worse," continued Speaker.

"It's not so much that the pitchers lack stuff, it's control

"I don't believe my club has been in a game for a month in which pitchers haven't had three balls and two strikes on at least 20 batters."

It is Speaker's opinion that lack of control is the real cause of the ineffectiveness of the pitchers. The batters are waiting out the twirlers and hitting the cripple.

I am inclined to agree with Speaker's viewpoint. Never have I seen so much wildness on the part of the pitcher.

Every pitcher wants to make the batter hit a bad ball. The batter refuses, gets the pitcher in a hole, and when he is forced to get the ball over, the batter takes advantage of the soft offering.

The pitchers come right back by saying they would never get the side out if they kept putting the ball over. Which gets them right back to their argument that the lively ball is the cause of their trouble. They insist they cannot afford to cut the plate.

BOWLERS FINISH SUMMER SCHEDULE

Rink Skipped By "Herb" Martin Emerged Victors After Thrilling Play-off With "Ed" Taylor.

BELLEVILLE TOURNAMENT.

Members of the Peterboro Bowling Club completed their summer schedule last night, which left the two group winners, "Herb" Martin, and "Ed." Taylor, in the play-off.

After a thrilling 16-end game, the Martin rink won out, also declaring them the champs. The game looked promising for Taylor in the early stages and spectators thought that he had the pennant cinched in the 10th end, leading the ultimate victors by a score of 16 to 4. In a whirlwind finish Martin collected 15 points in the last four ends, topping the runners up by one point on the final score, which resulted 18 to 17.

The personnel of the finalists were: G. Cook (lead), R. French (second), H. Freeman (vice-skip), and H. Martin (skip.

C. Sedgwick (lead), Dr. Fulford (second), I. Bowes (vice-skip), and E. Taylor (skip).

It is significant to note that the winners of the summer competition came through the schedule without a loss. This is the same aggregation that reached the finals in the Stratton trophy tournament a few weeks ago.

KINGSTON TAKES WALLOP AT FANS

Conduct of Peterboro Fans Pleases Kingston Reporter.

RAZZ PLAYERS.

Kingston Standard: The Standard is tempted to make a few passing remarks upon the conduct and the spirit of some of the baseball fans and rooters who lately have appeared in evidence at the games played at the Fair Grounds in this city. The spirit shown there by some of these fans is that absolutely of a hick town—narrow, unfair and unsportsmanlike. The contrast noted between this spirit and that shown in Peterboro and Belleville is very striking, and is not at all creditable to those few Kingston fans who are responsible for this newly-developed and unfair Kingston spirit.

If one goes up to Peterboro or to Belleville, one is instantly struck by the fact that in each city the fans give their own players hearty and loyal support and never "can" them or "rag" them if they make errors or seem to fall down in any way. Not only that but—less in Belleville, but decidedly so in Peterboro—the players on the opposing teams are not constantly "ridden" by the fans or hooted at. Belleville is more inclined to this than Peterboro, whose spectators seem to be singularly fair in their treatment of both their own team and the opposing players. Their disapproval of their own managers' offensive tactics and actions on Saturday is proof conclusive of this.

The disposition to be fair was strikingly evidenced, for instance, in Saturdary's game at Peterboro when a high fly fell almost within the crowd back of the catcher. Rice ran to catch it and it is worth noting that instead of the crowd booing and jeering him and waving their arms to distract his attention, they remained absolutely quiet and gave him a free and fair chance.

Now The Standard is not in the least disposed to criticize unduly the Kingston fans, but there is no doubt that in recent games an element has appeared here that is not at all to the credit of the sporting spirit of the city. If one of our own players makes an error, some of the so-called fans seem to take a special delight in "riding" him; if another one strikes out at a critical time he is at once the target for the disapproval of these same faultfinders; and so on through the piece. Not alone that, but at every opportunity these same individuals take a savage and almost fiendish delight in booing the opposing team and in "riding" them to their heart's content.

Manifestly, while this sort of behavior may be regarded as good "sport" in some places, the fact remains that it is anything but good sport, for it is unfair not alone to our own players but to the visitors. Indeed it is unfair to the city itself, because it gives us the name of having a poor sporting spirit whereas if there is one thing that Kingston has been proud of it is that heretofore it has been recognized as a good sporting town in the fullest and most complete sense of the word.

The Standard hopes, therefore, that on the occasion of to-morrow's game these over-zealous fans and rooters will restrain themselves and not bring opprobrium and discredit to the city by their too-enthusiastic and ill-considered conduct. Let us treat our own players fairly and honestly and, as well, give the visitors a square deal and a full opportunity to play the game as it should be played.

Peterboro on Saturday in the first championship play-off set an example which we in Kingston might well emulate and follow. We can win without stooping to Jay town tricks.

LAKEVIEWS WIN OUT.

Defeated Belleville in Cobourg Yesterday By the Score of 15 To 5.

COBOURG, August 26. — The Lakeview Juniors of Peterborough, O.B.A.A. champions of 1923, and champions of the Lift Lock City League for 1924, and Belleville, who won the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties honours, played off at Horse Show Park here yesterday afternoon to determine which team would go against Circle Six of Kingston in the second round of the Ontario junior play-offs, and the Petes won out, 15-5.

In the first game, Peterborough defeated Belleville, 7 to 0, while in the second game in the Quinte city, Belleville won 5 to 4.

Whitehouse, the elongated southpaw of Peterborough, who has pitched two no-hit no-run games this year, although working with a sore arm, held Belleville to six hits yesterday, and struck out ten of his opponents.

The teams and score by innings:

Belleville—Ross cf, Post 2b, Wilkins lf, Latchford c, rf, Stark 3b, Senny c, Dennis 1b, Rigley ss, Gerow p, Knott 3b, Hunter rf.

Peterborough — Cameron ss, LeBarr 1b, Whitlow cf, Ash lf, Whitehouse p, Collins rf, Marchen 2b, Halliday c, Johnston 3b, Cheu 1b, and Griffin rf.

Belleville	001004000—	5	6 9
Peterborough	151111014—15	12	5

Umpires, Boundy at plate, Skitch on bases, both of Cobourg.

Secretary Jack Nott of the Central Ontario Amateur Baseball League, who was on his way to Kingston for the second game of the Peterborough-Kingston series for the senior honours of the East, dropped off here to arrange for the third game if necessary, Cobourg having been awarded same by the League executive at a meeting held in Peterborough on Saturday last.

TURN PROFESSIONAL.

Two Members of Olympic Team Sign Contracts.

TORONTO, Aug. 26.—(Canadian Press).—Two members of Canada's Olympic hockey team which won the world's championship early this year will play professional hockey in the National Hockey League during the coming winter. Yesterday Reg. "Hooley" Smith, star centre player, affixed his signature to a contract and will receive $3,000 for playing with the Ottawa Senators. It became known definitely to-day that his team-mate, Albert McCaffery, has signed to play for St. Patrick's of this city. McCaffery is a right winger.

LOCAL EXHIBIT AT TORONTO EX.

To have our Home Town put in the brightest limelight by our old friends, J. J. Turner & Sons Ltd., makes us as citizens indebted to this firm for their wonderful Tent Exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto.

The main tent, 25 x 50 ft.—with its natty 24 foot round awning, the trimming bringing in a color scheme of orange and black finished with its deep rope fringe vallance, the top having many Union Jack flags flying to the breeze—its huge gold sign worded:

"J. J. TURNER & SONS LTD.
THE TENT PEOPLE

surrounded with blaze of color.

Then again—the striking bulletins announcing "FIFTY YEARS OF BUSINESS ENTERPRISE" are indeed in keeping with this splendid display. Under this large marquee, with a gorgeous flag background, are displayed numerous tents and camp equipment.

We all know if something new is on the market Turners are usually the first to produce it. For some twenty-five years their Toronto exhibit has been a pleasure to visit. One approaches it with a delightful pride, as Peterborough and Turners are bonded together, and rightly so, as Turner products reflect great credit on the home town.

Every year stimulates this old Firm with its youthful management, to better things. When there is a tent emergency, their QUALITY and SERVICE count. When there is a flag demand, they are ALERT, CORRECT and ARTISTIC. As for store and house awnings, they are known, and justly so, for refined materials, master workmanship, and fit, and an awning from this firm brings admiration to the front that it adorns.

Sometimes we do not realize the magnitude of our local factories, but observe when passing through the large Department Stores in most of our Canadian cities, and you will find CANVAS GOODS from your home town. It is this confidence bestowed by the large and careful buyers that inspires this firm to give personal consideration to all orders. Thus for FIFTY YEARS—yes since 1874—the air of satisfaction has endeared THIS FIRM, THEIR PRODUCTS to the Canadian buying public.

Therefore in passing, we say SUCCESS REMAIN WITH YOU ALWAYS.

Keep you linoleum oiled or varnished in order to preserve the color and keep the surface free from wear.

DARROW QUOTED BIBLE AND OMAR IN MERCY PLEA

Blames Crime of Chicago Youths To Heredity Or Wrong Training.

LAWYER IN TEARS.

'Terrible Misfortune In This Terrible Case These Boys Had Money."

CHICAGO, Aug. 27. — Pleading for posterity, for the progress of law and for "that time when we shall realize that mercy is the highest attribute of man," Clarence S. Darrow, 67-year-old philosopher of the courts, and foe of capital punishment, ended Monday his three-day argument for the lives of Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard A. Loeb, slayers of Robert Franks.

Mr. Darrow brushed tears from his eyes several times as he asked Justice Caverlry to exercise "that noble quality of mercy with which we may eventually overcome cruelty and hate and malice with kindness and gentleness and love."

There was visible emotion among many of the spectators and Justice Caverly flushed as he pressed a pencil to his lips. Neither Leopold nor Loeb moved, but they centred on their chief counsel looks of unwavering interest and the former touched Mr. Darrow's sleeve as he passed him going out of court.

Denies Hanging Deters Crime.

He pointed to the "weird mentalities" of his clients and the "irrational, mad and horrifying" crime which they contrived as the product, even the responsibility, of ages gone. He called "an ancient superstition and nothing more" the theory that hanging is a deterrent to crime.

He wove into an impressive design threads of legal history, philosophical criticism, scientific lore concerning the psychology of youth and a liberal portion of old-fashioned soliloquy. He reached to the Scriptures for inspiration and support, and quoted poetry at intervals in a studied attempt to bring his appeal to the heart of Justice Caverly, who must decide the penalty to be paid by the defendants.

The salvation of youth is the highest attribute of the State, Mr. Darrow argued, and he denounced the hanging of several Chicago boys after jury trials as "a shame and a disgrace."

There were tears in his eyes as with faltering voice he pictured the crumbling hopes of the parents of the boys and the effect of the crime on the futurer generations of their families. His voice broke again when he reached his peroration.

"I know," he said, "that your honor stands between the future and the past. For me the future means the hopes of the young. I plead for life, charity, kindness, sympathy and understanding. And the future is with me.

"Your honor may hang these boys but if you do you will make it harder for every boy and girl in this land and for the babes as yet unborn.

"I am pleading that all life is worth saving and that mercy is the highest attribute of man. My greatest reward, hope and compensation will be that I have done something for the tens of thousands of boys who must follow the path these two poor young Jews have trod."

He added this verse from Omar Khayyam:

"So I be written in the Book of Love
I do not care about that book above;
Erase my name, or write it as you will,
So I be written in the Book of Love."

To-day Benjamin Bachrach will make the final appeal for the defence.

Calls Wealth a Misfortune.

"He was a child of wealth and opportunity," began the lawyer in referring to Loeb. "Courts over and over have considered the chance of the child of the streets and have done it rightfully. But wealth has its misfortunes in too much opportunity given to the child, and I ask your honor to consider the rich as well as the poor.

"The life of a child is a life of delusions and dreams," he continued. "Dreams are a part of the woof and warp of childhood. You know that, Judge, and so do I, for I dreamed of repeating the experience of Julius Caesar, when he led victorious troops across the Rubicon. I have been there since and I found I could step across the stream.

"Perhaps I was luck too that I

SALE OF DRAUGHT BEER CANCELLED FORBIDDEN BY MANITOBA'S NEW ORDER

May Be Sold Only in Bottles—Limit of 24 Quarts a Week to Permit Holders and Brewers Must Report Monthly Names of Purchasers.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 27.—(Canadian Press).—Drastic regulations governing the sale of beer in the province has been recommended to the Government by the Manitoba Liquor Commission, and the Cabinet at a meeting Tuesday passed an order-in-Council bringing the new recommendation into immediate effect.

In future no beer can be sold except in glass bottles, the sale of draught beer being entirely cut out. A permit-holder is limited to the purchase of not more than 24 quarts or 48 pint bottles of beer per week or in alternative. He will be permitted to purchase 72 quarts or 120 pint bottles of beer per month. The sale of beer in kegs, barrels or anything else but in glass is absolutely prohibited.

A further regulation provides that the brewers shall at the end of each month deliver forthwith to the Liquor Commission a statement showing the number of permits, name of purchaser, description and quantity of goods sold, together with date of sale and delivery and residence of purchaser where beer is deliivred.

Regulation Two, which forbids the sale of draught beer, will likely be questioned, as some doubt has been expressed as to whether the Government has power to make such a regulation. The regulation however, will be enforced and prosecutions will follow any infringement of the new rules.

VISITING SCIENTISTS MARVEL AT WESTERN CANADA'S UNIVERSITIES

Tribute To New Buildings of the University of British Columbia.

FEATURE OF TRIP.

Realize Their Cost, But Say Outlay Will Be Justified By Results.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 27.—(Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).— The buildings and laboratories of the Provincial Universities are the most striking features of the Canadian West for touring members of British Association for the Advancement of Science, who paid tribute to the new buildings of the University of British Columbia yesterday, the fourth university they have visited since leaving Toronto. The plants have proved a revelation to the visitors who are in Canada for the first time and those from overseas who have been through the West in previous years are likewise amazed at the rapid progress which has been made in the erection of stately and imposing buildings and in the equipment of laboratories in which there is every faculty for the development of natural resources.

"Wonderful," was the comment of Sir William Ashley, noted economist formerly of the University of Toronto, in commenting upon the new university. "The erection of these buildings by new communities compare with the erection of cathedrals in Europe until the 13th. century," Sir William said.

Most Impressive

"The universities impress us more than anything else in the West," declared Dr. Cuthbert Christy, co-worker with Sir David Bruce in the campaign against sleeping sickness. Dr. Christy is inclined to believe that economies ought to have been practiced in certain directions however.'

"You do not have to have fancy tops for laboratory tables," he said. "Wooden ones look more business-like." Farm machinery was lying rusting at one of the centres, Dr. Christy said.

Tribute was paid to the equipment of the physical and chemical departments by Sir William Bragg of London University, eminent physician. "You seem able to get everything you need," he said to the Canadian Press.

The visitors are not blind to the fact that the buildings are making inroads on civic and ppovincial coffers, however.

Expense Justified

"The universities will pay the expenditures which must be incurred in following such pretentious schemes," said Sir Thomas Holland, former geologst. The stress whch has been lead on scentific research and on the practical application of science, justify the pretentious scale for the building plans.

"There will be a direct return on the general investment from these departments. Valuable results bearing directly on the utilization of natural resources have already been obtained."

That extensive building is in the nature of a vote of confidence in the future of the West, rather than an extravagant luxury, was the answer of Sir Robert Falconer, president of the University of Toronto, to certain of the delegates who inferred that mone yhas been wasted in the schemes in the various provinces.

United States Invited To Disarmament Parley

GENEVA, August 27. — The League of Nations has extended an official invitation to the United States government to send an official represenative to participate in the deliberations of the disarmament commission which will be appointed by the League assembly. This initiative which is unique, is the outgrowth of United States participation in the League's preliminary study to elaborate a convention for international control of the traffic in arms.

After the assembly convenes Monday its real work will be assigned to six commissions. The third commission will devote itself to all subjects touching the reduction of armaments, including control of the traffic in arms agreements to provide security among the states and the extension of the principles of Washington naval treaty to non-signatory powers.

SALARIES HELD BY SWARAJISTS

Legislative Council of Bengal Defeats Motion To Pay Ministers of Government.

HOME RULERS' ACT.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—(Canadian Press Cable).—A further stage of the struggle between the Swarajists or Indian home rulers who are demanding immediate responsible government and Lord Lytton, governor of Bengal, is marked by news from Calcutta that the Bengal legislative council has again rejected by a vote of 68 votes to 66 a motion to pay the salaries of the ministers.

The Swarajists on March 24th last carried a motion in the council by a majority of one declining to pay the salaries. Lord Lytton proposed to re-submit the issue to the council in July, the ministers meanwhile remaining in office but the Swarajists obtained a high court injunction ordering the president of the council to disallow the motion for re-consideration of the salary question. In consequence of this step the British secretary for India, Lord Olivier, sanctioned an amendment to the rules governing the procedure of the legislative assembly and the provincial legislatures whereby the estimates could be re-submitted. The issue has just been re-submitted under the new rule and again the council has refused to pay the salaries.

Official intimation was given recently that in the event of such rejection the administration would be conducted without ministers.

SERAFINI SAWED CELL BARS BUT SOON CAPTURED

Prisoner in Murderers' Row of Montreal Jail Was Caught in Yard.

GIVEN NEW CELL.

How He Obtained the Saw Is Problem For the Jail Authorities.

MONTREAL, Aug. 27.—(Canadian Press).—Guiseppe Serafini, one of the six bandits sentenced to death on October 24 for his participation in the killing of Henri Cleroux chauffeur of the Hochelaga Bank collection car, when it was looted of $142,288 here April 1, sawed away the bars of his cell and got into the court-yard of the jail at Bordeaux Jail on Monday afternoon, it was learned yesterday. He was cantured by guards and placed in another cell.

Serafini walked from his cell and managed to make his way into the court-yard of the jail before his escape was discovered. The alarm was given and the guards turned out. Serafini was soon seen in the jail court-yard trying to reach the wall around the yard. He was at once seized and conveyed to another cell.

The explanation of how Serafini came into possession of the saw he used to cut the bars of his cell could not be obtained Tuesday. The jail authorities are at a loss on this point. Serafini will be closely questioned as well as prisoners in nearby cells.

Serafini stood two trials on the charge of complicity in the Hochelaga Bank collection car hold-up and the death of its chauffeur. At the first, last June, the jury disagreed and he was again placed on trial in company with Davis, Morel, Gambino, Frank and Valentino. The six men were found guilty of murder and were sentenced to be hanged in October. They have appealed against their sentence.

INSPECTOR ARRESTED.

CHICAGO, August 27.—William Fahy, regarded as one of the aces of the local forces of postal inspectors, was arrested in his own office in the Federal building late Tuesday charged with being the master mind in the recent $3,000,000 mail robbery at Rondoute, Ills.

MAYOR'S MESSAGE.

MAYOR'S OFFICE
PETERBOROUGH

Our reception to the Right Honorable W. L. Mackenzie King, Premier of Canada, and Cabinet Ministers on the occasion of their visit Thursday, August 28th, should be enthusiastic and genuine.

As loyal citizens desiring to show proper respect for one who has been chosen to fill a very high position we must not allow Political Bias to spoil our role of host to distinguished guests.

They have been invited to come and see us—and any and everything should be done to make their stay pleasant, that they may carry away with them what we desire to convey—our extreme pleasure in having them visit us and we trust the warmth of our welcome will bring them back again.

Those looking after details are working hard to make the day a memorable one, but it can only be the success desired by the cooperation and help of all.

ALL TOGETHER!

Yours sincerely,
J. A. TURNER, (Mayor).

ROUGH SEA HELD ITALIAN PLANE

Descended To Adjust Motor —Splashing Water Prevented Take-off—Men Seasick.

THEIR ROCKET SEEN.

ABOARD, U.S.S. RICHMOND, August 27.—Lieut. Locatelli, Italian airman who was rescued with three companions by the Richmond late Sunday night after tossing about for more than 80 hours in their disabled seaplane on the rough North Atlantic waters, yesterday detailed for the press his perilous experience since hopping off with the United Statts army fliers last Thursday from Reykjavik, Iceland.

With his relief pilot, Lieut. Jullio Crossio and Engineers Giovanni Barccini and Bruno Farsynalli, Lieut Locatelli appeared little the worse for his nerve-wracking adventure. Except for hands blistered by castor oil and sea water, the rescued aviators were uninjured. While expressing gratitude to the United States navy for saving their lives, the Italians said they believed their plane could have been flown again had it not been necessary to destroy the craft.

Their Plane Faster.

"I am sorry to out-distance the United States planes when we hopped off at Reykjavik," said Lieut. Locatelli, "but I was compelled to do so because I was unable to maintain the proper height for such a heavy seaplane, fully loaded with fuel at a less speed than 150 metres. We had planned on the next hop to give them an hour's lead.

"After a flight of 7 1-4 hours from Raykjavik, we developed engine trouble due to water in the motor. I believe we could have made Frederiksdal but the fog was so thick we decided to land, make repairs and wait for the weather to clear. We came down about 25 miles east of Cape Farwell on an unexpectedly rough sea.

"The descent loosened two of our engine supports and the turbulent waters prevented us taking off again after repairs were made. We decided to wait until Friday, but the next day and Saturday Engineers Barccini and Farsynalli were too sea sick to take an interest in anything. Lieut. Cros-

WEMBLEY PRICE CUT.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—(Canadian Press Cable) In order that the total attendance during the remaining period shall reach one million persons weekly, the Wembley exhibition authorities have decided to reduce the admission fee to a shilling beginning September 1.

SPECIAL TRAFFIC REGULATIONS FOR PREMIER'S PARADE

To-morrow it is estimated that 300 decorated autos will join in the big parade to the Exhibition grounds. With a realization that parties will come from far and near for the occasion, the Police Department are taking special precautions, and have instituted temporary traffic regulations for the day. Unless extreme care is exercised, traffic congestion and motor accidents will be the result.

Chief Samuel Newall has issued the following bulletin as a guide to pedestrian and vehicular traffic:

Autos.

On Thursday, the 28th inst., on the occasion of the Premiers' visit, the people will assist the Police greatly if they will observe the following rules and regulations:

All those wishing to follow the parade, after it passes Central Park, at 1.15 p.m., will kindly park their cars on the west side of the route from the Golf Links to McDonnel street, taking care not to park where there is a street railway switch, or across street intersections. Cars will not be permitted to park opposite Central Park, but as soon as the procession has passed the park, then all cars that are parked from McDonnel street, north on George, will join in line to the Exhibition grounds according to the traffic officer's directions at the corner of McDonnell and George streets.

Pedestrian Traffic.

Foot passengers will prove of great help to the police, if "jay walking" is eliminated. Stand on the street curbs, and not on the streets. An open view will be maintained from the Central Park for the convenience of pedestrians.

If people only cross the streets, where there is a traffic officer, and when vehicular traffic is stopped, there should be no hitch, if their own safety is concerned. George street, from the Park south to the Exhibition grounds, will afford an excellent view of the Premier and the procession.

Children.

Parents should exercise extreme care with children of tender years. In this regard the recent circus procession should prove an object lesson. Little children were permitted to run out on the streets and were it not for the vigilance of Police Officers, accidents and probably fatalities would have been the result.

A little care and foresight will help matters greatly. This combination is the best preventative for accidents and embarrassing traffic situations.

"Remember the police are looking after your safety."

Add special traffic

Citizens are asked to park their cars in the south-east corner of the Fair grounds. No automobiles will be allowed in the ring, this being reserved for sports.

When passengers are unloaded at the grandstand, cars will move around the track to the south-east corner—the place where the circus stood. Absolutely no cars will be allowed around the platform or the judging ring.

OFFICIAL PROGRAMME PREMIER'S RECEPTION

A large committee is in charge, and events will be run off simultaneously.

SWEDES REJECT TREATY

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 27.—(Canadian Press)—The Swedish government has informed the League of Nations that it is unable to enter into the treaty for mutual assistance. The Swedish government, in replying to inquiries from the League, says it does not consider that the treaty offers advantages commensurate with the risks and that general participation cannot be expected.

HERRIOT TURNS POINCARE'S JIBE BACK UPON HIM

Saw Warships at British Naval Review That Protected Shores of France.

SENATE APPROVES.

French Premier Wins Vote of Confidence From Upper Chamber By 206 To 40.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—(Canadian Press Calble).—The Senate last night voted confidence in the Herriot government 206 to 40 after a long debate, in which M. Poincare scathingly criticized his sucressor's handling of France's interests at the international conference on reparation in London.

The little ex-premier, though enjoying the confidence of the majority in the Senate, was unable to overcome the power of the burly Herriot, who in a two-hour speech countered his predecessor's four and a half hours diatribe against the promise to evacuate the Ruhr within a year.

Defending himself against M. Poincare's attacks, notably against his sarcastic references to the British naval review at Spithead M. Herriot said:

"Yes, I went to Spithead, and among the ships I saw there I noted many whose name will remain in history for having protected our shores at Jutland and thereafter, and I said to myself: 'WHAT A LOSS IT WOULD BE FOR FRANCE EVER TO BE SEPARATED FROM THESE COMRADES OF THE WAR.'

"Therefore I did my best to maintain the accord between the allies. I believe that that accord is confirmed. I come back without ambition, without pride, but I believe that the good work has been done."

M. Herriot again denied the charge that the intervention of American bankers in London had been unfavourable to France, declaring: "That was not against us, but against Germany, of which they were suspicious.

Concerning deliveries in kind, M. Herriot said:

"I believe I have measurably bittered the experts' plans. M. Poincare laughs at our procedure. If the Versailles treaty arrangement was so good, why did he let four billions worth of deliveries escape him in 1922?"

BUSINESS SEEN ON SOLID BASIS

Judge Gary of U. S. Steel Corporation Reports Increasing Orders.

CONFIDENCE IN U. S. A.

NEW YORK, August 27. —Business in this country is on a solid foundation and the improvement that has been going on is in no sense artificial but is simply the response to a growing feeling of confidence and an increase in buying power all over the world, Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation, declared last night in an informal resume of the business situation.

"There is at present in the country," he said "and unusual demand and desire for whatever is produced and the pecuniary ability to pay for it. As I have said before, there has been a steady perceptible though small improvement in business, commencing several months ago."

"Our corporation," he continued, "is making larger expenditures for additions and improvements than we supposed a few months ago would be necessary or possible. We are spending at the rate of $5,000,000 a month for extensions and improvements."

New orders of the corporation in the first twenty-two days of August were ten per cent above those of the same period in July, while shipments in the first 16 days of the same month ran 18.3 above the same period of the previous month.

FRENCH RATIFIED LAUSANNE TREATY

Peace Re-Established in the Near East By Treaty of Year Ago.

PARIS, August 27. — The French Senate to-day ratified the treaty of Lausanne with only 20 negative votes after a debate of two hours.

The chamber had voted ratification on Monday, and thus the Senate's action to-day gives official French adherence to the treaty, which was signed on July 24, 1923 ,re-establishing peace in the Near East.

France is the fourth power to ratify the treaty, which became effective on August 6th on its third ratification. Great Britain, Italy and Japan previously had voted their adherence The French Chamber and Senate probably will adjourn this afternoon.

SHREWDEST SLEUTH IN GOVTS. SERVICE

Bill Fay, Post, Post Office Inspector, Charged With $2,000,000 Robbery.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27. — (Canadian Press).—Post Office Inspector William F. Fahy, often described as the best-known and shrewdest sleuth in the whole Government service, was arrested yesterday by United States Deputy Marshal Halcarr on charges of being the "brains" of the $2,000,000 mail robbery at Rondout, Illinois, on the night of June 12.

"Bill" Fahy, the inspector who sent "Big Tim" Murphy and his pals to the Federal Prison for the Dearborn Station $380,000 robbery three years ago, was taken after a veritable conclave of stars of the Eastern postal divisions had come to Chicago to assist Chief Postal Inspector Germer to identify the master-hand that had appeared in every phase of the Government's untiring day-and-night search for the "inside man."

According to Chief Postal Inspector Clarahan, of the New York District, who has been directing a constant surveillance of Fahy ever since a few days after the robbery, the famous detective has been followed to numerous "meets" with criminals with whom he is charged with conspiring.

BRITISH SOCIETY AGOG.

Further Sensations in Life of Duke of Westminster.

(By Percy Sarl—United Press Staff Correspondent).

LONDON, Aug. 27.—The British Society was agog to-day with the promise of further sensations in the colorful domestic life of the Duke of Westminster, England's wealthiest peer, and one of the richest men in the world. The Duchess applied for an injunction this morning to prevent her titled husband from ejecting her from her London mansion, Bourdon House, and society gasped. There was an immediate lull, however, as the Duke's attorneys obtained a fortnight adjournment of the hearing owing to "his highly controversal matters which the Duke desires to answer."

The Duke was divorced by his first wife in 1919, and in 1920 married a widow, Violet Rowley, daughter of the late Sir William Nelson, shipping and meat packing magnate.

The Duke's servants had told the Duchess' maid, according to counsel, that if the Duchess went there she would be turned into the street.

An adjournment was made for two weeks and the court directed that the maid be permitted to remain at the Bourbon House in custody of the Duchess' belongings.

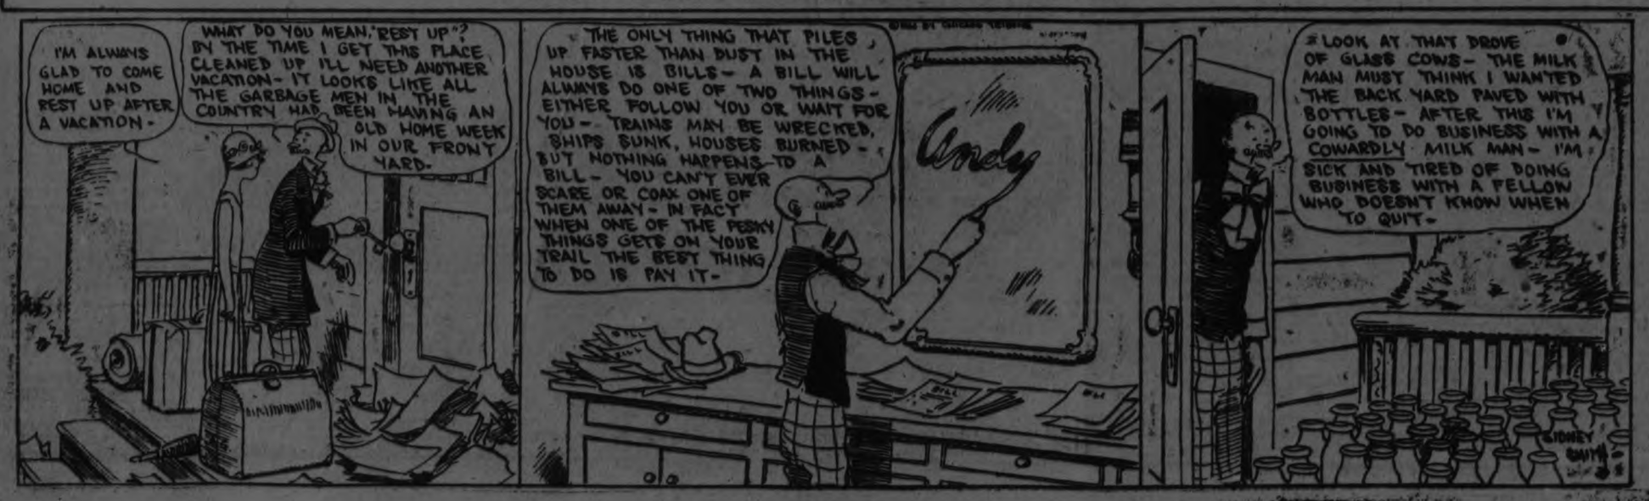
THE GUMPS—WELCOME HOME



JUDGE CAMERON EMINENT JURIST AND COUNSEL

Outstanding Personage in the Public Life of Western Ontario.

SUCCEEDS JUDGE WARD

Was Mayor of Goderich and Member For West Huron.

Malcolm Graeme Cameron, K.C., of Goderich, has been appointed County Judge to succeed His Honor Judge Ward, who recently retired from the bench. With residence at Cobourg, the judicial district includes the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham.

But by virtue of the rotary system created by the amendment to the Judges' Act, 1919, in the regime of Honorable W. E. Raney, His Honor Judge Cameron will frequently preside at the County Court sittings in Peterboro, interchanging with His Honor Judge Huycke, who since the inauguration of the new system has interchanged with His Honor Judge Ward. Consequently Judge Cameron becomes an official of the Judiciary in this county.

Born in Goderich in 1857, Mr. Cameron achieved success in his place of origin, and for years was an outstanding personage in the public life of western Ontario.

Called to the bar in 1879 he became a prominent counsel and was created a King's Counsel in 1902. In 1904 he was appointed a member of the Royal Commission for reviewing and consolidating the Statutes of Canada, and served as Examiner for the Law Society of Upper Canada for three years. Recognized as an outstanding counsel, as author of a "Treatise on the Law of Dower," he is known as an eminent jurist. Referring to this treatise, Right Hon. Sir Hy. Strong, a Chief Justice of Canada, said that it was the most able and learned work on the subject ever published, either in England, Canada or the United States.

Judge Cameron, son of Malcolm Colan Cameron, Lieut.-Governor of the North West Territories, comes from a family very prominent in the early political life of western Ontario.

His grandfather and father both represented Hyron in the Dominion House, and were staunch Liberals of the early type. His father was a fighter in the Liberal ranks, as a member of the Opposition during the Conservative regime prior to 1896. He was a member for West Huron for several terms and figured in one of the most famous bye-elections ever experienced in the history of the Dominion.

After being elected by a substantial majority he was unseated, and the Conservatives ran the Hon. J. C. Patterson, Postmaster-General, in the bye-election. The Conservatives triumphed by a majority of 16.

Later, in 1896, Mr. Cameron was returned by a good majority and was appointed Lieut.-Governor of the North-west Territories, a post he held until his death.

Judge Cameron served as Town Councillor, Reeve and Mayor of Goderich, and in 1902 was the Liberal standard bearer in the Provincial election. He was elected, and was re-elected in 1904. In his earlier days he was President of the Toronto Young Liberal Club. His last political venture was made in 1911, as an unsuccessful Liberal candidate in the General Dominion Election.

TO COMBAT MALARIA.

League of Nations To Fight Disease in Russia.

GENEVA, Aug. 27.—Malignant malaria, which has made especially serious ravages in Russia, is now being given a thorough investigation by a special League of Nations commission which is touring the affected regions of Europe. An Italian expert, Doctor Lutrario, is chairman of the commission which includes physicians from Germany, France, Spain, Great Britain, Holland, Rumania, Jugo-Slavia and Russia.

Already the experts have spent eighteen days in Jugo-Slavia. Their itinerary includes Poland and finally Russia. In both Russia and the Ukraine the commission will study the principal malaria regions and, coming back to Moscow, will be shown the workings of the central health organization and particularly the anti-malarial work of the Russian Health service. It will also take part in a Moscow conference on malaria, arranged by the Soviet authorities.

The next meeting of the council of the League will have before it an exhaustive report on the whole question of malaria in southern and eastern Europe, and the health organization of the League will be enabled to arrange new international methods of combat.

SHANGHAI SHIPPING GOLD.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 27.—(Associated Press).—Declared exports from Shanghai to the United States in the month of May amounted to $3,654 688, and for the first five months of 1924 to $15,954,931.

The principal articles exported were goat and kid skins, cotton laces and embroideries, raw silk and crude camphor. Gold bars to the value of $1,445,509 and gold coins to the value of $548,762 were exported to the United States in the five-month period.

FOR HEALTH'S SAKE.

It is as essential to clean the garbage pail by washings and drying it as it is to keep the receptacles for food clean.

MUST SECURE PERMIT.

Conditions Under Which Home Made Wine Can Be Made at Home.

In reference to the information supplied by Mr. J. H. Burnham in a letter published in a recent edition of the Examiner, under the heading "Home-made Wine," and signed "Enquirer," quoting a newspaper report as his authority, he criticizes a previous article of the Examiner.

He quotes the Examiner as saying "that the good woman of the house could make wine under the O. T. A., as of old without fear of having a constable tapping at the door and spying upon her movements."

In this he introduces a new issue and misconstrues the report, as the Examiner did not make the quotation to which it is credited by Mr. Burnham.

In his letter he refers to a Chatham case, where an offender was imprisoned for six months, in default of paying a $200 fine, on charges of having mash in his possession suitable for the manufacture of spirits.

It is obviously evident that a person having a mash in his possession for the manufacture of alcoholic spirits is liable to a fine, if he hasn't first notified the Inland Revenue Officer. But the law will allow any individual to brew beer, ale or wine, provided he has never been convicted on an offence in breach of the Ontario Temperance Act, and provided the product of the manufacture is made only for the personal consumption of the maker.

Any person desirous of brewing beer, ale or wine should give notice of his intention to the local Inland Revenue Officer, Mr. William Buller, submitting at the same time a list of the utensils to be used in the manufacture. Then, if your notice doesn't meet with approval, you will be notified. No strength is defined by the Act, thus it is within the law for a person who has given notice to make real hard liquor, provided the Inland Revenue Officer approves of the composition of the mash used. When giving notice it is necessary to include a list of the ingredients you intend using in your mash, thus once approval is obtained, it matters not what strength of alcoholic spirits is contained in your product.

The utensils generally used by persons who brew for their own personal use consist of either crockery or granitewear and a copper kettle. However, it is not necessary that you hold to this apparatus so long as you obtain the approval of the Inland Revenue Officer.

It is illegal at any time to have a still in your possession, whether notice has been given or not.

According to the definition of "beer," and "brewery," as cited in the Inland Revenue Act, it is plainly evident that the possession of a mash, without a permit, is sufficient to warrant a conviction, under the Ontario Temperance Act, for which a penalty is provided rendering the possessor liable to a fine of $200, or 6 months' imprisonment.

VAST ARMY MOVES NORTH FOR CROPS

There Are Over 100,000 Harvesters in State of Kansas.

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 27.—(Associated Press).—The harvester army that is now employed gathering the crops of the great central wheat belt States outnumbers the entire peace time strength of the United States army. The advance guard started northward in Texas early in June, adding recruits by the thousands as the season moved into the pivotal wheat State of Kansas in mid-June, and swelling in numbers to more than 100,000 as it reached its peak activity in the Sunflower State about July 1, according to statistics available at the State Court of Industrial Relations here.

"It requires 105,000 men to handle this harvest and provide for replacements," remarked J. H. Crawford, presiding judge. "To visualize this great army taxes the imagination. Witness 162 trains, made up of ten passenger coaches and each coach carrying 65 men, rushing from south, east and west to the points of distribution. Then stand for 39 hours until these men march single file past a given point and stretch along the highway a distance of 78 miles. Do this and you will see the army of harvesters distributed through the wheat belt annually.

"In addition, the public employment service recruited 53,000 men and distributed them where needed as cotton laborers, potato pickers, corn huskers and for apple, berry and sugar beet labor, making 156,383 seasonal laborers supplied in 1923.

"Kansas, which grows more wheat than any other State in the nation, is harvesting approximately 9,000,000 acres, and the crop is estimated to exceed 100,000,000 bushels. Kansas wheat fields occupying 15,000 square miles have an area as great as the total land surface of Massachusetts, Connecticut and Delaware combined. It is estimated the total wheat area of the wheat belt States, from Texas to North Dakota and Minnesota, is approximately 33,000 square miles of winter wheat, while in the northern States the spring wheat aggregates 15,000 square miles, a total area of 48,000 square miles."

Coats of very soft, supple leather, usually in grey or tan are worn with wrap-around skirts of plain or striped wool.

PARISIAN SHOPS INVADING LONDON

French Stores Open in England, But No English Merchants Invade France.

By MILTON BRONNER.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Frenchmen always say that the difference between the British business man and the French man of affairs is that the son of John Bull will invest dollars where the Gaul will invest pennies. In other words, the Briton will take a chance. Hence, they say, Britain has always outdistanced France in a business way. And yet—

No big British department store, no big London retail business has established a branch in Paris. On the other hand, in recent years two of the biggest Parisian department stores have opened big shops in London and have made them bright and attractive in a way that no British shop ever is.

The same is true of a big Parisian shoe firm which has a branch in London. These shrewd Frenchmen figured there were lots of British people who got used to their shops in their frequent trips to Paris, and that they would welcome a chance to shop with them in London.

And judging by their evidences of prosperity, they guessed right.

* * *

The average American wonders why Londoners speak with such derisive contempt of the big cities of the north of their country as "the provinces." But a brief stay in any of these cities soon shows why.

Take Sheffield, for instance, a huge town of 500,000 people, the metropolis of the British steel cutlery industry. In America towns that size—Cincinnati, Baltimore, Indianapolis—are ablaze at night with amusement places. There are usually two first-class theatres running New York successes; there are numerous other theatres, and huge picture palaces.

In Sheffield there isn't a single theatre in the town which displays metropolitan successes. The best that is offered is a third-rate barnstorming company in some ancient chestnut and a choice of a very few movie houses.

Apparently the rule in these big British industrial towns is—work—eat—sleep.

Germaine Berton, the bob-haired, flashing-eyed, hard-voiced, girl anarchist who murdered a Parisian editor and got away with it before a Parisian jury seems determined to break into the front pages of the French papers. Recently she turned up at Bordeaux, appeared in a mob when a meeting was forbidden and was arrested.

When searched a gun was found on her. She coolly told the judge that the policeman was lucky she didn't use it. She seemed disappointed when she was not freed, but instead was given four months' imprisonment.

And she immediately became first page stuff for the French by starting a hunger strike.

Latvia, the little republic which was carved out of part of Russia, is putting on all the airs of a real country. After experimenting with all kinds of temporary money, it has gone into the business of having real money of its own.

And the British got the job. Not long ago the Royal Mint in London coined 10 million pieces, each worth a lat. These proved so satisfactory that the Latvian Government has now ordered the coinage of a lot of two and five silver lat pieces.

And the great bank-note firm of Waterlow, London, has been given an order for one million bank notes each worth 20 lat and half a million each worth 50 lat.

The only Latvian thing about them is that the pictures on them were designed by a native artist.

EXHIBITION CROWED.

Yesterday's Figures Were 27,000 Over Last Year —Eclipsed By 1921.

TORONTO, Aug. 27.—(Canadian Press).—If it had not been for the abnormal attendance on "Young Canada's" day in 1921 at the Canadian National Exhibition when the plan of issuing free tickets to children through the schools of the Province was tried for the first time, yesterday's showing of 203,000 would have set up a new record for the 45 years in which the Fair has been in existence. The total overtopped that of last year by 27,500 and that of 1922 by 17,000, but fell short by 27,000 of the 1921 figures. The perfect weather of yesterday naturally aided greatly in the splendid result, and, despite the vastness of the juvenile army of invaders, there were no casualties reported, other than of a minor description.

POLAND'S CONSCRIPTION LAW.

WARSAW, Aug. 27.—(Associated Press).—Active military service for all able-bodied males reaching their twenty-first birthday, has been fixed by law at two years. Privates in the cavalry or artillery, however, have to serve 25 months. In case of war all males between 19 and 50 years will be drafted.

BAIL REFUSED FOR MATTHEWS

Magistrate Says Former Deputy Provincial Treasurer Like Man Who Skipped Bail.

TO APPLY AGAIN.

TORONTO, Aug. 27.—(Canadian Press).—"I do not think the defendant is in any better a position than a man who has skipped his bail, and I do not think I could reasonably ask the State to take the chance of having to bring him back again as a fugitive from justice. If I am wrong I am revisable by a higher court."

So stated Magistrate Jones in Police Court yesterday in refusing bail to Charles A. Matthews, Jr., former Deputy Provincial Treasurer, after he had been committed for trial by the Magistrate on five charges, involving alleged contravention of the Secret Commissions Act.

Accused, who through his counsel, J. Seymour Corley, K.C., pleaded not guilty to all charges and elected trial by jury, will appear in the County Criminal Court before Judge Coatsworth to-morrow, for arraignment, when formal application for bail will once more be made. It is understood that the trial will take place at the sessions commencing on November 2 next.

CHLORIDE GAS CURES DISEASE

U. S. Army Medical Officer Says Poison Is Effective Curative.

TAKE TIME.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(Canadian Press).—There is no longer any question that chlorine gas utilized as a weapon of appalling effectiveness during war can also be utilized as an equally effective medicament, according to the statement here yesterday of Lieut.-Col. H. L. Gilchrist, U.S. Army Medical Corps, chief of the medical division of the chemical warfare service. "The results of experiments carried on during the last few months by the medical corps in treating certain diseases with chlorine are not only striking," he said, "but they have been achieved with a degree of certainty which seems beyond scientific dispute. Whooping cough, which normally lasts from three to four months, has been cured in comparatively few treatments." It seems likely the gas will also prove a real benefit in relieving asthma, Col. Gilchrist added.

"It will take time," he explained, "to establish the curative powers of chlorine gases in some cases. But the results are so promising that experts regard them with a good deal of complacent assurance."

PERSIA MAKES AMENDS.

Murder of Major Imbrie Recalled—Respect Paid at Funeral—Widow Indemnified.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(Canadian Press).—The fullest amends have been made by the Persian Government for the murder of Major Robert L. Imbrie, late American Vice-Consul in charge at Teheran. Honors paid the body of the American official by Persian national authorities and people left nothing to be desired. In addition, the Persian Government has agreed to pay an indemnity of $60,000 to Mrs. Imbrie.

HERO WAS DROWNED.

William Russo, Aged 38, Drowned In Attempt To Save Woman.

NEW YORK, August 27. — The police are dragging the East River for the body of William Russo, 38 years old, a clerk at the Manhattan State Hospitals at Blackwall's Island.

Russo was a cripple. One leg was shrivelled but that did not prevent him from plunging into the river to rescue a woman patient, Delia Early, who jumped off the seawall, in an insane attempt to commit suicide. The woman was saved by two men in a boat but Russo was drowned.

"He didn't have a chance in that current," said one of the woman's rescuers, "but I guess he did what he thought was right."

CROPS STILL IMPROVING.

Wheat Yield Will Go Well Over 300,000,000 Bushels.

WINNIPEG, August 27. — A recent crop statement by the Dominion government gave the acreage seeded to wheat in the Western provinces at 21,516,797, and the prospective yield at around 282,000,000 bushels. That was on August 10. There has been a tremendous improvement in the western crop since that date.

Everything seems to indicate today that the wheat yield will go well over 300,000,000 bushels. If the Dominion acreage figures are anywhere nearly correct that figure should be more than realized.

Fine, warm weather prevails all over the west with a fine breeze blowing, making perfect ripening conditions. Harvesting is now general.

GERMAN VIEWS FAVORING PACT

Business Leaders, Bankers and Farmers Exert Pressure on Nationalist Objectors.

VOTE ON THURSDAY.

BERLIN, August 27.—In official quarters it was stated that the leaders of the middle parties in the Reich stag appear to be less apprehensive to-day over the fate of the Dawes bills when these come up for final vote Thursday. It is declared there has been a visible melting of Nationalistic opposition during the past forty-eight hours.

The government needs about 45 votes to give it an incontestable majority, anod these, it is now believed, will be forthcoming from deserters in the Hergt-Von Tirpitz party who propose to make use of their right to vote as individuals, or who will absent themselves from the session when the balloting occurs. This will automatically reduce the size of the opposition vote.

Influence of Magnates

Because of terrific pressure now being brought to bear upon the recalcitrant reactionaries by the industrialists, including the Stinnes interests, and also by the banking interests, it is now believed that the Nationalist party leaders will silently approve of the manoeuvre whereby a sufficient number of deputies will be released from their customary obligations to vote en bloc to save the government's measures from defeat. Such action would still enable the party, as a whole, to maintain its attitude of opposition to the Dawes plan in principle.

The agrarian wing in the party's Reichstag delegation is said to be determined to support the measures in augurating the Dawes plan. The agragrians fear a loss of rural credits in the event a two-thirds majority fails to materialize.

The Reichstag completed the second reading of the Dawes bill yesterday and debate will be resumed on Thursday. By then it is hoped to have the party line-up pretty well determined, as inter-party bargaining will engage the Reichstag leaders, Wednesday.

Security Agreement

Discussing the question of the security pact before the Reichstag, Count Von Bernstorff said: "If the German government resolves to extend France satisfactory accommodation in respect to the question of security we shall, in all probability, be able to effect an earlier evacuation of the Ruhr. The permanent neutralization of German territory is wholly out of the question. Nevertheless, there should be no difficulty in effecting a relatively and mutually satisfactory security pact."

It is up to England and France to suggest to Germany that her reception into the League of Nations is desired, Count Von Bernstorff declared. But this admission is impossible, he added, so long as German territory is occupied by foreign troops.

BRIDGE WORK WILL TAKE EIGHT WEEKS

Campbellford Bridge To Be Repaired—Material Arriving on Ground.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 27.—A carload of lumber has reached here and is being transferred to the bridge on which the work of repairing will be started by the Ontario Bridge Company as soon as the necessary material is on the ground. It is understood that the work will occupy at least two months, during which time all vehicles will be compelled to use the bridge at the paper mill in order to cross the river, a long detour. Foot passengers can cross on the bridge on the spur line running to the paper mill. The bridge will be ready for pedestrians several weeks before it is available for vehicular traffic.

Electric Light Bills.

The members of the Water and Light Commission have grown weary waiting for a number of delinquent patrons of the lighting service to settle their bills. At the last meeting a resolution, moved by Commissioner Caddy and seconded by Mayor Meyers, was adopted, providing that when a consumer is six months or more in arrears the service will be cut off within thirty days of the date of the passing of the resolution.

Herbert Forrest, one of the operators of the municipal power plant, is still unable to attend to his duties, and has been granted a further leave of absence by the Commission.

Underwent Operation.

Mrs. Frank Johns, of Seymour East, who was operated upon for the removal of her tonsils and adenoids last Friday by Dr. E. F. Richardson, has sufficiently recovered to be able to return home. While in town Mrs. Johns was the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. A. Donald, Sebastapol Street.

Baseball To-Day.

The Campbellford baseball team will play at Hastings this afternoon. The other scheduled games in the Northumberland League are Colborne at Roseneath and Orland at Brighton.

Bowlers Return.

The three rinks that went to Belleville Monday morning to take part in the bowling tournament returned last evening, but without any trophies. The rink skipped by W. S. Wiggins, who had L. B. Glover, D. W. Douglas and T. S. Diamond as his colleagues, did, however, win the two first games in which they took part. The other two rinks were made up as follows: Mayor Meyers (skip), J. B. Wilkinson, A. S. Reindeau and A. E. Wragge; J. R. Allan (skip), T. S. Tait, R. S. Southworth and C. S. Gillespie.

SORRY AFFAIR SAYS JOURNAL OF SURRENDER

Poincare Failed in the Debate With Herriot To Uphold His Past Record.

PRESS COMMENT.

The Ex-Premier's Supporters Could Not Vote Either Way—Tangled Principles.

PARIS, August 27 (United Press by John De Groat). — "France can act alone no longer,' 'the Echo de Paris said to-day summarising the Conservative opinion following the Senate's acceptance of the London agreement for the settlement of the reparations questions.

All the opposition newspapers carried bitter editorials on what they considered the surrender of the strong foreign policy of the Ponicare

The Echo de Paris say grave danger in Premier Herriot's stand.

"Whom are we following now?" the newspaper demanded. "Leon Blum, an arch-Socialist, has stretched out his hand to Prime Minister MacDonald.

The newspaper described as a "sorry affair" last night's Senate debate where Poincare and Herriot fought out their opposing views, and which ended in a complete victory for the Premier.

"Poincare spent all his time justifying his past policy, regretting the policy of the Herriot Government, and expressing fears for the future, the newspaper declared. It emphasised that ex-Minister Cherron and other supposed supporters of Poincare abandoned him when the vote on Herriot's action came.

It is not alone in London that the Frenchmen are following a policy of surrender, the journal complained.

In general, however, the public seemed well satisfied that parliamentary approval of the London agreement had been completed, believing the French position would be the stronger.

France is the first nation to show its full support of the programme which Europeans hope will result in a general settlement of the tangled political and economic situation prevailing since the signing of the Treaty of Versailles.

The final vote in the Senate was overwhelmingly for the Premier's action, 204 declaring their approval, and only 40 opposing.

The Poincare supporters generally did not vote, as the ex-Premier was placed in the position that to support the pact of London would have been to run counter to his own Ruhr policy because of the provision for evacuation of occupied territory, to vote against it would be to oppose the Dawes plan on which the London agreement is based and responsibility for which Poincare has always claimed.

No Uncertainty About the Result When Green's Sponge Mixture Is Used

MAKE perfect cakes every time. No "flat" ones, no "too rich" ones, none with too much of some ingredient or too little of another. Make them with Green's Sponge Mixture and you'll banish failures and disappointments.

BRUNETTES AND DIVORCES.

Winfield Morgan, divorce clerk in Baltimore has made the discovery that brunnettes hasten to court for release from marital bonds while blondes stay home and endure their husbands with what patience they can command. This is not opinion, but statistical evidence supplied by the 750 divorce cases that have come into Baltimore courts in the last two months.

Clerk Morgan has tabulated these cases and finds that 80 per cent of them are brunettes. The remaining 20 per cent are not all blondes. He reaches the conclusion, therefore, that by a big majority it is the girl with the black hair who heads for the divorce courts at first sign of trouble, while the girls of all the bright and light shades are slower to wrath and more inclined to mercy.

This is a plausible theory. It simply means that brunettes are more temperamental. Darker types are unquestionably more impulsive and sensitive than fair types. The Latin races, for instance, are not noted for stoicism or fortitude under sufferance. They seem to resent personal reflections, which men and women of the northern countries accept with equanimity. They are more easily offended, and consequently less inclined to make allowances for the injustices and little annoyances of domestic life.—London Advertiser.

HER LAST DRIVE.

In October the Queen-Mother Alexandra will leave Sandringham for her last visit to London. For years now—ever since the death of King Edward—she has lived at Sandringham, her country home, with which are associated the happiest memories of her life. But she has paid periodic visits to Mariborough House, her palace in London, every year. Now, at eighty, she feels the time has come to retire from the rush and whirl of the great metropolis. Yet she must say good-bye to London—the London to which she came more than sixty years ago, the "sea-king's daughter from over the sea," to be the bride of the heir to the British throne. "I want to have just one more look at my dear Londoners," she is reported to have said; and the forthcoming October visit is to afford her that opportunity.

There is none other London loves quite so well. It was London that took her to its heart when she came in all her shy loveliness fresh from her Danish home. She won the hearts of the London public then, and she has held her place secure ever since. Affection has long since deepened into abiding love, touched with veneration since she has grown old. There is no day the Londoner honors with more sentiment than Alexandra Day, when thousands sell roses—her favorite flower—to swell the Hospital Fund. And when Alexandra drives alone through London's streets—through the dingy East End as well as through dignified Belgravia—there is none, not even the most determined opponent of monarchy as an institution, who does not lift his hat or cap and cheer.—Montreal Star.

BROADCASTING THE COMMONS.

Among the most subversive of our semi-revolutionary institutions is the political picnic. And for various reasons. The day is generally hot, meat and other heating foods are largely consumed and then the spell-binders are turned on to keep things going till milking time. Is it any wonder that oratory waxes perfervid and unrest stalks abroad in our land?

It was such an afternoon of indiscretions which gave birth to the suggestion that Hansard be abolished and all parliamentary speeches be broadcasted instead. Worse still, it was an M.P. who hatched the plot before an audience too far gone in somnolence to appreciate its enormity. Otherwise the embattled farmers would surely again have been heard round the world—and with no adventitious aid from newfangled radio either.

Parliament has always been conducted behind a kindly veil of ceremony and secrecy, so that the average man knows little enough of how unevenly the mill grinds. Then why disrupt such an Eden? To be sure there is Hansard, but who reads him?—and even the verbatim report is often doctored grammatically. But radio would familiarize our homes with experiences of Parliament stripped of its ceremony, its trappings, its justifiable concealments. Who could respect a Parliament reduced to the interminable scratching of tired, angry or blatant voices engaged in the endless Jiggs-and-Maggie of party strife?

Certain base fellows have been known to whisper that talk for talk's sake is not entirely unknown at Ottawa. Though the situation can hardly be as bad as that, yet radio would certainly exert a tendency in the direction of verbosity. Even parliamentarians are human in their failings and could hardly resist the temptation to speak for the radio. It might even come to be quite usual for over-long speeches to find utterance in that most businesslike assembly. As a member, carried away by the thought of his unseen audience, might address the Chair with, "Well, boys and girls, tonight we are going to hear how Freddie the bold free-trader nearly threw a scare into the naughty tariff tiger."

It is even conceivable that the present day limitations of radio might make Parliament appear more ludicrous than is the case. Fancy the state of mind of a man who is not sure whether he has picked up a negro minstrel or the Honorable Member for Tete-Rouge. Or, with interference what it now is, imagine the three-ring circus effect of trying to listen to the speech from the throne while Prof. Clodd of station BUNK nasally outlining the Larger Lunacy and the Kiwanian Kolored Kwartet insist on making themselves audible. Above all consider the misleading impression created among an ignorant electorate were a burst of static to be mistaken for applause at the conclusion of a speech by the Opposition. Fifteen minutes of violent and inopportune static might alter an election.

Aside from these slight drawbacks the suggestion would seem to be well worth considering.—Kingston Whig.

THE DECLINE OF WALKING.

Dr. Alvar H. Doty, former health officer of the Port of New York, who, it is said, likes to see panoramas unrolled from a seat in an automobile quite as much as any other man, has produced a book entitled "Walking for Health." It may not have the charm or fancifulness of Stevenson's "Walking Tours," or of Hazlitt's "On Going a Journey," or of George Otto Trevelyan's essay on vagabondizing, but it serves a useful purpose in drawing attention to the decline of walking. Dr. Doty compares it with other forms of stretching the muscles and expanding the lungs in the open air, and pronounces it better than any of them. A strong walker, a good heart! No other outdoor recreation does so much for the vascular system. If you want to stave off arterio-sclerosis, keep walking. That is the message of Dr. Doty.

It is intended for the motor-maniacs as well as for the sedentary. All the world is riding now and losing the use of its legs. Suburbanites who once made light of walking a mile from the railway station to their homes, today have their cars carry them home. When there is something going on at their club, members who live two blocks away get out their automobiles. Some nice people would as soon be seen carrying a parcel, or with hands ungloved, as to be seen proceeding anywhere on foot when the car could be used. As a consequence there is a growing demand for books on taking off flesh by dieting.

Herbert W. Gleason, author of "Through the Year With Thoreau," has written, in the form of a letter to an automobile-smitten friend, a delightful skit on the man who rides and won't walk. Congratulating his friend on acquiring a new model, he responds to an inquiry about his own car. It is evidently a miracle of efficiency. While "it does not have disc wheels, nor a detachable spot light, nor an automatic squeegee on the windshield," it never has an overheated engine nor a clogged carburetor, and climbs hills with a 50 per cent. grade. Tire troubles never occur. No road is too rough for it. "The design is one that was made by an Eminent Architect a great many years ago, and it has never been improved upon." No license is required, it may be parked anywhere, and no garage is needed, "for," concludes Mr. Gleason, "I take it to bed with me." One is reminded of Hazlitt's:

> Give me the clear blue sky over my head and the green turf beneath my feet, a winding road before me and a three hours' march to dinner—and then to thinking! It is hard if I cannot start some game on those lone heaths. I laugh, I run, I leap, I sing for joy.

All this being said, there is no reason why a wise man shouldn't tool about the country in his car to see the scenery and keep up his walking, too.—St. Thomas Journal.

UNITING BY STEEL.

When Philip Snowden, enemy of capitalism, became the champion of the British bankers at the London Conference his friends explained that he was serving the nation, not a class. Today he champions British economic imperialism. The explanation for this new growth is that only by so doing can he avert the menace of Franco-German economic supremacy. Whatever the evils of British big business, they are as naught compared to the known wickedness of the French and German steel magnates, who are considering co-operation in place of competition. Such a plan would be nothing more nor less than a conspiracy on the part of unscrupulous capitalists to dominate the world's steel and iron markets, and thus enslave the workers of the two continents. Incidentally, it would be mighty hard on the British steel and iron producers.

It makes a lot of difference whose ox is gored. The British Chancellor of the Exchequer is obviously only doing his duty as a good Englishman in standing up for British industry. It is asking too much to expect him to damn at home what he damns in others. But the issue which he raises is too serious to be dealt with solely from the point of view of the British iron trade. A Franco-German combination of the steel, iron and coke industries would most certainly be a formidable power in the economic life of Europe, and perhaps even of the world. The British may well look upon it with acute distaste. Its effect on Britain's industries might be of the gravest character.

But there is something more at stake than the prosperity of Britain's steel manufacturers. This is the peace of Europe. A Franco-German industrial rapprochement would probably be the greatest single factor for bringing about a better understanding between France and Germany. By making the economic life of the two countries in a measure interdependent, a greater degree of co-operation would inevitably come about. In place of the bitter haggling that is certain to keep alive the seeds of hate and revenge, if there is no understanding between the two peoples, there would be the healing force of mutual self-interest, which would do much to remove the past, and so would minimize the danger of a new conflict.

Such a rapprochement would, of course, have its political repercussions. Undoubtedly, both France and Germany would use it to further their own political ambitions. Already there is talk in France of thus ending Britain's "supremacy" over Europe. This "supremacy," of course, is nothing more than Britain's old policy of playing the two strongest nations of Europe against each other and preserving the balance between them. But such talk is not to be taken too seriously. What transcends the interests of any group or nation is the cementing of the peace of Europe. If this can best be done by bringing the French and Germans together, such an agreement should be made, however much it strikes the British as being "unclubby."—New York Times.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, August 27 (Canadian Press). — Some sections report a slight increase in receipts, which is the result of hens feeding on the loose grain upon the harvest fields. The markets generally are firm under good demand. The quality of eggs is improving, but receipts are still not sufficient to meet the demand, consequently in some sections, the withdrawal from the coolers is heavy.

Toronto firm unchanged, jobbing specials 47, extras 43, firsts 37, seconds 29.

Montreal market very firm and active, retailing specials 50 to 55, extras 45 to 50, firsts 38 to 40, seconds 30 to 35.

Ottawa market firm, receipts increasing, jobbing extras 40, firsts 35, seconds 28.

Winnipeg market firm, jobbing extras 33, firsts 31, seconds 25. Six cars storage seconds rolling Montreal.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, August 27 (Canadian Press). — Trade in spot supplies of cash oats was again quiet yesterday. A fair business is passing in flour. There is a steady demand for millfeed. Demand for rolled oats is limited. There was no change in the market for baled hay. A fair trade is reported in eggs. The undertone of the butter market is easy, as also for cheese. There is a good demand for beans at $3.00 a bushel for one-pound pickers.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, August 27 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday:

Demand 4.4850
Cables 4.4888

BUTTER AND CHEESE.

ST. PASCAL, August 27 (Canadian Press). — At the meeting of the dairy board there were boarded yesterday 225 packages of creamery butter and 100 boxes of cheese.

The butter sold at 33 9-16 cents per pound, and the cheese was bought at 15 11-16 cents per pound.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, August 27 (Canadian Press). — Improvement of crop prospects in Canada brought about free selling of wheat here yesterday, and prices dropped to a new low on the present down turn.

At the finish wheat was 3 to 4 1-8 cents off with September $1.20 3-4 cents off with September $1.20 1-4 to $1.20 3-4 and December $1.25 to $1.25 1-8; corn rose 1 1-4 to 2 cents; oats unchanged to 1-2c lower; and provisions were the same as yesterday to 12 1-2c higher.

A report to the Winnipeg Free Press suggesting a yield of 283,000,000 bushels of wheat for the three provinces, which, with the eastern provinces, would make more than 400,000,000 bushels for the country, was responsible for the sudden down turn in the wheat market here, toward the finish. Previously the market was inclined to rally from its early weakness, when the buyers became active on the down turn.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

GERMANS ACTIVE IN SOUTH SEAS

APIA, Samoa, Aug. 27.—(Associated Press).—Extensive German plantations and uncultivated lands, included in the "Samoan crown estates" by New Zealand under the mandatory power granted over Western Samoa at the close of the World War, have been submitted to public tender for leasing. No distinction of nationality was made, and most of the successful bidders were Germans.

EATS.

More agitation about eating foods containing vitamines, mysterious substances that keep us healthy. The savage is healthy, but doesn't worry about vitamines. Sir David C. Bruce, eminent scientist, tells why. The savage lives on the natural foods of the earth. It is only when man "begins by artificial means to polish his rice, whiten his flour and tin his beef and vegetables that the trouble begins."

We're still in fresh vegetable season. Get your vitamines naturally, especially by eating plenty of leaf vegetables, such as lettuce, spinach, Swiss chard and other greens.

LUMBERMEN PLAN LAUGH AT OMENS

Hoo, Hoo Organization Meet in Minneapolis in September.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 27.—(Associated Press).—The black cat with its superstitious nine lives will come into its own here September 8, 9 and 10, when the international annual meeting of the Concatenated Order of Hoo Hoo, fraternal organization of lumbermen, gets under way.

For the said cat with its alleged nine tails and like number of lives, is the accredited mascot of the concatenation and will play a part in the sessions which will be attended by more than 1,000 lumbermen from all parts of the United States and some from Canada, Panama and Mexico and the Philippines, those arranging the event declare.

To further show their disregard of old time superstition, the order has adopted the figure "9." Dues are $9.99 and life membership is $99.99. The lumbermen plan an unannounced feature at their "zero hour," the ninth minute, the ninth hour, of the ninth day of the ninth month.

The members of the order call themselves the "Friends of the Forest," and their aim is forest conservation and reforestation.

Organized in Gurdon, Ark., in 1892 by a group of lumbermen who were stranded in that town, the order has grown in membership to more than 35,000, with local clubs in virtually every large city of the country. From the beginning, its endeavor was to promote good fellowship among all lumbermen, foresters, manufacturers, retailers and wholesalers, emphasize the virtue of home ownership, finding of ways and means of increasing the uses of lumber and partaking of interest in civic enterprises.

NEWS OF BAILIEBORO.

Interesting Service Along the Roadside on Sunday.

BAILIEBORO, Aug. 27.—On Sunday afternoon, August 24th, a very interesting Sunday service was held along the roadside at Rice Lake. The service was conducted by Rev. Ramage of Monessen, Pennsylvania, who is camping at Rice Lake. His sermon or talk was given particularly for the Millbrook C. S. E. T. group of the Methodist Church, who are spending a couple of weeks camping at the lake. There were sixteen boys present from the camp, also many others. Mr. Ramage talked to the boys and tried to impress upon their minds the real purpose of prayer. The service corresponded to their usual Sunday School service, and after Mr. Ramage finished speaking, their Sunday School papers were distributed and the ordinary class collection taken.

Among those who were present at the C.S.E.T. camp over Sunday were: Bruce Freelove, Eldridge Todd, Ewart Carson, Reginald Willis, Gordon Blue, Aubrey Todd, Ernest Burnham, Joe Wobd, George Elson, Keith Barnard, Lawrence Rowland, George Clarke, Nelles Rowland, Frank Alcorn, Charles Garside, Chas. Rowland.

Personals.

Rev. and Mrs. Ramage and son Merrill of Monessen, Pa., are spending a couple of weeks at Rice Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Cowan and daughter spent the week-end at Barnard's Landing, and on Monday morning left for a trip back to Devil's Lake in Haliburton district. Mr. Cowan and family are on a tour from Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. John Perrin, Miss Jessie Perrin and Mr. and Mrs. Gray MacNeil of London are visiting friends in Bailieboro.

Misses Hattie and Charlotte Barnard are visiting friends in Peterborough.

Mrs. R. Storey and daughters, Helen and Vedra, have been visiting friends at Bailieboro.

JOLLY RELIGION TOUCHED CHORD IN WILD AFRICA

Zululand Smith Returns From His Work in Heart of Africa to Toronto.

BROUGHT RAIN.

Bishop of the Drum Carried Blood and Fire Banner Among Natives.

By. F. G. GRIFFIN.

THERE came to Toronto a few days ago for a brief visit an unobtrusive, white-haired man in Salvation Army uniform. His presence was not heralded in the papers. Crowds did not flock to hear him lecture in Massey Hall. You perhaps passed him on the street without a second glance. He was neither a Lord Roberts nor a Smuts, to be recognized at once through much picturing in the papers. And yet he is one of the heroes of African history, one of the heroes of Salvation Army history.

For he was Colonel Allister Smith, "Zululand" Smith as he is called by right of thirty years' service there, the Salvation Army Livingstone as he is known with pride by his comrades, not without right, for he followed bravely and worthily the Livingstone trail.

He was a bishop of the drum and the tambourine whose spiritual overlordship once stretched from the Cape to the black stretches of the Zambesi.

He was a man on whom descended literally the mantle of Elijah. For as Elijah once brought down rain from heaven before Ahab to confound the priests of Baal, so did this Salvation Army officer bring down rain from heaven at the challenge of a Zulu chief. He actually did, from a cloudless sky, in torrents. You may call it an answer to prayer, you may call it a coincidence, you may call it a lucky long shot, you may explain it how you will, but it happened. And if you read on you may learn how.

Such is the man who is now an international traveling inspector of the Salvation Army and who passed through Toronto recently on his travels when he related something of the story which makes him the heroic figure he undoubtedly is in spite of his modesty. Not that he was averse to talking of the Africa where his heart is, where he spent the flood-tide years of his life and his hair turned to the whiteness of fresh snow in the service of the black man. "My one desire," he said, "is to go back to Africa, if the general will permit, and end my days there. For I love the country and I love the people." But in the meantime he is following the inexorable law of the army that he must serve as a soldier where he is sent.

Years of speech in Bantu, Swahili and the other native dialects which he has had to learn to proclaim the God he follows have failed to obliterate all trace of his native tongue and he still talks with the pleasant burr of his Scottish youth.

It was just ten years after the Zulu war that under the command of the young Scotsman, Allister Smith, a small band of Salvation Army officers set out to carry the story of the Cross for the first time to these warlike natives. The massacre of Isandhlwana and the epic stand at Rorke's Drift were still fresh in men's minds. In many a kaffir kraal stood assegais and knob-berries still stained with British blood. The natives still bore the scars left by British bayonets.

This band of young men knew nothing of the country, which was looked on in South Africa as a sort of No Man's Land. They did not speak the language. But they set out with courage and faith at the command of the late General William Booth "to win Zululand for Christ" and to preach the gospel message to these fighting people.

At Durban they bought an old second-hand trek-wagon, a "covered wagon" of the veld like those of the early American west. They bought fourteen span of oxen and they trekked for thirteen days into the unknown northeast until they came to the kopje that broke sharp by the edge of the Amatikulu river, where they had been granted ten acres of ground from which to convert the country. It was only a few miles south of Ulundi, where the great Chief Cetywayo had had his kraal and where the Zulu power had been finally broken by the British under Lord Chelmsford in a last pitched battle. There they outspanned. And there they stayed.

Africans Enthusiastic Salvationists.

It was in 1890 that Smith and his comrades went into Zululand. From that small beginning the Salvation Army flowed into Natal and Cape Colony. They spread to the Rand in the Transvaal. They fitted out a great wagon at Kimberley, and with 22 oxen and 4 riding horses, given by the Boers, they started on a seven-months' trek to Salisbury in Mashonaland, where the rush was starting to the goldfields and where Cecil Rhodes gave them a great farm where sixty or seventy natives are constantly employed, where hundreds of them have learned the gospel of work and where Massey-Harris plows drawn by 22 oxen break six furrows at a time.

So that the time came when the Scots lad, Allister Smith, now known to tens of thousands of natives, to Zulus and Basutos, to Kaffirs of the Cape, to fierce Matabeles and Mashonas, by the name of Nkosana, "The Little Chief," was to rule a great spiritual command of colored souls which ran from the Cape Colony to the very heart of Africa. Three years ago when Colonel Smith left at the command of the Army to go to the colony of Kenya his successor on army corps of 10,000 enrolled native Salvationists, included among whom were nearly 200 bandsmen.

For this jolly religion which expressed itself in cymbals and drums and tambourines, in singing and shouted hallelujahs, appealed as "a bird that sings in the heart" to the hearts of the South African natives. They quickly picked up the technique of the Salvation soldiers. Many a kopje became a rallying point for Salvationist joy and the veld at a thousand points flamed with the torch of its fervent evangelism. One time General Booth, the old general, founder of the Army, came to Durban, and 6,000 natives, practically all men, crowded into a huge meeting in the municipal eating-house. It must have been a unique thing to see this mass of former savage fighting men join in the worship of a God of whom they had only recently heard and to hear them unite in their own tongue in the evangelistic hymns with which the crowded street corners of modern cities echo on Saturday nights, booming out in their deep, mellow voices such rolling old songs as "In the Sweet Bye and Bye." And at the end of the meeting at which the white-haired general spoke through an interpreter, it must have been a strang and moving thing to see 130 of thes natives crowd forward and kneel at the "mercy seat" to "seek salvation" from his God of whom the white men told.

The first meeting held by the Salvation Army in Zululand was in 1890 on that hilltop by the Amatikulu river on the Sunday after the arrival of Smith and his comrades. Everyone was invited. The young Salvationisst Mass against a mimosa tree which overspread them with its great arms. The sun beat down from the cloudless African sky.

Surrounding them was a great multitude of almost naked people, their swarthy skins glistening in the sunlight. The men, most splendid of native warriors, six feet tall many of them and over, beautifully proportioned, muscles rippling on their arms and legs when they moved, many of them wearing the rubber rings of battle honor on their heads, most of them carrying knobkerries, some here and there standing straight with their deadly assegais, were massed on the right. On the left were the women. Between the two groups were the younger people

Their eager eyes were turned on these strange people who had invited them to come and hear of a strange God. These eyes inspired him, Col. Smith declared, and as simply as he could he told them of the God of love. When he had finished he asked in the traditional Army way in words that they might understand if any of them "would like to become servants of the living God." Two men raised their hands and said, "I do."

One of these men was a soldier. On his legs and arms he bore the scars of battle. He was a veteran of Isandhlwana and Ulundi. He had fought against the British. To-day he is a native officer of the Salvation Army. He has been for more than twenty-five years a spiritual soldier.

There was no "penitent bench" at this first meeting on the kopje beneath the sky. So Col. Smith asked the two natives to kneel beside a stone. And he talked to them of God, and at last they began to understand a little.

Thus was born the Salvation Army in the heart of Zululand.

It was only the beginning, though. The Salvationists had to learn the language and customs of the natives and earn their regard. They had to put up buildings. They actually made pricks to do so. They appealed for, obtained and distributed clothing. The first distribution had funny results. There was not enough to go round, so it was divided as far as it would go among the eager natives, a coat to one, a shirt to another, a pair of trousers to a third. The following Sunday the worshippers came all dressed up. An old woman who in her unregenerate days had been a witch doctor had been given a skirt. It would not meet round her ample waist. So she had buttoned it round her neck. Others made equally funny attempts at sporting scraps of civilized clothes.

Later Col. Smith's fiancee came out from the Old Country and became his wife, joining him in the devoted work which was being carried on among the Zulus. They established a medical side to their work. Mrs. Smith even set the fractured arms of men. This work was not without its humorous side. One day a towering Zulu came to Mrs. Smith with his head swathed in bandages. Only his rolling eyes and his nose could be seen. He looked like the victim of a massacre, but he was merely the victim of three days and nights of toothache. He unwound his bandages pointed to his jaw and asked the Salvationist to "pull it out." It was to no purpose that she declared that she had not the necessary implements. The big Zulu squatted down on the step to wait her dentistry.

So, at a loss, she went to the carpenter's tool box and brought forth a pair of pliers. "This tool is for pulling nails," she explained, "but if you wish, I'll try it."

The Zulu was willing. He opened his mouth wide and showed a tooth which was causing a great inflammation. Mrs. Smith adjusted the pliers and gave a pull. The pliers slipped. The native howled. Then he shouted, "Pain all gone." But the tooth was still there.

So Mrs. Smith tried again. She told the native to pull while she held on to the pliers. The Zulu did. The tooth came out with a jerk and he fell over backwards. He was delighted. He examined the tooth with glee. "I'll tell everybody," he cried. He did. The natives came in scores to have their teeth pulled. So many came that the Smiths had to send out for forceps. Since then they have pulled hundreds of teeth.

The work had its tragedies, too, and Christianity its native martyrs. The chief of a certain village gave orders that none of his wives were to go to the "penitent bench"—some of the Zulus, by the way, are almost as polygamous as Solomon, one friend of Col. Smith's having 42 wives and 172 children. But one night after meeting his chief wife rose from the audience and knelt in acknowledgment. Another of his wives, to curry favor with her lord, ran to the kraal and told him. Furious, he picked up his knobkerry crying, "I will show you what I will do to a dog of a wife who does not obey."

As the offending woman left the gospel hall she was met by her husband, and a great crowd of people. Without preliminary the chief struck her on the head with the stick so that she fell to the ground half-conscious. Then he demanded that she give up this God of the white man. She refused. He beat her savagely. Then he ordered his people back to the kraal, declaring that death would be the fate of any who gave her food or drink.

The woman recovered consciousness got on her hands and knees painfully and crawled to the mountains. There for eleven days she lived on berries, watching as she grew weaker and death crept near, the kraal of her people.

One day she saw a man leave the kraal and climb the mountains to her. It was a messenger from her husband, the chief, with the command to bring her to him. So she was led into the presence of the royal Zulu where he sat in savage state on his skin-covered throne. To her surprise the chief declared, "This, my wife, is prepared to die for God and the Salvation Army. I give to her the right to go to the Salvation Army and serve her God. And I dare anyone to interfere with her."

This wife of a chief became a Salvation soldier and later rose before her death ten years later to the rank of sergeant-major.

Chief Tshingwayo's Jealousy

But of all Col. Smith's experience none has the drama of the time that he brought down rain from heaven as Elijah did in the days of Ahab to confound the priests of Baal. The actions and results of the Hebrew prophet and the modern Salvation Army officer ran strangely parallel courses which there is no explaining.

It was the big crisis in the career of the Salvation Army in Zululand.

Col. Smith had been three years at work. He had slowly but surely laid the foundations of a belief in God among the native people. Then he noticed at the meetings in the little Citadel on "Salvation hill," as the kopje came to be called, a decline in attendance. Soon it became so noticeable that there were no worshippers scarcely but his own people.

The chief, Tshingwayo, had given secret orders that his people were not to attend the meetings and that the children were to stay away from the school. He was jealous of the growing influence of the Salvationists and took this way to check it. Col. Smith was not hurt. He put himself in the other fellow's place. "After all," he said to himself, "at the best we are uninvited guests. We thrust ourselves on him." So he gathered his people together and asked them to pray for help in the crisis that was come on the work.

To add to the trouble a great drought struck the land. A blighting prolonged absence of rain. For weeks the sun blazed pitilessly from the cloudless sky. Every day the people looked at the heavens for the rain that never came. The maize crop burned in the ground. The pasture land became dry and baking. The milk of the cows were dried up. The cows failed and died. The children failed and died through lack of milk and meal. The people lamented. Their tears and their cries ascended in vain.

The chief Tshingwayo sent for the greatest witch doctor of the Zulus. He promised him a big fee in cattle. So the doctor danced and exhorted, danced and chanted till he foamed at the mouth and writhed on the ground in the frenzy of his prayers, shouting to the skies, "Rain, I command you to come."

He failed. The rain did not come. So the chief humbled himself and sent a messenger to the Salvationists asking them to hold a meeting and pray to the white man's God for rain. It was up to them. The time of trial had come. The Salvationists accepted the challenge. They sent their compliments to Chief Tshingwayo and told him to order his people to the prayer meeting which they would hold on the hill the following Sunday when they would pray to their God for rain to save the land.

Sunday morning came, cloudless, rainless. The sun poured down its pitiless rays as it had poured them down for weeks. The parched land stretched on all sides gasping in the heat. If Col. Smith had any doubts about this testing of faith he concealed them and strode with his friends to the hilltop.

A wonderful sight met his eyes. As far as the eyes could reach were the Zulus coming even from the distant kraals. Away on the hills their impis wound slowly in silent procession. Across the plain they came. And along the valleys by the winding river. They waded the drifts. They came nearer and nearer. They massed themselves on the hill and stood in rows on the burnt grass.

The majestic scene of the gathering natives in their barbaric undress, their skins, the fringes round their legs, the rings on their heads, was not without its touch of grotesque comedy. A magnificent Zulu, one of the tallest of these tall men, six feet four inches high, came with a family umbrella of ancient vintage. The other Zulus in spite of their sorrow and the solemnity of the occasion chaffed him with cries of, "Hello, Jo-Jo, where did you get the tent? Will you let us shelter under it?"

"Well," answered Jo Jo unperturbed, "we're commanded to pray for rain and it might rain." An answer which showed that Jo-Jo was not without his modicum of faith.

Faith and Miracles.

After a preliminary parable in which Col. Smith pointed that his lips were padlocked by the fact that the elders were the enemies of God an old man exclaimed, "He's quite right. We brought the drought on ourselves." So they removed the padlock by asking him to pray.

So Colonel Smith began, "Zulu people, say after me, 'O God send the rain'."

The prayer was taken up only by a few at first. Then others gradually joined in until in the end the whole multitude were chanting the simple prayer so that the sound of it rose like the booming of waves on the shore. They kept their eyes on the sky. But there was no sign of rain. The sun still blazed down. Not a hint of a cloud was anywhere in sight.

They sang hymns. Then they prayed again. They kept their invocation up for nearly three hours, becoming so engrossed in the supplication that they forgot time and weather.

Suddenly over the sound of their prayer came a low muttering like the rumble of distant thunder. The crowd stopped in amazement and looked towards the east. And there no bigger than a man's hand on the horizon was a trace of cloud. The people pointed and exclaimed. As they watched the cloud grew and rolled up from the sea in great banks. Nearer and nearer it came. The sky darkened. The sun died out. Flashes of jagged lightning shot across the coming storm.

Suddenly, the rain came, in great splashes on the wondering people. In a few minutes it was lashing them in torrents.

"Zulu people," announced Col. Smith with awe in his own soul, "God has heard your prayers in a wonderful way. Run to your homes."

There came a tremendous rain. The drought was thoroughly broken. Next day as Colonel Smith rode through the country he saw the women in the fields tending the crops and trying to save the harvest. They came near as he passed to hail him as a great rain maker and deliverer.

That was the turning point in the history of the mission to the Zulus. The chief became a convert to the God who could send rain in such a way. Three years ago when Col. Smith was leaving the chief sent for him to say farewell. He was old now and nearly blind. He said, "I'll not see you on earth again, teacher, but I'll see you in heaven. Old Tshingwayo will be waiting for you there."

So much for a few of the highlights in the story of a man which would fill a fat volume. For in his thirty years in South Africa he was in journeyings oft and dangers often. He and his wife. Once his wife was sitting in their dining room when an officer, entering, urgently asked her to get him something from the kitchen. She complied and thereby missed the fangs of a deadly snake which was poised on a cupboard behind her ready to strike at her neck.

Once a spitting snake rained its deadly spray into the eyes of two of their children. The parents came at their cries. They laid the little ones on a table and poured into their eyes fresh milk which was coagulated by the poison so that it could be picked out like pieces of white thread. A few days in a darkened room and the children gradually recovered.

Colonel Smith has crossed the Tugela and the Amatikulu rivers in the teeth of a rushing flood, in the darkness of night and the fury of an African thunderstorm when one false step would sweep them to death by drowning or from the crocodiles which infested the banks.

One evening at dusk crossing a drift of the Great Tugela, which forms the boundary between Zululand and Natal, Col. Smith's horse stepped into a quicksand up to its shoulders. He fought his way out and seemed safe when the horse plunged into another. Once more he struggled out but before he reached the bank he had to tackle a third. Three quicksands in one trip is enough to try any man's nerve. No wonder the Salvation Army officer when he at last reached the shore raised his heart in a cry of thankfulness to the God he served.

HON. T. A. LOW TO WEST INDIES

Canadian Minister of Trade Likely To Seek Trade Agreement.

PRELIMINARY WORK.

OTTAWA, August 27 (Canadian Press). — While no announcement has been made respecting the appointment of a Canadian to investigate trade conditions in the West Indies, with a view to negotiating a new trade agreement between the Dominion and that colony, it is probable that the Hon. Thomas A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce, will go south to carry on the preliminary work.

The Government is committed to an examination of the possibilities of developing trade with the West Indies, and as the work would come under the Department of Trade and Commerce, it is quite possible that the Minister himself will be asked to carry on the investigation.

Though it is understood that the appointments were made at the Cabinet meeting yesterday, which will be announced upon the approval of the Governor-General, it is also understood that several of the important vacancies will not be filled until the early fall.

Dr. S. J. McLean will likely act as chief railway commissioner throughout the hearing of the protests against the Crow's Nest Pass rates which will commence in 17th September.

The trade agreement with Australia, which has been pending for some time past, will not be disposed of until after the return of the Hon. J. A. Robb last this week. Mr. Robb, as Minister of Trade and Commerce, was in charge of negotiating the agreement in its early stages.

The Cabinet will not meet again this week, Premier King, accompanied by Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, speaking in Peterborough to-morrow; in Wiarton on Friday, and in St. Catharines on Saturday.

NO FEAR OF EVIL resulting from change of diet, water or climate, concerns those who take on the short trip, summer vacation or long journey.

PRINCE WINS PRIZE.

Booby Prize Awarded Wales For Costume at Fancy Dress Affair.

ON BOARD THE BERENGIA, August 27.—(Canadian Press).—The Price of Wales was awarded the "booby" prize last night for his costume at a fancy dress affair. At a late hour he entered the ball-room of the liner made up to represent an apache.

The Prince wore a large peaked cap at a saucy angle and sweater turned inside out in simulation of one of the denizens of the mysterious Limehouse.

TO A HUMMING BIRD.

(Mrs. A. F. Calder.)

On thy light gossamer wing,
Swift as sunbeam's glancing ray,
Quaffing deep the honeyed spring,
Of each floweret by the way.

Like a vision of delight
Glide for thee the summer hours,
Ever winged their fragrant flight,
With sweet perfume of fair flowers

For many chilly frost winds blow,
Beauteous blossoms fade and die,
And beneath cold drifting snow
All their transient glories lie.

Then, where summer reigns serene
Cloudless skies are ever bright,
Fields and forests robed in green,
Thou will wing thy happy flight.

So when from this world of ours
Life's fair hopes and joys decay,
May we in celestial bowers,
Find the bliss that lasts for aye.

U. S. AIRMAN TO HOP THURSDAY

Last Flight Over Sea From Greenland To Labrador—Nearing the End.

MESSAGE WAITING.

WASHINGTON, August 27 Canadian Press). — The United States world fliers plan to embark on Thursday on their final water jump from Ivigtut, Greenland, to Indian Harbour, Labrador, Lieut. Smith, commanding the flight, informed the Army Air Service yesterday.

After a brief stop at the latter port for fuel, the flight is to be continued the same day 40 miles to Cartwright Bay, where a base has been established.

The despatch from Lieut. Smith declared preparations had been practically completed so far as the Greenland party was concerned.

The special naval squadron cooperating with the fliers, also was drawing into cover the last serious hazard.

The flagship Milwaukee was at Indian Harbour yesterday, and the cruiser Richmond, reported en route, was due there to-day.

End in Sight.

With the practical end of the 26,000 mile journey in prospect, steps were taken in Government circles to arrange a fitting welcome. A message of congratulation from President Coolidge will be handed the pilots when they disembark at Indian Harbour, to be followed by felicitations from the chiefs of their own service, and of other Government branches at some later point along the route.

The question of a more material evidence of appreciation has been informally discussed both in military circles and among the civilian leaders of aviation, but no detailed plan has yet been evolved.

Testimonials to the courage and perseverance shown in the world flight will be placed on the permanent records of the fliers in the War Department.

Thanks Pour In.

Messages of congratulation for the part played by the Navy in the rescue of Lieutenant Locatelli, the Italian aviator continued to pour in to Secretary Wilbur's office yesterday.

Among them was a telegram expressing the gratitude of the National Italian World Veterans' Association, for the "spirit of comraderie shown by the United States Navy."

ROUGH SEA HELD ITALIAN PLANE

sio and I were unable to handle the plane alone.

Drifted 100 Miles

"Friday we drifted far south of Cape Farewell and Saturday and Sunday we drifted 100 miles east. We did not see any ships. The fog lifted Friday, allowing a view of the coast. But it was too far for us to consider taxing with only six hundred litres of gasoline remaining. I kept a careful watch of our positions and always knew exactly where we were. Sunday, the two engineers recovered somewhat and we made an effort to take off but the rear engine was cranky because of splashing water."

"We kept the plane in the wind, using the ailerons, and maintained watches day and night. A small lamp was kept burning above the engine during the darkness. We even sent a message in a bottle, giving our position, the direction and the drift.

"The last night I had a premonition. I was on watch, and I fired for the first time, personally, a rocket. Soon after, one of the engineers shouted:

"'I see a light.'

"I at first paid no attention because on the previous night the same man had called me, believing that the planet Venus was a vessel's light. But soon signals from the Richmond were plainly seen and then the vessel's searchlight caught us. We were all delighted and thankful although there was no immediate danger of death, with a six day's supply of food and water on hand."

Lieut. Marescalchi, pilot who accompanied Locatelli part of the distance ,was on the deck of the Richmond when the flares from the stranded monoplane were seen. He dropped to his knees half sobbing and half praying, murmuring the name of "Locatelli".

Turned on Searchlight

The Richmond trained powerful searchlights on the monoplane and Lieut. Locatelli could be seen standing on the bow of the tossing yellow monoplane. The Italian national colors were on the tail of the flying vessel.

Locatelli started shouting, using the famous fascisti cry:

"Allala."

The sailors tossed a line to the crew of the plane and dragged it beside the Richmond. It was battered against the ship and for a time the four Italians were in danger. They stripped the plane of instruments and clothing punctured the gasoline tank and boarded the Richmond.

Sailors ignited the machine and cast it adrift. Flames lapped the fuselage and the glare lighted the dark, freezing night.

The Italians were fed hot coffee and sandwiches and given rubdowns immediately after boarding the Richmond. They were extremely grateful for the United States navy's search for them

"I saw the saerchlights and I knew we were saved. We were thankful," Ldcatelli said.

DARROW QUOTED

had no money. We have grown to think it a misfortune not to have it. But the terrible misfortune in this terrible case is that they had money. That destroyed their lives and brought us here. Wealth unlimited is a terrible misfortune in every step of life. Yet we have come almost to the point of belief that human instincts, logic, sympathy and love can only be obtained for cash. This has corrupted the hearts of nearly all our people."

"What had this boy to do with his life? He was not his own father. He was not his own mother. He was not his own grandparents. All this was handed to him. He did not surround himself with governesses and with wealth. And yet, he is asked to pay a penalty. Shall we hold them responsible? Shall we deck Chicago as if in holiday and hang them so that the cry for blood may be appeased? Shall we have them suffer contrary to the wisdom of all the sages, all the seers, all the great teachers of the ages?

"For God's sake, are we all crazy?"

"I know there is no better citizen in Chicago than the father of this boy" (pointing to Loeb). "I know there is no better woman in Chicago than his mother. But I am going to be honest with this court. I am going to say that this crime was inherited by this boy from his ancestors, or else it is the product of his training after he was born.

"To say that youth is responsible for its own actions independent of heredity and training is a proposition that can no longer be defended by lawyer or judge. If this boy had been understood and had he had the training, which was proper for him, he would not have been in this court room to-day with the noose hanging over his head."

Mr. Darrow quoted from the first letter of St. Paul to the Corinthians:

"When I was a child, I saw as a child, I spoke as a child, I thought as a child, but when I became a man, I put away childish things."

Analyzes Character of Loeb.

Beginning his analysis of Leopold, the lawyer said the lad "sought to fathom all the philosophies, to understand all things and to put away all feelings. He became enamored with the philosophy of Nietzsche."

"Babe believed that a superman might become an actuality. The philosophy which was never intended to be applied in life became the rule and guide of his life. He and Dickie Loeb were the supermen. Here were boys who, through the day and the night, thought superman; they lived it. It became a religion and a code of life. They were victims of their own delusion. His own doctrine made Neitzsche a maniac. And here is a 16-year-old boy who takes that philosophy, it becomes his life.

"The death of little Bobby Franks should not have been in vain. This poor tragic death of this weak young lad should mean something. It should mean an appeal to the fathers and mothers and to the teachers and to the leaders to live closer to the young. It should mean that the death of Bobby Franks will come to the mothers and fathers, and the brothers and sisters who have read of this case as a warning to look into the lives of their children, to endeavor to understand them, to know what moves them and to guide and direct them that they may dodge the pitfalls of life."

Crowe Is Adamant.

"As the judge of this court, you have no right to forgive anyone who trespasses against the State of Illinois," State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe thundered at Chief Justice John R. Caverly yesterday in demanding the death penalty for Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb.

"You have no right to forgive anyone brought before this court for trespassing the laws. You must deal with them as the law prescribes."

Again and again Crowe walked near the boys and with fists upraised thundered denunciation after denunciation upon them.

"This young fool, Nathan Leopold, says there is no God," Crowe shouted.

"I wonder, Nathan, whether you believe it was a pure accident or divine Providence that caused you to drop these glasses so that the laws of the State of Illinois could be prosecuted and the wrath of God visited upon your miserable carcass?"

Turning his attention back to Justice Caverly, Crowe denounced the testimony of the four defence alienists who said they found Leopold and Loeb "mentally irresponsible."

"Three wise men came out of the east," Crowe declared, referring to Doctors William A. White, of Washington; Wm. Healey, of Boston, and Bernard Glueck, of New York City—the fourth alienist, Dr. Harold Hulbert, is a Chicago physician.

"Three wise men came out of the east," Crowe repeated, "and one of them was so sacrilegious as to declare utterly without supporting testimony, that Nathan Leopold considered himself the Christ child. What could be more blasphemous? Nathan Leopold, who since eleven years of age has raised his fiendish voice and said 'there is no God.'

"What could be more utterly false, more sacrilegious and more blasphemous?"

OPPORTUNITY OPEN TO GREAT BRITAIN

Manufacturers of Old Land Losing Great Chance Here.

EXAMPLES GIVEN.

A hundred years ago Great Britain, with her natural assets of coal and iron, was twenty years ahead of the rest of the world in the development of the steam engine. The combination was irresistible and the opening of the Victorian era ushered in a rising tide of national prosperity which almost lasted out the century. During those golden years this country led the world in manufactured exports, writes George Bulkeley in the Daily Mail.

Those days are now past and increasing competition is being met with and the logical policy of developing with the other portions of the Empire is swept aside as though not worth a thought. Consider how British manufacturers' chances are dwindling in Canada. Across Canada, from Atlantic to Pacific, United States manufacturers are steadily establishing branch factories to supply the Canadian people with almost all their needs.

Why not British branch factories? What are we missing and what have we already missed? Take only two manufactured products, widely different—railway locomotives and church organs. Comparatively early in the development of Canadian railways it became necessary for more locomotives to be built than the companies' own workshops could produce. An American locomotive company saw the opportunity and grasped it. The Montreal Locomotive Company is the result. There would seem to have been no reason why one of our private locomotive builders could not have established a factory in Montreal and built locomotives to the designs and requirements of the Canadian railways.

Why Britons Fail.

Now as to church organs. Churches and chapels of all denominations in Canadian towns and cities are centres of pride and interests to the large congregations who attend them; money is readily forthcoming for first-class church equipment and organists are paid good salaries as professional men. As a result almost every place of worship has a high-class organ.

The manufacture of organs is live business and is practically a monopoly of a French-Canadian company, except for the special and complicated instruments with which the large kinematograph theatres are being equipped: for these Canada goes to the United States.

If there is a manufactured product in which Great Britain stands supreme it is the church organ, but so far no attempt has been made to establish a branch factory in Canada. A new cathedral is about to be built in Victoria, the capital city of British Columbia. Will one of our great organ builders secure the contract for its instrument?

It may be said that some British firms have already located factories in Canada and some have had to close down. That may be so, but the reasons for such failure can probably be stated as insufficient knowledge of Canadian requirements and starting on too large a scale.

The End of Opportunity.

The ways to success for British manufacturers in Canada are principally two: First, to send out some of their live young men for about two years to make a study of Canadian conditions, requirements and modes of business, letting some of them enter the employ of those already conducting the particular business and learn its salient features from A to Z, and, secondly, then to establish the smallest branch factory in Canada that can reasonably be expected to break into the business and command a sale. It is always easy to extend later as the business grows, as it will do if it supplies what is wanted in the way that Canadians want it.

So far as Canada is concerned, a comparatively few more years will see the end of opportunity for British manufacturers to establish branch factories there for the plain reason that the United States will have already planted branch factories of her own, or capitalized Canadian factories, for every produce needed. Already for every twenty-five million dollars invested in Canada by Great Britain the United States invests some two hundred millions.

This country's need is not politicians whose statements regarding Empire development, however admirable, are couched in language too academical and devoid of enthusiasm to arouse those "who only England know"; but business men of imagination who will carry the fiery cross of Empire trade throughout the length and breadth of these islands.

NEWS OF WARSAW.

Harvesters Leave For the West—Funeral of Levi Payne.

WARSAW, Aug. 26.—Mr. and Mrs. Daniel MacDonald, who formerly lived near Warsaw, but are now at the Soo, motored from there arriving in Warsaw Thursday night. They are renewing old acquaintances, here and elsewhere east.

Miss Lena Dewart, Peterboro, spent a few days last week with her cousins Verna and Lena Miller.

Mrs. Robert Matthews has returned from her two week's visit with her sisters in Michigan.

Mrs. Julia Choate Graham and children leaves for her home in Rose town, Sask., this week.

Mrs. H. D. MassonDonald returned to Campbellford after a fortnight's visit with relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell, Toronto, also Mr. Brown an old friend came to attend Mr. Payn'es funeral.

Miss Laura Bowen is spending her holidays in Lakefield. Jean Bowen is relieving her in the telephone office.

Miss Mabel Beighton, Port Hope, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Charles Bowen.

Among the young men who left for the West on Friday, were Hiram Anderson, Gordon Bowen, Hilliard Crowe, Milford Payne, Harry Matthews and Garfield Little, Lawrence McCracken went also but was to take a different route.

John Moore of the village, with his nephew Joseph Gallagher his wife and children also have gone West to visit Mr. Moore's sister, who is very ill at Hersel, Sask. Mrs. Samuel Hamblin, Mrs. Gallagher's grand mother is of the party but goes to Gand, Manitoba.

Next Sunday afternoon there will be an Orange service in Mr. Deen's grove, if not, in the Anglican church Rev. Mr. Cox will conduct the service.

On Monday evening, Sept. 1st the members of the Dummer Sunday School Executive are requested to meet in the Methodist Sunday School room.

There will be no service in the Presbyterian church next Sunday. Rev. F. G. Weir preached to Union Congregation last evening, on "What will it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul."

Mr. Stark, Toronto, sang: "I know not why."

There will be no preaching service in Cotessloe next Sunday Sabbath School and Bible Class at 10.30 a.m.

The funeral of the late Levi Payne on Friday afternoon was a very large one. Besides the sad, and tragic death, he was well known and respected and had a very large family connection. Rev. W. Atkinson conducted the services at the house and at the cemetery. The Orangemen took their part in the service. Many Orangemen from other parts were present. There were many beautiful floral tributes. The bearers were six nephews: Messrs. Mark Robinson Toronto, James Robinson, Arthur Payne and Lorne Lonsberry, Warsaw, Mark Lonsberry, Norwood and Wm. Bickle, Smith.

Mrs. Payne died some years ago and their only child, a son, died in early childhood. Two sisters survive Mrs George Lonsberry, Norwood, and Mrs. Thomas Doughty, Warsaw also a foster daughter Bessie Lonsdale, now Mrs. Fred Campbell, Toronto.

Mr. Payne"s neighbors feel they have lost a neighbor whose worth cannot easily be replaced.

REVENUES JUMP.

Hungary's Revenues Take a Jump Under Re-organization.

GENEVA, Aug. 27.—(Associated Press).—Rosy reports continue to come to the League of Nations from Hungary where a Massachusetts man, Jeremiah Smith, Jr., is filling the position of high commissioner in the task of achieving the financial reconstruction of that country.

As was the case in Austria last year, the stabilization of the currency in Hungary has been followed by a marked increase in all state incomes. The tobacco monopoly has furnished results especially noteworthy. While the League of Nations experts reckoned that the average monthly return for the first six months of 1924 would be 1,500,000 gold crowns and 2,000,000 crowns for the second semestre, the fact is that the tobacco receipts for the month of April reached 2,800,000 gold crowns. During the first 20 days of June the tobacco revenue climbed to 5,000,000 gold crowns.

This extraordinary increase is partly attributed to an energetic reorganization of the system of tobacco sale. Commissioner Smith will return to Geneva in the latter part of August to make a further report to the Council of the League, which meets just before the annual reunion of the assembly.

AIRPLANES COMPETE WITH TRAINS

KOENIGSBERG, Germany, Aug. 27.—(Associated Press).—Travel by air in Germany is almost as cheap as a second-class ticket in a train. The cost to go from here to Berlin by airplane is 80 marks, while by rail it is 64 marks.

PICK-POCKETS PASSING AWAY YEAR BY YEAR

Peterborough Crowds Are Particularly Free From the Light Fingered Fraternity.

LOCAL OPINIONS.

Parking of Cash in Unlikely Spots on Persons Largely Responsible.

Pickpockets are as scarce in Peterborough as the old-fashiined powder-fearing girl, police told The Examiner to-day.

The crowds which will flock to the city for the big rally on Thursday prompted the question as to what may be expected in the way of raids by the light-fingered fraternity who once upon a time infested every large gathering.

The principal reason advanced for the departure of this particular type of artist is that a thief can never tell where a man carries his purse. In the old days, when picking purses was a paying business in the city and at country fairs, it was an almost universal custom to carry the pocketbook in the side and hip pockets of the trousers.

To-day the gamble is too great. Modern men have a diversity of places to pack their purses. Many carry a bill fold in the hip pocket, and their loose change in the side trousers pocket. Some carry their paper money in the lengthier legal fold place in the inside coat pocket.

Then there are vest pockets, trouser watch pockets, trick pockets, inside other pockets, inside the vest, and in other odd and unexpected places, all of which are pressed into the money transporting business.

Work for Clairvoyant.

Unless the pickpocket was a clairvoyant or a particularly good guesser he might spend a whole day in this district locating the hiding-places of the coveted purses, and then nine times out of ten he would find it in some such ticklish position as next to his victim's ribs.

The old-time pickpocket considered it unethical to snatch a woman's purse and invariably black-balled every cut-purse who applied for admission to his union. Then, deprived of their former easy and comfortable livelihood from men's pockets and purses, these journeymen of their trade, who formerly so jealously guarded the traditions and ideals of their order, now stoop to snatching feminine money bags and rolls. The practice, fortunately is rare in Peterborough.

Revealing Pocketbooks.

Speaking of pocketbooks, a Peterborough dealer in that article of human habiliment vouchsafed the information that you can tell a man by the kind of purse he carries just as accurately as by the clothes he wears. His purse-elogical chart finds the long, one-fold legal pocketbook in the possession of the professional man, the insurance man, and the railroad conductor. Office employees, merchants and tradesmen invariably prefer the pocketbook with the double fold that just fits the hip pocket and provides a place for the automobile license card and the lodge identification card.

The old fashioned purse with the metal jaws and leatner bag can still be found on the persons of country cousins and inside the imposing hand-bag so popular with the modern woman. They were particularly adapted to carrying coins, but among the faithful they are still doing double duty as a safety deposit for greenbacks and silver change.

Then there are two species of men who carry no pocketbook. One of these neatly folds his bills one by one and carefully distributes them over his person in not too cavernous pockets or between the leaves of a notebook. He is frequently seen doing the family shopping, and is strongly opposed to all new-fangled notions and unnecessary extravagances.

The other fellow who spurns the pocketbook is he who wraps his paper money in a roll, snaps a rubber band around it, clinches it in his fist and thrusts the whole into his trousers pocket. Formerly the right hand pocket was favored but now the majority of men seem to use the left, probably an instinctive throwback to the ages when the right hand must be free to defend what the owner valued.

Another man who sometimes carries no billfold or pocket book is he who has nothing to carry in it, although there are men who have spent the last fifty cents they owned on the purchase of a pocket book they fancied.

However, crowds are not now the menace they were in former days, and Peterborough is singularly free from the bag snatcher and pocketbook lifter. Probably Thursday will pass without a single case being reported to the police, as have other recent fete days.

INTERNATIONAL LAW

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 7.—Territorial limits at sea, the safeguarding of the rights of minorities in the League of Nations, aviation laws and international commercial arbitration are some of the important international questions which will be discussed by about 200 of the worlds' most prominent lawyers at the thiry-third congress of the International Law Association in Stockholm, Sept. 8-13.

England will send about 100 delegates to Stockholm, the American section of the International Law Association will be represented by at least a dozen delegates, and the proceedings promise to be of great significance.

EXPORTS SHOW INCREASE.

NEWS FROM KEENE

Social Evening Marks Departure of Miss Kate Shearer.

KEENE, August 26. — A very pleasant evening was spent at the home o Mr. and Mrs. William Chapman last Friday evening, when the members of the C.G.I.T. Group of the Methodist Sunday school gathered to spend a social evening and bid farewell to one of their members, Miss Kate Shearer, who is leaving next Monday for Oshawa, where she will enter the hospital as nurse-in-training.

Miss Shearer will not only be missed by her class mates as she was an active leader in various athletic sports, and a prime favorite with everyone. At the close of the evening's entertainment the accompanying address was read —

Miss Katie Shearer:

Dear Katie: We believe you have thrown away the yard stick and the weighing scales to measure doses of pills and powders for pale people.

In place of doles of sugar and spice and all things nice, you will give to patient people blood bitters and other things horrid.

But we could not let you go without some expression for you, of our good wishes, so we desire you to accept this pen as a slight token of our affection. We will miss your enthusiasm and readiness to help both in work and in play.

We hope the lessons that you have learned in the C.G.I.T. will enable you to live the four-fold life in your career as a nurse.

We trust that you will find your old patients congenial, and your tasks light and that you will often use this pen to keep in touch with your old friends at Keene.

Signed on behalf of the C.G.I.T. group.

RUSSIAN ARTIST.

Once Famous Painter Passes Old Age in Finland.

KUOKKALA, Finland, Aug. 27.—Almost forgotten by a world that once adored him, Ilya Repine, one of the foremost Russian painters of his generation, recently celebrated his eightieth birthday. He is living in seclusion here, nursed by his daughter.

It was Repine who, back in 1869, led the revolt against the Petersburg Academy of Art, which had become thoroughly stagnant and unwilling to accept any new ideas. He organized a secession movement known as "The Wanderers," from the fact that the group of painters who seceded took their exhibition from city to city. Their slogan was life, truth, movement, and freedom in the use of color.

Repine turned exclusively to Russian national themes. Russian sagas and fairy tales often supplied the theme. He was also fond of depicting the life of the submerged masses of Russian with a realism and fearlessness which would have landed him in jail had he not been so prominent.

INVITATION FROM THE DUFFUS MOTOR SALES

We have just received word from the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., that they will have two Exhibits at the Canadian National Exhibition this year. One of these Exhibits will be in the south east corner of the Exhibition Building, and will be known as the "Transportation Exhibit." The other exhibit will be known as outside "Eastern Entrance Exhibit and will be located just east of the lawn in front of the Coliseum.

Every possible use for Ford cars, trucks, an tractors will be demonstrated. Special equipment of all kinds will be shown.

At the "Eastern Entrance Exhibit" a daily programme of lectures and motion pictures, running continuously from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., will provide a great deal of helpful information on Ford products and Ford policies.

A ladies' rest room and a day nursery are provided for Ford owners, and their friends, at the Eastern Entrance Exhibit.

The job you are interested in will be exhibited and we want you to see it for yourself.

Hoping to see you at the "Eastern Entrance Exhibit," Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, we remain, Yours very truly,

MARMORA HEARS HOME MINISTER

Prof. S. R. Haycock Speaks To Congregation in Old Home Town.

MARMORA, August 26. — It is rare that a small town is afforded the privilege of hearing one of its sons whom it has given to the ministry, since when such return, it is generally with the specific purpose of taking a holiday amidst the scenes of boyhood. It was with gladness of heart, therefore, that the united congregations of the Methodist Church heard that Prof. S. R. Laycock, of Edmonton University, would waive this custom and conduct their evening worship for them on Sunday, 24th August, while on a holiday at his old home.

Taking as his text "Thy kingdom come,' 'the preacher, by way of preface, said that no passage of Scripture was more widely known than the Lord's Prayer. Yet it could not be said that it was the best known, though Christians of every sect and country unite in its usage. It is too often mechanically uttered, because like writing, reading or walking, it has become a habit. Habit is a good thing in life when it releases us from a lot of mechanical details. What is prayer? Does it consist in repeating over and over again a formula we have learned? The heathen does this without paying attention to the meaning. Following an outline of what Jesus said and did in relation to prayer, Prof. Laycock asserted that the coming of the Kingdom was hampered within the Church by two things in particular. There is the attitude of pessimism. With the presence of the many social evils in the world many wonder if God is not to be defeated and Satan to triumph. Many believe they are necessarily attached to a losing cause. Then there is misunderstanding as to how the Kingdom is to come. Do we think our whole duty is performed by repeating the petition, "Thy Kingdom come?" The Kingdom must be built. God builds through human life and makes us His partners in this great work. When God manifested Himself to the world, He did so through Jesus Christ in human form and personality. He might have done so otherwise, but He did not. The way of the Kingdom is a slow, laborious and self-sacrificing way.

This was the way Jesus chose, and touched others with vision and inspiration to follow. Contrary to expectations He laid the foundations of His kingdom in an unspectacular way. To work for His Kingdom means the establishment from time to time of new attitudes and points of view. Abolition of slave trade and also prison reform came through new attitudes. So to-day will social evils such as the drug habit and intemperance be abolished.

Men and women must give time and service to see this come to pass. Our task as Christians to-day lies in [illegible] cleaning up sin and disease. It is our task to build Christ-like individuals. Religious education has a place in the programme of the Church to-day which it once did not have. Christ-like characteristics must be built from infancy. The Kingdom of Jesus Christ is a world kingdom refusing to be bound by any barriers.

Our civilisation has no claim to being eternal unless it measures up to the Divine. The concluding thought was fellowship in the Kingdom. The division of the Christian forces to-day is a tragedy. Some people spend so much time in discussing which is the Lord's Day that they run the risk of letting the devil have the whole seven. We are given one central test of fellowship. "If any man have not the spirit of Christ he is none of His." If we have that spirit we will leave the minor details that separate us as Christians, and do our part with God in building up His eternal Kingdom.

TOMATO AND CHEESE BALL SALAD.

One package cream cheese, 2 tablespoons finely chopped nuts, 2 tablespoons finely chopped ripe olives, cream to moisten, 2 large tomatoes.

Mash cheese and work smooth with cream. Add nuts and olives and salt and paprika to suit. Form in small balls. Pare and chill tomatoes and cut in halves. Put one half for each serving on a bed of lettuce, add two or three cheese balls and pour French dressing over the whole.

WHO.

The new edition of "Who's Who in America" contains biographies of 25,357 prominint people. Twenty-thre out of every 100 of these, by the way, never attended college.

A fourth of the total were born on farms a fourth in small towns, a fourth in small cities, a fourth in big cities. An acorn grows into an oak, not an evergreen—whether it's planted in the backwoods or in a metropolitan park.

Environment is not all. We bring into this world with us full three-fourtss of what we become at the end of the road. Many never develop their inborn possibilities.

Made in Canada

Bon Ami

Keeps white shoes looking like new!

For all kinds of white shoes—except kid—Bon Ami works wonders.

Put it on with a wet brush—let it dry—then wipe it off with a dry cloth. You'll find that all the dirt, dust and grass stains have disappeared. Just the fresh original whiteness remains—without any pasty, chalky streaks.

When the original whiteness finally has worn off your shoes, clean them first with Bon Ami, then apply a good white dressing. This avoids the ugly, grimy, clogged-up appearance.

Bon Ami also cleans windows, mirrors, white woodwork, aluminium, kitchenware, bathtubs, etc.—in fact, it has scores of uses throughout the house.

This pepper salad is moistened with mayonnaise instead of lemon juice.

The luncheon sandwich is made with cream cheese anl nuts, combined with mayonnaise in place of the cottage cheese used for the reducing diet.

LOSE WEIGHT

Breakfast—One-half cantalupe, 1 toasted gluten pop-over, hot water.

Luncheon—One cup jellied tomato bouillon, 1 whole heart of celery, 2 saltines, 1 cup skimmed milk.

Dinner—One cup cream of spinach soup, 2 slices cold roast lamb, 1 tablespoon mint jelly, 2 tablespoons new peas, 1-2 cup shredded cabbage, 1 gluten roll, 1-2 cup fresh cherries.

Bedtime—One cup skimmed milk.

Total calories 1121; Protein 272; fat 308; carbohydrate, 541. Iron .0182 gram.

Any muffin or gem or "quick" biscuit is delicious toasted and toast is valuable, especially because you must "exercise" when you eat it.

Jellied tomato bouillon has the same food valuet that hot bouillon has. The amount of gelatine used is too small to make any appreciable difference. The protein calories are increased a little but the fat and car bohydrate remain the same. A cold soup requires more seasoning than a hot one but this has no effect on the calories.

GAIN WEIGHT

Breakfast — One half cantaloupe, 1-2 cup boiled rice, 6 raisins, 1-4 cup cream, 1 poached egg on toast, hot water.

Mid-morning lunch — One cup whole milk, 2 rolled oats cookies.

THE COACH'S JOB

Something of the taskmaster, the general and the diplomat, and a lot of the doctor must be hidden away in the man who would be the coach of a successful football or track team.

Emergencies of all kinds are his daily routine. A thorough knowledge of first aid is as essential as a knowledge of the game played by his men.

Bumps, bruises, strained ligaments and muscles are every day happenings, but the coach never becomes contemptuous of them. He knows that if neglected, they may result in anything.

Trainers everywhere keep Absorbine Jr. in their lockers. They use it not only for sprains, cuts and bruises, but for the skin and blood protection of its disinfecting properties. In one convenient container it combines the functions of a number of preparations.

It is the first of all the First Aid requisites in use in all of the leading athletic clubs.

And there are just as many everyday uses for Absorbine Jr. in the homes of Canada as there are in the training camps. Always "jump to it" in case of emergency. $1.25 at your druggist.

SETS EXAMPLE.

Mrs. C. T. Yang, a Manchu lady of old nobility, has set a new style: not a him of luxury, but a necessity to those born of poverty. For centuries Manchu women shopped discreetly in their own courtyards, paying a higher price. But with money hard to get Mrs. Yang startled her social set by bargaining in the public markets, carrying a bag of copper coins. Now others are following her economical example.

OMEMEE WEEDS MUST BE MOWN

Council Gives Owners of Obnoxious Harvest Ten Days To Cut It.

COUNCIL MEETING.

OMEMEE, Aug. 26.—The Omemee Council met in the Council Chamber on Monday evening. The members were all present and the Reeve presided.

Moved by Reeve Stinson, seconded by W. Magee that Councillors Southworth, Magee and Newman be a committee to look after the gravel pit and decide on fencing same; also to confer with H. Griffin regarding a right-of-way.—Carried.

Moved that Councillors Southworth and Newman and Reeve Stinson be a committee with power to act, to make a settlement with W. G. Stephenson on the extra cost of the wide portion of the mill bridge.—Carried.

Moved by L. A. Southworth, seconded by J. Magee, that the clerk buy 1,000 letter heads with envelopes to match. —Carried.

Moved by W. Magee, seconded by Thomas Newman, that all parties who have not cleaned their lots of foul weeds be notified and given ten days to do so, and if not cleaned in that time the Council will employ a man to do the work and charge it up to the owners in their taxes.—Carried.

On motion, the Council adjourned to meet the first Monday in September.

Car Damaged.

What might have been a very serious motor accident was narrowly averted last week on the corner of King and Sturgeon Streets.

The Macpherson bread truck, driven by Mr. Arthur Stephenson, who was en route to Lindsay. On nearing Sturgeon Street, the driver unfortunately failed to sound his horn, and Mr. E. Corneil, who was motoring down Sturgeon Street at a fast clip, did not see the approaching bread truck until too late, with the result that he struck the back wheel, breaking the wheel opposite and bending the fender badly. Mr. Corneil's car was badly damaged, a spring being broken, fender bent, etc. Fortunately the latter is one of our popular garage men, and by quickly repairing the delayed bread truck, he enabled the driver to resume his journey The occupants of both cars escaped with a slight shaking up.

Tennis Tea.

About thirty-five attended the tennis tea on the beautiful grounds surrounding the Stephenson and Macpherson homes last Wednesday afternoon. Among those from out of town were Miss McCrea and Mrs. Mulligan of Lindsay, Dr. and Mrs. Sutton of Peterborough, Mrs. W. Shepard of Coldwater, and Mrs. F. Rowan of Gull Lake, Sask. During the afternoon, Miss Winnifred Poast, of Saskatoon, contributed much to the enjoyment of the guests by the rendering of many splendid piano selections. Several games of tennis were enjoyed by the spectators. Dainty refreshments were served when the shadows began to fall by the hostesses—Mrs. L. A. Mahood, Mrs. T. E. Macpherson and Mrs. E. Jamieson.

Songsters' Service.

The Gospel Songsters of Peterborough motored to Omemee on Sunday, where they held an open-air meeting on Coronation Square. Splendid music was provided by the visitors, under the direction of Mr. George Mulligan, an old Omemee boy, and a number of gentlemen delivered short Gospel messages. As no previous arrangements were made, many citizens were disappointed in having missed the treat provided.

Mr. Harry Lamb received a carload of Solvay coke last week, and a quick disposal was made at $12 per ton. A car of nut coal has arrived and is being delivered at $16.50 per ton.

Mr. James Bushnell has disposed of a herd of 25 cattle of different grades which he has had on pasture, to the Dancey brothers, who shipped them to Toronto on Friday.

RECRUITED MEN; RAISED MONEY

RECRUITED MEN; RAISED MONEY.

A newspaper despatch from Swift Current to Regine carries the answer to the old question: How can an itinerant minister get anything done in the four-year Methodist pastorate? Rev. G. H. Bennee went to Swift, Current a stranger four years ago and at once gave himself "without stint" to every phase of the community life. So did his wife. Then they sought out means, in the face of crop failures, to reduce a debt that made the church's condition critical. The debt was reduced by more than one-half, and at his last board meeting the departing pastor was able to present two young men of the congregation for licensing as preachers.

EVENING GOWNS

Red evening gowns are featured in all the French collections and are seen at all the smart restaurants.

FOREIGNERS UNRESPONSIVE.

Impatient with the results of his work, a Methodist pastor in Saskatchewan bursts out with the wish that the immigration of Ukrainians into Canada would be reduced, because of ignorance and lawlessness. Whereupon the Regina Leader reads the earnest man a mild lesson, taking as text the statement of the Japanese Foreign Office, which reads: "The process of assimilation can thrive only in a general atmosphere of just and equitable treatment. It seems hardly fair to complain of the failure of foreign elements to merge into a community, while the community chooses to keep them apart from the rest of its membership." The Methodist policy in the large is that of friendship, and its exponents do well when they endure rebuffs.

THEY EVEN CARRY BABY GRAND PIANOS!

Anything is liable to happen now. This giant plane, recently tested at Curtiss Field, Long Island, can carry 30 passengers or a heavy load of freight. It will be used in freight service, according to the present plans. Note the two propellers and the great width of the body.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

Mrs. Camel lived in a green spot in the desert.

The next place the Twins went with Weeny, the elephant, on his vacation was to Mrs. Camel's house.

Mrs. Camel lived in a green spot in the desert under a date tree.

"Hello, Mrs. Camel," cried Weeny good naturedly trotting right up to where she was. "Company's come."

"So I see," said Mrs. Camel, eying Nancy and Nick and Weeny as though she wasn't tickled to death about it. Next she looked at the size of their satchel to see how long they were going to stay. It was a pretty good sized satchel she thought so they must be going to stay a long time.

"I'm cleaning house," she said kind of shortly.

"Oh ho! You are, are you!" said Weeny. "That's fine! We can help like everything, can't we, Nancy and Nick? I'm a fine squirter and I can scrub your porches and water the garden and everything!"

"Besides I have no guest room," went on Mrs. Camel not paying any attention, and mind you, she didn't even say, "I'm very sorry, but—"

"The very thing!" cried Weeny. "We do love fresh air, don't we, children! We can sleep under the tree and count the dates and smell the stars, I mean, smell the dates and count the stars."

"Sure we can," said Nick. "I'd like that."

"The baby has the measles," went on Mrs. Camel as though that ended it.

"Then I can help you to nurse h im," said Nancy eagerly.

"He's got the mumps, too!" said Mrs. Camel, "and it's very catching. And the chicken-pox and the whooping-cough, and we think he's getting rosiola, too! That's three-day measles."

"Oh dear," said Nancy. "That's too bad! I don't see how you can nurse him and clean house, too."

"I can't," said Mrs. Camel. "And have company besides!"

After that nobody could think of another word to say, and it did seem as though the travelers would have to be going along to the next place.

But Weeny finally thought of something. The desert sand had been hot on his feet and the nice green grass was cool and comforting to stand on. The longer he talked the better his feet felt.

"Would you mind giving us a drink, Mrs. Camel?" he asked.

"We're pretty thirsty!"

But he couldn't have said a worse thing.

"Drink!" cried Mrs. Camel. "As though we had enough drink for ourselves. And I lived in a circus long enough to know how much water elephants take. Why, I wouldn't have enough water to cook or wash with for two weeks, sir, if you were to fill yourself up. Water's scarce hereabouts. This is the only water hole for 50 miles."

"Why, the books all say that camels can go without water for days and days," said Nancy.

"Books!" exclaimed Mrs. Camel in surprise. "Is my name in a book?"

"Yes, it is," said Nancy. "Didn't you know?"

"Never knew a word about it," said Mrs. Camel in a pleased voice. "Isn't that lovely, though!"

And I think it says that camels like to have company," urged Weeny.

"Then do stay," smiled Mrs. Camel. "Stay as long as ever you can. The baby's been sick, but he's over at his grandma's, and as for the house-cleaning, it can wait.

And to show how much she meant it, she took the satchel into the house herself.

FABLES ON HEALTH

"Little something for the dandruff?' the barber would suggest to Mr. Mann.

It seemed to Mr. Mann that he was always having something poured on his head as a dandruff cure, and Mrs. Mann often complained that the extra quarters would make quite a pile at the end of a year, if saved.

An easily secured home remedy has been highly recommended by many who have used it, and many temporary if not permanent cures have been reported.

Shampoo the head with the yolk of an egg beaten in a pint of warm water. After several rinsings dry the hair and apply a solution made by dissolving 10 grains of corrosive sublimate in five ounces of distilled witch-hazel. But a small quantity of this need be poured upon the head and rubbed very gently.

From two to six bottles of this application have been known to cure dandruff cases.

The shampoo need be used but once a week and, after about three bottles of the lotion have been used, a good tonic can be secured by dissolving 20 grains of quinine and a tablespoon of salt in a pint of good quality bay rum. This should last some little time and can be rubbed gently into the scalp.

SATIN AND CREPE.

Satin-backed crepe is now being made up with the satin rather than the crepe side to the fore, and is used for street or for more elaborate wear.

Miss Alma Perrin is enjoying a week's visit in Toronto.

Miss Florence Jamieson, Lindsay, is the guest of Miss Helen Syer.

Mr. Gordon Reynolds, Bank of Toronto, Millbrook, spent the week-end with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. Paul.

Mrs. Elsie Matchett and son, Ross, Saginaw, Michigan, recently spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. R. Matchett.

Miss Edna Heaslip, who has been visiting Miss Muriel Matchett, returned to her home at Yelverton on Monday.

Miss Annie Tinney is attending Toronto Exhibition and visiting friends.

FOR STEADY COLLEGE GROWTH.

Wesley College, Winnipeg, Methodism's pioneer college west of the Great Lakes, stands in need at present of a practical and tangible vote of confidence from the West. Rev. Principal Riddell told the Manitoba conference that $200,000 should be added to endowment so as to forearm against the pinch of hard times as they recur. Dr. Riddell has just completed his seventh year as successor to the famous Principal Sparkling. Wesley is affiliated in its arts teaching with the provincial university and has its own theological school.

RICHARD HONEY IS PIONEER IN PURE BREEDING

Holds Honor of Having the Largest Herd in Northumberland County.

TELLS EXPERIENCES.

Believes in Dehorning and Does Not Use Milking Machines.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 27.—To Richard Honey of Percy Township belongs the credit of being the pioneer breeder of pure bred Holsteins in Northumberland County and he holds the record as the owner of the largest herd of that type in the county or district, there being at present between 50 and 60 of all ages in his barns or grazing on the fields of his 300 acre farm. From one end of the province to the other no man is better known than Mr. Honey as a breeder and exhibitor and a judge of cattle and other stock. He has for years been a premier winner at the Peterborough and Lindsay Fairs, not only with cattle but with pure-bred Cotswold sheep and Yorkshire pigs in both of which he specializes.

A Case Of Heridity.

Mr. Honey is a stock man by heredity. He was born in Cornwall, England, where his father, the late Charles Honey, was a breeder of pure bred shorthorns which year after year he exhibited at the Royal Fair. Fifty-three years ago the family came to Canada and settled on a partially cleared farm which is now the Honey homestead and which has been increased by the purchase of two one-hundred acres adjoining the original holding.

The late Charles Honey raised grade Shorthorns for some years but the district in which he had settled was more interested in the dairy than in a dairy community a dairy type of cattle was essential and after investigating all the different breeds the preference was given to Holsteins.

The First Start.

The father died in 1885 leaving the son to carry on the farm. The young man, who was industrious and ambitious, bought a pure bred Holstein sire and from this start attained the success which he has enjoyed for so many years. His present herd sire is only two years old and weighs over 1,700 pounds with still at least two years growth ahead of him.

Mr. Honey's Ideas.

Mr. Honey believes that serious mistakes have been made both by the breeders of Holsteins and Ayrshires, the latter being the other most popular breed of dairy stock in this district. The Holstein men he says have devoted to much attention to the breeding of large cattle. So long as an arrival was white and black and of generous proportions it was a Holstein and the owner was satisfied.

On the other hand, he says, the breeders of Ayrshire went to the other extreme and aimed to produce type without regard to size. Both class of breeders may have succeeded in their ambitions but Mr. Honey insists that nothing like perfection will be attained until Holstein cattle are smoother and Ayrshire larger. Among his own large herd are found a number of animals equal in point of conformation to any Shorthorns which are acknowledged to be the handsomest cattle in existence.

Holstein's Versus Ayrshires.

Mr. Honey says that if the Holsteins could be made to produce as high a percentage of butter fat as the Ayrshries they would be the ideal dairy stock. At it is, it is about a shade off, as while the milk production of the Ayrshires is less the percentage of butter fat is higher, while the reverse is the case with the Holsteins.

The Government Test.

Mr. Honey has seven cows in the Government test for production, this test lasting a year. He is required to keep a daily record by weighing the milk produced by each animal. The Department send to his place every five or six weeks an official who comes unheralded and whose first duty is to test the scales use. He then examines the records kept by Mr. Honey and remains for two days keeping these records himself. The only expense to the dairyman is the board and lodging of the official during his visits.

The standard of milk production set for the Holstein is 2,000 pounds of milk a year more than the maximum record of the Ayrshires. In the past cows in Mr. Honeys herd have made a record of 21,000 pounds of milk in a year, the percentage of butter fat also being high.

His Favorite Fodder.

Red clover, alfalfa and ensilage are his favorite roughage feed for his stock. He has not been successful in the raising of alfalfa for he made the mistake of getting seed from a warmer climate and as a result the crop was winter killed. He has, however, secured northern seed and hopes to have better luck in the future. He has one large field of sweet clover and has faith in it both as hay and for pasture.

Believes in Dehorning.

Among stock men the impression prevails that dehorning pure bred cattle detracts from their appearance and interferes with their sale. Mr. Honey held this opinion for years until one of his best cows was gored in the udder by another and almost ruined. He changed his mind at once and the horns were clipped from 36 of his herd in one day.

Selling For Beef.

One advantage claimed by Mr. Honey for the Holsteins over the Ayrshires is the value of the former for beef when the cows have outlived its usefulness in the dairy. This is where the size of the Holstein counts. He has stall fed such animals and the prices secured for them from the local butcher has varied from $50 to $85.

No Milking Machines.

At present Mr. Honey is milking 17 cows this work being done by hand. He does not believe that the best has yet been attained in the manufacture of milking machines and until some improvement has been made he will not use them.

Advantage of Purebreds.

The dairyman with a herd of grades of any breed, may do as well as the owner of pure breds at cheese factory of creamery. Mr. Honey says ,but the latter has all the best of it when it comes to the sale of male calves. The man with the grades disposes of these to the butcher while the other sells his to a breeder, realizing sometimes as high as $250 for each. Mr. Honey separates enough of the milk to feed his calves, selling the cream from this. The balance of the milk goes to the cheese factory of Brickley.
More more more more more mor

Fifty-Two Years a Judge.

Mr. Honey has been a judge of cattle, sheep and swine at the Fall Fairs for the past 52 years and his opinion on all breeds is regarded as excellent. When the Fair season opens this fall he will be on the circuit again.

He was the originator of the movement to have only one judge for each class.

At a fair at Warkworth he was not satisfied with the finding of the judges in the sheep exhibit in which he had an entry and when he asked for an explanation one judge passed the buck to the other.

Mr. Honey has been a director of the Warkworth Fair for over 40 years and for a long time has represented the Board at the annual meeting of the Ontario Fairs Association. At the session following the incident at Warkworth he brought up the matter of one judge for each class stating that in no other way was it possible to fix responsibility for the decisions. A year later his plan was adopted.

Staying On the Land.

Mr. Honey has five sons, three of whom are following the vocation of their father while the two youngest are taking a high school course at Campbellford. Boys, he says, can be kept on the farm if they are given an interest in the business.

Blackbirds Pick Peas On King's Wharf Farms

KING'S WHARF, Aug. 27.—The farmers in this locality have been at a loss by the blackbirds taking their peas. Field after field of peas have been taken and a few fields of fall wheat It is impossible to grow peas here as year after year they are taken by the birds.

KEENE RECORDS BIGGEST CROP

Not In Years Has Buckwheat Been So Heavy—Wheat Averages 35 Bushels.

SEASON LATE.

KEENE, Aug. 27.—Threshing operations in this district have not as yet made much headway, but Kempt Bros. partly threshed their wheat last week. Some fields averaged forty bushels to the acre, while others only averaged thirty, owing to the hail-storm which passed through this section a few weeks ago. Some farmers are only now drawing in their oats on account of it being very slow in drying out, not having had sufficient hot sun to help out.

The potato crop (early) is a large one.

Corn is plentiful and the ears well filled, but not maturing as it should.

The buckwheat gives promise of a wonderful yield. Not in years has there been such an abundant and picturesque bloom.

All other crops are equally as promising.

CABBAGE MAGGOTS.

The cure for cabbage maggots is a 1 to 1,000 bichloride of mercury solution. Dissolve one tablet in a pint of water, or eight to a gallon, instead of using the powdered form. Moisten the ground about the cabbage roots with this solution and spray the cabbage plants.

CHERRY WORMS

Worms can be kept from late cherries by sprinkling with a little sweetened poison water on the upper surface of the leaves. The spray consists of one-half pound lead arsenate paste, two quarts molasse —not honey—and 10 gallons water.

THIN APPLES NOW

Thinning apples on overloaded trees prevents breaking branches and increases the size of the remaining friut. Apples should be about six inches apart on the branches, says horticulturists of the Ohio experiment station.

FISH STORIES MAY INFLUENCE CROP REPORTS

Fifty Bushels Actually Were Threshed By Farmer on Haveleock Road.

OTHERS EXAGGERATE.

Thomas Dunham Has Record Crops of Several Grains—Wheat Excels.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 27.—Fifty bushels of wheat to the acre is within the bounds of possibility, unusual as such a yield may be, but when it is claimed that So-and-so threshed sixty bushels from an acre, as a Toronto paper did on behalf of a Bruce County farmer the other day, the suspicion is justified that there has been a mistake made either in the measurement of the grain or the land. In a word, such a story is flavored with the exaggeration which distinguishes so many amateur fishermen in the recital of their exploits. A man can make his grain yield any quantity per acre that he chooses. All depends upon the accuracy with which the extent of his acreage is given. Fifty bushels to the acre for wheat is the maximum on record in Northumberland County, and Northumberland, either as a Conservative stronghold or as a producer of wheat will yield second place to no other riding in Ontario.

Fifty Bushels Sure Enough.

And 50 busbels has actually, beyond all dispute, been threshed from an acre of wheat in this district only just recently. Thomas Dunham, who resides on a farm on the Havelock road, a few miles from town, one of those farms that are still occupied by the descendants of the men who settled on them when they were covered with virgin forest,finished thresning his wheat crop Monday, and the tally was 293 bushels as the grain came from the machine. As the wheat is overweight and every box tallied was heaping measure, the total yield will really be in excess of 300 bushels.

Some cynical people may be disposed to argue that the tally was not accurate, but the wheat is in the bin and it is only a matter of a few minutes to measure the grain as it stands and figure out the amount according to the rule given in the authorized school arithmetic, which allows four bushels to every five cubic feet.

The Acreage.

So much for the grain; now for the extent of the land on which it grew. Mr. Dunham's father, Henry Dunham, pioneer, who for years has been tax collector for Seymour Township and who lives with his son, had three of the fields on his farm carefully measured some years ago, and each contained exactly nine acres. The now famous wheat crop grew in one of these fields. Two acres and the side next to the Havelock road is planted to corn, potatoes and turnips. An acre in one corner, low and swampy, was under grass. The amount sown to wheat was by actual measurement a trifle under six acres, so that the statement that the yield was actually 50 bushels cannot be challenged.

Veteran farmers who saw the wheat before it was cut pronounced it one of the finest crops they ever saw growing. The grain is so fine a sample that Mr. Dunham intends to show it at the Fall Fairs. He had the field entered in the standing crop competition in East Peterboro, and although it was before being harvested, he has not yet heard how he was rated.

Other Grains Tested.

Mr. Dunham threshed other grains, but not enough to estimate the yield. He made the following tests, however: —From 45 sheaves of barquis spring wheat he got three bushels; two bushels from 25 sheaves of Colorado wheat, and four bushels from 40 sheaves of oats. The fall wheat came from the separator at an average rate of two bushels per minute.

Some people have been inclined to question the accuracy of the reports of big yields of wheat as given on the farm page of The Examiner, but the above is one that is in strict accord with the facts. Mr. Dunham drew from the field 16 large loads, so that the crop of straw was an unusually heavy one,

Big Yield of Hay.

From five acres under hay, Mr. Dunham drew 17 loads, and the second growth is now thick and almost knee high. Last year, from the same ground he cut two crops, the second being intended for seed, but this did not mature properly.

Mr. Dunham is engaged in the dairy business. There are Ayrshire and Holstein herds all through his neighborhood, but he proposes to develop a different breed and go into the raising of shorthorns.

In Brighton Township.

Charles Waycroft, of Brighton Township, threshed 168 bushels of fall wheat from four acres, this being the banner yield so far reported from that district. All crops in the township are excellent, and along the Jake front the prospects for an abundant yield of apples are excellent.

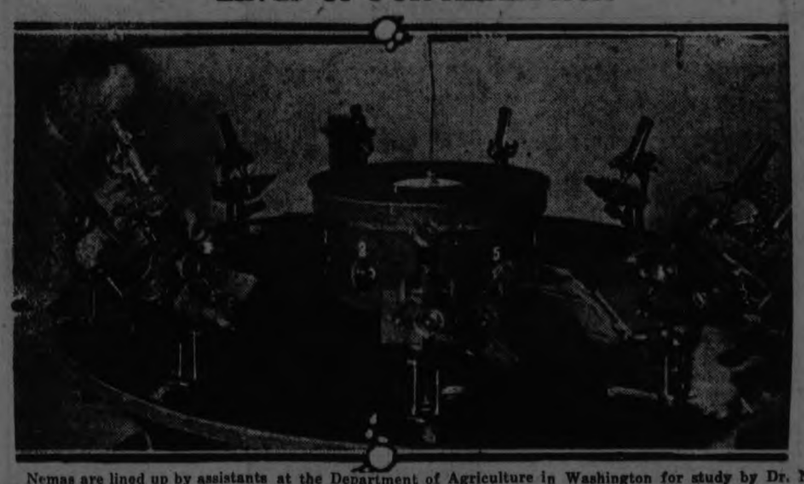
One cannot fail, while passing through the township, to be struck with the healthy appearance of the apple orchards compared with those seen in either Percy or Seymour. The trees, in some places, are so heavily loaded that some of them are supported by four props to prevent the branches from breaking down.

Land contiguous to a large body of water like Lake Ontario, is the ideal place for the production of fruit, but there are other reasons than that of the climate and location to account for the difference in the appearance of the orchard already referred to. In Brighton Township the trees are carefully tended, pruned and sprayed, and the land is cultivated just as is done with a crop, or corn or roots. In Seymour and Percy the majority of orchards are allowed to shift for themselves, the trees are not pruned, and the land is left in sod for years. The result is bushy trees and "woody" fruit, that has to take a back place when brought to market. The production of fruit has reached such a stage now that only the man with expert knowledge can hope to succeed.

Fine Field of Turnips.

Will C. Ross, who owns between five and six hundred acres of land, the most of it on the road between Meyersburg and Bradley's Corners, has a field, about six acres in extent, of as fine a crop of turnips as can be seen even on the Government farm. The rows are perfectly straight, the plants are large and healthy looking, and there is not a "miss" in the entire plot, which is also entirely free from weeds. Travellers along that thoroughfare never fail to admire the crop, which is a fine advertisement not only for the district but of Mr. Ross's taste and skill as a farmer.

LINED UP FOR RESEARCH



Nemas are lined up by assistants at the Department of Agriculture in Washington for study by Dr. N. A. Cobb, government nematologist. As Dr. Cobb finishes studying one specimen he rotates the table to the next microscope and examines the next collection of nema.

BAILIEBORO NEEDS RIPENING WEATHER

Oats Are Unevenly Matured —Clover Rank—Land Ready For Fall Crops.

BAILIEBORO, Aug. 27.—The oat crop in this district is ripening very unevenly. Some fields are partly ripe and ready to cut, while other parts of the fields are quite green. On this account it is going to leave the harvest very late, as some fields of oats will not be ready to cut down before next week. There is also a great deal of difficulty in getting the spring grain to dry out and in a properly cured condition to draw into the barns, as the season has been so cool and damp. Some good warm weather is what is most required now to ripen up the grain, and dry up what is already stooked in the fields.

Clover is Rank.

Although there is a very heavy growth of the second crop of red clover, the farmers claim that there are very few prospects of a good crop of seed. The clover has grown too rank, and a great many of the farmers will cut their crops for hay. In some fields there will be nearly as much hay on the second crop as there was on the first crop, so there will not be any loss if the seed does not form properly as the farmers will have the hay to either sell or feed as the case may be.

Owing to the backward harvest, the farmers are having a splendid opportunity to prepare their land for fall wheat. There are some splendid-looking summer fallows throughout this district, and some have ploughed up their hay stubble and have worked it up to perfection.

So far there is very little summer ganging done, and it is thought that there will only be very little land ploughed over the second time this fall.

ORCHARDS LOADED WITH FINE APPLES

King's Wharf Experiences Failure in Other Fruits—Crops Good.

KING'S WHARF, Aug. 27.—The potato crop promises to be a splendid crop, also the apples. The orchards are loaded with apples, but other fruit is a failure. The wild raspberries are a failure this year due to the late frosts.

The hay and wheat is all cut and harvested and the other grain is ripening fast and the hum of the binder is heard on all sides.

Curtin Bros. and the Pigeon River Threshing Co. are getting ready to begin threshing. There is no threshing done here yet as there is nothing ready. The fall wheat got so much rain it is too tough and the peas are soft and damp.

VIGILANTES.

The old-time Kansas Anti-Horse Thief Association is being revived to campaign against sweet patooties who use public highways for petting parties, mostly in autos.

As a matter of fact, there aren't any more petting parties now than there used to be. Ask any veteran livery stablekeeper about "hoss and rigs" he used to rent to young fellows "sparking" their sweethearts.

Sex appeal is about the same in one generation as in another. When it seems intensified, it's usually a case of less secrecy.

BRIGHTON FARMERS MAY GROW TOBACCO

W. T. Battisby Tells Brighton Farmers That His Land Is Particularly Suitable.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 27.—W. T. Battisby, formerly of Morganston, who spent a number of years in California, became expert in the production of all kinds of crops raised in a semi-tropical climate. At present he is located in the Island of Jamaica. He was the man who brought from California the first bushel of sweet clover ever sown in Northumberland County, and which was raised on the farm of his brother, J. R. Battisby, who now resides in this town.

While on a visit to friends and relatives in this district, Mr. Battisby happened to notice two or three acres of low land on the farm of Ora King, on the Brighton road, not far from Codrington, and his professional interest was at once aroused.

"There," said Mr. Battisby, "is a piece of ground that would return more money to its owner than all the rest of his farm if cultivated and planted to tobacco. It is just the place for that crop.

Mr. Battisby explained that it was not the nature of the soil alone that inclined him to his opinion, although, of course, this was a consideration. The land referred to is covered with a thick growth of the weed known as "lobelia," or Indian tobacco. It is a member of the more modern tobacco plant family, and Mr. Battisby added that, in forming an idea of the crop best suited to any soil, a safe course is to ascertain the properties of the weed, which, while in a state of nature, it produces. He believed that fortune awaits the man who, with such soil as that which attracted his attention on the King farm, will take up the culture of tobacco.

In this connection it is interesting to recall the fact that at the Government Farm at Ottawa they are at present experimenting with the growing of tobacco with a view to finding out what variety of the plant can be profitably raised in the central and eastern portions of the Province.

It has already been demonstrated by these experiments that tobacco can be produced in the districts referred to as well as in the western section of Ontario.

Corn Reaches Height Of Over Eleven Feet

This is generally said to be a poor year for corn. Mr. Simon Perdue, residing at the junction of Reid and Stewart street, however, has corn he would like to see equalled. Many stalks are over 11 feet high, some 11 feet 6 inches, and several 11 feet 10 inches high. It is still growing, and the end is not yet.

BETHANY HARVESTS AN AVERAGE CROP

Threshing Is Not Yet General—Corn and Roots Promise Well.

BETHANY, Aug. 27.—Harvesting is still on in this vicinity. Quite a lot of late oats are still to be cut. The early peas are all cut and in the majority of cases are mowed away. The general prediction is a good average crop of all grains.

Threshing is not under general headway yet. The corn and root crops are progressing favorably and everything points to a good yield.

Eggs are plentiful and are being bought at 30 cents a dozen, while butter is scarce at 35 cents a pound.

Skunk Invades the City To Slaughter Chickens

A skunk last week invaded the chicken houses on Elm street where Miss Cavanagh tended valuable fowl and killed seven.

At first it was thought the slaughter might be due to a weasel but a post-mortem examination showed that the chickens had their necks broken, which is not the weasel's way.

HEAVY STALKS SAVED GRAINS

Storm in Marmora District Failed To Batter Down the Crops.

CHEESE FRIZES.

MARMORA, Aug. 27.—Farmers of this district in discussing the exceptionally heavy storm of Friday last, declare their relief at the slight extent of damage done to grain and corn. The stoutness of stalk seems to have well withstood the force of the storm. Potatoes received perhaps the most battering.

Superabundance of cucumbers and tomatoes provide great indulgence in salads.

Hopes are expressed for a drier spell of weather that harvesting may continue and threshing commence in earnest. With apples in plenty, apple pies are much in vogue.

Cheese Honors.

Mr. J. Finnegan, of the Marmora Cheese Factory, is again winning honors with his cheese. In the Dominion Educational Cheese Scoring Contest for July, 1924, he came first, obtaining a total score of 96.3.

Cheeses shipped from here last week realised 17 1-2 cents a pound.

Some huckleberries at $1.50 a pail arrived in town this week. Better late than never.

FARMERS HAVE BUMPER CROPS

Those Who Threshed in the Field Are Well Satisfied With Yield.

BEST IN YEARS.

ROSENEATH, Aug. 27.—The farmers are at their harvest in full swing. About half the cutting is done, but very little in the barns. A number have threshed in the field and the yield is extra good. The crop is the best that this district has had for a number of years. Chas. Grigg threshed about 950 bushels of fall wheat from twenty-seven acres, while Orra Varcoe had 300 bushels of mixed grain, oats and wheat, off seven acres. William Arnold's rye went twenty-one bushels to the acre. Percy Parker also threshed over four hundred bushels of fall wheat. While the corn crop is not up to previous years, the root crop as a whole is looking splendid and buckwheat promises to be a bumper crop.

BOOMERANG.

Nature doesn't want us to be too healthy. Her purpose is to kill us off after we've blundered along awhile, to make room for newcomers.

Sciences is getting fevers, diabetes and tuberculosis under control. Nerve and glandular maladies correspondingly increase. Like an individual—medicine frequently "cures" one organ of the body by wrecking another.

So with economics and politics. In solving one problem we almost invariably create several new ones.

KILLER.

"I personally killed 30,000 head of buffalo during old hunting days on the Kansas prairie," reminisces George W. Brown, pioneer, known as "Hoodoo" Brown.

The killing was for the hides, $2 to $3 apiece.

"Of course, I didn't get the money," Brown explains. "I was working for others."

Nine-tenths of the population will nod understandingly.

VOTER.

Among Americans entitled to vote for president in November will be 4,300,000 illiterates who cannot read. And 3,000,000 of them are native-born, not imported residents. These figures are the estimates by National Education Association, and are based on census reports.

The voter who cannot read the newspapers, unless he has the papers read to him has to form his opinions from gossip he hears. Such has always been the rule. Presto! this year they have the radio to bring candidates' speeches to them. Radio is a new factor in national politics. How powerful?

HEALTHIER.

Americans were healthier the first three months of 1924 than ever before in January, February and March. So reports a big insurance company, the Metropolitan Life, whose policyholders number into millions.

Deaths from diphtheria dropped decidedly. Scarlet fever also. Flu's death toll was small. Tuberculosis mortality showed a "gratifying decline." Deaths from diabetes were 23 per cent. fewer than a year ago.

Science is curbing the ancient diseases. Nature will send new maladies to take their places. Already, for instance, nervous ailments are increasing alarmingly.

YOUNG PEOPLE ELIGIBLE FOR FAIR CONTEST

Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Offers Trip To Ottawa.

BOYS AND GIRLS.

Judging of Cattle, Bread, Sewing and Dressing Is New Feature.

A judging competition will be held at Peterboro Fair on September 11th open to young men and women under 26 years of age who have not taken part in any previous competition.

Boys will judge beef cattle and dairy cattle, sheep swine and heavy horses.

$90 is offered in cash prizes and a free trip each to the Royal Winter Fair for the boy and the girl making the highest score.

Fifty per cent will be given for correct placing asd fifty per cent. for reasons.

Further particulars may be had from any of the directors or from F. C. McRae, Agricultural Representative, Norwood.

The committee in charge is W. R. Shields, chairman; Wm. Steinkraus, Robert Grandy, Thomas McIndoo.

This class is worth while for young men who intend to go into or follow up agriculture to learn how to judge all kinds of stock.

MILLBROOK YIELDS GOOD.

Exceptionally Big Yields of Wheat—Barley Runs To 40 Bushels To Acre.

Those who have threshed wheat in the vicinity of Millbrook recently are finding the yield exceptionally good. H. Tate, W. W. Brown, G. Bonner, H. A. Earle and W. Armstrong, 4th Line, Cavan, averaged 45 bushels to the acre. D. A. Henry had from 45 to 50 bushels, and Arthur Fallis about 45 bushels. W. Elson realized an average yield of 40 bushels, W. Fred Fallis having about 40 also.

Barley has returned about 40 bushels to the acre in some places, and there are some fields still uncut, though the grain is evidently over-ripe and will not give good results in such instances.

Peas, which were not considered even an average crop this season, have proved an agreeable surprise on some farms, Messrs. Tate, Brown, and Bonner, having from 20 to 25 bushels to the acre, where only 15 to 18 had been looked for. In that section of Cavan the pea lice had not attacked the crop as was the case on lighter soils.

Peas are bringing about $1.80 a bushel, and wheat from $1.10 to $1.25, but none of this season's crop has yet been delivered at the local elevator, unless for storage purposes. This week will probably find grain brought in for sale.

Plowing Starts.

Plowing in preparation for sowing the fall grain has begun on a number of farms, and in this connection it is interesting to note that this is the oldest of the arts and crafts brining civilization in its wake. From the sharpened stick, the twisted branch, the polished share, to the modern tractor, the long line of human progress may be traced. Hence, to be a champion plowman, means to be a champion in that useful occupation which has "pushed back barbarism and cannabalism, and other unpleasant oddities of the past, and enabled people to store up sustenance against famine and thin times."

The plow is in reality the foundation layer, and from the plowed and cultivated ground springs not alone wheat, or other grains, but that ideal commonwealth toward which all are looking as the ultimate abode of civilization.

Potatoes being offered locally are considerably larger than those bought two or three weeks earlier. Some rot is predicted for the later crop because of the wet, and even now the housewife occasionally encounters a black centre when preparing the supply for the midday meal. The general comment, however, is that the tubers this season are dry and mealy, and the flavor excellent. Most farmers report a good yield.

WHEAT AND CHAFF

A farmer, it is said, on Saturday visited the garages in the city seeking red oil for the tail light on his new car.

That reminds us of the city man viewing a herd of pure-bred Holsteins. "And which of them give buttermilk?" he asked.

DISPOSED OF HORSE.

Mr. W. A. Henry of Bailieboro, disposed of his registered hackney show mare (Fanny Mathias) which he purchased from Mr. Bell, of Windsor ,to Mr. Geo. Graham, of Peterborough.

DESTROYING CANKER

European canker, which is destructive on certain varieties of pears and apples, may be reduced by cutting out the cankers and spraying with bordeaux mixture before the fall rains set in.

VEGETABLE GROWING

Good vegetables need the best soil well supplied with plant food. If well composted stable manure cannot be had, a good substitute is a fertilizer made up of 3 per cent nitrogen 7 to 8 per cent. phosphoric acid and 2 to 3 per cent potash.

KINGSTON GRAB OFF HONOURS IN THE FINAL SERIES

Ponies Win Second Game of Play-off Handily on Own Park.

FINAL SCORE IS 11 TO 1.

Heckman Weakens in Sixth After Early Frames Look Promising.

The Kingston Ponies made it two straight in the play-off series, and captured the Central Ontario League honours by walloping the Petes 11 to 1 in the second game at Kingston yesterday, 3,500 fans witnessing the debacle.

Up to the sixth inning it was a bare game, but Heckman, not helped any by doubtful umpiring from behind the plate by Umpire Benson, suddenly weakened in that frame, and two walks followed by five hits in a row gave the Ponies five runs and turned a tight struggle into a walkaway.

In the early innings it was the kind of a battle that was to be expected at a play-off fixture. Both teams were fielding snappily, and Kelly and Heckman were performing at a rate that promised a thrilling battle until the last man was retired.

There was no score until the Ponies got one in the fourth. They came back with three in the next frame, but the Petes got one in the sixth and were threatening often enough to make the result uncertain until Kingston's big inning.

There was nothing to it after that.

Kelly, after a long rest, turned in the best game he has shown the Petes this season. They managed to collect eight hits off his delivery, but they were widely scattered, and he was at his best in spots where a safe blow would have been disastrous. He was well supported by his club mates, too, and the only Kingston misplay, a fumble by Compeau, did no harm.

In spite of the one-sided final score the feature fielding stunts of the day were pulled off by the Petes. Jimmy Hall, who has had some spectacular grabs during the season, wound up with his most wonderful catch of the year in the sixth when he came in on the run after Purvis' apparently safe liner to centre, dived forward with his gloved hand extended, clutched the ball an inch off the ground, rolled over a couple of times, and held up the Spalding in one hand. He got a wonderful hand from the huge crowd.

Shiner Johnston, handling eight chances nicely started a fast double play by a clever stop of Nickle's hard hit drive, and Legon gathered it a fly from Teeple and pulled off a double killing with the aid of Collins and Swanston.

Started Snappily.

In the first Holyman fanned. Legon singled over second and was sacrificed along a peg by Swanston, Harrison bounded to Somerville.

For the Ponies, Batstone struck out. Nickle singled through short and Compeau walked. Somerville forced Compeau at second, Holyman to Johnston, and Cherry forced Somerville in the same way.

Heckman opened the second with a fly to Teeple. Johnston was thrown out by Somerville and Collins flied to Cherry.

Kingston also died in order. Rice struck out, Purvis lined to Hall and Teeple rolled weakly to Harrison.

Hall, first up in the third, fanned. Turner singled past third, but was forced at second on Holyman's bunt to Kelly. Legon forced Holyman, Compeau to Somerville.

In the home half Kelly struck out, but both Teeple and Kelly walked. Batstone slammed a long single to left centre, scoring Teeple. Nickle's Texas Leaguer over second sent Kelly in. Compeau tripled to right, scoring Batstone and Nickle, and Somerville singled to left to let Compeau register the fifth run of the frame. Cherry singled through short. Rice hit to Heckman, forcing Somerville at third, and Purvis, up for the second time, gave Hall a chance to pull off his sensational one-handed catch.

Hall started the seventh with a roller to Compeau. Shaughnessy, replacing Turner, singled to centre, but was out oversliding second when Holyman hit to Somerville. Legon struck out.

For Kingston, Teeple fanned. Kelly got a life when Holyman dropped his fly back of third, but Batstone flied to Johnston, and Nickle hit to the same player, who tagged Kelly on the line.

In the eighth Swanston singled to left and went to second when the third strike on Harrison got away from Rice. Heckman was safe on Compeau's fumble. Johnston fouled to Rice, and Heckman was doubled trying to go to second after the catch.

The Ponies grabbed a couple more unnecessary runs. Compeau was safe on Collins' fumble. Somerville flied to Shaughnessy, a nice catch, Cherry singled to centre, sending Compeau to third, and going to second on the throw to the difficult corner. Rice fanned, but Purvis singled through short, scoring Compeau and Cherry. Teeple singled over third, but Kelly rolled to Johnston.

It was soon over in the ninth. Collins struck out. Solomon, batting for Hall, rolled to Compeau, and Moore, batting for Shaughnessy, whiffed.

OLD COUNTRY FOOTBALL

LONDON, Aug. 27. — (Canadian Press).—Performing the "hat trick" twice in the game with Middlesex, Parker, the Gloucestershire professional, provided the feature of the county cricket championship matches concluded yesterday. The match was a close struggle, the western county finally winning by sixty-one runs. Parker took three wickets with successive balls in each innings, a feat which had not been accomplished for many years in first-class cricket. The scores were as follows: Gloucestershire, 31 runs in the first innings and 294 for nine wickets in the second, declared; Middlesex 74 and 190 (Hammond 174 not out).

Nottinghamshire beat Warwickshire by an innings and 56 runs—Warwickshire 130 and 137, Nottinghamshire 323 for five wickets, declared (Whysall 137).

The Lancashire-Hampshire match was drawn. Lancashire had scored 79 runs for the loss of no wickets when the game had to be abandoned because of rain.

Surrey beat Yorkshire by 109 runs, Surrey 209 and 202, Yorkshire 100 and 202.

The match between Essex and Northamptonshire was drawn, Northamptonshire 351, Essex 328 for six wickets, Freeman 120.

Somersetshire beat Worcestershire by 10 wickets, Worcestershire 205 and 146, Somersetshire 348 for nine wickets, declared, after making 4 runs for the loss of no wickets in the second innings, McBrian 95, Foster 111.

The touring South African cricket team was defeated by Kent by an innings and 80 runs, Kent 418 for six wickets, declared, South Africans 135 and 194, Woolley 176, Harding 118.

THE STRENGTH OF THE WEAK SEX

With Every Muscle Taut and Every Fiber Strained, Molla Mallory Sends a Tennis Ball Hissing Across the White Net.

This pictorial ensemble gives you an excellent idea of the strenuousity which marks the play of tennis players in major championships — even the women players.

Molla Mallory, many times national champion, is shown sending the ball thundering across the court. Note the whip-cord muscles in her neck and steel-like sinews in her hands.

Firpo, hitting Dempsey with the punch which catapulted the champion over the ropes and out of the ring, never made more complete use of his power than did Mrs. Mallory in fighting for this vital point.

PIRATES SPLIT WITH PHILLIES

Yde Was Master of First Game, But Morrison Beaten In Second.

GIANTS BEAT CUBS.

Pittsburgh, August 26. — Pittsburgh and Philadelphia divided a double header to-day, the Prates winning the first, six to one, and the Phillies the second, three to one. Yde held the visitors to five hits in the first game, three of them being bunched in the fourth when the Phillies scored their only run.

The second game was a pitching duel between Hubbell and Morrison in which Hubbell had a shade. The scores:

1st game:
Philadelphia .. .. ..000100000—1 5 3
Pittsburgh.... .. ..01101030x—6 13 1
Ring and Wilson; Yde and Smith.

Hubbell and Heline; Morrison, Adams and Schmidt.

Giants Break Even.

CHICAGO, August 26. — The Giants earned an even break in the four game series to-day, by scoring four runs in the ninth and defeating the Cubs 11 to 9. Two errors by Grantham on ground balls that should have retired the side runless in the ninth, were followed by four hits. These hits were made off Alexander, who made his first apeparance since his wrist was fractured on June 25th. The score:
New York .. .. ..61000004—11 20 0
Chicago .. ..021104100— 9 13 3
Jonnard, Dean, Ryan, Maun and Gowdy; Snyder; Blake, Alexander, Jacobs and O'Farrell.

Hornsby's Great Hitting.

ST. LOUIS, August 26. — Rogers Hornsby got a homer and three doubles in four times at bat to-day, but Brooklyn defeated the Cardinals 7 to 4 in the final game of the local's home stand. Hornsby's circuit clout was his twenty second this season. Stuart was batted out of the box. Score:
Brooklyn .. ..004002001—7 13 0
St. Louis .. ..000101011—4 10 1
Grimes and Taylor; Stuart, Fowler, Bell and Gonzales.

Braves Blanked.

CINCINNATI, August 26. — Donohue was in his best form to-day, while the Reds hit Benton for many long drives, Cincinnati winning the last game of the series from Boston 7 to 0. Daubert had two doubles and a triple in five times up. The score:
Boston .. ..00000000—0 4 3
Cincinnati .. ..10400002x—7 12 0
Benton, Yeargin and Gibson; Donohue and Wingo.

THE SEASON'S FIND.

Hazen Cuyler, fleet Pittsburg outfielder, stacks up as one of the greatest finds of the present season. The Southern League rookie is making a real name for himself his first year in the big leagues. He recently equaled one of baseball's most unusual feats—that of getting six hits in as many times at bat in a single game. On another occasion he got five out of six.

RAIN HALTS SPORTS.

Baseball, Racing, Polo, Tennis and Boxing Schedules Upset.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(Canadian Press).—Sports activity in the east, now at the height of one of the busiest late-season campaigns on record, was abruptly halted by rain Tuesday on nearly all fronts.

A heavy overnight downpour played havoc with baseball, boxing, horse racing, polo and tennis schedules, disappointing performers and spectators alike who have been manifesting unusual interest in the various branches of activity.

In the metropolitan sector, play was suspended in the national men's singles championship which opened in spectacular fashion Monday at Forest Hills; interrupted the international polo practice matches at Westbury, in which an English team was to have played the California junior champions; blocked the boxing card slated at the Queensboro A. C. and prevented the New York Yankees from continuing their American League pennant fight with Cleveland as an opponent.

Also the grand circuit harness at Readville, Mass., were cancelled.

OSHAWA MOTORS SATURDAY BILL

Return Game With C. G. E. In Intermediate O.B.A.A. Deserves Crowd.

AT EXHIBITION PARK.

When the C.G.E. hook up with Oshawa Motors on Saturday at the Exhibition Park they should be greeted by a capacity crowd. As there is no Central League game here Saturday the fans will be given this opportunity of seeing the C.G.E. perform. Both Oshawa Motors and the C.G.E. are capable of dishing up a fast brand of ball and will in all probability do so. Most of the Oshawa team is composed of players who need no introduction to the fans. They have been seen in senior ball around here having played with the Oshawa Central League team.

Both these teams are as fast as any of the senior teams so the fans can be assured of some snappy ball. This is an Intermediate O.B.A.A. semi-final game.

The C.G.E. have not been seen in action for a couple of weeks but they have been practicing right along and are in good shape. They play Oshawa in Oshawa tomorrow and are looking for a win so they can get an edge on the series. They are well fortified with pitchers and the two games should not worry them any. A good crowd should be out Saturday to cheer the boys along to a victory.

OPERATION ON LION.

HAMBURG, Germany, Aug. 27. —(Associated Press).—A veterinary recently lanced and treated a big boil that had developed between the eyes of one of the lions in the Zoo here. The attendants feared trouble, but the lion submitted quietly to a 15-inch incision, suffered the veterinary to clean the wound and when released quietly resumed its cage life.

On subsequent visits it met the healer with every evidence of pleasure and without being roped submitted to the application of disinfecting and healing ointments.

SHOCKER SHUT OUT SENATORS

Won First Game of Double-Header—Washington Take Second.

NEW YORK IDLE.

WASHINGTON, August 26. — Washington divided honors with St. Louis to-day in a double header, the visitors winning 7 to 0 before the locals triumphed 6 to 2. Shocker held the Senators to five scattered hits in in the first encounter while his club hammered three Washington pitchers.

In the second engagement Ogden never was in serious trouble but Danforth was free with hits and passes and was driven from the slab in the sixth. Scores:

1st game:
St. Louis .. ..110030011—7 11 0
Washington .. ..00000000—0 5 2

MACKMEN WIN IN 12TH.

PHILADELPHI, August 26. — Joe Hauser, Philadelphia first baseman, drove the ball over the right field wall in the 12th inning to-day, defeating the Chicago White Sox 4 to 3. It was Hauser's 21st homer of the season and Chicago's 13th straight. Romel retired from the box in the 11th when a drive from Mostil's bat split a finger on his pitching hand. The score:
Chicago .. ..000001020000—3 10 0
Philadelphia .. ..000210000001—4 10 2
Faber and Crouse, Schalk; Romel, Heimach and Bruggy, Perkins.

BASEBALL PROGRAM FOR TOMORROW'S BIG PICNIC

The following is the baseball programme for the community picnic at Exhibition Grounds tomorrow. Commencing at 10 o'clock the baseball tournament will open with two Curve Lake baseball teams, opposing each other.

At 3.30 Keene and Lakefield will play, and at this hour will commence the girls' softball games.

The following are the teams that will take part in the tournament: Keene, Lakefield, Douro, Sixth Line, Indian River and two local teams, the Quakers and the Y.W.C.A.

All teams taking part in the girls' softball tournament are requested to gather on the diamond in front of the main grand stand immediately after the speeches, which will be about 3.30 o'clock. Prizes for the winning team will be ten silver miniature cups, one for each girl on the successful team.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

WESTCLOX WIN IN MERCANTILE

Herb Wolfe Held Lock Makers To Three Hits In Smart Game.

SCORE WAS 5-3.

Lockworks shot a scare into the Westclox last evening when they scored three runs in the sixth innings, making the score 5 to 3, but the game was called at the end of the sixth on account of darkness and the Clockmakers were given the verdict over the Lockmakers.

The game was one of the fastest exhibitions of baseball seen in the Mercantile League this season and was witnessed by a fair crowd of enthusiastic fans.

Lefty Donnelly who has been pitching sterling ball for the Lockworks in his last three or four games fell down last night and was touched for ten hits by the Westclox sluggers, who had no mercy on him, every man on the team but one getting at least a safety. Donnelly worked hard to try and stem the flow of Westclox hits but his efforts were in vain as the Big Ben boys got to him just as bad at the last of the game as at the first.

Herbie Wolfe was Manager DeGraw's choice to do the mound work for the Westclox and he turned in a great game. He held the Lockworks to three scattered hits and they did not score on him until the last innings when they collected their three runs. Wolfe fanned five men, issued two passes and hit two batters, while Donnely fanned five men, issued one pass and hit one batsman. The Lockworks gave Donnely good support but the numerous hits piled the runs up against his team.

McDougal at second base was the outstanding player for the Lockworks, while Wolfe and Prosser did the heavy hitting for the Westclox. Cobb made a good job of calling them behind the plate and Lou Lebarr made his debut on the bases last night and has the markings of a good ump as he let nothing get by him.

BUFFALO GAVE BIRDS BATTLE

Baltimore Score Three in the Tenth and Win By One Run.

SKEETERS WIN ONE.

BUFFALO, August 26. — Baltimore beat Buffalo 10 to 9, in the first of their series to-day. It proved a bitter struggle, lasting ten innings, before the Orioles finally put over the winning tallies. Six pitchers mounted the slab, three for each team. With the score tied, seven all, at the end of the ninth, Baltimore went in and scored three runs, Buffalo scoring two. The score:
Baltimore .. .. ..0000300313—10 15 2
Buffalo .. ..1010030022— 9 15 3
Earnshaw, Jackson, Ogden and Cobb; Biemiller, Proffitt, Williams and McAvoy.

Stere beat Bears.

SYRACUSE, August 26. — Syracuse defeated Newark in the first game of the series here to-day by a score of 8 to 6. It was a heavy hitting affair, Newark sending Grabowski to the showers in the third, and Syracuse knocking "Cueball" Ellis from the box in the sixth. Newark made a game fight, scoring two runs in the ninth. Score:
Syracuse .. ..0001 103x—8 14 3
Newark .. ..003000102—6 10 3
Grabowski and McKee; Ellis, Mohart and Devine.

Final Game in Elimination Series With Bethany's Team

AT RIVERSIDE.

Owing to a mistake in receiving the date for the Mackey-Bethany game it was announced that the game would be played Thursday night when it should have been Friday. However the big game will be pulled off Friday night at 5.30 at Riverside Park and should draw a great crowd. The teams are very evenly matched as is indicated by the fact that in the two games played one game was won by one run and the other by two runs. Bethany are confident they can defeat Mackey's, but the Breadmakers can't see it that way at all. They say they were outlucked in Bethany and think they will have no trouble in putting them away Friday night. Bethany with their star heaver Riley on the firing line will attempt to show Mackeys that they will be out there in the game themselves. Riley turned away thirteen of the Mackey crew on Tuesday night by strikeouts. Riley possesses a nice curve and a good fast ball. Manager Mackey has Lefty Conners and Shiner Clarke for mound duty but he has not yet announced who will draw the assignment.

The fans can look forward to a good game Friday night when these two teams meet. This game decides the championship of the Bethany-Mackeys series and both teams will be out there fighting for a win. Fans are reminded of the change in the date, the game to be played at Riverside Park at 5.30 p.m. Friday night and not Thursday as was stated yesteday.

TAXI

A taxicab rate war in New York dropped charges to 10 cents a half mile. Investigating reporters couldn't find many drivers who'd haul them for that. But it shows what is possible in the way of low rates when there's plenty of compensation.

Can you own and drive a car for 20 cents a mile—fighting depreciation, upkeep and interest on investment? The day seems approaching when it'll be as cheap to use taxis in cities as to own your own car. For one thing, the taxi works almost uninterruptedly. A privately owned auto is eating up interest and depreciation charges while it's idle in the garage.

O'ROURKE HELPING DETROIT IN FIGHT FOR THE PENNANT

Champion "Drifter" of the Big Leagues Playing Fine Ball at Second.

COBB'S COMPLIMENT.

After 11 years of flitting in and out of the major leagues, Frank O'Rourke has a chance to realize a cherished ambition, playing on a pennant-winning ball club.

At present Frank O'Rourke is holding down second base for the Detroit Tygers and doing a mighty fine job of it. Certainly the Tygers figure a strong pennant possibility in the American League.

"If I had had O'Rourke playing second since the start of the season we would now be out in front by a comfortable margin," is the compliment Manager Cobb pays O'Rourke.

For several years, and particularly since the opening of the 1924 season, second base has been the one weak spot in the Detroit infield. Many have been tried at that position and found wanting. O'Rourke seems to fill the bill.

First Trial With Braves.

Back in 1913 O'Rourke received his first big league trial as a member of the Boston Braves. He came up as a shorstop and has played that position most of his career.

A rather weak throwing arm has somewhat handicapped O'Rourke in his shorstop play, but it in no way affects his work at second, where the throw is shorter.

Since 1913 O'Rourke has been picked up by five major league clubs—Washington, Brooklyn, Cincinnati and Detroit, in addition to the Braves. When not playing big-time baseball he filled in with the better minor leagues.

Is Brainy Player.

This year just as a time when Detroit was sadly in need of a second sacker, Manager Dan Howley of Toronto, who formerly assisted Ty Cobb, at Detroit, sent on O'Rourke.

While a player of much natural ability, O'Rourke's long experience and his ability to think, has greatly helped to steady the Tygers infield. When he gets the ball he knows what to do with it.

It is a rather strange coincidence that O'Rourke's previous engagement in the American League was as a member of the Washington club, a strong rival of Detroit for pennant honors.

O'Rourke is no youngster. He admits 34 years of age and ball players are fussy on that score. He also frankly admits that he is getting the biggest chance of his career at a time he figured he was through as a big leaguer.

A FAMOUS PACER STILL IMPROVES

Single G Is Getting Faster Every Year of Her Long Career.

CAMBRIDGE CITY, Ind., Aug. 27.—(Associated Press).—"Single G," 14-year-old veteran of the harness racing circuits, is improving with age, despite the general belief that a horse's best days are past when it reaches its tenth year. This remarkable animal, which eleven years ago made her maiden start over a mile course at Peoria, Illinois, and finished third in a race on the same day in which the world's record was shattered by "William" in another race, still is the talk of the harness racing fraternity. "William," in making his debut, established a record of 2.05. He and all other racing mates of "Single G" in that day have gone, but the great pacer is more active than ever.

"Single G" established a record of 1.58 1-2 in negotiating the mile in her tenth year of racing last season and today, in her eleventh year in harness, she promises to do as well or better, according to followers of the circuit races.

According to racing authorities, "Single G" has surpassed the record of all harness race horses of the two minute class or better, and they declare her now to be one of the greatest pacers in harness.

"Little Gyp," mare of no recognized breeding, was the dam of "Single G," while "Anderson Wilkes," rated as a good horse in in his day and a leading son of "Onward," was her sire. Ed Allen, veteran driver, who has been the trainer of "Single G," is always in the seat when she steps around the circuit. She is the property of W. B. Barefoot of Cambridge City, Indiana.

We don't suppose the time ever will come when a golfer making hole in one will refuse to permit the sports editor to write a piece about him.

STRIBLING FAVORED.

In Six Round Light Heavyweight Match With Berlenbach.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(Canadian Press). — Paul Berlenbach, New York light heavyweight, will face the acid test to-night at the Velodrome A. C., when he squares off with Young Stribling, sensational Macon, Ga., schoolboy boxer, in a six-round encounter. Despite its brevity the match has excited intense interest in pugilistic circles.

Stribling will enter the ring as the favorite due to his defeat of Mike McTigue, world's champion, at Newark, N.J., on March 31, and also to his victory over Tommy Loughran, of Philadelphia, at the milk fund bouts. In 109 starts Stribling has scored 107 victories.

KIWANIS WIN BANTAM TITLE

Maple Leafs threw a scare into the Kiwanis camp last evening at the Exhibition park, but darkness caught the Leafs in the field, and pitched balls which Paine was unable to handle went through, giving Bob Mackey's team a win by 5 to 4. Both Sproule and Trebilcock pitched well. The victory gives Kiwanis the city championship in the Bantam series.

Score by innings:

										R	H	E
Maple Leafs	1	0	2	1	0	4	-	-	-	8	7	3
Kiwanis	3	0	0	0	2	0	0	6	3	14	6	3

Batteries, Sproule and Paine; Trebilcock and Jones.

Umpires: Lowe and McFadden.

EPIDEMIC IN JAPAN.

Nearly Nine Hundred Deaths in Recent Weeks From New Affliction.

TOKIO, Aug. 27. — (Canadian Press).—Several of the most prominent physicians have left hurriedly for western provinces where new epidemic, resembling spinal meningitis is reported to be raging, causing nearly nine hundred deaths in recent weeks.

Local physicians call it "Narcolepsie meningitis". Victims undergo usual symptoms of spinal meningitis and then fall into comatose state, remaining in this condition until death. Mortality is at rate of 65 per cent.

BLOODSHED MARS DEBATE ON PEACE

German Deputies Wax Warlike in Discussing Dawes Plan.

(By Frederick Kuh. United Press Staff Correspondent).

BERLIN, Aug. 27—The Reichstag was thrown into an uproar this afternoon and the first bloodshed of the session occurred in the debate on the so-called Dawes laws, which will make the London agreement effective.

The fighting grew out of a motion by the Fascist Deputies for a general amnesty following a communist proposal to allow imprisoned deputies to vote on the Dawes laws.

There was general fighting for several minutes. One deputy was knocked down and trampled on and carried bleeding from the Parliament Hall.

To Sign Agreement

The German government will sign the London agreement whether or not the Reichstag approves of it, it was officially announced to-day. If the Reichstag rejects the pact on the Dawes Reparation Plan, elaborated at the International Conference in London, the legislative body will be dissolved, according to an announcement.

Signs a Decree

President Ebert to-day signed a decree providing for dissolution of the Reichstag in case it refuses to ratify the pact of London, making the Dawes-Young settlement of the reparations problem effective.

A new election would follow the dissolution.

Session in Uproar.

The chairman was about to pass the amnesty motion by acclamation, when the Democratic Deputy Brodauf and the Communist Maslovski became enraged and started shaking their fists at each other. The Communist started towards Brodauf and immediately the session was in an uproar. Deputies shouted and battered away at one another.

The Democratic Deputy Korell attacked the Communist Staellein and the two boxed up and down, tearing clothes and wrenching at one another. The Nationalist Ba Verrenz leaped to the Chairman's platform and was acting as referee, to the Korell-Staellein bout when the chairman suspended the session by leaving the room.

The galleries did not join in the disorder but shouted "Shame! Shame!" throughout. Brodauf was bleeding from the nose when carried from the hall. The physicians say he was in a serious condition from nervous shock.

STORM DELAYS FLIGHT.

U. S. Airmen May Be Held Up in Greenland—Storm Sweeps Newfoundland.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Aug. 27. — (Canadian Press). — The United States round-the-world fliers may be prevented from hopping off from Ivigtut, Greenland, for Indian Harbor, Labrador, to-morrow morning, if a severe storm which is sweeping over Newfoundland to-day continues and if it extends towards the north.

LINDSAY HAS GOOD MEMORY

White Elk Was Costly Publicity Man For Exhibition —Now in Spotlight In England.

GIVES AWAY $40,000

LINDSAY, Aug. 27.—'White Elk,' the Indian chief, who was chief publicity man for the Lindsay Central Fair, and whose activities proved costly for the directorate as well as for a number of private citizens, is once more in the limelight. The following is taken from the London, England, Daily Mirror.

"The Red Indian Chief 'White Elk Tervanna, head of a tribe in Canada, who has just landed at Barri Italy, from the steamer Cimarosi, distributed large sums of money with great lavishness says the Central News. He gave a cheque for £200 to the Barj Society and a similar amount to the captain and crew of the Camirosi. To a young girl who gave him a bouquet of flowers the chief presented his ermine cloak. Afterwards he showered hundreds of bank notes upon the large crowd waiting to see him. Later he presented £4,000 to the various benevolent societies, and £200 to the Facist Society. In all the chief gave away more than £40,000.

LINDSAY WOMAN DIED.

Miss Nellie Hanahoe Was Stricken Yesterday — Death Was Sudden

LINDSAY, Augus 27. — A sudden death took place in Lindsay on Tuesday, when Miss Nellie Hanahoe, who for thirty years has been a member of the Separate school staff, pased away at her home.

The deceased was making arrangements to motor to Pleasant Point, when she was stricken with paralysis and died a few hours later.

She is survived by one brother and six sisters.

ATTORNEY VITRIOLIC.

Prosecutor of Loeb and Leopold Demands Names of Strange Diseases.

CHICAGO, August 27. — State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, vitriolic in speech, and at times apoplectic in gesture, resumed his onslaught today upon the mercy plea in behalf of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb.

With a renewed attack upon the competency of the youthful murderers of Bobby Franks, Mr. Crowe insisted upon a name for "these strange mental sicknesses invented for this case." From the outset the explosive argument of the prosecutor drew objections from the defence and an ensuing wrangle of technicalities called from Chief Justice John R. Caverly, to whom falls the duty of fixing the sentence, the declaration that the "court will not consider any argument outside of the record."

BRITISH COAST PATROL.

LONDON, August 27 (Canadian Press). — Great Britain's coast line will in the near future be patrolled and guraded by powerful seaplanes, now under construction for the Navy.

Each will carry a pilot, navigator, two machine gunners, and a torpedo for launching at hostile surface craft.

Still more powerful planes are being built to make longer flights seaward, and these will carry five men each.

ANNUAL MEETING OF ASSOCIATION

Ontario Municipalities in Convention in Toronto—Representatives From Peterborough.

TORONTO, Aug. 27.—(Special to the Examiner).— The 26th annual meeting of the Ontario Municipal Association was held in the City Hall to-day. The delegates were welcomed by Mayor Hiltz.

B. J. Culley, City Controller of Ottawa, replied to the address of welcome. In his annual address, President M. Huenergard, Assessment Commissioner of Kitchener, spoke of the unemployment conditions throughout the Dominion and bemoaned that Canada was being made the dumping ground for a good many asticles that could be manufactured here.

"Councils of our provinces have wide powers under the local improvement act and the municipal act in expenditures," he said. "They should exercise great care and wisdom in the conduct of municipal affairs. Extravagances should be studiously avoided by these. Municipalities that now conserve their finances most wisely, will be better able to make their payments without having to impose heavy burdens on the people of the communities.

The representatives from Peterborough to the meeting are City Clerk S. R. Armstrong and City Assessor W. J. Henry.

TEACHERS AT EDMONTON.

SASKATOON, Sask., August 27 (Canadian Press). — The last general assembly of the Canadian Teachers' Federation party on tour by Canadian Pacific Railway special train, was held in Saturday at Edmonton.

The party arrived from Banff in the morning.

They were met by representatives of the Alberta Teachers' Alliance of the Department of Education and the service clubs of Edmonton, and were given a drive through the city.

OUTBREAK IN CHINA.

Numerous Refugees Are Pouring Into Shanghai.

SHANGHAI, August 27 (Canadian Press).— Shun Pao, the leading vernacular newspaper, received the despatch to-day reporting an outbreak of warfare between the forces of Chi Shieh Yuan, military governor of the Kiangsu Province, and General Lu Yung Heiang Tuchun, of Chekiang Province.

The outbreak occurred at Quinsat, near here, on the line of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway.

Numerous refugees are pouring into Shanghai from Sunkiang and other border cities.

CAN MAKE BREW

Private Manufacture of Spirits Not Banned in Russia.

MOSCOW August 27. — The government recognizing the imperative necessity of establishing control of the liquor trade to-day, announced it had granted a monopoly for the sale of spirituous liquors, whiskies, wines and beers to the Supreme Economic Council.

The private manufacture of spirits is not banned but no drink either for state or private affairs, will be allowed to contain more than twenty per cent. of alcohol.

POWBR PLANT CONSTRUCTION IS BBING RBVOLUTIONIzBD.

A revolution in the construction of power plants has taken place within the past few years. The reciprocating engine of 10,000 horsepower has given way to the steam turbine of 87,000 horsepower. The public service steam boiler of 350 pounds pressure, of which a few were built in 1922, is succeeded in 1923 by the boiler of 1200 pounds pressure. The 1500-pound boiler is under consideration here, and an experimental boiler for 3,200 pounds pressure is building in England.—Iron Age.

OLD HOME YEAR FOR CANADIANS

Total of 18,670 Returned From United States In Four Months.

MORE IMMIGRANTS.

OTTAWA, Aug. 27. — (Canadian Press).—A pronounced return movement of Canadians from the United States is indicated in immigration figures made public yesterday. During the four months of April, May, June and July of the present year a total of 18,670 Canadians returned to Canada from the United States. Of this total, 16,166 were Canadian-born citizens, 1,646 were British subjects who had acquired Canadian domicile and 1,058 were classed generally as "Canadian citizens." In July alone, the total number of admissions of returning Canadians recorded at the international boundary line was 5,127, while in each of the four months more than four thousand admissions were recorded.

Immigration figures for the four months show an increase of 17 per cent. over the same period last year. The total number of immigrants entering Canada from all countries during April, May, June and July was 64,023, as compared with 54,912 during the same months of 1923. Of this total, 33,248 came from the British Isles, 7,005 from the United States, and 23,770 from "other countries." For July alone there was a decrease in total immigration from 13,900 in 1923 to 10,778 in July, 1924. Immigration from Great Britain dropped from 7,040 in July, 1923, to 4,789 last month.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Despondent Because Sweetheart Left Him, Thomas Bibona Took His Own Life.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(Canadian Press).—Despondent because he had been rejected by his sweetheart two years ago, Thomas Bibona, 24 years old, of Stamford, Conn., parked his sedan on a road near Bedford village on Monday night, spread gasoline about the interior of the car and then set it on fire.

Victor Miller, farm laborer, saw the flaming car and man sitting inside. He opened the door and tried to rescue Bibona, but the later fought back until he became unconscious from his burns.

Bibona was hushed to office of Dr. Coopernail in Bedford village. Regaining consciousness there, he told his story.

Bibona died yesterday morning in the hospital.

AT THE ROYAL.

JACK HOXIE IN THRILLING WESTERN TO-MORROW.

Deadly bullets whistled over the despised sheepherder's head, or embedded themselves in the sand bank which served as his fort. His ammunition was running low; his chances of escape were diminishing.

Not only was the ex-puncher detested for his work, but he was suspected of being the slayer of a rancher, an unpardonable offense for a sheepherder.

Out of nowhere, so it seemed, a powerful motor car, a lone girl at the wheel, turned off the road and rounded towards the herder. Was it a woman's whim which prompted her to take such a chance? She didn't know any participants. A stray shot, or the equally dangerous road might cause her own death.

In an instant, the big sheepherder was on the running board. Away she sped. Once out of danger, they parted, but she had learned his name—the accused of the murder of her uncle!

Did she turn the ranchers loose on him again, to avenge her kin? Why did his frank face persist in her memory? Why did she use her influence to obtain the militia when the mob stormed the jail to lynch him?—Revealed in "The Man From Wyoming," Jack Hoxie's latest Universal attraction coming next Thursday to the Royal Theatre.

VALUABLE PRIZES FOR CHILDREN AT ROYAL TO-MORROW, FRIDAY AND SATURDAY MATINEES.

Children have a treat in store at the Royal. Grab-bags, consisting of such worth while prizes as handkerchiefs, necklaces, perfume, pens, pencils, card tricks, etc., will be given away with each ticket purchased on Thursday, Friday and Saturday matinees. These prizes are now in the window of the Royal, and are attracting much attention among the young generation.

DIVING TROUPE SEEN IN McDONALD FILM.

Men and women of importance, people with a "pull" and mere tourists besieged the Hollywood studios clamoring for admission to the big stage where William Beaudine was directing "A Self-Made Failure," J. K. McDonald's latest First National picture, now at the Royal. Needless to say, very few were admitted.

Early in the making of the picture, the rumor was verified that McDonald had cast the most beautiful swimming and diving girls in the world in the bathing pool sequence. From more than two hundred of Hollywood's most beautiful girls, ten were finally accepted for these scenes and every one of them with an already established record for face, form and ability in water sports.

In this sequence "Chuck" Riesner, who was "borrowed" from Charlie Chaplin, appears as "Spike Malone," manager of a road show of diving Venuses and while the scenes have no important bearing on the real plot of the story, they add to the humor and the physical beauty of the picture.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"THE TROUBLE SHOOTER."

Deals With Hazardous Life of Lineman in Northern Outposts.

Frederic and Fanny Hatton, eminent playwrights and William Fox scenarists, have written a new type of romantic screen story for Tom Mix, that dare-devil of the silver sheet. Mr. Mix, who recently finished "Fine and Dandy," started work immediately on this original, "The Trouble Shooter," direction of Jack Conway, a newcomer to the Fox lot. This is the Hatton's first Tom Mix story, and a cast of unusual excellence has been engaged by James Ryan, the casting director, to support the star. Kathleen Key is the leading lady. Others in the cast are Earle Fox, heavy; Frank Currier, Mike Donlin, Howard Truesdale and J. Gunnis Davis.

"The Trouble Shooter" is the name of the lookout man for a big power plant, whose dangerous job is to see that wires and cables are kept in perfect condition. The story suggested itself to the Hattons as a result of a talk with George T. Bigelo, Third Vice-President of the Southern Sierras Power Company. Mr. Hatton roomed with Mr. Bigelo at college, and they met again recently at a fraternity dinner. Expressing keen interest in the work of the "trouble shooter" with a power plant, Mr. Bigelow invited them over to his plant in Riverside, California, and they were taken through it. As a result of their study of this all-important work, they wrote a story around the "trouble shooter" for Mr. Mix.

Most of the location is in the mountainous, snowy country, and Mix taught his famous horse, Tony, how to walk on snowshoes, for the "trouble shooter's" horse, in order to traverse the dangerous snowy country must wear snowshoes. Mr. Mix wore skiis.

One of the exciting scenes in this picture is when Tom, riding along, sees a girl on the mountain side and observes rock beginning to tumble and slide way above on the mountain. Knowing that she will be killed in the avalanche, Tom urges Tony down the almost perpendicular mountain-side leaps from the saddle, and with one hand around a tree, reaches out and pulls the girl from the way of the thundering avalanche just in the nick of time. This is the beginning of a romance that plays a big part in the development of the story.

"The Trouble Shooter" opens at the Capitol tomorrow.

JACK DEMPSEY IN SECOND OF "FIGHT OND WIN" SERIES AT CAPITOL TOMORROW

The second round of the popular "Fight and Win" series, starring Jack Dempsey, will be seen at the Capitol tomorrow, Friday and Saturday. This one is called "A Society Knockout," and is said to be an exceptionally clever and amusing story of the prize ring.

D. E. Grant vs. C. Ringer.

MYSTERIOUS.

The most fascinating things in modern life are taking place in the scientific labratory—which used to be a dull place for most people.

For instance Professor Huxley takes a normal egg that would hatch and produce only one newt (salamander). He ties a string around the center. The egg gradually separates into two, from each of which hatches a healthy, normal salamander. Again, he grafts two eggs together—and only one salamander hatcehs.

Life is more mysterious, the closer we get to its secret.

MUST MANUFACTURE ALL RAW MATERIAL

Col. A. F. Hatch Tells C.N.E. Directors Canadian Resources Must Be Utilized.

TORONTO, Aug. 27.—(Canadian Press).—"Why cannot the problem of building up Canada be solved by co-operation and compromise? Our chief National problem is to utilize the raw materials from our great resources in sich a way as to give the greatest possible amount of employment to Canadians, and this can be done by manufacturing to the limit of our ability all those raw materials that we now export."

This policy was advocated by Col. A. F. Hatch of Hamilton, President of the Canadian Manufacturer's Association, speaking at a luncheon tendered by the officials of the Canadian National Exhibition to-day, manufacturer's day at the big Fair.

Greater co-operation between the farmer, lumberman, and industrial Canada was advised by Col. Hatch. He told of his visit to Wembley, and pointed out that the British Empire Exhibition and the Canadan National Exhibition had been bult up by co-operation till they were both successes.

"We hear a great deal about the natural resources of Canada but the fact is overlooked that timber, minerals, water powers and fertile lands have no commercial value apart from the markets," said Col. Hatch.

TARIFF PROTECTION.

Farmers of Ontario Need Protection of Tariff, Says Moodie, of Hamilton.

TORONTO, August 27. — The belief that the farmer in the Province of Ontario needs tariff protection was expressed to-day before the Agricultural enquiry committee of the province by R. R. Moodie, of Hamilton, Ont., chairman of the Ontario Division of the Ontario Manufacturers' Association.

Mr. Moodie also dwelt on the necessity of co-operative markets, and the building of good lateral roads for those farmers who do not have the advantage of being located on main highways.

Continued co-operation between farmers and manufacturers was also advocated as being highly desirable in the case of both these classes of "producers."

DEMANDED PROOF FROM MAGISTRATE

Wanted Information Before Pleading To Charge of Assault.

After being charged with assault, a local Italian fruit merchant, when asked by Magistrate Langley how he would plead, made the following unusual request:

"Your Worship, may I ask a little information first? Have they got witnesses to prove the charge?"

His Worship after intimating that the information would come in handy, without replying to his request, insisted that he plead.

He finally pleaded not guilty, and the case was adjourned to September 2nd, at the request of both parties.

Another Italian apeared on two charges. He pleaded guilty to being intoxicated in a public place, and was fined $20 and costs.

The second charge, that of having liquor in a place other than a private dwelling, was adjourned to September 9th.

The accused stated that he was not feeling very well on Sunday, so he took a little wine, and some pain killer. "You know my stomach is not very good," he told His Worship."

ESCAPE PROMPTS PROBE.

Serafini, Though Under Constant Guard, Made Sensational Break From the Jail.

MONTREAL, August 27. — Sensational developments are forecast as the result of an investigation ordered by the Attorney General's Department into the circumstances surrounding the escape of Guiseppe Serafini from his cell in the murderers' row at Bordeaux jail.

Just how a man under constant guard could obtain saw, cut through three stout bars out of his cell, and then walk out into the prison yard, without being detected, is the question which the Attorney General had addressed to the jail authorities.

UNIQUE WINDOW DISPLAY IN OMEMEE

OMEMEE, August 27. — Mr. S. J. Mackey, our local druggist an stationer, is receiving much favorable comment on the timely window display of school accessories.

In the background looms up "the little red school house," S. S. No. 1, (not a picture but a real building) with wooden platform in front, on the edge of which is perched "a young hopeful" munching the inevitable apple. From the window, a dainty young school teacher smilingly gazes on the playground, where stands a real swing with a boy sitting on it, and around which other scholars play. A background is formed of scribblers, white pencils, pens, etc., complete a window display, which is timely and well thought out.

At the recent moving picture entertainment, provided by the Ford Motor Company, Messrs. Ira Rehill and William Burgess, were successful in winning valuable prizes, through the distribution of literature which was distributed amongst a large crowd in attendance.

These men held the lucky piece, and the former received a cord tire, donated by William Irwin, Omemee, while the latter was presented with an automombile tube and box of patches, donated by the Duffus Motor Sales, Peterboro.

On Wednesday evening a pleasant time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Gregory when about thirty-four guests assembled at a birthday party given for their daughter Jessie. Mrs. Cresswell and Mr. N. Stabler furnished the music for dancing, while Miss Jessie Gregory played for the singing. A very enjoyable evening was spent by those present and the party broke up shortly after midnight.

Rev. David McKee, of Truth Mission, was in Bailieboro last night, assisting in the evangelistic services being held there.

Mrs. Ray Hamilton, formerly Miss H. R. Bruce, who has been in the service of the local branch of the Union Bank of Canada for two years, left yesterday for her home in Brechin, where she will spend a few weeks with her mother, after which she will reside in Detroit. Before leaving the service of the bank, the manager and staff presented Mrs. Hamilton with silver knives and forks as a slight token of their esteem.

Miss Mary Griffin, 424 London Street, and her cousin, Master Ormie Henry, are spending a few days at Mr. Beal's cottage, Big Island, Stoney Lake, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Reid.

Mr. Harry M. Hobson, of Portland, Maine, formerly with the C.N.R. road staff, here, is in town making preparations for the removal of his household goods this week to his new home. If time permits, Harry will call on a few of his friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Sherwood and family of Wheatley, Ont., are the guests of Mrs. Quartermaine, 416 London street.

The Misses Genevieve and Dorothy O'Connell of Toronto, are visiting Miss Marcelle McNulty.

Miss L. Wilkinson, is in Lindsay to-day, attending the Kirkconnell-Peel nuptials.

Miss Blanche Hickey, Rochester, N.Y., is spending her vacation with her parents at 500 Murray Street.

Mr. Frank Ohlan, Rochester, N.Y., is spending his vacation in the city, the guest of Mr. P. Hickey, 500 Murray Street.

Miss Joy Lansing returned to Toronto, to-day after spending ten days with Miss Helen Lamb, Chemong Park.

Miss Helen Archambault returned home after a pleasant vacation with Miss Madeleine Henry, Chemong Park.

Miss Muriel Morrison is spending her vacation in Montreal and vicinity.

Daro Neal is attending the Canadian National Exhibition.

OBITUARY.

MRS. S. KILLINGBECK.

A very sad death took place in the passing of Ivy Evelyn Killingbeck, wife of Stanley Killingbeck, in her 21st year, late last evening.

Besides her sorrowing husband, she leaves an infant baby boy. Of kindly and cheerful disposition, her passing in the early prime of life came as a shock to her family and relatives. In religion she was a Baptist.

She is also survived by one sister Mrs. A. Bromell of Toronto, and one brother, Harvey Richard, of England.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 98 Gladstone Avenue, on Thursday at 2.30 p.m., proceeding to Little Lake Cemetery for interment. Rev. Norman McLeod will officiate.

PATRICK C. TWOMEY

The death occurred yesterday of Patrick C. Twomey of Ennismore, in his 83rd year.

The deceased was a life-long resident of Ennismore, and was a widely known and highly respected citizen.

He is survived by two brothers, Lawrence of Ennismore and John of Wisconsin, and one sister, Elizabeth, at home.

The funeral will take place on Friday morning, and will proceed to St. Martin's Church and Cemetery.

INDUSTRY AND AGRICULTURE IN BIG CONFERENCE

Leaders Assemble In Toronto To Improve Conditions in Farming.

LABOR CONDEMNED.

Secretary J. J. Morrison, of the U.F.O., Thinks Industrial Peace Needed.

TORONTO, Aug. 27.—(Canadian Press).—Leaders in all branches of Ontario industry assembled here today at the request of a special agricultural investigation committee of the Legislative to endeavor through the medium of a mutual exchange of ideas to improve conditions in the Agricultural industry. Hon. Dr. Jamieson, chairman of a special committee expressed the opinion that the interest taken by the various leaders of industry indicated that co-operation was necessary for the good of province.

J. J. Morrison, secretary of U.F.O. expressed the opinion that an industrial peace league was required and thought that lack of co-operative effort had brought about a sad condition of affairs. Labor organizations controlled production and sought higher wages and shorter hours. They also held in reserve large funds for strike purposes which created an unfriendly situation.

George Wilson of the Toronto Board of Trade, declared that the province at present was inclined to howl calamity and it was "getting to be too much of a habit."

EARLY SHOPPERS CROWDED STREETS

From Early Indications, To-day's Trade Promises To Equal 1923 Midsummer Dollar Day.

Shopers were out early this morning. Merchants were generally of the opinion that this morning's trade equalled that of last year's midsummer dollar day. Some said their business up to 1 o'clock exceeded last year's.

At ten o'clock the streets were crowded with shoppers in search of bargains. Towards noon, the stores became quieter as the eager housewives hurried home to prepare hubby's lunch.

It is the smaller articles that go in great quantities on Dollar Day. Many are in the habit of postponing their purchases to Dollar Day, when they make a shopping tour. Others, with nothing particularly in mind, promenade through the stores looking for opportunities, making an odd purchase accordin- to their fancies.

Miss Dollar.

The mysterious Miss Dollar proved an elusive personage. Although greatly in demand, she could not be found, despite the fact that she was often in the midst of vain searchers, eagerly trying to identify the young lady, who, like the rest of them, was going from store to store.

In the afternoon she wore a touch of orchid colour as identification.

Many were accosted, unaware of the reason for the intrusion. A brief explanation that the axious party thought she had discovered Miss Dollar cleared the embarrassing situation.

A $10.00 prize was offered to the lucky finder, and throughout the day description of the dress of Miss Dollar were posted on The Examiner bulletin.

Besides a great many adults, a host of children were among the searchers.

PRETTY WEDDING IN CITY TO-DAY

Dr. Harold E. Walsh and Miss Mable A. Brown United in Beautiful Ceremony.

One of the most beautiful home weddings of the season took place at two o'clock this afternoon, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Elliott 112 McDonnel street, when Mabel A. Brown of Toronto, daughter of Mrs. Annie Brown and the late Dr. W. E. Brown, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Dr. Harold E. Welsh of Moira son of Mrs. Carrie Welsh and the late W. E. Welsh. The bride was given away by her uncle, Charles Brown of Roseneath and was attended by Miss Jean B. Elliott. The groomsman was Roy Welsh of Tpronto, a brother of the groom. Mrs. T. C. Elliott played the wedding march.

Rev. Bick, of Wooler, performed the ceremony. Dr. McQuade gave a beautiful rendition of "Beloved, It Is Morn."

The decorations, which transferred the entire house into a bower of flowers, were carried out by Jordan brothers and the catering was done by the Hooper Company.

The bride"s gown was a beautiful creation of white satin with folds and drapes of Chantilly lace embroidered with seed pearls. She wore an embroidered tulle veil with coronet of pearls and orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of butterfly roses and lily of the valley. Her going-away gown was of French grey chiffon, appliqued with midnight blue velvet; a black satin cloak with silver fur collar, a small black hat of hatter's plush with cut steel ornament and shoes to match.

The bride's mother wore a black charmeuse satin gown with an overdress of black Venetian lace. The groom's mother wore blue crepe embroidered in steel beads.

Miss Jean Elliott, the bridesmaid attended in a dress of powder blue taffeta crepe, with ostrich fur trimming of the same shade. She wore silver shoes and carried sunset roses.

Out of town guests were: Misses Eliza and Annie Brown, Roseneath; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Brown, Virginia, Minn.; Mrs. W. N. Brown, Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Brown, Orillia; Mr. and Mrs. John Ames, Toronto; Miss Grace Ames, Toronto; Miss A. L. Himes, Buffalo; Mrs. Kyle, Toronto; Miss Olga Kyle, Toronto; Miss Helen Johnston, Toronto; Mr. G. A. WEDDING BELLS.

GALLIVAN—COUGHLIN

A quiet wedding was solemnized this morning at St. Peter's Cathedral when Marie Coughlin, the second eldest daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Richard Coughlin of Hastings, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Dr. J. V. Gallivan of this city. The ceremony was performed by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, assisted Rev. P. Costello and Rev. J. T. Finn. The nuptial party was unattended. There were also present in the sanctuary Right Rev. Monsignor McColl, Rev. J. J. O'Brien, of Sacred Heart Parish, and Rev. Father Collins of the Cathedral. The wedding march was played by Miss Lilian Hurley, an aunt of the bride, while Miss Annie Simmons sang beautifully an "Ave Maria". The happy couple left by motor for an extended trip to New York and other points.

VOL. LV., No. 49 PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, AUGUST 28, 1924 PRICE THREE CENTS

PRISONERS ARE VICTIMS BOOZE THAT EXPLODED

Confiscated Liquor Blew Up and Poured Blazing Stream Through Jail.

TWO KILLED

Police Had Moonshine Stored in Vacant Cell—Shook the Building.

DETROIT, August 28 (Canadian Press). — Two prisoners were killed and fifteen seriously burned in an explosion of a large quantity of confiscated moonshine liquor in Vinewood Avenue Police Station yesterday at noon.

The liquor, spreading over the floor of the cell block, and blazing as it poured through the cells, caught the prisoners "like rats in a trap."

Emmett Bethel, coloured aged 35, and Wesley Conrad, aged 38, are the names of those who were killed.

The police were attempting to transfer the liquor outside the station from a vacant cell, where it had been stored, when the explosion occurred.

"I heard a tapping in the vacant cell, which was near mine," one of the prisoners said. "And then the building was shaken by the explosion. Next thing I knew I was standing in fire."

WOMAN STABBED IN DUEL WITH RIVAL FOR THE AFFECTIONS OF HER OWN HUSBAND

Arranged As "Fair Fist Fight," Toe to Toe, But the Other Woman Drew Knife and Stabbed Wife Three Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 28.—"I might have known that any woman who steals another's husband wouldn't fight fair," declared Mrs. A. D. Foreman of Lake Charles, La., after a "fair fist fight" with Miss Mildred Lee of Alexandria. Mrs. Foreman was stabbed three times in the chest.

According to the story told by Mrs. Foreman to Sheriff Downs of Rapides Parish, the fight was to have been one of those old-fashioned bare knuckle and skull affairs, the victor of which was to be the undisputed custodian of the heart of A. D. Foreman, who, his wife says, had been dividing his attentions between his wife and Miss Lee.

The combat took place on a quiet stretch of the Lake Charles Alexandria Road, near Alexandria, according to Mrs. Foreman, and that it did take place she bears three wounds as evidence. The wounds are not serious, and Sheriff Downs is scratching his chin and saying nothing. He may or may not institute proceedings against one or all of the principals, he said, after consultation with the District Attorney.

"Now, if it had been men stabbing each other," the Sheriff declared, "it would have been a simple thing. But these women? It is best for a man to keep out of women's arguments until things simmer down."

Mrs. Foreman, accompanied by Miss Lula Benifield, a friend, drove from Lake Charles to Alexandria on Monday with the express intention of whipping Miss Lee, she told the Sheriff.

"She stole my husband a year ago," Mrs. Foreman charged. "I got tired of it, and tired of her, and decided to settle once and for all whether he is to be my husband or her man."

Mrs. Foreman met Miss Lee on the Rapides Bayou Road—the same trail over which, three hundred years ago, the fair Evangeline had tramped in search of her lover Gabriel. The late afternoon sun bathed in gold the long tufts of Spanish moss in the live oaks. It was a good place for an affair of honor.

According to Mrs. Foreman, she opened conversation with her enemy about her husband. The argument was bitter and out of it came the challenge for "a fair fist fight" to settle the issue. The women were to stand toe to toe and slam away until one of them cried "enough."

The fight got under way and Miss Lee was getting the worst of it, Mrs. Foreman being more solidly built. Then, according to Mrs. Foreman, she was stabbed and was forced to withdraw.

PETER PAN JUST CAN'T GROW UP

Age again gives way to youth, as Betty Bronson, 17, of Hollywood, and hardly known, is selected by Sir James M. Barrie to play on the screen the part created by Maude Adams (left) on the stage. More than 100 screen actresses aspired to the role and submitted photographs to Barrie.

PREMIER KING ARRIVED IN CITY THIS MORNING

Was Given an Enthusiastic Reception By Thousands That Gathered For the Occasion.

BIG MOTOR PARADE.

Interesting Programme at the Exhibtion Grounds This Afternoon.

Peterborough's famous Lift Lock, known the world over, this forenoon had the honour of carrying a statesman as widely known.

Premier Mackenzie King, who has just piloted the Government of Canada through one of the most onerous sessions in the history of the Dominion, and who has made a name for himself and for Canada in the larger deliberations of the Empire, arrived in the city this morning, and his first trip was on the Trent Canal from Maria Street Wharf to the Golf Links.

There he was the guest of the ladies.

From an early hour decorated automobiles paraded the street, indicating that the day would be a busy one, and unusual colour was added to George Street in the wealth of decoration and by these hurrying cars.

At 10.30 a car carried G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons, and a party to meet Premier King at his private car, which had been side-tracked near the Canal.

The party boarded the "Bessie Butler," the first vessel to go through the lift lock after its construction, and proceeded to the golf links. The lockage was accomplished expeditiously, the premier taking an active interest in the method employed. W. E. N. Sinclair, leader of the Liberal party in Ontario, was prominent in the party, which also included R. R. Hall, K.C., and J. J. Duffus.

A big crowd of citizens had gathered to see the Premier pass, and the bridges and lock bore their tribute of bunting. Even the old government boat, the "Bessie Butler," seemed conscious of the proud office she fulfilled in carrying Canada's first citizen. It is several years since Peterboro has had the oportunity to welcome the Premier of the Dominion, and citizens of all political parties merged their personal opinions to do honor to-day to the Right Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King.

A Big Parade.

The parade was a feature of the day's events, and included several bands from the bagpipes to an Indian band from the Reserve. It required nearly an hour for the long procession of motor cars and gaily decorated vehicles to pass a given point. Thousands lined the streets along the line, and were rewarded with an ocasional bow from Peterborough's distinguished guest.

Mr. Harry Wolff of Chemong had one of the best decorated cars in the parade, while several others were equally good.

The entire route of the procession was decorated with flags and with streamers. The latter bore all kinds of greetings and assurances to the Premier.

At the entrance to the Exhibition Grounds a welcome arch was erected under which the Premier and his party passed on their way to the speaking stand.

The baseball tournament got under way early, and later the first item on the speaking programme was announced.

By this time several thousand persons from the city and all parts of the district had assembled on the grounds.

The main events of the afternoon, including the addresses, started in good time. Capable committees were in charge, with the result there were no intermissions. Premier King was given an enthusiastic reception upon his arrival at the grounds. A complete report of the speeches will appear in to-morrow's issue.

WOMAN BANDIT MET A HORRIBLE DEATH

Most Notorious Woman Bandit Executed by Terrible "Slicing" Process.

SHANGHAI, Aug., 28.—(Associated Press).—"Old Mother" Djao, said to be the most notorious and bloodthirsty bandit the province of Shantung ever produced, has been executed at Ichowfu in Shantung, according to reports received in Shanghai by mission organizations. These advices add that the dreaded feminine bandit underwent that most fearsome of Chinese death penalties, the ling-che, or in English, the slicing process.

Forty-seven years old and an expert horsewoman, "Old Mother" Djao led a band of several hundred outlaws who terrorized a broad area. It is related of her that last summer she planned an attack against Ichowfu after calling to her aid two added groups of bandits. They had assembled at a place near the village of Balihsiang when a home-guard of villagers, known as the "Big Knife Society," apprised of their purpose, attacked them and suffered utter defeat.

The villagers were driven back into Balihsiang and the bandits followed them. Then the gates of the village were closed and every man was shot down. Sixty women and children then were lined up, and "Old Mother" Djao was asked what to do with them. Her orders to kill them all were carried out with the result that every man, woman and child who was within the walls after the gates had been closed was slain. Even the cattle and dogs of the village suffered the same fate.

Ling-che is simply vivisection done by experts in such a manner that the victim survives in a conscious state through hours of a terrible ordeal.

LENIN'S OPINION OF HIS FRIENDS

Dead Leader Bequeathed His Estimates to World —Pithy Descriptions.

RIGA, August 28. — What Nikolai Lenin thought of his own coworkers is revealed in a political testament of his, which, according to the Socialistitscheski Wbestlik, has recently been handed by his widow to the central executive committee of the Communist party.

In short sentences the late Premier writes as follows about various leaders of Bolshevik Russia:

Trotzky — Very gifted, but loves to pose too much. It is wrong to accuse him of leaning toward menshevism, for in reality he has always stood on the side of the Bolsheviks. He can be an excellently disciplined party member.

Zinovieff—Not gifted, yearning for power. A sharp eye must be kept on him. He can become a danger to the party.

Kameney — Vacillates. An opportunist, as was proven during the October days of 1917. He must be watched.

Stalin—Not clever, anxious to pick quarrels, a climber who strives to set himself up as dictator.

Bucharin—Not clever, a bad Marxist, knows nothing about dialectics, though he likes to write about it.

Pjatakov—Very gifted, but has been smothered of late by administrative work.

The testament is said to have been opened in the presence of all the persons whom Lenin undertook to describe and characterise.

PIKE A SUICIDE ON PIKE'S PEAK

Descendant of Gen. Pike Killed in 1812 by Explosion.

USED DYNAMITE

DENVER, Col., Aug. 28.—Choosing a manner of death identical with that of his famous great-grand-uncle —the sure, swift death of high explosive—Zebulon Montgomery Pike, aged 51, of Morrison, Col., brother of Mayor Albert Pike of that city, committed suicide with a dynamite cartridge he held in his hand.

Despondent over a chronic ailment, from which he had been a sufferer for years, he climbed to the summit of Mount Glennon, a quarter mile south-east of Morrison and fifteen miles from Denver. From the vantage point he had a clear view to the southward, where rises Pike's Peake above the jagged range line of the Rockies.

Zebulon Montgomery Pike, after whom he was named, was the young Lieutenant in the United States Army, who in 1806 discovered the mountain which bears his name. But as Zebulon Pike of Morrison gazed toward the south, he must have been thinking of the tragic end of Brig.-Gen. Pike, who was killed during the war of 1812 when a powder magazine exploded during the siege of York (now Toronto), in 1813.

Residents of Morrison heard the dull boom of the dynamite charge on Monday afternoon. Missing Pike, who lived alone in his cottage there, Al Towner, Town Marshal, and two friends recalling statements he is reported to have made about ending his own life, set out to search for him. At 2.30 o'clock Tuesday morning they came upon all that was left of his body.

Pike was a bachelor. For five years he had been suffering from stomach trouble and had despaired of a cure. On several occasions recently he had threatened to end his life. "I'll blow myself to pieces so you won't have to bury me," he had said.

GUARDS ARRESTED.

Four Charged With Criminal Negligence In Montreal Jail.

MONTREAL, Aug. 8. — Four guards of the Bordeaux jail are under arrest for criminal negligence as a result of the almost successful attempt of Giusseppi Serefini to escape last Monday morning. Serefini, who is one of the six bandits condemned to be hanged October 24 for participation in the killing of the chauffeur of the Hochelaga Bank collection car when it was looted of $142,288 in April last had sawed through the bars of his cell and was later found in the jail yard trying to climb the walls.

It was learned here last night that other arrests had been made in connection with the affair.

FIREMEN ACT AS FARMERS.

LINDEFELDE, Germany, August 28. — Although this town does not average a fire a month, the fire department is not allowed to loaf. In summer the firemen operate the municipal farm and in winter they are woodchoppers in the municipal forest. Income from the two sources have helped clear the town debt.

FALL SUITS.

Three-piece suits for fall have very long coats that may be worn a separate coat as well.

FORD DECLARES REPORT FALSE

Denies Giving Klan Interview Reported by "The Montreal Star" Tuesday.

POSITIVE DENIAL

DETROIT, August 28. — Henry Ford, in a wireless despatch to his office here, from his yacht en route from Montreal to Detroit, last night positively denied statements credited to him on Tuesday by the Montreal Star, wherein he was quoted as saying that the Ku Klux Klan was misunderstood. Mr. Ford in his message, not only denied the interview published by the Montreal Star, but asserted that he had given no interview to anyone while in Montreal, and also stated that he had not discussed the Klan.

The message further instructed the Ford offices here to "make a positive denial of an absolutely false statement."

The statement ascribed to Ford as reported in the Montreal Star, follows:

"It (the Klan) is the victim of a mass of lying propaganda." Mr. Ford is reported to have said, "and is therefore looked upon with disfavor in many quarters. But if the truth were made known about it, it would be looked up to as a body of patriots concerned with nothing but the future of the country in which it was born and the preservation of the supremacy of the true American in his own land."

The interview was a long-range affair, The Star said, with the automobile manufacturer standing on the deck of his yacht, held up on its progress toward Dearborn while a lock of the Lachine Canal was being filled. The manufacturer shouted and gestured his answers to a newspaper men's questions from the dock 10 feet below him.

THE WEATHER

The temperature was up to 83 degrees yesterday, and the same figure the day previous, and has not yet on any occasion got up to 90 degrees. Many items appear in the papers regarding the planet Mars, and its proximity to the earth at the present time, but there seems to be little knowledge where to look for this world of light. Any clear night now Mars may be seen in the southeastern sky. About ten o'clock it is half way between the horizon and the zenith, and is of rich golden color. It cannot well be mistaken. In the southwest is Jupiter, coming more dim as he approaches the sun. Venus rises several hours before the sun, and is particularly bright in the early morning in the eastern sky. This is the "star" that is reported to be visible at present in broad daylight, and probably is, if the observer knows the exact locality to look for the same. —W.P.

200 LOCOMOTIVES SCRAPPED

HAGENAU, Alsace, August 28. — A "boneyard" of 200 heavy duty locomotives of the latest type has been installed here by the French authorities. These engines, delivered by Germany to France, on account of the Versailles treaty, can be run only on the Alsatian roads, built by the Germans, because French superstructures are not strong enough to stand the Teuton strain. To handle the traffic in Alsace only a score of them were needed.

SIX FULL DAYS GOOD WEATHER BRIGHTEN WEST

Cutting Is General Across Prairies and the Yield Steadily Increases.

NEAR HIGH MARK.

Manitoba Crops Improved By Ripening Weather—Average Yield.

REGINA, Sask., August 28 (Canadian Press). — Western Canada, from Winnipeg to the foothills, has now experienced six full days of perfect weather, with beneficial results to all grain crops quite beyond the comprehension of any one not actually on the ground.

The cutting of wheat is general across the Prairies, and should reach its peak of intensity next week.

Rust remains in abeyance, and most farmers utterly ignore the danger of frost, having implicit faith in their own belief anent the "turn of the moon."

There is not the slightest doubt that the total yield of all grain will be greater than seemed possible even ten days ago.

Each successive 24-hour period of this weather brings materially nearer the 300,000,000 bushel crop.

IN MANITOBA.

WINNIPEG, August 28 (Canadian Press). — Ideal ripening weather during the past few days throughout Manitoba has greatly advanced the crops, and farmers in several districts have commenced cutting their wheat.

In the Brandon district wheat cutting is now general, and according to reports, summer fallow fields will yield anywhere from 22 to 30 bushels to the acre, while that on fall or spring ploughing may probably go under 20 bushels, but of a good grade.

With rye cutting nearly completed in this section, it is expected that the yield will average between 12 and 15 bushels an acre.

In the Beresford district one farmer realised 35 bushels per acre from his rye fields, while another at Kemnay got 22 bushels.

Barley is reported to be an excellent crop around Douglas, Man., where cutting is well advanced, and in some parts even finished. The barley yield in this section of the Provice will be from 25 to 40 bushels an acre.

Some oats are being cut, with a good crop anticipated.

AUTOMATIC RADIO BEACON FOR SHIPS

OTTAWA, Aug. 28. — (Canadian Press).—An automatic radio beacon transmitter has been established by the Department of Marine and Fisheries, and is now operating at the Cape Bauld fog alarm at the northern entrance of the Belle Isle straits The beacon is for the purpose of providing radio signals for ships fitted with direction-finding apparatus. It functions automatically whenever fog prevails and its characteristic signal is the letter "Y".

Five radio beacon stations are now in operation on the east coast In addition the department maintains six direction-finding stations which give the ships their bearings from the shore.

FLOPPY HATS

The very large droopy, floppy hat is very smart in Paris as well as in New York and is usually worn with the very short frock.

West Has Sufficient Harvesters For Crop

WINNIPEG, August 28 (Canadian Press). — Following a conference between railway officials and representatives of the Employment Service of Canada, here yesterday, it was announced that there would be no further harvest excursions from Eastern Canada this season.

About 20,000 harvest hands have been brought West, and it is considered that this number, in addition to the local labour, will be sufficient to handle the 1924 grain crop.

MONTREAL REPORTS MANY OUT OF WORK

Prospects of Winter Employment in Quebec Are Poor.

MONTREAL, Aug. 28.—In a survey of employment conditions in this province the Montreal Gazette concludes that reports show the situation as bad in Montreal, poor in some of the other districts, fair in others and with prospects that the winter will be a hard one all over the province for the workers. The paper states that not for many years have there been so many unemployed in Montreal as during the present summer. In Quebec reports from boot and shoe factories show the majority of them running only part time. Similar conditions obtain in St. Hyacinthe, Sherbrooke and Drummondville, according to the Gazette summary.

PRISONER WEDS; RE-ENTERS CELL

German Forced by Bride to Return to Complete Sentence.

WIFE IS WAITING

BERLIN, Aug. 28.—(Associated Press).—Fritz Linker, serving a sentence for theft, escaped recently and wrote a letter to the jailers saying he was then on his honeymoon and that he would return as soon as the wedding tour was ended. In three weeks Linker gave himself up.

When he wrote the letter, he said, he had no such intentions, but his wife heard of his promises and insisted, Linker informed the jailers, that he keep his word and go back to prison and she would be awaiting him again when his time was up.

CASE DISMISSED.

Ottawa Man Charged With Arson Freed Without Trial.

OTTAWA, Aug. 28. — (Canadian Press).—After hearing the evidence offered on behalf of the defence, Magistrate Hopewell yesterday dismissed the charge of arson that had been laid against Abraham Dworkin of this city. The accused is the owner of the Model Apartments, where a fire broke out on August 12. He had chosen a jury trial, but the court decided there was no evidence to commit the accused and he was liberated.

MESSAGE FROM ARCTIC'S CREW

All Well on Canadian Government Steamer—Amateur Picks Up Radiogram.

IN NORTHERN WATER

OTTAWA, Aug. 28. — (Canadian Press).—All is well aboard the Canadian Government steamer Arctic, now cruising in northern waters in the neighborhood of Ellesmere Island. Nothing had been heard of the Arctic since August 10, but yesterday an unknown amateur radio operator in Kenneth, Minnesota, picked up the Arctic and forwarded to the North-West Territories Branch of the Interior Department, the Arctic's message. The operator does not give his name, but it is assumed that he is a member of the Amateur Radio Relay League.

The Arctic does not report having met with the American MacMillan expedition which wintered in Refuge Harbor, north of Etah, Greenland, and therefore, it is assumed, was unable to deliver mail for the MacMillan expedition which she has on board.

The Arctic reports having visited Craig Harbor and Rice Strait on Ellesmere Island, Pond's Inlet on Baffin Island, and Dundas Harbor in North Devon. She is now on her way back home and states that little ice has been encountered.

At Craig Harbor, where the Mounted Police maintains the most northerly station in the world, some of the buildings were burned down during the winter, but the men reported as well.

The Arctic's message is signed by F. B. Henderson, Interior Department, who is departmental officer in charge of this year's expedition.

CURTAIL PRIVILEGES.

French Chamber of Deputies Subject To Abuse—Deputies May Be Corrected.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—(Associated Press).—A member of the French Chamber of Deputies may change his vote on a given question any time during the following six months. This is called "rectification." Most of the changes are due to the custom of voting by proxy. Only when a roll call is ordered must the members vote in person.

Abuses have arisen. Often a deputy, finding himself subsequently on the wrong side of a political issue, will send in a rectification on the vote cast by a friend, thus setting himself right. Hence it is now proposed to cut the period during which changes may be made from six months to three days.

PORT TRAFFIC PEAK.

MONTREAL, Aug. 27.—What is probably the peak of the westbound traffic from Europe to the St. Lawrence ports will be reached this week when seven liners bringing approximately 6,000 passengers will dock from the other side. Five of these vessels will dock at Montreal.

KILLED BY CAR

VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 28.—Mrs. A. E. Aitkin was struck and fatally injured Tuesday evening by automobile driven by George Reeves who is held by the police, pending the finding of the coroner's jury.

THORNTON BACK FROM THE WEST

President of C.N.R. Estimates Crop at 300 Million Bushels at Least.

VANCOUVER GAINS

MONTREAL, Aug. 28.—That the tide of immigration was turning towards Canada and that the time was coming when the people of the United States would have to look to this country for their daily sustenance, was the opinion expressed by Sir Henry Thornton, chairman and president of the Canadian National Railways in an interview on his return from his tour of inspection of the western lines of the railroad. Sir Henry found optimism in the West, great possibilities for the two great Pacific ports of Vancouver and Prince Rupert, and estimated a crop of at least 300,000,000 bushels this year.

He also referred to the ever-increasing tendency towards mixed farming in the West. He said a grain elevator at Prince Rupert would be a necessity before very long.

The president and other officials of the Canadian National arrived in Montreal Tuesday night after a tour which commenced July 1st.

Crop Looks Better.

In reviewing his trip, Sir Henry said: "Generally speaking crop conditions in the West will not be as bad as was predicted four or five months ago. Recently a certain amount of rain-fall has improved the situation and, unless sudden and serious frosts are experienced, I should think the crop will be approximately three hundred million bushels.

"The people of the west seem in a healthy condition of optimism, and I marked a much greater tendency towards mixed farming, which is, of course, a good sign. Everywhere, excepting in the districts where there was a total crop failure, people seemed cheerful and reasonably prosperous.

Vancouver Active.

"On the Pacific coast, Vancouver is active and enterprising. The traffic of the port, particularly in grain, is constantly increasing and everywhere I noticed indications of progress and enterprise. I believe there is a very great future ahead of Vancouver. At Prince Rupert there is also much activity in the fish business, and as the grain shipments through the Pacific coast increase, Prince Rupert will benefit accordingly. A grain elevator ought to be established at this port and will certainly be a necessity before very long."

WOMAN'S BURNS FATAL.

Elderly Woman's Clothing Caught Fire From Gasoline Stove.

SARNIA, Ont., Aug. 28.— Mrs. W. J. Mitchell, 70, of Watford died in the Sarnia General Hospital from burns received Tuesday night at a summer cottage of relatives at Bright's Grove near here. Mrs. Mitchell was bending over a gasoline stove when her clothing became ignited and before the flames were extinguished she suffered severe burns on the body and arms.

She was taken to the hospital here, where she died.

REMOVING COFFEE STAINS

Pour boiling water through coffee stains, but soak tea stains first in cold water.

WANT METHODIST FERVOR.

The appeal made before annual conferences this year by Rev. Dr. Chown that Methodists in 1924-25 make evangelism "the chief and all-dominating business of the Church," was adopted in all of the Canadian conferences with specific outlines as to methods and programme. Seldom has the leadership of a presiding officer in Methodism been so strikingly welcomed and endorsed. This policy is in harmony also with the earnest plea made before Methodist audiences by Rev. Principal MacKinnon, Moderator of the General Assembly, that Methodists bring into union "all your evangelistic fervor and passion."

EAST AND WEST MEET.

Behind the press paragraph, stating that two young men, Stanley V. H. Redman and Lum How Yung, were ordained to the Christian ministry this year by the British Columbia Methodist Conference is a study in contrasts which all, who know mankind's history, can picture. Rev. Mr. Redman comes of an old Methodist family and has been educated in the colleges of the Occident. Rev. Mr. Yung is a young pastor from a coast city in China, recommended by the missionaries, and now set apart to work among his fellow countrymen in the coast province for the Methodist Missionary Society.

A MEMORIAL TO SIR WM. WALLACE

To Commemmorate Greatest Soldier Scotland Ever Produced.

Tablet To Scots Patriot To Be Affixed in Westminster Hall.

LONDON, August 28. — The scheme initiated by Mr. John Robertson, Scottish Liberal Whip, to commemorate Sir William Wallace, the Scottish patriot, in Westminster Hall, is now almost complete, and the tablet which it is proposed to place there is now on view in the members' tea room in the House of Commons.

It bears the inscription:

"Near this spot, at the south end of the Hall, took place the trial of Sir William Wallace, the Scottish Patriot, on 29th August, 1305."

The tablet will be affixed shortly, but the unveiling ceremony will be left over unutil after the recess.

BAIL AGAIN REFUSED.

Charles Matthews Refused Bail in County Court This Morning.

TORONTO, August 28 (Canadian Press). — Charles A. Matthews, Jr., former Deputy Provincial Treasurer, was refused bail by Judge Denton in the County Court this morning, and will endeavour immediately to secure his release by an appeal to the Supreme Court Judge.

Matthews was committed for trial on Tuesday last by Magistrate Edmund Jones in the Police Court on several charges preferred by the Crown in connection with Provincial bond transactions, disclosures in connection with which were made last spring

Judge Denton's refusal to grant bail was based on the ground that one charge against the former Provincial official, that of accepting bribes as a public officer, should be heard in an Assize Court and not in the Sessions

During the argument His Honour asked Crown Attorney McRuer if substantial bail would not ensure Matthews' presence for trial, Mr. McRuer said he was not satisfied that it would.

A SCRAPPY FIGHT.

Young Stribling and Berlenbach Fought To Draw.

NEW YORK, August 28 Canadian Press). - W. L. Stribling, the Georgia light-heavyweight, and Paul Berlenbach, the slugging New Yorker, fought to a six-round draw last night in a slashing battle between two of the ring's youngest and latest fistic sensations.

Stribling, younger but more experienced, outboxed his rugged rival from start to finish.

Berlenbach, on the other hand, carried the fight to Stribling in the last three rounds, and rocked the Georgian with a series of rights and lefts to the head in the fourth round that kept a stream of blood flowing from the Southerner's nose.

Stribling was guilty of holding repeatedly.

LONE ST. KILDA AS A BIRD SANCTUARY.

EDINBURGH, August 28. — Much interest has been created among the islanders of St. Kilda, the lone island far out in the Atlantic, off the west coast of Scotland, by a proposal from the Zoological Society that the island should be utilised as a sanctuary for seabirds, as in the case of the Faroe Islands.

It is stated that the sceme, if it materialises, will include the Island of Soay, on which there has been from time immemorial a flock of wild native sheep.

VOTE ON PACT OF LONDON TO RESUME TO-DAY

Definite Programme For the Paying of Reparations To Be Designed.

POLICE CALLED.

Every Precaution Taken To-day To Guard Against Yesterday's Scenes.

(By Frederick Kuh, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

BERLIN, Aug. 28. — A wave of pessimism swept the government circles to-day as the Reichstag resumed its voting on the accords of the pact of London designed to effect a definite program for paying reparations.

Lead were fearful lest three major ity bills—those on banking, industrial obligations and the important railroad measure—which passed the second reading yesterday, might not be able to command the necessary two thirds vote required for passage on the third reading. Each of the bills received a majority vote yesterday but failed to approach a two thirds of the 471 members of parliament The highest vote any of the measures received yesterday was 249 where as 314 are necessary for ratification.

The Government is now said to be convinced that dissolution of the Reichstag is unavoidable and a new election inevitable with the pact of London, the sole issue. Every precaution was taken to-day to guard against a repetition of yesterday's scenes in the Reichstag, when pandemonium broke loose several times, necessitating police being called for the first time in the history of the Parliament to remove obstreperous members.

Government circles are resigned to the German Reichstag's refusal to ratify the pact of London but believe new elections will return a majority overwhelmingly in favor of the executing of the Dawes-Young reparations program.

As seen here the expected fight at the German polls will be between the militarist and the new regime, similar to that waged before the last elections in France, when Raymond Poincare lost the Premiership. Members of the reparations commission have already discounted the Reichstag setback because the present parliament was elected on the issue of French occupation of the Ruhr, whereas the next election will be purely on the pact of London.

The action of the Reichstag, if ratification is refused, will delay, execution of the reparations program perhaps a month but will not interfere seriously in the ultimate course to be pursued.

C.N.R. MAKES BID FOR LINE IN B.C.

Pacific Great Eastern Would Tap the Peace River Country.

CONSIDER SCHEME

VANCOUVER, B.C., Aug. 28. — (Canadian Press).—M. R. McLeod, consulting engineer for the Canadian National Railways, returned here on Tuesday night from Victoria, after having made Premier John Oliver a proposition for the acquisition by the Canadian National of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway. Mr. McLeod and D. A. Campbell, construction superintendent for the C.N.R., left immediately for a trip through the towns of the Cariboo, through which the P.G.E. runs, to spend a week sizing up the possibilities of the P.G.E. territory from a colonization standpoint. Canadian National engineers are now in the field looking over the whole scheme.

Mr. McLeod is willing to take over the P.G.E. as it stands from Clinton to Quesnel and on to Prince George, but would join up with the C.N.R. at Ashcroft by abandoning the P.G.E. for those sections east and west of Lillooet. These rails he would lay between Ashcroft and Clinton and make a through connected line of the project.

Quite the biggest feature of Mr. McLeod's proposal on behalf of the Canadian National Railways, aside from the lure that it holds to lighten the burden of taxation which P.G.E. losses now charge up to the Provincial Government, is the fact that he is considering the P.G.E. situation in its relation to the development of the Peace River country. He will be ready shortly with a recommendation of what, in his opinion, is the best way to carry out the wheat from the Peace River country so that it can be brought to Vancouver over the C.N.R. and P.G.E.

FIFTH LEAGUE MAY BAN DRUG

American Program for Destroying Opium Traffic Will be Discussed.

SMOKING ALLOWED

By HENRY WOOD

GENEVA, Aug. 28. — (United Press).—The fifth annual assembly of the League of Nations which has been summoned for September 1, is scheduled to whip into shape two new international conventions that are expected to render effective what is known as the American program on opium and harmful drugs.

This program, as first enunciated in the Porter House resolution adopted by the United States congress, and later, through the efforts of congressman Porter, accepted by the League of Nations as the basis and ultimate object of its fight against opium, demands the limitation of production of all harmful drugs to the world's actual medical and scientific needs. As long, the program declares, as the world is allowed to produce more of these drugs than is needed for the above object, just that long will it be impossible to prevent the unlawful traffic in them and their eventual arrival into the hands of dope fiends.

As the first step towards rendering possibue the carrying out of this American program a convention will be launched rendering illegal the growth, exportation and importation of opium in the Pacific countries for smoking purposes.

Opum Smoking Allowed.

Under the present Hague convention for the regulation of the opium traffic opium smoking in the Pacific countres was not declared illegal. Leaguers, however, as well as American experts, are convinced that as long as the opium growing countries are allowed to produce the immense quantity of opium necessary for opium smoking in the oriental countries, it will never be possible to keep much of this from being smuggled into other countries for illegal uses.

The League recognizes that no country can be prohibited from growing opium for its own domestic purposes, such as India, for example, where opium drinking is as common as tea and coffee drinking in northern countries. All countries, however, that grow opium will be placed under the most rigid restrictions and surveillance to see that no exportations are allowed except for medical and scientific purposes, and the same measures will be taken to regulate importation by importing countries.

With this preparatofy step the League will then launch a second international convention limiting the world's production of poppies and coca leaves, as well as the production of all derivatives such as prepared opium, cocaine, etc., etc., to the world's actual medical and scientific needs.

All of the signatory countries are expected to take the necessary steps to see that the manufacturing interests of their respective countries accept and abide by these restrictions. The principal countries that will be affected by this convention will be India, Persia, Turkey and Serbia, as poppy growing countries; Peru and Dutch colonies, as growers of coca leaves, and the United States, Germany, England, France and Switzerland, as the greatest producers of derivatives from these drugs.

A Thorough Investigation.

For the past two years the League has been conducting a profound investigation in all of the leading countries of the world in order to ascertain just how much opium, cocaine, morphine and heroin are necessary for medical and scientific purposes.

As far as opium is concerned a tentative figure has been placed at 45 millograms per capita annually for each country. This is considered however, by League experts to be a very liberal maximum and a further investigation is under way to see if it cannot be cut down.

Even on this liberal basis, the world now produces more than 10 times the amount of opium necessary for actual medical and scientific needs and all the remainder finds its way into illegal commerce and eventually into the hands of dope fiends.

During the past year a commission of international experts, representing the United States, England, France, Holland the League have been in almost continual session endeavoring to reconciliate the interests of the various countries in the two conventions that are to be launched.

The prelminary findings of these experts were later put into concrete form by the League's Permanent Opium Advisory Commission, and these two drafts will come before the Fifth Assembly for still further perfection.

The Final Covenant.

Then, when the assembly has done all that it can towards getting them into shape, two international conferences of all interested countries will be summoned for November for the purpose of agreeing upon the final form of the two conventions. These conferences will be attended by plenipotentiary representatives of the various governments with full powers to, sign the two conventions as soon as they are agreed upon. The League will then be charged with seeing that they are enforced.

In the meantime the League during the past year has kept up its campaign against the opium traffic along the lines that had previously been laid down. Virtually all of the members of the League have now been induced to sign the present 1912 Hague convention for the control of the opium traffic and also to adopt a system of government certificates which places all importation and exportation of harmful drugs under the control of the government. In addition the League has been able to trace down several international "unharmful drugs and to put the various governments concerned in possession of the necessary information to break up this traffic. With the Fifth assembly and the two international conferences in November the League expects to have its opium fight as fully perfectd as it is possible to how to do.

HASTINGS TEAM IS IMPROVING

Have An Aggregation That Should Win the Northumberland League.

HASTINGS, Aug. 28. — Manager Wellman of this town has at last got together a team of baseball players that is likely to be a factor in the second half of the Northumberland League race. If they are able to keep up the pace which they have set for themselves the chances are that they will finish in the lead. Their work since the opening of the second half has been a surprise to every one of their competitors, especially those who have played against them, and the team has already won three of the five games in which they have figured, this giving them a percentage of .600.

Their latest victory was over Campbellford, whom they defeated yesterday by a score of 12-4 in a game that was called after Campbellford had been at bat seven and the home team six times. The visitors went on the field with only five of their regular players in the lineup, Eagleson, Armour, Blakely, Scott and West, the other four being young boys, who appeared for the first time in league baseball. Armour made two of the runs and two of the eight hits. After scoring one run in the first inning, the visitors went without a tally until the seventh, when two of the young substitutes for the regular members of the team gave a good account of themselves. White singled and scored on Sanders' double to right. Sanders got home on Armour's double, and the batter scored when Blakely singled. In that inning alone did the visitors look like the Campbellford team as Hastings remembered it.

Hastings bunched their 11 hits and made the best showing against Scott of any team that has faced him this year, his strike-out record being six, an unusually low mark for him. The best hit of the game was made by Stevenson, a three-bagger in the fourth, the frame in which ten men went to bat and seven runs were scored.

Campbellford, as all the fans know, and other teams admit, has some star players on its roster, but these avail nothing so long as they are not in the line-up.

The teams:

Campbellford — Eagleson ss, Armour 2, Blakely 3b, McNaughton 2b, Scott p, Weston 1b, Bailey lf, White rf, Sanders cf.

Hastings—Herrington 1b, Stevenson p, Scriver c, Cruickshanks 2b, D. Lemoir 3b, P. Lemoir lf, Collins ss, Keoghan rf, Sawhert cf, Walsh and Howard spares.

Runs by innings:

Campbellford .. .. 1000003— 4
Hastings .. .. 4107002x—14

Umpires—Davidson on balls and strikes; Masterson on bases.

PLOW TURNS UP KNIGHT'S ARMOR

Valuable Find of Bronze Encasing Dust of Roman Noble.

IN BULGARIA

KARAGATCH, Bulgaria, Aug. 28.—(Associated Press).—A peasant plowing near this village turned up one of the most interesting archeological finds made in recent years. When the plow struck an obstruction the peasant found it was a slab of marble. Lifting this a marble tomb was disclosed and within lay a suit of bronze armor of a Roman knight, together with shield, sword, spear and several utensils including an exquisite vase.

Director Velkoff, of the National Museum, and Mr. Popoff, an expert on Greek antiquities, estimate that the find dates back to the pre-Alexandrine period. They surmise that he may have been a dweller of a Hellenic colony on the Black Sea coast.

On the helmet, well preserved and of a high order of workmanship, were the figures of Apollo, Pallas Athene, Poseidon, Minerva and Mars. One ear-piece found bore the figure of Zeus with the trident. The other ear-piece was lacking.

The helmet was silvered, and some of the white metal still adhered. The human figure that once bore the helmet and carried the weapons was entirely absent, except in the form of ashes in small amount.

"The knight who bore the armor was evidently a high personage," said Direcetor Velkoff. "Therefore, after his body had been deposited in the grave it was burned, an early instance of cremation."

PRINCE LOSES.

Wales Was on Losing Side of Tug of War.

IN BOARD STEAMSHIP BERENGARIA, August 28 (Canadian Press). — The Prince of Wales was one of the chief events of the sports meet held aboard yesterday.

The Prince and his British colleagues on one end of the rope put up a stubborn fight but after seesawing about the deck for ten minutes they were pulled over the line by the United States team.

The Prince took part in the potato race which followed, and looked like a winner, but was disqualified for misplacing one of the tubers.

PRINCE GETS PRAISE.

Former Ambassador to Great Britain May Visit the Prince.

NEW YORK, August 28 (Canadian Press). — John W. Davis will call on the Prince of Wales if the Prince is still visiting on Long Island when the Democratic presidential candidate, and former Ambassador to Great Britain, returns from his Western campaign tour, on which he will start on Sunday.

Mr. Davis praised the Prince yesterday as a "very likeable human being," and declared his tact "is truly remarkable."

MILLBROOK.

The Gospel Singers will visit Millbrook next Sunday for an open-air song service at three o'clock on the green in the centre of the town.

There will be two addrsses given also, dealing with the present world need.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Getting Ready To Repair the Bridge—Social Events In Town.

CAMPBELLFORD, August 28. — Four employees of the Ontario Bridge Company have reached here, and five more are on the way. The rest of the men required for the work of repairing the bridge wi be hired locally and it is likely that the amount distributed in wages will exceed the town's share of the cost of the repairs.

Work on the bridge was started Wednesday morning, the first task being to brush off the ironwork and examine the bolts in it. The sidewalk on the south side is partly torn up but the other walk is still open to pedestrians. It is now said that one of the walks will be kept available while the work is in progress. Vehicles are still using the bridge, work on which will be in full swing next week.

Departmental Results.

The results of the Departmental examinations are not known here as Principal Greig, who will be the first to receive them, is on his vacation.

YAMS FORSAKEN LOVE OF WHEAT

West Africa Offers New Market for Flour.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(Associated Press).—Natives of British and French West Africa are rapidly adopting yeast bread made of wheat flour as a regular item of diet, and Agriculture Department officials foresee an increased trade in flour with that territory.

The growing demand for wheat flour is the result of laborers being recruited from the interior for service in the seaport towns where according to American Consul W. J. Yerby, at Dakar, Senegal, it is quite common for these laborers to make a meal of a loaf of bread and a tin of water. Baker's bread is replacing millet mush and rice in Senegal and Gambia, Consul Yerby reports, cassava and manioc dumpling and rice in French Guinea, Sierra Leong and Liberia, and maize and yams in the Ivory Coast, Gold Coast, Dahomey and Nigeria.

Thirty years ago imports of wheat flour into that part of Africa were almost negligible, the small quantities received being used by a few traders and Government officials.

NEWS OF MARMORA.

Deloro Bowlers Went to Belleville For the Tournament.

MARMORA, August 28. — In the sixth annual tournament of Belleville Bowling Club, a rink from Deloro, skipped by Mr. W. Williams, and consisting of Messrs. Paquet, Hemphill, and Pengilly, met defeat at the hands of an Ottawa rink.

Though beaten they were not disgraced, and with a little more experience hope to hold their own with the best in this part of the Province.

Mr. and Mrs. William McCoy, Misss Margaret and Mabel McCoy, and Mr. John Wiley visited relatives in Sidney Township on Tuesday.

Mr. Haacke, of Deloro, is slightly indisposed.

Miss Grace Milliken has returned to New York.

Mr. W. L. Rigg, of the laboratory at Deloro is spending his annual vacation in Toronto.

Master Carl McCoy is spending a holiday at Mr. Thomas Pack's, near Madoc.

RED POPULAR

If you don't wear red you aren't fashionable these days. Entire gowns of red are even more popular than trimmings of red on black or white.

The age-old charm of daintiness

THROUGH all the ages fair women have realized that daintiness—immaculate cleanliness—forms a large part of their feminine appeal.

But no matter how scrupulous the attentions bestowed upon the hands, the complexion, and all the little niceties of the toilet, if there be even a suspicion of the unpleasantness which arises from excessive perspiration, the picture is marred!—further effort is of no avail. No one is entirely free from this scourge—called by physicians Hyperidrosis. It is the bête noir of dainty womanhood!

Odorono, applied locally, corrects any tendency to perspiration. Odorono is a toilet necessity of incalculable value to every woman who aspires to daintiness.

Odorono is harmless. Physicians have proved beyond a doubt that perspiration, while necessary to health, may be locally checked without causing any ill effect. Odorono is used extensively in hospitals as a safe, scientific corrective.

An application of Odorono twice a week will protect against all embarrassment and discomfort from excessive perspiration. No more stained, soiled clothing! Never again the consciousness of that odour of perspiration rising between you and the enjoyment of the society of your friends!

No dainty woman can afford to be without Odorono. Three million women find continuous relief by its use. It is obtainable at all toilet counters or by mail postpaid. In three sizes. Prices: 35c, 60c and $1.00. Address The Odorono Co., Ltd., 107 Duke St., Toronto.

FAITH IN CANADA.

The Examiner does not know what message Premier MacKenzie King has brought for the people of Peterborough and the district today, but one thought that he and every other public man should lose no opportunity of developing is the encouragement of Canadians to have faith in themselves and their country and enthusiasm in regard to the future of Canada.

There is nothing wrong with Canada—but our people are not yet awake to the richness of the heritage that is their's.

Here we are right up to the top in wheat exportation.

In twenty-five years our field crop acreage has jumped from twenty million to sixty million acres.

The greatest deposits of asbestos, nickel and cobalt in the world are in Canada.

Manufacturers' production is just nine times as great now as it was twenty years ago, from 480,000,000 to 4,000,000,000 it is estimated.

We forget such figures as these sometimes, and more often perhaps we do not appreciate their significance.

We are too inclined to stress the dark side of the picture—too prone to miss the vision of Canada's tomorrow.

That is why the Examiner believes that our leaders should lose no chance of hammering home the fact that a wonderful era of development should be the story of this Dominion in the next decade or two.

A BETTER UNDERSTANDING.

The agricultural conference being held in Toronto at the suggestion of the Special Committee appointed by the Legislature to study rural problems, may not develop a solution to all these questions, but at least cannot fail to bring about a more intimate relationship between rural and urban delegates.

That in itself will justify the conference.

There is need of a better understanding between city and country, and it is pleasing to note that this need is already being pressed by different speakers in attendance.

The farmer and the city man are linked together first by the fact that they are fellow-citizens of a great country.

Their pride in their home land should knit them closely.

And apart from their common heritage as Canadians, self-interest should bind one to the other.

It is as necessary for the urban dweller that the farmer should prosper as it is for the agricultural producer that his cousin in the city should flourish.

If the man on the land does well, his buying power naturally increases and every city resident profits in some way or another.

Similarly the prosperity of the city people means a market for the farmer.

The interests of the two classes are identical, and the conference in emphasizing that fact is proving of service, even should it fail in every other respect.

PAYING THE SHOT.

In regard to the intimation from Hon. G. S. Henry that automobile owners are likely to be called upon to contribute more toward the cost of building and maintaining Provincial roads, it is pointed out, than they are already hit by a 30 per cent. tariff, a sale tax and a license fee.

That, however, does not alter the fact that the Province has spent, is spending and will have to continue to spend huge sums upon road construction and maintenance, and that the automobile is the principle reason for such an outlay.

The modern means of transportation calls for wider, smoother and more durable roads than would have sufficed were the traffic confined to the horse-drawn vehicle of twenty-five years ago.

The new and expensive road system adopted by the Province was made necessary by the advent of the automobile, and it seems to be a sound argument to maintain that that section of the population deriving the greatest benefit should pay the largest share of the shot.

And to extend that contention those who use the roads the most should contribute most to their cost and upkeep.

Undoubtedly this is what the Minister of Highways had in mind in his remarks the other day, and the conclusion to be drawn from what he said is that a tax on gasoline is to be expected in Ontario.

There are arguments against such a tax, but the Government will have little difficulty in presenting a strong case in favour of a levy of this nature.

THE PSYCHIATRISTS.

A psychiatrist is a specialist in mental diseases. Psychiatry is a very interesting study, but apparently it is not yet an exact science. Such, at least, is the impression left by the evidence given by experts in the trial for murder of Loeb and Leopold at Chicago. The specialists for the defense are convinced that the horrible crime was the result of defective brain cells. The specialists for the State are convinced that the young men are sufficiently normal to be fully responsible. It is an extraordinary trial. Possibly it is only in the United States that such a trial would be possible. But if the defense pleaded guilty to the charge of murder, how can it plead insanity? As a matter of fact the defense does not want insanity established, for that might mean imprisonment for life in an institution for the criminal insane. What the defense wants is to show that while the young men were guilty they were not entirely responsible, and not entirely insane, but just sufficiently defective in mentality to be entitled to treatment in some institution where they could be kept secure and harmless until cured of whatever it is that is wrong with them.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

REBUILDING EUROPE.

The work of the London conference marks the start of the new era of European reconstruction. After it has received the formal seal of parliamentary ratification the Dawes plan begins its transformation into action. This is certain to be a slow and arduous task, for the gap between planning and execution is always hard to bridge. Too often it is rendered more difficult by the common tendency to confuse the plan with the achievement, to think that an accepted formula is equivalent to its completed fulfilment. The very fact that the Dawes plan has been accepted as a formula only after the overcoming of difficulties which have heretofore proved insurmountable leads people to believe that its trials are now over and that it can be put into effect smoothly and quickly. But, aside from the question of ratification there are certain to be many knots which will have to be cut or unraveled. In Germany especially there is sure to be bitter opposition to some of the measures which will have to be enacted in order to set up the machinery of the plan. The German nationalists, whose political stupidity is notorious, can hardly be expected to show as much of a spirit of conciliation in the Reichstag as Messrs. Marx and Stresemann did at London.

It still remains to create the boards and committees to administer the details of the Dawes plan; to raise the loan which, it will be recalled, is now made the explicit condition on which the rest of the plan depends; to agree to the details of the necessary German legislation regarding the mortgaging of the railways and industries, and to attend to other loose ends. In addition, the representatives of the Finance Ministers of the various nations must meet to settle the questions of priority of payment for the costs of the armies of occupation and other charges on the total which Germany is to pay. Furthermore, the details of the trade agreement between Germany and France are still to be fixed. Lastly, the problem of disarmament, not only in Germany but elsewhere, and the cognate question of security must be attacked. Not until all these have been disposed of can it be said that recovery is actually in progress.

Despite this array of unsettled problems there is no cause for pessimism. The fact that a general accord has at last been reached outweighs all difficulties. The atmosphere of mutual understanding and co-operation which Ramsay MacDonald when he first came into power declared it his intention to create is certain to facilitate the task of the builders, as it did the labors of the architects. But it is as true today as it was yesterday that to rebuild takes much longer than to tear down. Though the nations are now agreed on what they will rebuild and the material which they will use, it will be months before the new structure can be seen rising.—St. Catharines Standard.

COVENT GARDEN.

It is said that, on account of the strike of porters in Covent Garden, London, that world-famous institution is threatened with extinction; but those who know and love the ancient mother city will have difficulty in crediting the rumor. London, without Covent Garden, would scarcely be London at all. For nowhere in the great city is the "genius loci" more surely to be found. The old order changeth, giving place to new; undoubtedly, the system of dumping the greater part of London's fruit and vegetable supplies in one place, and that situated right in the heart of the busiest commercial section, from which it has to be hauled to the retail merchants, is an inconvenient and old-fashioned one. The suggestions which are being made of direct trading between producers and merchants by means of fast auto trucks and even airplanes, and doing away altogether with the time-honored methods in vogue at Covent Garden, would make for greater efficiency and expediency; but such a change would just as certainly deprive London of much of its irresistible charm.

The craze for modernization has not hitherto bitten Londoners to any great extent. Efforts have been made here and there to "improve" and enlarge and bring more up-to-date; and in the process many a cherished old land-mark has been sacrificed. But the Cockney is an incurable sentimentalist, and is very slow to abolish that which is romantic and historic on the plea of mere "efficiency" or financial advantage. And who shall not say that he is right? With all its conservatism, its dislike of change, its tenacious clinging to old ways, London maintains its place as the very heart of the world's business activity; in its reverence for tradition and cautious acceptance of innovation, its stability and strength largely consist. This talk of sweeping away Covent Garden, with its picturesque early morning trading, its porters and flowerwomen, its stalls and carts and general confusion and bustle, will not get very far before it is squelched unless the spirit of the Londoner has sadly deteriorated in these prosaic post-war years.

Covent Garden derives its name from the fact that as long ago as the thirteenth century the abbots of Westminster had their "convent garden" there, used also as a burial ground. When the Reformation broke up the monasteries the land came into possession of the Earls of Bedford. In the time of the Georges the place became a very fashionable district, and the resort of literary characters and artists. The garden was laid out about 1630 from designs of Inigo Jones. Parts of the original piazzas still stand, and the Church of St. Paul, erected between 1631 and 1638, is the most conspicuous building of the locality today. Hogarth's famous picture, "Morning," gives a graphic idea of what conditions were in his time, and today Covent Garden still remains unique in its character and associations. An early morning pilgrimage to the famous market once or twice a year is regarded as almost a religious rite by the true Londoner. There will be many in Hamilton, as in all parts of the Empire, who would feel a sense of personal loss if it were done away with.—Hamilton Spectator.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, August 28. — Left-overs from Tuesday totalled 3,000 cattle at the Union Stock Yards yesterday. The market was very dull, with few sales made during the morning. Prospects are for easier prices on all grades, with a large hold-over.

Calves sold steady at $9.00 to $10.00 for choice with a few at $10.50. Hogs were steady at $11.00 off car with selects up to $12.10.

Early lamb sales were a half dollar lower at $12.00 to $12.50 for choice. Sheep were firm at $7.50 for tops.

Prices in the various sections were as follows:

Export cattle, choice and heavy steers $6.50 to $7.75 good store cattle $6.50 to $6.75.

Choice butchers, $6.00 to $6.75; medium, $5.25 to $6.00; fair, $5.25 to $5.50 ;common, $4.00 to $5.25; baby beeves, $8.50 to $10.50.

Choice fat cows, $3.50 to $4.25.

Stockers and feeders — Choice shortkeep feeders, 1,100 pounds to 1,200 pounds, $5.50 to $6.25; steers, 960 pounds to 1,050 pounds, $4.50 to $5.50; choice stockers, 850 pounds to 950 pounds, $4.25 to $4.75; light Western stock, $3.50 to $4.00.

Hogs — Thick, smooth, f.o.b., $10.00; selects, $11.70; fed and watered, $10.60; selects, $12.10 to $12.20; selects off cars, $12.05.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, August 28 (Canadian Press). — Market remains firm. Receipts in some sections give evidence of having been held presumably for an advance in the market. According to the regulations, eggs must be paid for on a strictly graded basis, therefore the longer eggs are held, the greater the deterioration, causing a loss to the producer or shipper for marketing low grade stock.

Toronto firm, unchanged. Retailing specials 52c to 53c, extras 45 to 48, firsts 38 to 43, seconds 32 to 35.

Montreal market very firm. Jobbing extras 42 to 43, firsts 36 to 37, seconds 30.

Ottawa firm. Retailing extras 43 to 45, firsts 38 to 40, seconds 30 to 35.

Winnipeg market firm. Retailing extras 40, firsts 35, seconds 30.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, August 28 (Canadian Press). — In sympathy with renewed strength in the Winnipeg cash wheat market a stronger feeling developed in local cash oats, which were up 2 cents a bushel.

There was no special change in flour. The tone of the millfeed market is steady and trade in rolled oats continues quiet. A fair business is passing in old crop baled hay. There was nothing new in eggs. The butter market is quiet. There was a little demand for cheese. Demand for old crop beans is good at $3.00 a bushel for choice No. 1.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, August 28 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday:
Demand 4.4863
Cables 4.4900

WINNIPEG LIVE STOCK.

WINNIPEG August 28 (Canadian Press). — Arrivals: 1,142 cattle, 85 calves, 899 hogs, and 142 sheep and lambs.

Trading on the cattle market yesterday morning was inclined to be slow, while quotations on all butcher classes were steady with the week's decline. Stockers and feeders were a shade more active with the prices generally in line with Tuesday's close.

The hog market opened weak, with tacons $9.50.

On the sheep and lamb market the prices held fairly steady with Tuesday's close, best lambs selling from $8.50 to $9.50, and sheep around $4.00 to $5.50.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, August 28 (Canadian Press). — Cattle, 13,000; fed yearlings and handyweight steers steady with the week's decline; undertone slightly more active; matured steers carrying weight very slow ;selling about steady on hit or miss basis; extreme top long yearlings, $10.85; few lots, $10.50 to $10.75; shipping demand moderately active for desirable young and handyweights; bulk matured steers, $10.25; few above $9.50; bulk, $8.25 to $9.25; plain offerings downward to $7.00 and below; little doing on Western grass steers; bid weaks; few stale and fresh arrivals, $5.25 to $6.50; she stock very uneven; fat grades weak to shade lower; bulls steady; vealers closing 50 cent lower; packers stopping at $12.50; stockers and feeders slow.

Hogs, 20,000; mostly weak to 10c lower; packing sows showing minimum losses; light lights and slaughter pigs dull, 25c to 50c lower; top, $9.90; bulk good and choice 160 to 325 pound average, $9.45 to $9.85; desirable 140 to 150 pound weight, $8.50 to $9.25; packing sows, $8.30 to $8.70; rough throughouts downward to $7.00 and lower; better strongweight slaughter pigs, $7.00 to $7.75; light common kind downward to $5.75; estimated holdover 17,000.

Sheep, receipts 13,000; slow; fat lambs steady to 25c lower; mostly steady; sorting moderate; bulk natives, $13.00 to $13.25; top, $13.50; bulk range lambs, $13.25 to $13.50; sheep weak to 25c lower; odd fat ewes, $4.00 to $6.00; range yearlings, 9 00; feeding lambs steady to strong; choice light weights early, $13.25.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, August 28 (Canadian Press). — Corn occupied the spotlight on the board of trade yesterday, unfavourable crop reports giving the market an upward swing, which at one time carried values around 7c above the low for the day, and December delivery going 12 1-4c over Monday's low point.

The close was strong, at a net gain of 3 to 4 1-4 cents.

Wheat finished 1 to 1 1-2 cents up, with September $1.21 1-8 to $1.21 1-4 and December $1.26 to $1.26 1-8.

Oats rose 3-4 to 1 1-8 cents.

Provisions advanced 15 to 35 cents.

A THOUGHT

WORDS OF WISDOM

Wealth brings its own checks and balances. The basis of political economy is non-interference. The only safe rule is found in the self-adjusting meter of demand and supply. Do not legislate. Meddle and you snap the sinews with your sumptuary laws. Give no bounties; make equal laws; secure life and property, and you need not give alms. Open the doors of opportunity to talent and virtue, and they will do themselves justice, and property will not be in bad hands. In a free and just common wealth, property rushes from the idle and imbecile to the industrious, brave and deserving."—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

When you do your work better than anyone else has ever done it you will hold your job longer than anyone else.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, Aug. 28.—We are told that it pays to be courteous, but an incident hapepned recently where an act of courtesy proved rather a bill of expense to one man. Mr. B. L. Johnson was returning to Belleville after visiting friends in Cobourg, and when between Colborne and Brighton, it is stated, turned out to give the road to a motorist going in the same direction. In doing so he ran into a cow that had strayed upon the road and killed it instantly. But that was not all, the front of the car was quite badly damaged. The passengers in the car escaped with being badly shaken up.

Death of Dr. E. V. Speer.

Dr. E. V. Speer passed away on Sunday in Toronto. He practiced for some time at Port Hope, and was well-known in this district. Owing to severe illness he was obliged to retire from active practice of his profession some time ago.

The Late H. C. McMullen.

H. C. McMullen, a brother of Mrsr. S. J. Shorey, Picton, formerly of Cobourg, passed away at the family home in that town on August 13. Mr. McMullen never recovered from the effects of the shock when he was accidentally struck by an automobile at Picton on July 11. He was the eldest of the twelve children born to the late Rev. and Mrs. D. McMullen, of whom three now survive: Mrs. S. J. Shorey, Miss Nannie McMullen, Picton, and Mr. Roger B. McMullen, Chicago.

A Successful Event.

Smithfield, Mount Carmel and Carman Methodist Churches combined in holding a successful harvest dinner at Smithfield on Thursday last. The net proceeds were $250, which will be used to purchase shingles to shingle the parsonage and barn. A splendid dinner was served by the ladies to a big company, who thoroughlry appreciated it. The next on the programme was a ball game between Presqu Ile Point and Trenton teams. After a delectable supper there was another ball game between Smithfield and Bayside. This had to be called with the score 3-3 in account of darkness.

Agent at Grafton.

Mr. G. Halliday, of Brighton, has been promoted to the position of agent of the Canadian National Railway at Grafton. He has been a member of the Brighton baseball team, and will be much missed in sporting circles there.

Death of William Stone.

The funeral of William Stone took place on Friday in Clarke Township. He was born in Cornwall, England, in 1832, and came to Canada when a young man of sixteen years. He took up farming in Clarke Township, where he married Matilda Crosley. Afterwards he came to Cobourg, where he conducted a dairy for some time, returning later to Clarke, to again resume farming. Besides his wife, Mr. Stone is survived by one son, James Stone, of Clarke Township, and by a brother, John Stone, also of Clarke.

Counties Competition.

A counties competition, covering the district from Northumberland and Peterboro East to Sherbrooke, for hogs and sheep has been arranged for the Central Exhibition which is to open at Ottawa on Setpember 9, it is stated.

The Late Mrs. Mary McNeish.

Mrs. Mary McNeish, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hugh, who was born in Cobourg in February, 1847, passed away at Lindsay on August 15. She was married to William McNeish in September, 1884, and they went to Lindsay to reside. Mrs. McNeish is survived by her husband and by a sister, Mrs. Wheeler, of Port Hope.

Bicycle Stealing Epidemic.

There is an epidemic of bicycle stealing in the city of Oshawa, it is stated, and it is not safe to leave a wheel out. However, most of the bikes are recovered shortly after being stolen, which is the saving part of the situation.

Broke Collar Bone.

Bert, five-year-old son of Mr. E. Fleming, Port Hope, broke his collar bone on Thursday. When getting up from the table he fell, striking his shoulder on a chair. Dr. Diamond was summoned and found there was a fracture of the bone.

Concert Was Enjoyed.

The Cobourg Concert Band resumed the weekly open-air concerts at Victoria Park on Thursday evening. There was a large crowd out to listen to the music, and it was much enjoyed. Four rinks of Port Hope bowlers were down that evening.

Local and Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank McGlennon, Toronto, are spending a week with old friends at Lakeport and Colborne.

Miss Irene Goodrich has been visiting Miss L. Mutton at Shiloh.

Mrs. C. Turk, Eddystone, is visiting friends at Toronto and Wiona.

Miss Bessie Hamilton, of Toronto, is home for a holiday visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton, Zion.

Miss Winnifred Raby has returned to Peterboro, where she is in training at Nicholls Hospital, after a short vacation spent with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Raby, Long View Farm, Zion.

LEAGUE NATIONS IS AN OLD STORY

Iroquois Indians Had League of Nations Four Centuries Ago.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28. —The Iroquois Indians beat the League of Nations to it by four centuries. That is what J. N. B. Hewitt of the Bureau of American Ethnology of the Smithsonian Institution has discovered through research of the League of the Five Nations," which held sway in the New York county when America was young. He has just returned to Washington from further investigation of the organisation of which a remnant exists today in the province of Ontario and the state of New York.

As the Indians of old left no written records, Mr. Hewitt had to depend on tradition, as embodied in ritual, for his main source of information. So far as the present is concerned 6,000 Indians at Brantford in Ontario, keep alive the league, under arrangement with the Canadian government, and three small reservations in New York state more or less closely follow the old league regulations. These are the Onondaga reservation near Syracuse, with 565 Indians; the Tonawanda reservations, near Akron, with 539 Indians, and the Tuscarora reservation, near Lewiston with 376 Indians.

The preservation of peace was the objective of the League of the Five Nations. Women occupied a pre-eminent place in its structure, and naturalization, the referendum, initiative and recall had a place in its make-up.

The Mohawk, the Onondaga, the Oneida, Cayuga, and the Seneca, tribes of Iroquoian blood, established the league, with a mature constitution, and planned to bring into the federation, in time, all known tribes of men as allies.

Deganawida, the prophet statesmen of the Iroquis was its leading spirit. Hiawatha (not the personage of that name immortalized by the poet Longfellow); Atotapho, a wizard who at first bitterly opposed the plan, and Djigonsasen, a noted chieftainess, urged the peaceful revolution. This was the more remarkable, Mr. HeHwitt points out, in an age when fightmg was fashionable.

The League of the Five Nations came historically into being between 1550 and 1570. It aimed at stamping out the blood feud system, which was killing off the bravest Indians of the nations, and eradicating whatever cannibalism existed. So powerful had the League become by 1701, that it was able to turn over to the King of England in trust a territory 800 miles long and 400 miles wide. Before asking others to disarm, the League disarmed itself. It was badly jarred by the War of the Revolution, Mr. Hewitt finds, but it has survived in a measure until today.

The Indian league had its "World Court" idea, too, for Mr. Hewitt points out that "the federal council sitting as a court without a jury, heard and determined cases in accordance with established rules and principles of procedure, and with precedent."

Women Barbers Seek Recognition In U. S.

INDIANAPOLIS, August 28. — The outstanding question to confront delegates to the convention of the Journeymen Barbers' International Union when they assemble here Sept. 9th, is: Shall women be admitted to the ranks?

For 15 years women have sought to become members, according to Jacob Fischer, secretary, but the vote has always been against them. But with women customers flocking into the shops for bobs, union officials admit that a decision will be more difficult at this convention.

CASTLE FULLY LIGHTED.

For Second Time in History Bavarian Castle Had Complete Illumination.

MUNICH, Aug. 28.—(Associated Press). — Mirror hall in the castle Herrenchiemsee recently was illuminated by its 8,500 candles for the second time since the castle was built. The occasion was a gathering of Bavaria's first citizens, including members of the former royal family, invited by the government.

The first complete illumination of mirror hall and its adjacent rooms was in 1886, ordered by Prince Regent Luitpold to honor the Shah of Persia, then visiting the Bavarian Court.

MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT NEWS

Ladies' Aid of Methodist Church Commence Fall Activities.

MILLBROOK, August 27. — The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church held its opening meeting for the fall and winter season on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. J. Brown, about fifty members and visitors being in attendance.

The president, Miss M. Needham, was in the chair, and Mrs. J. H. George read the Scripture lesson.

Many important business items in connection with the bazaar to be held in December, and the annual fowl dinner at the time of the church anniversary in October, were discussed, as well as other ways and means of adding to the funds of the society.

The gathering was held on the lawn, and tea was served by Mrs. Brown, assisted by a committee appointed for the purpose.

Vocal solos by Miss Ethel Richardson were much appreciated, as well as a brief and encouraging address from Rev. F. H. Howard, who was meeting the Aid for the first time since coming to the pastorate of this circuit last June.

Miss Duncan is the convener in charge for the October meeting, which will be held the first Tuesday of the month, the place to be announced later.

A social good time was enjoyed before the guests left for home.

Miss Elsie Weeks, of Havelock, is the guest of Miss Gertrude Gray this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mulligan, of Cleveland, Ohio, are visiting her mother, Mrs. S. Eakins, Sr.

Miss Laura Clarke, B.A., of Weyburn, Sask., who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Eakins, left for home on Monday, and will remain with her aunt, Mrs. (Dr.) Adam Clarke, Winnipeg, for a brief visit en route.

Rev. W. Buchanan, of Lethbridge, Alta., who has been the guest of his sister-in-law, Mrs. W. Archer, for the past few weeks, left for home on Monday.

Miss Ethel Larmer, of Miama, Florida, is holidaying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Larmer.

Mrs. J. Whitfield and son, Mr. Eric, and Miss M. Osborne, of Oshawa, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Wilson, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Strong, of Peterborough, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Brown, leaving for home on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Diamond, of Batavia, N.Y., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Ball on Monday. Four years ago Mr. Diamond represented the Massey-Harris interests in this district. Mrs. Diamond's sister, from Kingston, accompanied them on their return home. They are visiting friends in Yelverton before crossing again to the States.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Piper and baby daughter, of Oshawa, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Wilson.

OIL CONVENTION OPENS OCTOBER

Oil Men From All Over the World Will Attend Exposition in Oklahoma.

TULSA, Okla., August 28.—Leading oil operators of Germany, France Roumania, Mexico, Venezuela, Chile, Uruguay, and Britain will participate in the second annual International Petroleum Exposition, to be held here, commencing on 2nd October.

Exposition grounds are already covered with structures resembling a miniature city. There will be 16 exposition buildings. "Queen Petrolia" will be chosen at the exposition from among the winners of the various oil state beauty contests.

All the latest type implements of the industry will be shown, including American and foreign made machinery and tools.

Experts will demonstrate the development of oil from crude state to the finished products, employing a miniature refinery and a model field with drills and pumps, actually working.

ENGINE SPEED RECORD CLAIMED.

STUTTGART, Aug. 28.—(Associated Press).—The highest engine revolution known is alleged to have been reached by a new design of internal spindle grindstone used here to grind cylinders. The shaft revolves 80,000 times a minute.

FUR HUNTERS SEEK NEEDS OF FASHION

The Hunt For Fur Extends Northward As Animals Become Scarce.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Aug. 28. — The hunt for fur is extending northward year by year, according to officers of the great fur companies operating from this city to the Labrador Coast and into Hudson's Ba.. Each season they say, new posts are opened to widen the field of the pelt hunter northerly into the Arctic.

The Hudson's Bay Company and Revillon Freres, the "old" company and the "new," already have despatched their steamers on their annual tour of the northern posts.

All the way up the coast of Labrador and into Hudson's Bay are scattered fur posts which in many cases have been carrying on business with the natives for years. Gradually, the company heads say, the operations have extended northward, the Hudson's Bay Company especially seeking out new fur fields. This company now has a numerous chain of posts in Baffinland and other areas north of Hudson Strait. In recent years the trading operations of both companies have been very successful and the fur catches large.

Two years ago the Hudson's Bay Company undertook to establish a herd of reindeer in Baffinland with a view to augmenting the meat supply of the region. The company was encouraged in its experiment by the success of a similar project in Alaska. Instead of meeting with the success achieved by the reindeer in Alaska the Hudson's Bay Company met with partial failure and the herd now is small.

SUBWAY EFFICIENCY IMPRESSES GERMANS

Speed and Snap of New York Underground More Impressive Than Skyline.

BERLIN, Aug. 28.—"The speed and snap of the New York subway service impressed me more than the much heralded skyline," declared Herr Pawel, general manager of the Berlin underground railways, after his return from a trip through the United States. The close sequence of the trains and the rapidity with which they were operated during the rush hours, the calm and the discipline of the crowds, jamming the stations, surprised him too.

Even the turnstiles made a hit with Herr Pawel, who, in a newspaper article contends that attempts of New Yorkers to cheat the administration by inserting fake nickels were tried but seldom. Nevertheless he does not recommend the turnstile system for Berlin.

BIG REINDEER BUSINESS.

Alaska May Have Major Industry Through Reindeer Raising.

NOME, Alaska, August 28. — Extensive preparations have been made to place Alaska's reindeer industry this fall on a par with fox-raising, mining, fishing and sheep-raising in the territory, according to a trading corporation.

Mr. Lomen explained that despite the fact that many natives are very wealthy on paper, due to their large reindeer herds, they are nearly starving.

The herds have increased to a point where they must be depleted. The one sure way, without waste, is to cultivate a taste for reindeer meat, not only throughout Alaska, but in the United States and in foreign countries.

RODENT PEST CONTROLLED.

TUSCAN, Ariz., Aug. 18. — Arizona farmers and stockmen increased their profits by $525,830 during the past year as a result of rodent control carried on under the bureau of biological survey and the agricultural extension division of the University of Arizona, according to an estimate issued here.

Prairie dogs were exterminated from several counties. Relentless war also was carried on against gophers, jack rabbits and cottontails. Poison was found the most effective method.

BALTIC FISH GROWING SMALLER.

DANZIG, Aug. 28.—Baltic Sea fishermen declare that the fish of these waters are becoming smaller. It has been particularly among the herring and other fish caught this summer for the German and Baltic state markets. Scientists have begun an investigation to ascertain the cause of the shrinkage in size.

COOKING CARROTS

STORM INJURED PASSENGERS OF OCEAN VESSELS

More Than Fifty Persons on the White Star Liner "Arabic" Hurt.

SEVEN SERIOUSLY

Portholes Smashed in by Hurricane and Lifeboats Swept Away.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press).—Atlantic shipping paid heavy toll to the hurricane which raged over the seas from the south to the north Atlantic for the better part of the last three days.

With the arrival in port late yesterday of the White Star Liner Arabic bearing more than fifty persons injured in the 100 mile gale, shipping officials learned that the hurricane had caught many vessels in its sweep. At least five large liners, heavily loaded with homecoming passengers, fought their way through the gale that at times whipped the waves into battering hillocks between forty and fifty feet in height.

The Arabic her sick bay filled with injured, her decks stripped of lifeboats and her portholes smashed in, was the hardest hit. The Homeric, also of the White Star line, ran into the giant storm in its waning strength, but had eight injured and suffered damage to her superstructure. The Munson Liner Munargo, from Nassau and the Orizaba of the Ward Line, made port badly battered.

Seven to Hospitals.

Of the fifty-two persons aboard the Arabic who received injuries necessitating the doctors' care, seven were so badly hurt that they had to be removed to hospitals. Ambulances awaited the ship at her North River pier. Of the Arabic's injured 35 were passengers—nine of them in the third cabins and 17 were members of the crew. A score or more of others suffered minor hurts.

One man was reported dead, a victim of the gale. The steamer Eliza Walker picked up a wireless message from the Danish steamer Nordfarer, enroute here from South America, stating that a wave had swept the 2,500 ton vessel and swept her bridge and her master, Captain J. Madsen, overboard.

Captain Injured.

A wireless request for an ambulance was sent last night from the Munson ship Mundelta, inward bound from San Pedro saying the captain, J. F. Smith, was injured during the gale.

TWO SCHOONERS SINK

SYDNEY, N.S., Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press).—Two small schooners, the Golden Cup and the Bridget and Freemans sank at their moorings at North Sydney during the height of the gale Tuesday night. No lives were lost.

Crew May Be Drowned

HALIFAX, N.S. August 27.—It is feared that Captain W. A. Miller and his crew of five men were drowned when the schooner Anna MacDonald, 200 tons, owned in Charlottetown, P.E.I., by Hon. J. A. MacDonald, provincial minister of public works, was totally wrecked in this week's storm off Prospect, Halifax County. She was enroute from New York to Halifax with coal.

INVESTIGATE RATES.

Alberta Requests Federal Interference In Vancouver Grain Charges.

EDMONTON, Alta., Aug. 28. —A request is being made by the Alberta Government that the Ottawa authorities take steps to hold off the increase of cargo rates on grain by the Vancouver Harbor Board until opportunity has been given for a thorough investigation and a hearing at which all interests involved may be represented. Premie. Mackenzi King and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries in which he asks that they take this action in accordance with previous understandings in the matter.

The immediate cause of the Government taking up the cargo rates question again is the fact that the first of September will bring the introduction of the new tariff by which the Harbor dues are to be raised from one cent to six cents per ton. An opportunity to be heard in regard to this proposed jump was asked for some months ago, but nothing further has been heard from Ottawa and September first is now close at hand.

MARRIAGE ANNULLED.

MONTREAL, Aug. 28. — The marriage of Dame Maria Albina Proulx with Francesco Servio Gigliotti which took place Aug. 24, 1923, was annulled in the Practise Division of the Superior Court here yesterday. The woman declared that she married the defendant because she had been threatened with death if she refused. She pleaded that no legal consent had been given to the ceremony.

Mr. Justice Bruneau decided that the petitioner's allegations were well founded.

BAPTISED AND BURIED HIM

BROCKVILLE, Aug. 28. —When Rev. T. F. Dowdell of Lyn, conducted the funeral services for Stanley H. Watts, Bishop Mills, one of the victims of a boiler explosion there, it was revealed that he had baptised the young man, prepared him for confirmation and had also officiated at his marriage, although stationed in different parishes during the period.

HOT WEATHER MENUS

Luncheon

Corn Souffle Raisin Brown Bread
Watermelon Salad
Blackberry Shortcake Iced Tea

Corn Souffle.

Two cups corn cut from the cob, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 1-4 cups soft bread crumbs, 2-3 cup milk, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 eggs, few grains pepper.

To cut corn from the cob cut a thin slice from the top of the kernels and scrape out the heart of the kernels with the blunt edge of the knife.

Melt butter, add crumbs and milk and cook, stirring constantly until smooth. Add yolks of eggs beaten until thick and lemon-colored, salt and pepper and corn. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve immediately.

Dinner Menu.

Salisbury Steak
Twice Baked Potatoes.
Fried Summer Squash.
Tomato and Cheese Ball Salad
Reheated Rolls Peach Custard Pie
Iced Coffee.

Fried Summer Squash

Squash (for four persons), 1 egg, 4 tablespoons milk 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-4 teaspoon onion juice, fine sifted bread crumbs.

Pare squash and put in half-inch slices. Beat egg with milk and seasonings. Dip slices of squash in egg, then in crumbs and fry a golden brown first on one side and then on the other. Use half butter and half lard for frying and cook in a spider.

SEX.

Here is magic. Whether it'll ever be useful knowledge or not, no one knows. Professor Huxley changes the sex of guinea pigs, turning male into female and vice versa. He does it, yet cannot understand it—any more, he says, than he can figure out what makes an elephant or any other animal grow to a certain size and then stop instead of continuing until it's as big as a mountain at death.

WASHING WINDOWS.

To wash windows successfully you must have several clean cloths and not use water so freely that it drips from the pane or sash.

For every wash-day method

RINSO is ideal for any wash-day method you use. You do not have to change any of your usual steps—just use Rinso where you used to use ordinary soap.

If you like to boil your white cottons, Rinso will give you just the safe cleansing suds you need in the boiler. If you use a washing machine, follow the advice of the big washing machine manufacturers—use Rinso.

Just soaking with this new kind of soap loosens all the dirt until a single rinsing leaves the clothes clean and spotless.

However you do your wash, make it easy by using Rinso.

If you use a Washing Machine, soak your clothes in the Rinso suds as usual. In the morning add more Rinso solution and work the machine. Then rinse and dry—you will have a clean sweet snow-white wash.

Rinso is sold by all grocers and department stores

A very enjoyable dance was held at McCracken's Landing on Thursday evening last and was attended by about 25 couples who tripped the light fantastic until midnight to the strains of the popular dance music. In the lucky number dance the prize winners were Miss Leslie Macgregor and Mr. Harry Tamplet.

SPEED.

"It seems but yesterday" when we were marvelling at the ultra-rapid camera of the movie studio, making 300 exposures a second.

A Frenchman perfects a camera making 25,000 pictures a second. It discloses strange things. One, for instance, is that a soap bubble, hit by a paper wad, admits the wad closes the hole it made, and does not burst until the projectile emerges on the far side.

Such scientific toys, unless at first, usually become a practical part of daily life eventually.

TAX ON BICYCLES BEATS THE DUTCH

Bikes Support Dykes When Axe of Economy Cuts Close Around Windmills.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 28.—Holland has found a way to make her bikes support her dikes—taxation.

Even the oldest clog-shodden inhabitant is too young to recall a time in Dutch history when there has ever before been a tax on bicycles. But the axe of economy has started hewing more closely along the highways and byways that wind around among the windmills. Since Aug. 1, every pedalling speed demon in the land has been subject to a tax of three guilders on his mount.

"One bike, one buck," is the slogan of the lynx-eyed collector as he sleuths about, pocketing his dollar per two-wheeled, rubber-tired canita.

And when they tax bicycles in Holland, they are doing things on a man sized scale. It is conservatively estimated there are about 2,000,000 in working order at this season of the year. There are a half million in the province of North Holland alone.

No foreigner trying to cross the streets of a large Dutch city would question the accuracy of these figures. Dodging in and out of veritable swarms of cyclists, he would conclude the man who said, only two million, got tired of counting and let the total go at that.

Everybody Rides

Almost everybody rides a bike in Holland. Babies learn cycling not long after they learn to walk. And the fat girls, the lean girls, the men-folk, and the old folks, most of them rid- The bulk of the remainder travel by canal-boat. A maid-servant who cannot afford a bike is frowned upon by her fellow-workers for her inability to hold a sufficiently lucrative position.

It is not an uncommon sight along the streets of The Hague, Amsterdam, or Rotterdam to see men in evening dress and women in fine gowns pedalling laboriously by in frantic efforts to meet an overdue dinner appointment. Another familar spectacle is that of three riders abreast, one of them tipping his hat in acknowledgment of a formal introduction to another of the three who is being presented by the third.

FUNDS SENT FOREIGN STUDENTS FOR BIBLES

To meet the need of German theological students for necessary textbooks, the American Bible Society has recently made a gift of enough money to buy and distribute Nestle's Greek Testament among the students of Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Austria.

Contrary to a widespread impression that religion has been very much discounted in those countries, it is said that a vital religious reawakening is taking place there. But there are tremendous difficulties to be overcome. The students have barely enough money to buy food and clothes, much less books.

Nestle's version of the original New Testament, which was in Greek, is considered the best. It may be bought in the country for about a dollar and a half. In Germany it may be bought for even less, in dollars, because printing and labor are even cheaper. Much gain may be derived from studying it in the original, as there are shades of meaning which it is impossible to convey in a translation.

Among the student bodies from whom letters of thanks for the Bibles have been received are the Theological Seminaries of Kiel, Coblenz, Bethol, Gottingen, Breslau, Prague, Halle-Wittenberg, Heidelberg and Warsaw. In each case it has been impossible heretofore to supply the students with this particular book.

LOTS OF ICE CREAM

Ice cream that is made of the pure ingredients should be served frequently during the summer, as it is a nourishing food as well as a dessert. A glass of ice cream has a caloric value equivalent to three eggs or a third of a pound of beefsteak.

Eases Kitchen Work

To Women Who Do Their Own Work: Suppose you could save six minutes every day in washing pots and pans—two minutes after every meal. In a month, this would amount to a saving of three hours of this disagreeable but necessary work. This saving can be made by using SMP enameled kitchen utensils, as their smooth sanitary surface will not absorb dirt or grease. No scraping, scouring or polishing is needed when you use Diamond or Pearl Ware. Soap, water and a dish towel is all you need. Ask for

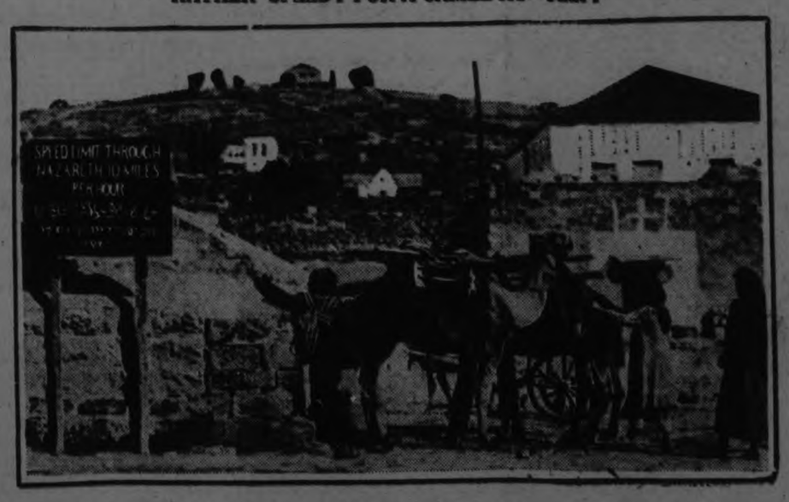
RATHER SPEEDY FOR A CAMEL AT That!



Over in Nazareth, in the Holy Land, there's a sign that reads: "Speed Limit Through Nazareth 10 Miles Per Hour." Maybe it's intended for camel traffic, though probably it is aimed at more speedy people from the west who come touring.

ONE ON PORT HOPE.

Man Poses As Sanitary Officer and Breaks Into Print.

COBOURG, August 28. (Special.)—To pose as a Dominion sanitary officer, and carry off the situation during his stay in the town of Port Hope, was the stunt performed by a man who is now stated to be an escaped patient from the Ontario Hospital at Whitby.

He reached Cobourg to-day, after "doing up" Port Hope, and previous to this delivered a lecture or address to the Bowmanville council, but his activities here were cut short, mainly because of a letter received by the local police asking that Mr. Reuben Obadiah, alias Bevin, be detained, and giving a personal description, to which a man who purported to be "Dr. H. R. Bemus, Sanitary Department, Dominion Public Health," during his stay in Port Hope, tallied.

Three officers, one being from Port Hope, were in conference here at the police headquarters, when a car containing a gentleman and a lady drove up to a hotel opposite, which they entered. It was noted that the man's appearance tallied with a description of the man wanted, and the Cobourg chief went across and consulted the local register, but the name recorded there did not reveal anything.

The public health officer here was communicated with but he knew nothing of a prospective visit of a Dominion sanitary officer to this locality.

A physician from the Ontario Hospital here next engaged the man in conversation, and he was invited over to the police headquarters to continue it. Arrived there he revealed the whole story, when questioned by the officers, and appeared to be quite jubilant because he had put it over the other places. He had been in the Ontario Hospital at Whitby.

On Tuesday a long letter appeared in the Port Hope Times, over the signature of "Dr. H. R. Bemus, Sanitary Department, Dominion Public Health," in which the writer purported to give a resume of his sanitary investigations in that town, and offered extensive criticisms and comments upon alleged conditions.

He considered the public should know how its public health laws were being observed.

He regretted that the hospitals did not use pasteurized milk, an said the town's water intake pipe was filling with sand, and recommended its extension farther out into the lake.

He criticized the town's methods of disposing of refuse, and some matters in connection therewith must be remedied at once, he stated. He advocated the establishment of public lavatories, among many other things.

It was a good letter and occupied nearly two columns of newspaper space.

8,000 AT HUGE KINGSTON PICNIC

Largest Event of This Kind Ever Held in Limestone City.

KINGSTON, Aug. 28. — (Canadian Press.)—Attended by upward of eight thousand people, the annual picnic of the local Conservative Association at Lake Ontario Park yesterday was one of the biggest events ever held in this city, and was marked by addresses from Hon. J. S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture; Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney General; Hon. Dr. E. E. Ross, M.P. for Kingston, and H. A. Stewart, M.P. for Leeds.

Hon. Mr. Martin in his address spoke of the conditions in agriculture in Ontario, and stated that after a stud yof European conditions he was firmly convinced that the farmer of Ontario is better off than the farmer of any other country. He felt that much must be done for the farmers, but that it was not ter a study of European conditions in the province as near ideal as possible. Lack of Hydro power for farms was the big obstacle. Attorney General gave a resume of work which the Ontario Government had done since is assumed office, telling of the many savings which have already been effected. Referring to the bond sales revelations he expressed a desire of seeing that the guilty parties were punished.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain—How To Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Country Club Styles Prove a Big Surprise

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, N.Y., Aug. 28.—(United Press).—Those who think that sports clothes can be worn at all smart out-of-town hostelries and clubs would be taken unawares at the Westchester Biltmore Country club. Here sheer lingeries and laces and Summery hats completely outnumber the sports types and put them in the background.

Tired-out business men and luxuriously gowned ladies appear at all hours at this famous Country Club. The men may be in business suits or in sports attire but the women are invariably as cool as cucumbers in sheer, lacy frocks and transparent, wide-brimmed hats.

Looking about the verandas one is completely astonished at the display of color. Yellow is by all means the most prominent shade and white follows a close second. Orchid, pale green, vivid red and rose add high spots here and there. Black and white combinations are in evidence although white unadorned by color is more conspicuous.

Lace frocks and net and lace combinations are many. Beige-toned lace posed over self-toned slips and ivory laces verging on yellowish tones are more important than black or white lace effects. Coffee colored lace enlivened with burnt-orange slips are worn by several well dressed matrons.

Yellow, Yellow Everywhere.

As to yellow, one sees it everywhere. A dark haired girl is wearing a yellow flannel tennis dress piped in white. A gray haired matron is gowned in white crepe embroidered in yellow beads. Her wide horsehair hat has a crown of yellow velvet and it's brim is outlined in yellow.

There are pleated georgette frocks of yellow fnished at yoke and armholes with yellow Irish lace. Yellow organidies trimmed with a light shade of blue which is set into the full skirt at intervals. There are yellow scarfs worn with white costumes. Yellow shoes, yellowish stockings worn with white shoes.

Many frocks of lingerie type, either of lace and net combinations or of fine embroidered batste and net have plain, slender line until they reach the knees where they terminate in flounces. Others are straightlined to the hem with narrow-ribbon string belts placed at low waistlines. Many pleated capelet effects are worn with frocks of silk crepe. Sleeves of any description are conspiciously absent, although chiffon and georgette scarfs cover the upper arms. Scarfs using two colors of chiffon or georgette are most popular than figured ones. Contrasting shades are usually combined such as orchid and old blue, two shades of yellow, Majenta and purple, etc. Just now, the Venetian fushia tones are beginning to appear on hats of transparent type. These are worn with different colored frocks, such as a certain shade of green, pale yellow, gray and orchid.

The Other Fittings.

White shoes and stockings are much in evidence and these white shoes are made in cut out designs rather than the simple pump effect which is popular for street wear.

Many women carry fluffy parasols which harmonize with their frocks. These are of taffeta, mostly, and are ruffled, the ruffles having frayed edges. One girl whose gown was made of white silk crepe unadorned by color carried a white taffeta parasol with a huge cretonne parrot appliqued on one side.

Crystal bead necklaces and earrings make their appearance as evening approaches. But during the day one sees little jewelry of any description. A lovely necklace of turquoise beads with a huge carved pendant was worn with a cream colored lace frock and the same turquoise shade was carried out in the small horsehair hat of cloche shape.

Crystal bracclets have become a fad for evening wear and several guests at the Biltmore Country club appear with these.

NATIONS THAT TRY TO SHIRK WORK WILL BRING ON OWN PUNISHMENT

Desire to Dodge Effort Has Prevailed Since War—Working Men, Business Men and White Collared Youngsters Must Bend to Tasks or Others Will Pass Them.

CHICAGO, August 28. — Another Chicago industrialist comes from Europe, and says we are taking life too easy.

"It has almost come to the point where a banker should judge a business man by his golf game." This is his vivid way of putting it: "If the man plays a first-class game, he is likely to spend too much time in improving it. In either case, there is too much golf and too little attention to business. That sounds like a banker's joke. But it has some truth in it."

There is no doubt about it. Ever since the war, and to-day as much as ever, almost everybody seems possessed of a desire to shirk work. It usually is supposed to be the working man who want to deliver less labour for more money. We all read daily about the "working conditions" demanded by certain unions to limit the amount of wor kti be done for the money, to cut down the hours of actual labour, to allow more leisure in working hours and more idleness outside of working hours.

* * * * *

In the Nineteenth Century, Majaume, a writer, tells how this effort to shirk work has taken hold among a vast multitude of young persons who as yet are not in the ranks of either labour or big business. He refers especially to the young people of the white collar class:

"Small houses, small rooms, small furniture, small families, small motor cars — everything seems to be shrinking to fit post-war conditions. The art of living seems now to ne recognised as the art of reducing everything to the smallest possible scale. Two rooms and a two-seater is the ideal of the newly married. It is correct in these days to be as homeless as possible.

"Hence the new simplicity in furnishing, the elimination of everything unnecessary or merely ornamental, and the ruthless scrapping of everything that makes for work. the monk in his cell is now recognised as the best housekeeper. Carpets, linoleum, knick-knacks, ornaments—all were scrapped to lighten labour. All have been scrapped by this ruthless generation, who have come to realise that the best home is the home that demands the least work.

"The aim of the modern bride is not to furnish a home, but unfurnish it."

There is no need to waste space in applying these British ideas to American conditions. As most persons know they already are here and applied, and at the same time there is a lot of literature afloat in favour of less work or almost no work at all. How to reduce the hours of labour to six or five or even four. That is a topic that few uph:vers and social reformers can resist.

One common prophecy at present is that two hours a day is all that anybody need work under some sweet business order of the future. Strangely enough, the very persons who talk most about the beauty and nobility of hard labour nowadays are the one who write most enthusiastically about getting rid of that hard labour of the future—all but two hours a day. And the very ones who denounce the rich "for their idleness" are the ones who wish to see idleness made universal—all except two hours a day.

But all that is far from the practical proposition. It is explained here merely to show how fast and how far the idea of dodging work has travelled since the war.

What's the lesson? There isn't any. None of these tendencies to shirk work can go far, for they all bring their own punishment. The nations that try to shirk work will be brought up with a sharp turn by rivals in international trade. The working men who shirk work, the white-collared youngsters who shirk work will all come to the place where they either must bend to their tasks or let others pass them in the race for the good things of life.

Somewhere and somehow, within perhaps two years, within perhaps even a year, they all will get the bumps that will wake them up to these hard truths even in easy-living America.

FOUND POISONED.

Unknown Lady Found Unconscious on Church Grounds.

TORONTO, August 28. (Canadian Press. — An unidentified woman died in St. Michael's Hospital last night of poison, self-administered. She was picked up in the Metropolitan church grounds yesterday afternoon and removed to the hospital. As she was unconscious the hospital authorities were unable to learn her identity. She was about 30 years of age, 5 feet 5 inches in height, and wore a navy blue dress.

FABLES ON HEALTH

COARSE FOOD HELPFUL.

What foods are cleansing to teeth?

Few people could tell you but the Manns found out when they took their brood of youngsters to the dentist.

Give children coarse dry toast, hardtack, crusts or stale bread or any good coarse dry food. Let them chew on it long and well. This is both excellent exercise and a first aid to stronger gums.

Fruits, through their acids, have a good reaction upon the mouth and teeth and nothing is better than some raw vegetables for the kids to nibble upon. If they want a raw carrot or some raw cabbage, let them have it.

Such food will supply the minerals so necessary in building solid teeth and bones in the young.

SHIP WRECKED.

Captain and Crew of Five Men Are Missing.

HALIFAX, August 28. — It is feared that Captain W. A. Miller and his crew of five men were drowned when the schooner Anna Macdonald, 200 tons, owned in Charlottetown, P. E.I., by Hon. J. A. Macdonald, the Provincial Minister of Public Works, was totally wrecked, in this week's storm off Prospect, Halifax County. She was en route from New York to Halifax with coal.

LAKEVIEWS WIN GAME FROM THE OSHAWA OUTFIT

Claus Pitches Sterling Ball For Oshawa Boys, But Timely Hits Rob Him of Win.

TWO HOME RUNS.

Young Petes Leading 2 To 0 Until the Last Innings—Get Three More.

Hits that come in the nick of time gave the Lakeviews the verdict of a 5 to 0 game over the St. George's Junior team of Oshawa. Although the Lakeviews registered but eight hits they managed to collect 5 runs, while the Oshawa boys five hits were wasted, as they did not succeed in pushing a run over the plate.

Young Claus who did the twirling for the Oshawa junior team that played the Lakeviews last year, did the pitching yesterday and turned in an excellent exhibition of curve ball heaving. He had all kinds of stuff and fairly good control. The Peterboro boys got but eight hits off his delivery and some of these were scratchy ones. For the first seven innings he hooked the Petes to death and they got but two runs off him, one in the second on Ash's home run and one in the fourth when Whitehouse scored on Marchens' triple.

Claus is of small stature, but he has all kinds of speed and the report could be heard all over the diamond. Although he was touched for two home runs, a triple and a double these hits would not have gone for any more than two bases on the Peterboro diamond. If the ball once got passed the fielder she would go for a home run every time.

Frank Whitehouse pitched a steady game for the Lakeviews. In the first three innings he fanned nine batsmen but as the game grew older the Motor town boys got more used to his delivery and managed to collect five hits, none of them doing any damage in the run column. He worked nice all the way, fanning 16 batsmen in the eight innings. He was in the very best of form and put the ball in the groove every time. He went the rout without issuing a pass or hitting a batsman.

Harry Halliday did the receiving, and he turned in a pretty exhibition of catching. He held Whitehouse up in great style, and came through without an error, while but two bases were stolen on him.

Johnny Marchen led the Lakeviews at bat when he collected a home run, and a double, in four trips to the plate. Ash and Whitehouse also came through, Ash getting a home run and Whitehouse two singles.

Both Claus and Whitehouse were the outstanding players of the game. Claus not only turned in a nice game on the mound but also came through with a nice hit, and fielded his position perfectly.

The return game with this team will be played on Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. The game is sure to be a good one as the Oshawa boys are a smart agregation, and need watching. Claus will likely do the pitching at the game here on Saturday.

BASEBALL NEWS.

It will be Mackeys and Bethany tomorrow evening at Riverside Park in the play-off game for the championship of the Mackey-Bethany series. This is the third and deciding game, being necessary by the winning of a game by each team. Mackeys won 5-4 on their home grounds and Bethany won 8-6 on their grounds, making a third game necessary, which was ordered to be played at Riverside Park on Friday evening.

Both teams are in fine mettle for this game and each are confident of a win. Mackeys think they will be able to slug their way to victory tomorrow night and expect their heavy artillery to come through. Bethany think that Riley, their ace heaver who fanned thirteen of Mackeys Monday night, will be able to subdue the murderer's row. With this spirit and confidence on the part of both teams the fans can look forward to a great battle. Both teams have lined up a good aggregation of ball tossers who turn in a good brand of ball, that is full of good hitting, fast fielding and real pitching and will give the fans a game of thrills and excitement.

The game is scheduled for tomorrow night at 5.30 sharp at Riverside Park and a good attendance of fans is expected.

MANUEL ALONZO LOST TO TILDEN

Pat O'Hara Wood Beaten by Kirk Reid of Cleveland in Tennis Singles.

MONTREALER WINS

FOREST HILLS, L.I., Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press).—Jack Wright, of Montreal, was among the eight who advance to the fourth round of the national singles tennis championships here yesterday, earning the right to continue in the tournament by his defeat of Hugh Kelleher, of New York, 6-2, 6-3, 0-6, 6-4. Willard Crocker, also of Montreal, entering the third round, was defeated by George Lott, Chicago, prodigy and conqueror of Norris Williams, in straight sets, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

William T. Tilden began the defence of his national tennis crown by vanquishing his spectacular Spanish rival, Manuel Alonzo, but the series of startling upsets that has struck the ranks of his challengers since the tournament opened continued to mark the downfall of favorites.

The tall Philadelphian, four times champion, put his colorful Spanish opponent to route in four sets, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Pat O'Hara Wood's downfall at the hands of Kirk Reid, of Cleveland, former Cornell crack, in five sets, 2-6, 6-0, 7-5, 4-6, 11-9, was the biggest reversal of the day.

Harry Snodgrass, No. 9 in the national ranking, went down before the steady play of Watson Washburn, New York veteran, who added the second "first ten" scalp to his belt when he disposed of the Californian by scores of 2-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

Scarcely less sensational than these were the close calls experienced by Borotra and Kinsey. The French star, ace of his country's Davis Cup forces, met an unexpected tartar in E. W. Feibleman, of New York, finally pulling out the match by scores of 6-3, 6-8, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5. Kinsey likewise snatched victory from defeat when he staged a sudden rally in the fourth set against Dr. George King of New York, to win by scores of 1-6, 6-4, 7-9, 8-6, 6-3.

The ranks of foreign stars were especially hard hit by the day's play.

VACANCIES IN QUEEN'S SQUAD

Leadley and Batstone Available for Back Division This Fall.

GAPS TO BE FILLED

MONTREAL, Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press).—Important shifts in the Queen's University squad, Dominion title-holders for the past two seasons, were forecast by Coach Bill Hughes yesterday on his return to Montreal after an absence of three weeks. Just what the moves will be the leader of the champions did not divulge but intimated that the back division of the tri-color this Fall would be a different combination from that which was so largely instrumental in bringing the highest honors to Queen's recently.

Baldwin, the youthful player from the United States, who subbed at quarter last Fall, is reported as not returning to Queen's this session which leaves Hughes without a quarter of any experience. The Ledley-Batstone half-back combination will be left intact and neither of the two stars will be used at the key position at least, according to the present plan.

Hughes will have plenty of line men left from last season to assure him just about as strong a front rank as in the past two years. But the back-field has been weakened by the graduation of Johnny Evans, Doc Campbell and Wally Quinn. G. McKelvey and Pres McLeod are available to bolster up with Batstone and Leadley, but otherwise there is a dearth of back division material.

Hughes was an interested spectator at the practice of the Montreal inter-provincial squad last night the unit which he led prior to assuming command at Queen's late in the Fall three seasons ago.

Practice at dribbling and formation drill just a trifle faster than on the previous evening was the lot ordered by Coach Greenwood in his schedule of conditioning the men for the more heavy line work to follow.

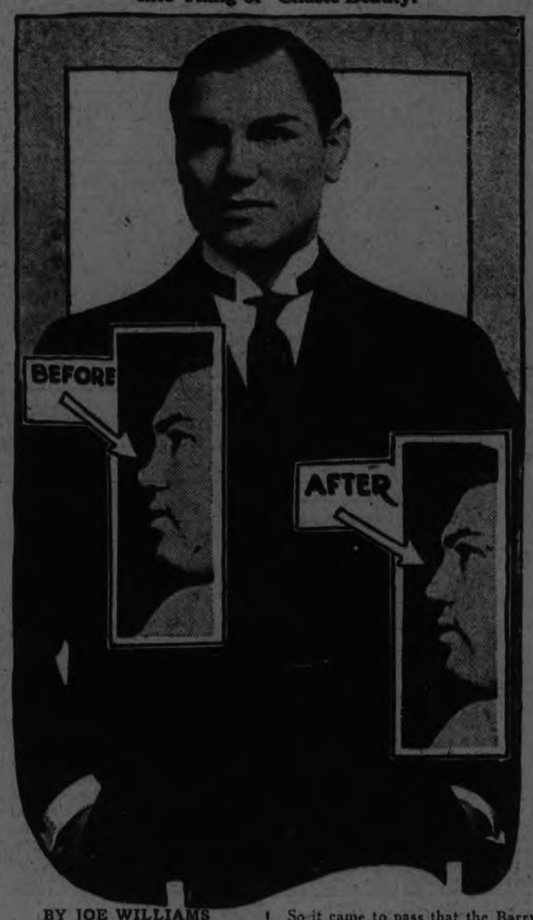
DEMPSEY'S NEW NOSE

Plastic Surgeons Transform Champion's Plebeian Beak Into Thing of Chaste Beauty.



BY JOE WILLIAMS

Mr. Jack Dempsey, gentleman of the fists, romantic idol of the silver sheets, and contributor of deathless passages to the realm of literature, has a new beak.

Perhaps it is more accurate to say Mr. Dempsey has a made-over horn, since the basic foundations of the original structure still remain.

Plastic surgeons have taken the plebian Irish nasal design which Mr. Dempsey has affected since infancy and worked it over into a perfectly intriguing Grecian pattern.

Those who knew the champion in his vulgar fighting days may recall that his inhaler turned up sharply at the end, much after the manner of a Turkish house slipper. This was all right for glove tossing tournaments, but not for the higher arts.

As Mr. Dempsey himself observed, "Whoever heard of an actor with a retrousse nose?"

So it came to pass that the Barrymore of Fistiana submitted his smeller to the mercies of the white-coated carvers, with instructions to build the thing over and blazes with the cost.

Dispatches announce the knife artists scored a scientific triumph. They gave the champ a face that only a mother could recognize.

Gone is the noble old pug nose of prize ring days. In its place appears a chaste, straight beezer plainly intended more for show than blow.

The boyish bob is expected to make Mr. Dempsey's bugle vastly more presentable for the cinema. What effect it will have on his performances in the ring is a matter of speculation.

In this connection the immortal lines of the good Marquis of Queensberry are recalled:

"Any nose will spread if you pop it right."

BUFFALO HAND BIRDS BEATING

But Lost Second Game by Wide Score—Beall Wins His 24th.

STARS DEFEATED

BUFFALO, August 27.— Buffalo and Baltimore split to-day's double header, the Bisons giving the Orioles a fine trimming in game number one, the score being 11 to 1.

The Birds annexed the second game, 12 to 4. Scores;

1st game

Baltimore	00 001 000	1	10 2
Buffalo	011 010 71x	11	15 0

Thomas and Cobb; Reddy and Hill

2nd game

Baltimore	041 510 1	12	17 1
Buffalo	121 000 0	4	8 3

Jackson, Groves and McCarty; Fisher, Williams, Barnes, Gordy and McAvoy.

Beall Wins Another

ROCHESTER, August 27.—Walter Beall won his 24th game of the season here to-day in pitching Rochester to an 8 to 4 victory in the first game of a double header, Jersey City won the second game, 5 to 4. Quellich and Sheridan hit home runs in the second game and Fred Merkle poled out his twentieth of the year in the first game. Scores:

1st game

Jersey City	101 001 001	4	7 1
Rochester	300 032 00x	8	13 3

Faulkner and Konnick; Beall and Lake.

2nd game

Jersey City	200 201 0	5	10 0
Rochester	003 001 0	4	8 0

Barnhardt, Zellars and Konnick; Gressett, Karpp and Munn.

Stars Hits Wasted

SYRACUSE, August 27.—Newark defeated Syracuse in a well played game here to-day by 4 to 1. The Stars could not hit Southpaw Swaney when men were on bases. A double header was scheduled but after rain had interrupted the first game for an hour's delay, the second game was not played. Score:

Newark	001 100 200	4	8 1
Syracuse	000 010 000	1	8 1

Swaney and Devine; Freeman, Reinhart and Mitze.

WAR STRENGTH OF RUSSIA

MOSCOW, Aug. 28.— According to Leon Trotsky, commissar for war the present strength of the Bolshevik army and navy is just under 600,000. The leader of the Red Army denied a statement made by the British war secretary that Russia now has a permanent army of 1,300,000.

FOOTBALL FAVORITE.

Polo as Popular With Public as Rugby and Tennis.

The Olympic Games show that football is more attractive to the public than any other game. The results were interesting, and were as follows, according to the gate receipts:

Football	1,800,000 francs
Athletics	1,600,000 francs
Swimming	400,000 francs
Polo	350,000 francs
Tennis	350,000 francs
Rugby	350,000 francs
Winter sports	115,000 francs
Boxing	100,000 francs

One of the most interesting deductions to be made is that, if polo, on account of its expense, is beyond the reach of the general public as players, it is, at any rate, a game appealing as much to the masses as a spectacle as lawn tennis or rugby football.

FANS URGED TO SUPPORT C.G.E.

Midland League Champions Start for Third Intermediate O.B.A.A. Title.

GAME ON SATURDAY

Baseball fans who have been pulling for a senior championship and attending the Petes' games at Riverside have a good chance Saturday to throw their support to Peterboro's intermediate entry, the Canadian General Electrics who are now in quest of their third successive championship.

They need the support of the fans and Saturday's game at the Exhibition Park with the General Motors team of Oshawa deserves a big attendance.

The C.G.E. have done their bit these last two years in keeping Peterboro on the baseball map, and with the loyal support of the public they will be helped materially in their present race.

President's Regards.

E. E. White of Cobourg, president of the Midland League of which the C.G.E. are the first champions sends his best wishes in a letter part of which follows:

"Allow me to congratulate the

H. T. McFADDEN,
Who is out after his third consecutive championship.

Peterboro Canadian General Electric team on winning the Midland League. They have my best wishes for a further successful season, and I would certainly like to see them champions of Ontario."

Rotary's Thanks.

Mr. Harry T. McFadden received the following appreciation from the Rotary Club of Peterboro in acknowledgment of their co-operation in the Rotary Carnival:

Dear Mr. McFadden—

On behalf of the Peterboro Rotary Club, I wish to express to you our deep appreciation of the assistance the Canadian General Electric baseball team gave us on the day of our recent Carnival. We understand that you and the members gave up any remuneration you would have received on that date as no gate receipts were taken. The cause to which we are donating these funds, that of aiding the crippled children in this community, is a worthy one and it is certainly gratifying to us to have your team give us this very valuable assistance. I wish you would convey to the members of the executive and the team, our very deep appreciation of the magnificent spirit shown in this instance.

Rotarily yours,
J. W. McHARDY,
Secretary.

C.G.E. Baseball Club.

It may not be amiss to mention at this stage the officers and personnel of the C.G.E. ball club in their request to the fans for active support during their remaining games:

President—H. T. McFadden.
Vice-President—Jos. Begley.
Sec.-Treas.—W. G. Nicholls.
Executive—J. Pilling, R. Hillier, F. Collins, W. Folger.
Players—A. Primeau, manager; A. Rose, captain; F. Barrie, K. Hardill, E. Dugan, S. McPherson, W. Ranger, Bob Ross, R. Galbraith, W. Frost, C. Turner, H. Wolfe, J. McCarney, C. McElroy, K. Hendry.

PHILLIES WIN FROM PIRATES

Pittsburgh Rally Failed By One Run—Cubs Whitewashed.

ONLY TWO GAMES

PITTSBURGH, August 27.—Philadelphia won an exciting game from Pittsburgh 7 to 6 to-day, a Pirate rally in the ninth inning, when they scored three runs, falling one short of sending the game into extra innings. Score:

Philadelphia	202 000 030	7	11 0
Pittsburgh	010 010 103	6	16 1

Carlson, Couch and Henline; Pfeffer, Adams, Stone, Meadows and Smith, Gooch.

Sothoron Fanned Nine

CHICAGO, August 27. — Allan Sothoron held the Cubs to six scattered hits to-day and St. Louis took the first game of the series 3 to 0. The Cardinal pitcher also fanned nine batters.

Hornsby delivered a single and double in four attempts and was robbed of a third hit by Adams' stab of a hard liner. Score:

St. Louis	001 010 001	3	10 2
Chicago	000 000 000	0	6 2

Sothoron and Gonzales; Kean and Hartnett.

LINDSAY POST NOTES ON KINGSTON'S VICTORY

Good-bye Peterboro! You did your best and did it well.

Peterboro's defeat at the hands of Kingston Ponies was expected. It has been felt that the Ponies have not been playing at their best during the second half, but when it came to the play-off series the Ponies were very much alive.

It was a surprise to many fans that Peterboro went as far as they did. The team was by no means a well balanced one. The infield was never to be depended on and third base and short stop have been a thorn in the side of Manager Solomon. Many a time "Shiner" Johnston cost runs, but he generally retrieved himself with good hitting. Collins was away off color Saturday last, but batted well. However, a winning team must be errorless and also hit the ball.

It has again been proven that to win the C.O.B.L. a club must have two bang up good pitchers. Oulette carried Belleville through suprisingly well, and Al. Heckman did all he could to win for the Petes. The trouble has been that too much was expected of both these pitchers.

On the other hand Kingston Ponies have had a strong, well-balanced team. The management has had plenty of good material to pick from and a strong right and left-hand pitcher to pilot them through. Gallagher has been of just as much help to the Ponies as Kelly, the import. Even Oshawa did not have the odd pitcher to slip in.

Peterboro needs a good shaking up next year. Most of all the Petes want a good left-hander.

After all is said and done the Petes deserve credit for going along as well as they have. Fans will not want to give the credit to Manager Solomon, but yet Jake is the best baseball fan the Petes ever had. He has done well with the material he had to work with, and what workman can do more.

In a sense it is a good thing for the League to have Kingston win it will keep baseball alive in the Limestone City.

'I'LL GET FIFTY HOMERS, ANYWAY' – RUTH

And What's More, the Slam bino Thinks He Has a Chance to Beat His Record Before Season's Over.

"How many home runs are you going to make this year, Babe?"

Recently I put that question to the games' greatest slugger, George Herman Ruth.

The day previous at Cleveland he had put two over the right field wall, bringing his season's total to 38. He missed a third homer in the same game by inches.

"Pretty hard to say, but I am going to keep on swinging and there is always a chance to make a homer when you have your cuts at the ball," replied the Babe.

"There is nothing new in that statement, you always take a healthy swing.

"I am interviewing you Babe, and want to know how many home runs you are going to make."

"Well, you can tell the world that I will make at least 50," answered Ruth.

May Break Record.

"Then you think you have a chance to break your record of 59 home runs made in 1922?" I ventured.

"If the opposing twirlers had pitched to me this year, instead of intentionally walking me so often, I believe I would be pretty well on to a new record at this time," said Ruth.

"A close race like we are having in the American League is going to handicap my chances of equaling or breaking my record of 59.

"I guess it is wisdom to pass a slugger in the pinch, where a long hit may win the game. Our pitchers do it, so it is only natural opposing twirlers should work the same way on me.

"I feel that I am meeting the ball much better this year than last. My July record of 32 home runs, one better than I ever made in any other month of play in the majors, is proof of it.

Biggest Month of Career.

"Perhaps is it too big a task, but I am shooting at 60 home runs and am positive that I will make at least 50."

Unquestionably, Ruth's ability to make home runs has made him the biggest card in baseball. Recently in a Monday game at Chicago, always a bad day, Ruth drew 33,000 to the White Sox park.

The fans like the batter who packs a punch, far more than the scientific hitter. If ever a guy packed a batting punch, it's Babe Ruth.

It will be decidedly interesting to watch his work down the home stretch in quest of 60 home runs, one better than his high mark.

The Babe is noted for doing the unexpected. He may break a record that experts predicted would stand for all time.

ROMMEL HANDICAPPED.

Catchers Won't Call For His Knuckle Ball—Uses It Anyway.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 28.—In 1922 Ed Rommel, star pitcher of the Athletics, won 27 ball games with a seventh place team in the American League.

Last season with a team that made a much better record, Rommel was unable to break even, winning 18 and losing 19.

This season Rommel again got away to a bad start. Since most ball players are superstitious, and Rommel being no exception, he requested that Bruggy, second string catcher, handle him rather than Cy Perkins, the club's star backstop. He thought Perkins might be the jinx.

In his last few starts Rommel has looked like his old self. It was Rommel who recently stopped the Washington club after it had won 10 straight. He blanked the Nationals, allowing only two hits.

Rommel is positive he has finally solved his trouble and explains it in this manner:

"My best bet is my knuckle ball. In 1922, when I won 27 games, I pitched it seven times out of ten.

"The knuckle ball is hard to catch. No one knows how much it is going to break. As a result it often makes the catcher look bad because of his inability to handle it cleanly.

"Last season my catcher called for my fast one and curve ball far more often than the knuckle. Neither is as effective a delivery. I had trouble breaking even.

"While I don't blame my catcher for not wanting to handle the knuckle ball I have taken the matter into my own hands and have gone back to it almost exclusively. And I am winning regularly."

OTTAWA VISIONS STRONGER TEAM

May Get Service of Jack Gardner for Back Line.

PRACTICING SOON

OTTAWA, Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press).—While much has emanated from cities regarding rugby prospects for the coming season, little has been gleaned on Ottawa's prospects in the Big Four. However, local officials have been hard at work, and when the inter-provincial rugby union schedule gets under way, the Red, White and Black will probably field a very strong dozen. Jack Gardner, former kicking half of the M.A.A.A. team is now located in Ottawa, and while it is not stated authentically that he will play the chances appear to be very bright. This is one department where the locals surely need strengthening as they have not had a consistent booter for a number of seasons.

At least two former McGill and Varsity players are located in the immediate vicinity, and will likely try for places. In addition there are a number of younger players who have been coming along steadily in junior ranks for the past couple of seasons, and should be fit for a try-out in bigger company.

Of last year's team, Captain Charlie Connell, Joe Miller, Joe Tubman, Jerry Timis, Eddie Emerson, George Green, Bill Shaw, and a host of others are available and when practices are called in the immediate future, there will undoubtedly be a hearty response from the players. A coach has not yet been appointed.

URUGUAY EXPECTED A SOCCER VICTORY

Football Fans Were Sure Their Boys Would Win at Olympics.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 28.—(Associated Press).—The surprise expressed in the United States and Europe that a little country like Uruguay should have produced a football team able to win the Olympic championship is not shared in South America.

Just as in the United States boys learn to play baseball as soon as they can lift a bat, boys in Argentina, Uruguay, Chile, Paraguay and Brazil learn to play soccer football when they are tiny tots. In all these countries football is the national sport, and it is considered no wonder that in Uruguay, or in any of them, world champions could be produced as the result of the universal devotion to this game.

Soccer football was introduced into the River Plate countries by the English 30 years ago and took an immediate hold. Since that time crack English and Scotch teams have come to the River Plate and gone down to defeat, as well as teams from Italy, Spain and Czechoslovakia. They found that they had nothing to teach the South Americans, either in the science of the game, or in skill and sportsmanship.

For the past seven years, annual South American football championship contests have been held which rival the World Baseball series in the United States in popular interest. One championship final between Argentina and Uruguay played in Buenos Aires drew an attendance of 60,000 persons. Of the seven championships so far held, Uruguay has won four, Brazil two and Argentina one.

The football rivalry between Argentina and Uruguay is particularly keen. In Buenos Aires or in Montevdeo teams of various categories play series of matches every year for different trophies and draw many thousands of spectators who cheer their favorite with an enthusiasm no less frantic than that of baseball fans at a game between the Yanks and the Giants.

It is a saying about Uruguay that there are only two classes of people in that country, those who play football and those who watch it. In Argentina there are more than a hundred football clubs in what is known as the first division, comprising the best teams, and many hundreds of other clubs of the inferior divisions. All are amateurs, for professional sport excepting pugilism, does not exist in South America.

WALES AT DANCE.

Prince Was Among Persistent Dancers Last Evening.

ON BOARD STEAMER BERENGARIA, August 28 (Canadian Press). — Notwithstanding a strenuous day of sport, in which he emerged from three events on the losing end, the Prince of Wales again was among the persistent dancers aboard the liner last evening. He also attended the ship's concert, which was well patronised.

After losing in the tug-of-war, and the potato race, the Prince engaged in a pillow fight his opponent being L. E. Bull, Harvard graduate. They exchanged spirited blows amid great hilarity, and Bull finally put the Prince out.

PASSENGERS INJURED.

ODESSA, Aug. 28. — (Canadian Press).—Forty passengers were killed and a larger number were injured when an express from Odessa to Moscow, which left here last night, was derailed 200 miles from here. The accident was caused by a break in the track, which apparently had been purposely torn from its bed by unknown persons.

If the bullet-proof armored mail-car, tried out by postal authorities on the New York Central tracks near Brewster, N.Y., becomes popular, mail-train robbers will have to seek less hazardous work.

As the "bandits" stormed the train, an automatic magnesium flash, released from within flooded the countryside with light and dazzled the hold-up men.

They kept blazing away, without making even a dent, until a mail clerk, safe from exposure, opened fire with a riot gun controlled through a special universal joint and routed them post haste.

FINAL FIXTURE TO-MORROW NIGHT

Juveniles Play at Exhibition Grounds at 5.30 O'clock Sharp.

Maple Leafs and Curlers clash tomorrow evening at the Exhibition Grounds in the final game for City League honours. Both teams have won one game in the play-off, and are rearing to get at each other.

Neither team is on the best of terms, and it will be a scrappy battle that will take place.

The Leafs took the first game by the score of 2 to 1, while the Curlers won the first fixture.

Everything is arranged for the battle royal and a large crowd of fans will witness the game.

These two teams have drawn a big crowd at every game, but tomorrow night the game will be witnessed by a bumper crowd, if good weather prevails.

Chuck Bradley was in the best of shape last Monday, and should be in better shape than ever for tomorrow's battle, as he has had a long rest.

Carl Wood will do the gunning for the Curlers, and he is also reported to be in the best of shape.

DO YOU KNOW BASEBALL?

BY BILLY EVANS

QUESTIONS

1. Batsman hits a foul fly to the first baseman, which is muffed. It is an easy chance. The batter then grounds out to the shortstop. A contends that since the batter is finally retired without any damage being done, the muffed fly is not charged as an error to the first baseman. B contends that regardless of what later happens the first baseman is given an error. Who is right?—R. C .N.

2. With the count two balls and two strikes on an improper batter, manager of team at bat discovers the mistake and substitutes the proper batter, who hits for a home run, winning the ball game. The manager of the team in the field contends the team at bat cannot make such a change. What is the proper procedure in such a play —H. D.

3. With three balls and two strikes on the batter he steps into a ball that was directly over the plate and insists he is entitled to first base. What about it—G. B. H.

ANSWERS

1. The fielder is always charged with an error on a palpable muff of a foul ball, regardless of what later happens. B. is right.

2. Manager of team at bat acted properly. The proper batsman merely took the count on the improper batsman, when the mistake was discovered. That is always the proper procedure in such a play.

3. This play is up to the judgment of the umpire. If he believed the pitch would have been a strike had not the batsman intentionally got in the way of the ball, he should have called it a strike and ruled the batter out.

AT THE ROYAL.

JACK HOXIE IN A THUNDERING WESTERN DRAMA, "THE MAN FROM WYOMING."

A graphic picturization of the ancient feud of the western range country between sheepmen and cattlemen is presented in the Universal photodrama, "The Man From Wyoming," showing now at the Royal Theatre.

Jack Hoxie, the hard riding cowboy whose daring horsemanship has graced so many western films, is starred in the production, and his beautiful white saddle horse "Scout," again figures prominently in this picture.

Hoxie plays the role of a sheep herder who gets into trouble with neighboring cattlemen and whose the cattle ranch. Lillian Rich, the life is saved by the girl owner of attractive heroine of "Man to Man," "The Kentucky Derby," and other big Universal productions, plays the role of the ranch owner.

The story is a version of William MacLeod Raine's famous novel, "Wyoming," and was scenarized by Isadore Bernstein. Robert N. Bradbury, directed.

SEES MARY PICKFORD'S NEW 'TESS' AS PICTURE SENSATION

Edwin S. Porter Who Directed the Famous Star in First "Tess of the Storm Country," Tells of Photoplay Making Eight Years Ago, When Original Film Was Made.

"I cannot see how Mary Pickford's own and strictly new production of that famous screen classic, 'Tess of the Storm Country,' can help being the photoplay sensation of the year. Every one of the millions who saw her in the original production made eight years ago is certain to want to see it again as produced under the marvellous advantages and improvements, in present-day motion picture making, and an entirely new generation of picture-goers has grown up since the first 'Tess of the Storm Country' was made."

Thus spoke Edwin S. Porter, who eight years ago directed Miss Pickford in the first "Tess of the Storm Country," and incidentally served also as the cameraman, and who, today, is head of the biggest concerns manufacturing projection machines.

"Despite the fact that the 'Tess' of 1914 was a really good picture from a producing standpoint, and was considered about as nearly as a motion picture could be," said Mr. Porter, "the opportunities for Miss Pickford improving on the original are simply tremendous. The first 'Tess' was a good picture as pictures were then made, but it would never stand up under the test of present-day methods and standards.

"Miss Pickford and I made 'Tess' under conditions that were anything but ideal. In December, 1913, we left New York for California. Miss Pickford had just come from the hospital and I felt I was just about to go into one—it was just at the time when I was organizing Famous Players, and that was a good deal of a strain.

"Arriving in California we found that out there nearly all the good screen players were tied up, so at first we made a picture called 'Hearts Adrift' which had only characters in it for the first five of the six reels. In February we decided to start work on 'Tess of the Storm Country.' We didn't have million dollar studios in those days. All we had was a raised platform, a camera, and a wonderful story and star. The only other two players I remember were Dave Hartford and Harold Lockwood. Hartford played the role of Tess's father, and Lockwood, the role of hero.

"Being from New York, we did not particularly please the picture colony out there. One of the reasons was because I took scenes nearly every day. You see, until then, directors always had contended it was impossible to take a scene unless the sun was directly behind them, and it was somewhat of a shock to them to see someone else taking scenes on all kinds of days—cloudy and clear, alike. By their method, you see, they would work only about five days out of fifteen, and then go out and cover the camera with a piece of dirty muslin to get cloud effects.

"We had no artificial lights at all in the days of the first 'Tess.' If we wanted a spot or a back-light we'd use a mirror with the sun. This is one phase of picture making where the new 'Tess' should show a tremendous improvement. We had only about three interiors, but when these were shown on the screen in the finished picture they produced a huge sensation. Imagine making interiors that way to-day—and without dozens of sunlight arcs to help out!

AT THE CAPITOL.

MIX AND TONY RACE ACROSS TRESTLE AHEAD OF LOCOMOTIVE

Daring Deeds Plentiful in Western Star's Latest Fox Picture Called "The Trouble Shooter," a Story of Wire Repairmen in Western Mountains.

Of his many deeds of daring, few equal in recklessness the latest performance of Tom Mix in his new Fox picture "The Trouble Shooter," which comes to the Capitol theatre today, Friday and Saturday.

Riding into the mountains to make repairs on wires ripped down by a terrific storm Mix, playing the role of a repair man, rides his remarkable little horse, Tony, across a narrow, swaying trestle directly ahead of a speeding train. The scene is one of the most thrilling Mix ever made and it was only after considerable persuasion that he urged Tony to the task.

Again in a ride through a blinding snow storm, Mix teaches the indomitable little horse to wear snowshoes. Between the two of them, there are more unique stunts of novel daring than even Mix and Tony ever attempted before.

In the cast with Mix are such notable players as Kathleen Key, Dolores Rousse, Mike Donlin, former big league ball player, Charles McHugh, Al Freemont, Frank Currier, Earl Foxe J. Gunnis Davis and Howard Truesdale. The original story was written by Frederick and Fanny Hatton, after an exhaustive investigation into the work of the "trouble shooters" in the mountain country of the far west.

The picture was directed by John Conway.

In the trestle scene Mix actually risked his own neck as well as that of his beloved horse. The ties were far apart and Tony had difficulty in picking the way at breakneck speed. Moreover, the plucky little horse which fears nothing it can see, was unable to glance backward at the approaching engine. The sound nearly terrified Tony, but still he placed his confidence in the big man up in the saddle to whom he has entrusted his life so often in the past.

"I reckon it was about the toughest test I've given Tony since I broke him," said Mix.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

"Too bad Walter Johnson has never had the opportunity to pitch in a world series."

For years that has been the sad lament of baseball fans and experts the country over.

Now that the Washington club is strongly in the running for the American League pennant, what about the world series chances of Walter Johnson.

Ever since his entry into the American League, Johnson has been noted for his terrific speed. "You can't hit what you can't see," has for years been the theory of American League batters in explaining their inability to hit Johnsons' fast one.

During the first two years of his career he attained fame as a big leaguer without the aid of a curve ball. Opposing batters knew they could always look for a fast one, yet found him the most difficult pitcher in the league to hit.

Later Johnson acquired a good curve, now has a deceptive change of pace, but he still tells you that the fast one is his one best bet. This, even after 18 years of campaigning in the big show.

Without a doubt Johnson's fast ball is just a little swifter than that of any pitcher I have ever umpired for.

Johnson can still pump the fast one through with as much stuff as ever, but he only bears down occasionally. He is now content to win with the least possible strain on his arm.

During the first twelve years of his major league career, I believe Johnson could have won a world series single handed.

A team looking at Johnson's great speed for the first time during that period of greatness would have found him almost unhittable.

The lively ball was not in use at that time. This feature must be given consideration when discussing Johnson's chances in a world series.

Speed is made to order for the lively ball, if the batsman can properly time the fast one. While speed, well controlled, is still a pitcher's greatest asset, it is not as dominant a factor as it was with the old style ball.

The curve and the change of pace is most necessary. Johnson boasts both and would in no way be handicapped.

However, fans and critics in discussing Johnson in relation to a world series, always had in mind his great speed.

However, fans and critics in discussing Johnson in relation to a world series, always had in mind his great speed.

The desire was to see what Johnson would be able to do with his fast ball. The display of speed was regarded as Johnson's punch in a world series.

I do not believe that Johnson's great speed would be as big a factor today as during the first dozen years of his career. Condition have brought about a change, the lively ball and short fences.

Still, if Washington wins the American League pennant, count on Walter Johnson to supply some world series thrills, with his pitching.

He is still a marvel after 18 years in the majors, most of the time with an also-ran club, that forced him to continually extend himself to win.

PETEBORO TEAM ENTERS PROTEST

Claim Kelly and Rickman Came Into Kingston After January 1st.

OSHAWA, Ont., Aug. 28.—(Special).—When Secretary Nott of the Central Ontario Amateur Baseball League, arrived home from the final game of the Peterboro-Kingston championship series, he found a formal notice of protest from the Peterboro Baseball Club, signed by President N. E. Phelan, as to the eligibility of Players Kelly and Rickman under the residence rule, contending that neither player was a resident of Kingston by January 1st of this year, and asked that the game of last Saturday and also that of Tuesday be eliminated from the League records. The protest was accompanied by a marked cheque for $25, according to the Central Ontario League constitution. A copy of protest was wired to Business Manager Booth and President Steacy, of the Kingston Baseball Club, this morning at 10.30, and the officials of the Kingston Club have 48 hours, or until 12 o'clock Saturday noon to have defence filed, accompanied by a cheque for $25, in the hands of Secretary Nott, of Oshawa.

STORES BUSY LAST EVENING

Yesterday Promises to Equal 1923 Midsummer Dollar Day.

Last evening saw a regular Saturday night crowd on the streets.

Most of the stores remained open until 9.30, and the shoppers busily hustled from store to store.

The Rangers' Band attracted large gatherings as they moved from corner to corner.

On the whole the prospects for yesterday's business promises to equal that of 1923 midsummer dollar day.

Early reports indicated that the morning trade was brisk. The afternoon was rather quiet until about 4 p.m., when a fair crowd was seen on the streets. But any deficiency or falling off in the afternoon was made up by the immense numbers that turned out in the evening.

A SOCIETY TIDBIT.

London All Set For Latest Scandal With Lots of Thrills Promised.

(By Percy M. Sarl, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, Aug. 28. — Nothing thrills London socially so much as when the marital battles of its nobility are waged in the open and to say that Society waited with open mouth to-day for the next move on the part of the Duke of Westminster, and estranged from his beautiful and athletic young wife, was to put it mildly.

Mayfair drawing rooms buzzed with excited conjecture as legal progress of the couples' differences seemed heading straight toward startling revelations.

The pretty duchess is aboard the Majestic, sailing for New York, and her attorneys to-day wirelessed her the result of yesterday's court proceedings. She had asked an injunction against the Duke against a technical eviction of the Duchess from Bourbon House, one of the Westminser's London mansions. His attorneys obtained a fortnight's postponement of the case. Accordingly the Duchess' maid, who was holding out in the Bourbon House against efforts of the Duke's servants to evict her, now can come and go—and incidentally obtain something to eat to make up for meals she lost when she first took up her post to represent her mistress the right to enter the mansion.

Although the whole affair is being carried on by proxy— the Duchess, en route to America, represented by a maid and counsel, and the Duke at Biarritz—the personalities of these two have made a vivid impression upon their friends, among whom they number Lord and Lady Mountbatten.

FISHERMAN DEAD.

Found Dead On His Small Schooner East of Cape Ann.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Aug. 28.—(Canadian Press).—Fallen back from his seat and with cap pulled over his face to keep the sun out of his dying eyes, an unknown Italian or Portuguese fisherman succumbed to exhaustion and exposure as his dory drifted about off the American coast yesterday, bare six hours before the steamer Prince Arthur, from Boston for St. John, came along to succor him. He was picked up 13 miles east of Cape Ann, and Dr. Baxter passenger on board the Prince Arthur, said he could not have been dead more than half a dozen hours. The man was about 30 years of age, but there were no marks on the dory or his clothing to identify him.

DENIES STATEMENT.

De Valera Issued Denial of Free State Statement.

DUBLIN, August 28 (Canadian Press). — Eamonn De Valera, Republican leader, to-day issued a denial of the statement given out by the Free State Publicity Bureau, yesterday to the effect that his speech at Dundalk on Sunday represented a change in his policy in regard to Ulster.

Mr. De Valera asserted that at no time had he ever put forward any proposal under which any part of Ireland would be free to set up a separate Parliament independent of the rest of Ireland.

JUDGE CAVERLY SETS THE DATE FOR SENTENCE

Takes Exception To Remarks of the State Attorney in Closing Argument.

CHICAGO, August 28. — After portions of the closing argument of Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, had been stricken out by John R. Caverly, as a "cowardly" dastardly attack on the integrity of this court, and an attempt to intimidate it, the court took under advisement to-day the penalty which he must decide for Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, confessed kidnappers and murderers of Robert Franks.

The remarks of the court came out of a clear sky and startled the crowded courtroom in shocked silence.

Mr. Crowe's jaw dropped and he blanched visibly under the judicial broadside.

"The state's attorney knows full well that his remarks would be heralded far and wide," said the court. "He knew, too, that the court would have no opportunity to defend himself against criticisms except by the action he has taken.'

The judge then announced that he would give his decision September 10th, at 9.30 a.m., "unless illness prevents."

Only the defendants, attorneys for both sides, court attches and newspaper men will be admitted to the final scene in the famous case.

In closing his remarks, State Attorney Crowe exclaimed:

"Recognizing that the age of murderers is between 17 and 24, with the average at close to 22, are we going to tell the world of the new law, written into the statutes of Illinois by Clarence Darrow and approved by the Chief Justice of the Criminal Court of Cook County, that youth is a militating circumstance?"

At another point he said: "There is no danger of a rich man going to a jail."

Mr. Crowe touched upon the "friendly judge" testimony, declaring that "if Leopold did not say that, as was testified by the officers on the stand, then, your honor, his actions in this court demonstrate it."

The court asked the stenographers to give him a special copy of Mr. Crowe's statement on this phase after Mr. Darrow murmured a suggestion to which the judge nodded assent.

ANNIVERSARY OF TANNEBERG SCRAP

Generals Von Hindenburg and Ludendorff Ran Rival Shows.

KOENIGSBERG, Germany, August 28 (Canadian Press). — Generals Von Hindenburg and Ludendorff ran rival shows here yesterday in celebration of the tenth anniversary of the Battle of Tanneberg.

The warriors made special addresses before two different gatherings.

Hindenburg, who appeared in full uniform, avoided discussion of the internal politics ,and spoke only of the historic past, mentioning "Our Fatherland" without referring to the changes in the Government.

At the other meeting, Ludendorff said that "so long as we have Government whose president disarmed the army and whose Chancellor is a member of the Catholic Party, whose aim is to destroy the Reich, and so long as a man like Maltzan promotes Bolshevistic ends in the Government, and so long as Stresemann is the Foreign Minister ,we cannot think of German freedom."

A notice on the door of the hall where Ludendorff spoke read: "No Jews admitted."

TWO GUARDS ARRESTED.

In Connection With Attempt of Serafini To Break Jail.

MONTREAL, August 28 (Canadian Press). — With two guards under arrest and a number of others under suspension in connection with the attempt on Monday of Giuseppe Serafini under sentence of death, to escape from Bordeaux Jail, it is expected the investigation now being made will have far-reaching and perhaps sensational results.

It is thought that at least a complete reorganisation of the system of the guards in the jails of the Province will be the outcome.

INSISTENT CROWD OF 15,000 AT EXHIBITION PARK LAST NIGHT DEMANDED PRESENCE OF THE PREMIER WHO RETURNED TO GREAT SPONTANEOUS OVATION

Recalled From Inspection of Chemong Bridge in Evening to Meet Night Throng.

ANXIOUS TELEPHONE CALLS LOCATED HIM

Remarkable Demonstration of Esteem to Premier as Climax of Reception.

PREMIER DELIGHTED

Thanked Immense Audience for Their Welcome and Paid Tribute to G. N. Gordon.

Last night's demonstration in the great civic picnic in honour of the Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King far exceeded the afternoon gathering and surpassed the fondest hopes of the organisers.

Fifteen thousand people crowded Exhibition Park to honour the Premier of Canada and his illustrious colleagues, and although he had already fulfilled his scheduled engagements for the day, he was compelled to answer the insistent calls for his presence at a late hour.

Share in his triumph and the centre of a demonstration all his own, G. N. Gordon, K.C. M.P., Deputy-Speaker of the House of Commons, was accorded applause on his every movement, and was scarcely able to make his way between the jostling crowds for the hands stretched out to congratulate him.

Following the afternoon's activities in which the Premier took an important part, and the reception held on the grounds, dinner was served to forty prominent city and county officials in the Peterborough Club.

Mr. Gordon presided, and in a short address announcing the programme for the evening, congratulated Peterborough on the honour the city had done itself in honouring Premier King. The day had been an unqualified success, thanks to the able assistance of those who had painstakingly worked out the programme during the past weeks and carried it out so well, and to those who had come from outside points to help Peterborough celebrate the auspicious occasion.

In order to give the Premier an opportunity to see the advances Peterborough has made in past years, and to point out the circumstances surrounding the Chemong floating bridge, Mr. Gordon arranged for an automobile tour after the dinner.

When the party had been despatched amid cheers, the second big parade of the day was set in motion, headed by the pipe band and Joseph Wearing's car.

In the meantime the sporting events had been run off at the Exhibition Grounds, under the supervision of Alex. Dick, Herbert Martin, Arthur Blade, and Robert Sturgeon, and dancing had started on the specially built floor to the music supplied by an orchestra.

Demand for Premier.

At half-past eight a desire manifested itself among the crowd gathered in the grand stand to hear the Premier speak again, and by nine o'clock this had grown to an insistent demand. The band of the 57th Rangers took up its position in the speakers' stand and presented a musical programme of unusual merit, but the calls for Mackenzie King continued.

Hon. Duncan Marshall, veteran Minister of Agriculture in Alberta, and now Liberal organiser in Ontario, presented the prizes won by Keene baseball team and 6th Line girls' softball team, and later gave a brilliant address.

Still the demand for the Premier persisted, now coupled with calls for G. N. Gordon, and at last a hurry-up call was sent for the party.

Telephone and messengers were pressed into service, and about 9.30 the Premier and his colleagues reached the grounds.

Near the entrance a dense crowd halted the car, and Mackenzie King answered the demand for a speech in his usual inimitable manner, followed by the other members of his party.

Being released from this gathering, and making his way with difficulty through the cheering throng, the four Government representatives managed to reach the speakers' stand. Here an ovation unparalleled in the history of Peterborough greeted them. The grand stand was crowded and in the driving ring between the stand and the speakers' dais there was scarcely standing room.

The entire assemblage stood to cheer the big four, while the band played "Rule Britannia," and the Premier, with beaming face, received the spontaneo s tribute to his popularity.

It was an epoch in the annals of Peterborough. By this multitude of cheering citizens future celebrations will be judged.

"Nearly as big as the reception given Mackenzie King on 28th August, 1924," will be the tribute future years will pay to a great day in the history of the city.

Appreciated Visit.

Mr. Gordon, in introducing the speakers, referred to the splendid meeting of the afternoon, which he thought was most inspiring. "But this vast audience to-night," he said, "surpasses any audience I have ever seen in Peterborough. It is some indication of where the Prime Minister stands in the estimation of the people of the city. The citizens of Peterborough have come spontaneously to show they value his coming here. I am grateful for your presence, and hope that next year we may have a community picnic that will, if possible, surpass this. I am doubtful whether that is possible."

Sounding out the opinions of the people, Mr. Gordon asked whether such a project would be supported next year, and a chorus of affirmation was the response.

King Stands Alone.

Hon. Duncan Marshall, who held the fort while Premier King was being located, declared that the Prime Minister had won a name for himself during the last session of Parliament and had established a record that would never fade. People antagonistic to his Government said that Sir Lomer Gouin and Hon. W. S. Fielding were the big bosses in the Mackenzie King Government, but when they were unfortunately compelled to retire from political life the Premier conclusively demonstrated the fallacy of the assertion.

"Mackenzie King did not go to pieces," he declared. "So long as these old members of the party were in harness he was just big enough to be fair to them, but when they dropped out he took hold of things himself and few sessions of the House of Commons have been better led than the last session when the dominating figure was the Prime Minister. He had something to do during that session that no Premier ever had to do before. It is an easy thing to win the support of one's own political party, but Mackenzie King had to win the support of two parties; he had to prepare a budget that would win the respect of the two parties. In four votes taken in the House during this session the Government majority was over one hundred, the four largest votes ever obtained by any Minister in Canada in any Government."

Referring to the Empire conference which he attended with the Premier, the speaker said the highest compliments were paid to Canada's Prime Minister for the wisdom and moderation of his pronouncements.

"By the reduction of transportation charges; lower tax rates; improved agricultural conditions, and the development of the waste agricultural land in Western Canada we will build up the finest agricultural country in the world," Hon. Mr. Marshall said, "and this will beget the greatest industries. Ten years hence the people of Canada and the Liberal party will be as proud of Mackenzie King as they were of that great statesman, Right Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier."

Advised the Young.

Premier King expressed his surprise in the growth of Peterborough and its apparent present prosperity, but said he was most of all pleasantly surprised by the huge concourse gathered last night. He noticed many young people present, whom he advised to determine early their outlook on life. There are two ways of viewing life; brightly with belief in one's self and in the country and Empire, or darkly, with face to the ground. "Mr. Meighen describes me as an optimist," he said. "I cannot describe him as other than a pessimist. I hope you young people will choose to follow me rather than him. I cannot see I any citize of this Dominion, more favoured than any other part of the world, can be other than an optimist. We can only make the most of our beauty and wealth by making the most of ourselves."

The distinguished speaker thanked the citizens of Peterborough for sending so brilliant a representative to the House of Commons as Mr. Gordon. "He has at heart the interests of those he represents and of the Province of which he is a distinguished citizen, and of the Dominion of which he is a brilliant servant. You will never go wrong by trusting your interests in his hands."

Party Still Happy

Hon. G. P. Graham said one definition of an optimist is "a man or a woman who can live with a pessimist and still be happy." "We have to live in the House of Commons with a pessimist, and we are happier than he is," he declared.

In a homily on the handicaps suffered by those who are born with silver spoons, the speaker said "Too many sons are forgetting how their fathers got their wealth. Don't ever worry; men who have risen to prominence and leadership have come from ordinary families, and started life empty-handed. The young man who is now Prime Minister of Canada owes a great deal to his parentage. He worked his way up from the bottom of the ladder to the highest gift in the power of Canada to be-

PETERBOROUGH PLEASED PREMIER

CANADA LEADING UNITED STATES IN RIFLE MATCH

Visiting Marksmen Unaccustomed to Lee Enfield After Only Week's Use.

RESULT AT RANGES.

Score For First Half Was 1578 To 1541 at Connaught Ranges.

CONNAUGHT RANGES, Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Canada won the first half of an international rifle match match from the United States here Thursday by 1,578 points to 1,541 points. The picked United States team was obliged to shoot with the Canadian service arm, the Lee Enfield, and although they practiced with it for one week, the marksmen were unable to accustom themselves to it. The Canadian team will play the return match in the United States next year, using the American service rifle, the Springfield.

A special trophy has been provided by the Dominion Rifle Association for the match and another trophy will be provided by the United States next year. Yesterday's match consisted of 15 rounds per man at each of three ranges: 800, 900 and 1,000. It is hoped by officials here that the match will lead to the revival of the Palma trophy series, formerly shot between Canada and the United States.

The highest individual score was by Sergeant F. H. Morris, Montreal, with 213 points out of a possible of 225. The highest score of the United States marksmen was made by Lieutenant J. F. Phillips, Corps of Engineers, with 198 points.

Other high aggregates of the match were made by C.Q.M.S. Ashe, Victoria, B.C., 201, and C.Q.M.S. A. Parnell, Montreal, 200.

Major K. K. V. Casey, team captain of the American team, last night said that he considered his team fairly outshot. He did not consider the strange rifle as a handicap, except possibly insofar as it being strange, the men might not be accustomed to its peculiarities.

Connaught Ranges, he said, was one of the finest rifle ranges he has ever shot on, and he considered it one of the finest equipped ranges he had seen anywhere.

The weather was good but an uncertain wind and a bad mirage made it hard for shooting. A large gallery witnessed the match.

Lt. Morris and Sergt. Freeborn, who shot yesterday, are old Palma trophy veterans, both having shot in the match of 1912. It was during this match that an Ottawa shot, Sergt. Russell, made 222 points out of the possible 225, creating a record which has never been beaten in a Palma trophy match.

SCHOONER WRECKED.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Aug. 29.—(Canadian Press).—The fishing schooner Dorcas was reported swept aground on the coast near here last night. Her captain was reported to be dead as a result of the accident. Details of the reported wreck were not available.

One-Quarter More Road Work For The Same Cost

OTTAWA, Aug. 29.—(Canadian Press).—With construction expenditure curtailed and labor rates the same as last year, fully 25 and 30 per cent. more work is being done for the same money this season on federal aided highways in Eastern Ontario and Quebec A. W. Campbell, Commissioner of Highways states on his return from an inspection of some 900 miles of federal aided roads in the two provinces.

Mr. Campbell says the year is closing many gaps on through routes which will result in a continuous serviceable road between Windsor, Toronto Montreal, Quebec, St. John, Halifax and Sydney, a distance of about 2000 miles.

FAHY ADMITTED ROBBING MAILS

Confessed Part in Two Million Dollar Hold-up — Searching for Loot.

CLOSELY SHADOWED

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—William F. Fahy, "ace of postal inspectors, now under arrest on the charge of being the "master mind" in the $2,000,000 Rondout mail robbery, was forced into the crime by denizens of the underworld who had "something on him," according to the theory advanced by postal Inspectors, who are still engaged in running down his movements and looking up his associates just prior to the train hold-up.

Chief Inspector Clarahan of New York who worked with Fahy in Philadelphia before the latter came to Chicago five years ago and who thought his comrade's record beyond suspicion, told of this theory, saying:

"Fahy was a gay one among women. In fact, the fellows called him the Lothario of the service. He 'stepped out' on occasion, and one of these times, about ten years ago, he did something unwise that put him in the power of a ring of criminals."

"You may be sure the post-office authorities would not have arrested and charged Fahy unless they had the goods on him," said Clarahan.

Other Crimes Hinted.

"We are convinced from evidence we have obtained that the same brain that planned the Rondout robbery schemed the others in this part of the country.

"We are convinced also that Fahy framed Big Tim Murphy in the Union Station robbery and government inspectors now en route to Leavenworth will try to get Murphy to tell all he knows about 'the man higher up.'"

Since the Rondout robbery it was disclosed plain clothes men have followed Fahy everywhere—to meeting with criminals and to cabaret parties with women where his salary of $3,500 a year was spent in a night. They even tapped his telephone wire.

Confronted with the detectives' evidence, Fahy is said to have talked. All that fellow inspectors, now his inquisitors, would say of the conversation was that he insisted he had no intention of doing wrong in instances related by the men who shadowed him.

Start New Hunt for Loot.

Fahy apparently made no effort today to gain his release on $50,000 bonds. Government officials opened a new hunt for the $2,000,000 lost in the Rondout robbery. They believe it is secreted somewhere in Chicago.

They expressed the belief that Fahy and James Murray, a west side politician, already under indictment in the case, are the ones to whom the money and securities went during the panic that ensued after one of the bandits was shot by his leader during the robbery.

Safety deposit boxes in downtown banks to which Fahy is known to have had access were broken open under the direction of Rush Simmons, Chief Postal Inspector of Washington, who arrived this morning to take charge of the investigation. The boxes yielded nothing.

"We know that Fahy is too smart to hide the loot in so obvious a place," Chief Simmons said, "but we are not overlooking any bets."

PREMIER DEEPLY MOVED BY CITY'S ROYAL WELCOME

"Surpassed All My Expectations," Hon. Mr. King Acknowledged on Departure.

GRATEFUL TO ALL

"Good-will Shown Me Has Been Overwhelming," Said Premier.

In a special interview given the Examiner last night just before he left Peterborough, Rt. Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King expressed his delight in the beauty of the city and marvelled that such conditions should pertain in a city with the diversified industries that are met here at every turn. "It is a great delight to see the size of the industries and note their stable character," he said. "Their evident prosperity is an indication of what they may yet develop, and I am convinced that once our policies get under way all of your industries will prosper still further."

The Premier reaffirmed his belief that the success of all industry is dependent upon the development of the natural resources of the country. Every finished product of factory and workshop—all of the contents of every home—the food on the tables and the clothes that are worn, can be traced back to the soil. The groundwork of all industrial expansion must be laid in the development of the Dominion's natural resources.

"That," said the Premier, "is the policy of the Liberal Government; to develop the basic industries. It cannot be done in a day or a year, but I am satisfied that a good start has been made and a solid foundation laid for rapid expansion in the no distant future. We believe in building from the ground up, and the result will be no mere flimsy structure that is pretty to look at but of no utility. The success of future generations depends upon how well we build." The Prime Minister found it impossible to express his feelings in regard to the reception accorded him in Peterborough. "It surpasses all my expectations," he remarked. "The goodwill shown me has been overwhelming. Mayor Turner was especially solicitous for our comfort and entertainment, and the book of views given me on behalf of the City by Alderman Crowe is a kindly memento that I will keep as a reminder of a happy visit."

Commenting on the success of the picnic, the Right Honorable speaker said the desire of the people to meet him last night after having heard him previously in the afternoon was an episode that touched him deeply. The spontaneous enthusiasm of the audience was another feature and the excellent programme provided by the organizers of the picnic received the Premier's commendation.

TRAIN KILLS SEVEN.

Automobile Struck at Grade Crossing Near Toledo.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Aug. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Seven persons were killed and one child seriously injured last night when a Baltimore and Ohio Railway train struck an automobile on a grade crossing at the southern limits of Perrysburg, a village in Wood County, twelve miles south of this city, on the Dixie Highway.

PRINCE LOVEABLE CHAP, SAYS DAVIS

Former U. S. Ambassador to London Hopes to Meet Wales on Trip.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee, hopes to greet the Prince of Wales before the heir to the British throne returns to his home.

Mr. Davis said yesterday on his return from Columbus, Ohio:

"I certainly shall meet the Prince if my political engagements permit. I know him personally. He is a very loveable chap and possesses great tact. I have had numerous examples of this.

"The last speech I made in London was at a dinner at which the Prince was a guest. So was Arthur Page, son of the late Ambassador Thomas Nelson Page. Learning of young Mr. Page's presence the Prince asked me for an introduction. He greeted him with great cordiality, praised the late ambassador highly and asked solicitously after his mother.

Prince's Speech Tactful.

"The first time I ever heard the Prince speak was at the Royal Academy dinner in London. It was a very formal affair. Great artists, writers and public men were present.

"During the speech-making the name of that distinguished artist, Sir Edward John Poynter, retiring president of the Academy, was not mentioned. He had served for twenty years.

"The Prince, I believe, had never spoken in public. But he arose and called attention to the fact that no mention had been made of Sir John Poynter. He expressed great regret at the oversight. He then proposed a toast to the slighted official.

"Some thought the incident very cleverly staged. But the Prince's secretary assured me that the Prince had acted spontaneously."

A BARN DESTROYED.

LINDSAY, August 29. — Mr. Henry Hurren, who resides on the 3rd Concession of Eldon, had his barn destroyed by fire on Monday.

The season's crop of hay, also a good crop of fall wheat, a quantity of dry lumber, and a new buggy, were also burned.

A stack of hay which had been built near the barn also caught fire, and was destroyed.

Spontaneous combustion is thought to have been the cause.

JUDGE DECIDES CIVIC OFFICERS DISQUALIFIED

If They Have Any Business Dealing With the Municipality They Serve.

CASE IN LEEDS, ENG.

Would Have Effect of Preventing Capable Men Entering Civic Affairs.

LONDON, Aug. 29. — (Canadian Press).—Municipalities throughout the United Kingdom are perplexed by a ruling just made by a judge of the King's Bench division of the High Court of Justice disqualifying directors of companies from serving on public bodies with which the companies have trade.

This judicial decision was given in a case in which a citizen of Leeds had taken proceedings against an alderman who was a director of a firm which held large contracts with the Leeds Corporation. The plaintiff made no suggestion of anything improper in connection with the case, but in fact admitted that the municipal corporation stood to benefit by this particular contract.

The judge took the view that any man having an interest in any company beyond being a mere shareholder became disqualified from serving as a member of a municipal corporation.

Will Be Appealed.

This decision will be appealed against. In the meantime, however, aldermen and councillors of proved integrity naturally feel uncomfortable. Curiously enough, the point in question never arose before the present instance.

It is asserted that if the judgment is confirmed on appeal it will have the effect of driving good men away from service on such bodies as town councils even more than is the case at present. It is difficult now to get such men to serve, and they would not be likely to add to their public duties the responsibility of watching that their firms did not accept orders from the municipality they happened to be serving in an official capacity.

Some directors whose firms are already involved in trifling contracts with municipal corporations have resolved to make the municipalities gifts of the value of the contracts. One Sheffield firm has declined to proceed with a housebuilding contract to the value of nearly £100,000 because of the new ruling.

RADIO DETECTS INSECTS AS THEY FEED ON LEAVES

JOHANNESBURG South Africa, Aug. 29.—Thanks to the radio, fruit growers will hereafter be able to determine through the sense of hearing whether apples and other fruits are wormy. Dr. C. K. Brain, professor of entomology at Stellenbosch University, has conducted a series of experiments along this line, as a result of which he has drawn the conclusion that worms and bugs can be detected with certainty by radio.

Dr. Brains' method was simply that of attaching to an ordinary wireless telephone n unusully strong microphone. He took parts of twigs of an apple tree known to be infected with the larvae of the apple worm, and placed them in a box connected with the microphone. Through the receiver he could distinctly hear the movements of the larvae, as well as the nibbling of insects at the leaves. Likewise he placed a wormy apple in the box, and the microphone registered the noise made by the worm as he nibbled away at the apple.

A third experiment consisted in detecting the presence of the weevil in corn.

ANOTHER ALASKA RAILROAD

JUNEAU, Alaska, Aug. 29.—Alaska soon will have another railroad, according to articles of incorporation filed here by the Terminal Railway and Power Company of Hydro Alaska. The company is to build a standard gauge line from Hyder up to the Salmon River Valley to the Alaska-Canada boundary line, a distance of 12 miles, and a two-mile branch from the main artery leading to the Texas Creek mines.
